TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 11. (CP)—Industrials recorded an index gain of .52 at noon today but all other groups were down. Sales at 1 p.m., were 631,000.

In the gold group Buffalo Addison lost earlier gains and was boarded unchanged at 170. Regcourt, another strong gainer at the opening slipped slightly and posted a 5-cent gain and God's Lake was up five. Cochenour lost morning gains, slipping five, while East Sullivan was off 10. Arnfield continued yesterday's activity, two cents higher at 43.

New highs were boarded for several industrial issues, Goodyear at 110, Walkers at 81 1-4, Eastern Steel Products at 27 and Donnaconna at 12 5-8. Base Metals continued the downward trend set this morning. Noranda lost 3-8 at 55 1-2 and Falconbridge continued its drop, off 15. Steep Rock lost five.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Sept. 11 —(AP)— Selected stocks attracted a fair amount of support today but light selling put many market leaders in the losing category.

The pace slowed appreciably after an active opening and the direction was indefinite near the fourth hour.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 11 —(CP)— Hogs were unsettled and other classes steady in trading today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 223, sheep and lambs 576, hogs 240, calves 338.

Cattle were cleaned up yesterday and offering today were of fair to just good quality. Good steers 11.25-11.75; medium 10-11; common down to 8; good butcher cows up to 9; medium kinds 7.50-8.25; common 6.50 up; canners and cutters 5-6.25; good butcher bulls 8-8.75 and commoner kinds 6.

Good veals 13.50-14.50; just medium 12-13; drinkers 8-9.75; grassers 6-9; good quality lambs 13; bucks 13; medium 11 and culls 7. Sheep 3-6.50.

Hog buyers bid 18.50 for Grade A with no takers. Sows were 18.50 dressed.

JAPS IN SOUTHEAST ASIA, INDIES SURRENDER

Gen. MacArthur Pleased With Way Occupation Going

Tokyo, Sept. 12 —(AP)— American occupation authorities tonight pressed the roundup of 47 Japanese war leaders and renegade Occidentals as a gift of blood from a Pennsylvania sergeant probably saved the life of Hideki Tojo, principal architect of the 1941 Pearl Harbor assault.

Gen. MacArthur, extending his list of "wanted" men to include seven of the notorious Black Dragon society's top terrorists, ordered dissolution of that jingoistic secret organization, which the Japanese claimed had disbanded more than a month ago.

One of those caught, however, was Heinrich George Stahmer, German ambassador held chiefly responsible for bringing Japan into the Rome-Berlin Axis. Stahmer came to Tokyo in 1940 as a special envoy on the Axis deal, was rewarded by being named Hitler's envoy to the Nanking puppet government, and then became ambassador to Tokyo.

Tojo, who attempted suicide yesterday, admittedly to escape trial as the main Japanese war criminal, but who missed his heart with a bullet from a pistol taken from a downed American flier, rallied strongly tonight after the transfusion of B-type whole blood and injections of penicillin.

Capt. Roy Gold of Montreal, a medical officer in the United States Army, reported that Tojo's condition was "very satisfactory."

The blood donation came from Sgt. John A. Archinal, a veteran of New Guinea and the Philippines, who said: "I'm doing this so he can get his just dues and suffer for the 17 months he made me spend in New Guinea."

Gen. Eichelberger said Tojo shot himself with a U.S. army air corps pilot's pistol.

Tojo said he fired his hasty pistol shot yesterday as American War-Crimes Investigators pounded at his door because he "did not want to stand before the victor to be tried." Yet trial seemed certainly in store for him and many of his henchmen.

Puppet Ambassador Held.

First to be detained of the 39 others that Gen. MacArthur had ordered held were Jorge Vargas, puppet Philippines ambassador to Japan; Mark Lewis Streeter, American captured at Wake Island by the Japanese and charged with later making propaganda broadcasts for them from a prison camp; Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan, and Col. Alfred Meisinger, police attache at the German embassy.

Ambassador Stahmer's confinement in the Fujiya hotel at Miyarishita was described as "protective custody."

Also on the wanted list, Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, Tojo's navy minister, was quoted by Domei as explaining he had decided against suicide and had "nothing to say while awaiting the War-Crimes trial he expects."

Vargas was taken in Tokyo along with his two sons. Streeter was found aboard the American hospital ship Marigold, where he had been sent with other liberated prisoners of war. Meisinger has been held for several days.

RECOVER $300,000 BONDS ROBBED FROM BATH BANK

Found in Wooded Hideout in Chicoutimi District of Quebec

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP) — Bonds worth $300,000 recovered from a wooden hideout in the Chicoutimi district of Quebec were brought to Toronto today by provincial police and it was reported that all had been taken in an armed robbery last Aug. 20 at the Royal Bank of Canada branch in Bath in the Kingston district.

It previously was reported that $10,000 in cash and an unestimated amount of securities were taken in the Bath holdup and the new figure of $310,000 in both cash and bonds makes it the largest bank robbery in Canadian history. The previous largest was the robbery of a bank at Ayr, Ont., of $50,000 in securities and $19,000 in cash earlier this year.

Royal Bank officials in Toronto said they were unable to confirm that the bonds taken at Bath were worth $300,000 but they thought "that figure is about right." All the bonds were registered and not negotiable by anyone except the owner.

Search for Lauzon

Montreal — (CP) — Police of several provinces and border officials watched today for Ulysse Lauzon, 22-year-old jail-breaker, and his 18-year-old wife Eileen following discovery of a large cache of stolen bonds in the Chicoutimi area.

Last reports on the Lauzon movements placed them in New Brunswick, with the possibility that they were heading towards Nova Scotia or were attempting to cross the border into the United States. The information came from a woman arrested at Quebec, who had been travelling with the Lauzons during their attempts to elude the dragnet spread over Quebec province during the last 10 days.

Arrest of the woman, her name was not revealed by police, came a short time after discovery of a huge cache of bonds in the Chicoutimi area where the couple formerly had a hideaway.

Alamogordo, N.M., September 12 — (AP) — The fantastic facts about the atomic bomb crater, a saucer-shaped depression, 2 feet deep and a half-mile across, where the top quarter-inch of New Mexico's red-gray soil boiled and bubbled and then coiled into a carpet of jade and turquoise-colored glass, were released today.

A party of 31 writers and photographers, a dozen army officers and five scientists spent half an hour in the crater Sunday afternoon in the first public inspection. The group was led by Maj.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the atomic bomb project.

The tour's purpose was dual:

1. To tell the almost incredible story.

2. To show first hand that the facts do not bear out Japanese propaganda that apparently tried to lay the oundation for claims that the Allies won the war by unfair means.

This New Mexico bomb was big, its effects comparable to the bombs dropped on Japan. What happened here was used purposely to avoid the chances that the actual bombings would inflict bizarre and non-military sufferings.

The great jade saucer lies in the centre of a square of tall mountain ranges. It is smooth except at the centre where there is a small, shallow bowl-shaped depression of red-gray earth where the boiling soil was blown away.

The central bowl is 300 feet across. Out beyond the rim of the great jade saucer is a ring where the earth was wiped bare of vegetation. This mile-wide ring was the annihilation centre.

Beyond that signal wires five feet above the ground vaporized, their stubby poles were knocked down and the low desert bushes still lean outward as if the great atomic wind were blowing them.

Snakes were killed. Ground squirrels and other small animals died. A bat was found miles away, hanging apparently unharmed but so shocked that it did not attempt to get away from men. There was the stench of death for about three weeks, all from small animals.

The atomic heat that boiled the earth's face is still a military secret. The British official report stated that it was millions of degrees at the centre of the explosion.

VICTORIA CROSS WINNERS SPEAK IN THE COMMONS

Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt And Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes Ask for Better Treatment of Soldiers

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP)—The problems of fitting Canadian soldiers still overseas back into the pattern of civilian life with adequate peacetime jobs has been brought into parliament by a Victoria Cross winner who literally moved from a German prison camp to a seat in the House of Commons.

Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, (PC - Vancouver Burrard), who won the Empire's highest award at Dieppe in 1942, asked government assurance in the House yesterday that soldiers overseas would be protected in their chances for jobs in relation to those now getting discharges in Canada. And he also called for government leadership in creating full employment.

Col. Merritt, one of two V.C. winners who set the pace of Throne speed debate for parliament's crop of new members, said he offered his advice to ministers humbly, as a new member and as a young man.

He gave them credit for being good administrators but said something more was needed.

They should take the public into their confidence, tell the people what they wanted and how they wanted it done and why. They should get around the country and see how their policies try and see how their policies were working as a general went out to see his troops after issuing an order and before deciding on his next move.

One-Handed Observer Lost With His Ship

Emouth, England, Sept. 12 — (CP)—Bill Salter wanted to go to war and did, despite the fact he was born without a right hand.

Rejected by the R.A.F. he volunteered and was accepted by the Royal Observer Corps and was posted as an aircraft identity expert aboard the liner Empire Broadsword which took troops to Normandy and brought wounded men back.

Salter is listed as missing now. The Empire Broadsword struck a mine and the one-handed spotter went down with her.

TREASURER NOT BLAMED

Hamilton, Sept. 12 — (CP) — After a heated session lasting more than two hours, city council last night approved by 16-4 vote a motion that charges of "slap-happy" borrowing against the city treasurer had not been proved. The charges were made earlier this year by Alderman Leslie Par-

10,000 Ford Employees Of Canadian Plant Quit Work After Strike Vote

Windsor, Sept. 12 (CP) — Approximately 10,000 employees of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, quit work at 10 a.m. today in a strike which has been threatening for more than a week.

The decision to strike was taken Tuesday night at a meeting of a joint policy committee of Locals 200 and 195 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) and stewards of Local 200, organized in the Ford plant. It is the largest automotive union local in Canada.

A mass meeting of workers was called for 7 p.m. in the city market building to hear reports from union leaders.

No Immediate Statement.

There was no immediate statement from either the company or union on the strike, fourth at the giant Ford plant in as many years.

Strike action was approved by members of Local 200 in a union-conducted ballot Aug. 29 - Sept. 1. The vote was taken on the issue of a new collective bargaining contract with the company containing provisions for dues checkoff, maintenance of membership, two weeks holidays with pay, maintenance of take-home pay at existing levels even if the work week is reduced, veterans seniority and other matters.

Even as the strike ballot was being taken, Federal Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell named a three-man conciliation board to inquire into the dispute. Headed by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor of Edmonton, chairman of the National Wartime Labor Relations Board, it held public hearings in Windsor last week.

Findings Not Public.

Findings of the board have not been made public by the Labor Minister but union officials here said last night they had [illegible] a summary which showed that only two of ten points advanced by the union were dealt with. The summary showed that Mr. Justice O'Connor and Bora Laskin, of Toronto, union nominee, recommended that the two parties agree to the voluntary check-off clause for the life of the agreement. Mr. Laskin recommended a maintenance of membership clause. Stabley Springsteen, company nominee and a Windsor lawyer, was said to have opposed both.

Union officials said that the board recommended what they described as a union suggestion that the question of veterans seniority be discussed from time to time by a committee representing the company, the union and recognized veterans' associations.

Dispute Dates Back to '44.

It was said that the board decided not to take action on the following demands: full employment, job security, proper wages to maintain higher standards of living; guaranteed annual income, longer vacations with pay, added compensation for work on holidays and $25 weekly lay-off pay for 3,000 employees already laid off.

The dispute dates back to a strike involving 14,000 Ford employees in April and May, 1944. The union called the strike over interpretation of grievance procedure outlined in a collective agreement. The company immediately gave notice of termination of the agreement on the grounds it was breached by the strike.

A temporary agreement was laid down by the National Board as the basis of union-company relations after the men returned to work. It was patterned after the old agreement with some changes in grievance procedure. Later the Federal Department of Labor named Mr. Justice S. E. Richards of Winnipeg, as a commis[illegible] a new agreement.

FRESH PROTESTS AGAINST MEAT RATIONING MADE

Saint John Dealers Decide to Stop Selling Sept. 24th if Rationing Continues

By The Canadian Press

Fresh protests against the re-introduction of meat rationing came last night from Canadian meat dealers, amid increasing talk of retailers' protest strikes.

A gathering of approximately 95 per cent of the meat dealers of Saint John, N.B., decided unanimously to stop selling meat Sept. 24 if rationing — now in its third day — is not withdrawn by that date. The meeting was called by the meat dealers' section of the Saint John branch of the Retail Merchants Association.

Copies of the Saint John resolution were ordered sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, to Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, and to D. King Hazen, Member of Parliament for St. John-Albert.

Strong Opposition

A resolution opposing meat rationing of any kind was passed by a meeting of more than 100 London, Ont., meat dealers and will be sent to the Prime Minister and to Mr. Gordon. The dealers decided to ask customers to "talk up" opposition to meat rationing and to sign protest petitions which will be pooled next week at a mass meeting of London and district food merchants and forwarded to Ottawa.

Opposition to the rationing plan is said to stem from complications of the scheme — which combines coupons and blue fibrewood tokens with various values depending on the kind of meat—and allegations from some dealers that trimming expensive cuts within a two-ounce limit causes wastage and loss of profits.

A meat dealer in London, Ont., closed his store until 1.30 p. m. Monday while he tried to figure out "how the thing was supposed to be done." Asking the average butcher to work out the values of the coupons and tokens was, he said, "like putting a three-year-old kid in sixth grade."

Canada's second meat rationing plan — the first operated between May 27, 1943, and Feb. 29, 1944—gave Canadians tokens for the first time since any kind of rationing was introduced after the

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME LIKELY TO END SEPTEMBER 30

Will Return to System of Daylight Time During the Summer Months

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP)—The clocks of Canada in company with those of the United States, are expected to turn back one hour Sept. 30 as war-enforced daylight saving time ends and the country returns to the prewar standard time system.

State Secretary Martin announced Tuesday that the Government has decided to revert to standard time and said this change would be made at a date to be announced shortly.

Replying to a question from Opposition Leader Bracken, he said there was a great desire to synchronize Canadian time tables with those in the United States, where the revision to standard time probably will take place Sept. 30.

(In Washington Tuesday the House of Representatives Interstate Commerce Committee voted unanimously to do away with daylight time in the United States at the end of this month. If this action is approved by Congress—and approval seems certain—the changeover will be made in the United States at 2 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 30.)

Mr. Martin told the Commons he hoped to be able to announce in a few days the date on which the change will be made in Canada.

With the return to standard time, Canada is expected to revert to the prewar system of having daylight time effective during the summer months and standard time effective during the winter.

Introduced as a power-conserving measure, compulsory daylight time was first enforced in certain sections of Ontario and Quebec in 1941 and the following spring was extended to the whole country.

Periodically during the war representations, mostly from farmers and agricultural associations, were made to the Government for a reversion to standard time on the grounds that the advanced time imposed a hardship on rural residents whose children had to travel long distances to school.

FRANCE SEEKING SMALL CHANGE IN ITALIAN BORDER

French Inclined To Favor Leaving Port Of Trieste in Hands Of Italian Govt.

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 12 (AP)—France presented to the conference of foreign ministers of the world's five big powers today her views on a proposed peace treaty for Italy, insisting at least on the principle of repatriations.

Outlines of British and American view indicate both governments have opposed collection of repatriations from Italy because they were eager to get the Italian economy back on a sound basis.

The French views, it was learned, were these:

1. France wants a small rectification of her border with Italy, mainly on the Alpine frontier around the towns of Labrigue and Tante and would like complete control over the Roya Valley, on the frontier just north of the Mediterranean.

2. France disclaims any desire to annex the Valley of Aosta in Northern Italy, but wants guarantees either in the treaty or by joint international pledge that the French population in the area will be given home rule by Rome.

For International Authority.

3. The French are inclined to side with Britain and the United States on Trieste—to leave the city in Italian hands, but establish an international authority to assure Austria, Czechoslovakia free use of the port.

4. The French are prepared to accept the British and American plan to place the bulk of the Italian colonies under Italian trusteeship. This would remove Rome's sovereignty, but retain Rome's rule. The French view is that Italy must have an outlet for emigrants.

5. The French demand all the East African area known as Fexxan. It is a strategic link between Lake Chad and North Africa which belonged half to France and half to Italy before 1935. At that time it was turned over to Italy, French diplomats say, by Pierre Laval.

6. The French desire border rectification of Tunisia's inland frontier with Italian colonies, seeking certain bases which are important on the desert routes.

7. France wanted restitution for goods stolen by the Italians during the war, such as locomotives and machine tools.

Reparations in Principle.

8. France is insistent on at least the principle of Italian reparations. The French say they are not seeking any large sum for the general war damage but that they are anxious to get a small sum as a matter of principle.

It appeared likely that France would be satisfied on most of her territorial demands, although there probably would be some debate over Eastern Libya and Italian Eritrea, which the British are reluctant to turn back to Italian control.

Britain wishes to give part of Libya to Egypt and Eritrea to Ethiopia and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Officialdom Silent Over Future Of Abandoned Giant Ocean Liner

New York, Sept. 12 (AP) — The giant, $60,000,000 liner Normandie, once the pride of the French merchant marine, is lying abandoned at a New York pier—her future locked behind silent doors of officialdom.

No one—not even President Truman—seems prepared at present to say what will happen to the fire-ravaged ship, now gathering rust and barnacles.

The United States navy says merely that an announcement will be forthcoming, probably soon.

Repairs have halted, although the U.S. government spent nearly $14,000,000 trying to convert her into a troopship after sparks from a welder's torch set off a fire which left the once-magnificent ship a charred hulk, capsized at her pier.

Inquiries disclosed that shipping interests and government agencies concerned had little inclination even to talk of the Normandie—or the Lafayette as she was re-named when the United States took over the craft after the fall of France.

The French consulate-general's office here said frankly the French government had no interest in the vessel at all.

A spokesman for the French line, which operated the Normandie before the Vichy government was established, shrugged, said the line was not concerned, and referred questions to the U. S. navy department.

No payments have been made to the French government since the liner was seized and became an American ship. If she is restored, it is unknown whether she would sail under the French or American colors.

Japanese Give Up Most Expansive Conquests of War

585,000 Men Involved In Surrender to Allies

By MARC PURDUE

Singapore, Sept. 12 —(AP)— Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten received the surrender of all Japanese forces in Southeast Asia and the East Indies today from Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, representing the ailing commander of the Japanese southern armies, Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi.

Promptly after the ceremony the Allied Southeast Asia commander announced he would tolerate no arrogance from the Japanese, and told his troops in an order of the day that they would have his support "in taking the sternest measures against any Japanese attempt at obstinacy, impudence or non-co-operation."

The order of the day underscored Admiral Mountbatten's previous stern announcement that "we are going to treat our enemies with justice and humanity, but we are going to be their masters."

The surrender involved about 85,000 Japanese troops in the Singapore area and some 500,000 soldiers and sailors in "the southern regions"—Southeast Asia and the East Indies.

By the instrument the Japanese gave up the richest and most expansive conquests of their long campaign of aggression—an area stretching 4,500 square miles from the Bay of Bengal to Hollandia, embracing 1,500,000 square miles and populated by 128,000,000 people.

Allies Look On.

Lt.-Gen. Sir William J. Slim, commander of Allied land forces in Southeast Asia, and Lt.-Gen. R. A. Wheeler, of the U. S. Army, Deputy Southeast Asia commander, as well as representatives of the Netherlands, Australia, France and China looked on while Admiral Mountbatten signed 11 copies of the surrender instrument, using a fresh pen each time.

The ceremony began in the council chamber of Singapore's flag-draped municipal building at 11:15 a.m. (11:15 p.m. E.D.T. Tuesday) and was concluded in a few minutes. Itagaki signed for Terauchi, who Admiral Mountbatten said had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage at his headquarters in Saigon.

But Terauchi himself will have to make a personal surrender as soon as he is well, Admiral Mountbatten made clear, adding that "his sword is the one thing I want out of this war."

Reads Telegram.

Admiral Mountbatten opened the surrender ceremony by reading a telegram from Terauchi, expressing "regret" at being unable to attend and authorizing Itagaki to act for him. Then he read a statement saying that large Allied forces were disembarked in the Singapore area and that at present about 100,000 were ashore.

He read the surrender instrument hurriedly and the signing began. When it was over the Japanese envoys departed with escorting Allied officers.

Seven Japanese had been seated at the table opposite Admiral Mountbatten during the ceremony. They remained silent throughout, scarcely moving except when one of them handed to Itagaki the document authorizing him to act for Terauchi. This in turn was handed to Admiral Mountbatten, who read it aloud.

The Japanese envoys included both army and navy officers, but all wore uniforms of khaki, white open-collar shirts and packboots.

Behind Admiral Mountbatten and the Japanese, at either end of the room, were arrayed the Allied staff officers in multicolored uniforms, local dignitaries, and released prisoners of war and internees.

Labor Delegation Begins to Disperse From the Capital

Ottawa, Sept. 12 (CP) — A Labor Union delegation began to disperse from the capital yesterday with the warning that much more than their appearance here would "be required through public pressure to induce the government to change its apparent trend towards capitulation to the demands of the corporate interests."

Spokesmen for a rank-and-file movement born of protests against lay-offs in eastern Canada war plants, the committee left a meeting with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and five other members of the cabinet with the statement that:-

"The government offered general assurances that the reconversion needs of Canadians now are adequately met. But in the opinion of the committee, the government still has failed to recognize the necessity for immediate, practical action. Particularly was this so in terms of sustaining purchasing power as a means of maintaining a high level of production with full employment."

Never Better Code Claimed.

The labor department in a later statement quoted Labor Minister Mitchell at telling the committee "never in the history of the country has there been a labor code such as provided by P.C. 1003."

He announced that the wartime wages control order being reviewed and urged "a chance to get the country back on its feet."

The committee represented some 250 delegates who, in turn, claimed to represent more than 200,000 members of unions embracing both the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor, Canada's two major labor organizations. Their movement started in Toronto but spread to points in Ontario, Quebec and Maritime provinces.

Press and Radio Will Give Time Regt. Will Arrive

While this newspaper and county papers, when possible, will carry the full account of the time of arrival in the city of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the information will be carried also over the air in last minute broadcasts, Secretary Harold Bateman of the District Reception Committee announced today. Toronto and Kingston radio stations have informed the secretary of their willingness to co-operate in the matter.

Canadian National Railways police officers have stated their willingness to co-operate with local police in handling the tremendous crowd which will be on hand to welcome the returning warriors.

It is expected that a large area of the station platform and adjoining grounds will be roped off to enable the regiment to form up properly prior to the march through city streets.

Present plans call for a march-past of the unit with the salute being taken by Brigadier Howard Graham, D.S.O. and Bar, on a reviewing stand to be erected on Pinnacle Street in front of the main entrance to the County Court House. Thousands of people can be accommodated on the spacious lawns of the County Buildings, and there will be plenty of room for visiting civic, municipal and military dignitaries who will be given places of honor for the event.

Returned "originals" and other soldiers who served with the regiment overseas will, according to present tentative plans form up at the Armouries, and under command of their own officers will parade to the station to greet their former comrades.

Circular letters of instruction have already been forwarded to mayors and wardens of the centres in the two counties and these in turn will notify reeves of the district townships.

Two Young Girls Held in Custody

Two eighteen-year-old girls were taken into custody yesterday by city police on the charge of working the ancient racket of relieving gentlemen friends of their coin of the realm by the simple expedient of taking them to cabins and after indulging in the wine of the country, making off with the financial spoils.

The girls, it was stated, had a yen for returned soldiers and had worked the game successfully on two different occasions before police caught up with them. They are being held in the county jail awaiting hearing.

A Madoc resident will have some tall explaining to do to the bench in the near future regarding three beer and two wine permits found in his possession. He was apprehended on a breach of the L.C.A. and the customary search revealed the permits.

UNIVERSAL OIL CO-OP

London (CP)—Howard A. Cowden, president of the United States Consumers Co-operative Association, said a world-wide oil co-operative that eventually would operate its own oilfields, refineries and tankers will be discussed at a London conference next month.

MRS. ANNIE AGNES BROOKS
(Murray Township)

Trenton, Sept. 12 (Special) — Mrs. Annie Agnes Brooks, wife of Mr. Dennis Brooks, died at her home in Murray Township, near the Murray Canal, on Sunday, Sept. 9th., after an illness of many years duration.

Born at Brighton the late Mrs. Brooks was in her 56th year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McDonald. All her life was passed in the district where she was born and in the community she was highly esteemed. She was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Blackwood Beattie, Kingston, and Mrs. Harry Ross at home; two brothers, Wilfred McDonald and Cris. McDonald both of Brighton; five sisters, Mrs. Rose Cooper, Toronto; Mrs. Teenie Cooper, Brighton; Mrs. Bruce Perry, Brighton; Mrs. Vera Brooks, Toronto, and Mrs. Francis Cooper, Trenton.

The funeral took place from McNair's Funeral Home, Trenton, on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 11th, and the service there and at Carrying Place cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. D. Martin, pastor of King Street United Church, Trenton.

The bearers were Henry Brooks, Thomas Brooks, James Brooks, Blackwood Beattie, Harry Rose and William Johnston.

LATE MYRTLE MAY BLY

The funeral of Myrtle May Bly, age nineteen days, took place from the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Bly, Cannifton Road, on Tuesday afternoon. The service there and at Elmwood Cemetery, Corbyville, was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

EDWARD FLUNDER

Edward Flunder, 18 Donald Street, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday evening.

The late Mr. Flunder, who was in his 80th. year, was born in England and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flunder. For some time he lived in Syracuse, N.Y., and thirty-five years ago he came to this city to reside. During his active years he was engaged as a painter and decorator. In religion he was a member of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church and was well esteemed. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order, the Oddfellows and the Orange Order in Syracuse, N.Y.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Nellie Fox; six daughters, Mrs. Murney Wannamaker, Toronto; Mrs. Thomas Warner, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Carl Corlies, Belleville; Mrs. David Patterson, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. George Clarke, New York State, and Mrs. Wilfred Burshaw, Belleville; two sons, Edward Flunder and William Flunder, both of Belleville.

Baseball Playoffs Now Started at 5 P.M.

With the moving ahead of game time to 5 o'clock instead of six, the semi-final playoff series of the City District Baseball League is proving much more satisfactory to the fans, the players and umps alike.

Wednesday night the league officials ordered the game to be started at 5 o'clock with the result that the Juniors - SWACOS game was completed to nine innings; the fans were satisfied; the umps didn't have to worry about darkness.

Thursday night at 5 o'clock Latta and Bata will tangle in their fourth game of the semi-final series to decide who will meet Juniors or SWACOS. Both teams have a win to their credit and one game has been tied.

On Friday night at the same time, Juniors and SWACOS resume their battles. Juniors have won one and one game has been tied.

Rural Dean A. B. Payne Appointed Anglican Diocesan Commissioner

Has Been Rector of St. Thomas' Church Here Since 1931

COMMISSIONER A. BEAUCHAMP PAYNE

Announcement of the appointment of the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne as Anglican Diocesan Commissioner for the Diocese of Ontario was made yesterday by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario. This is the first appointment of its kind for the Diocese of Ontario.

Rural Dean Payne is resigning his offices as rector of St. Thomas Church here and the rural deanery of Prince Edward. The appointment takes effect on October 16, and the new commissioner will make his headquarters at Kingston.

With Mrs. Payne and two sons, David and Beauchamp, Commissioner Payne will remove to Kingston, as soon after the date of appointment when housing accommodation is available.

The new commissioner was born at Cowbridge, Glamorganshire, South Wales, and was educated at Cowbridge Grammar School and Smythe's Naval College, Portsmouth.

Came to Canada in 1900.

He came to Canada in 1900, locating at Rosser, near Winnipeg and engaged in farming for two years. Deciding to take Holy Orders he entered St. John's College, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, and in 1908 he was ordained deacon by the late Bishop Grisdale, and appointed to the curacy of St. John's Church, Moose Jaw, under the Venerable F. Wells Johnson.

In 1909, he was raised to the priesthood and was appointed priest in charge of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Moose Jaw. In 1910, he became the first rector of that parish.

His next charge was at Indian Head, where he was made rector in 1916, and in 1923, he was appointed rector at Shanavon, Sask., where he also held the office of rural dean. In 1926, he came to Lansdowne Rear with residence at Athens, Ont., where he served until his appointment as vicar of St. Thomas' Church here in 1931.

At the time of leaving the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, he was a member of the Diocesan Committee, and of the advisory of the Qu'Appelle Diocesan School for Girls. A few years ago he was made rector here and also rural dean for Prince Edward.

Long Military Career.

Commissioner Payne has had a long and honorable military career and at present holds the rank of Major and Chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank). He wears besides his service ribbons of the First Great War, the Efficiency Decoration.

He served as chaplain in the 60th Regiment of Canada (King's Royal Rifles) on formation of that unit in 1911. When war broke out in 1914 he went overseas as chaplain with the 11th Battalion, C.E.F. and served in France with No. 1 Canadian Casualty Clearing Station. On return to Canada after the war he became associated as chaplain with the 16th Canadian Light Horse.

Removing to Belleville he again took up his military duties and was appointed chaplain to the Argyll Light Infantry with the rank of major to which he was promoted in 1915. He has been one of the guiding forces of the regiment here and the popular "padre" will be missed by all ranks. However, Commissioner Payne stated today that he is not severing his connection with the regiment here and will continue to visit it from time to time when duties permit.

Active in G.W.V.A. Work.

He was active in the early work of the G.W.V.A. being vice-president of the Saskatchewan Provincial Command. Later associating himself with the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., he was made one of its national chaplains. He is at present connected with the Belleville Branch of that war veterans' organization.

Mrs. Payne is the former Miss Marion Moore, formerly of Stirling. The two sons of Commissioner and Mrs. Payne served in the Second Great War.

TRENTON

Police Court.

Trenton, Sept. 12 — Forty cases came before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton police court on Tuesday, when twelve were fined the usual $2 for illegal parking; six $10 and costs for breach of the Liquor Control Act, and one $50 and costs for a second offence, and one was enlarged.

Thomas Laidlaw, charged with careless driving, had his case dismissed. Laidlaw's car backed up at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets about a month ago and hit Mrs. Baldini, injuring her. The Magistrate was of the opinion that as Mr. Laidlaw was only backing up slowly it would not be termed as careless driving and he dismissed the case.

Louis Vigneux paid $10 and costs for switching markers on a car for which they were not issued. He also paid $5 and costs for speeding, as did Edward Smith and Marc Rousseaux.

Two others paid $4.50 for failing to obey traffic signals.

A juvenile, charged with breaking and entering, was made a temporary ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Ross Masters charged with obstructing the police in the executing of duties was fined $25 and costs.

Another man who recently returned to Canada was fined $50 and costs for careless driving.

H. Hearns, charged with vagrancy, was given a warning by the Magistrate and allowed to go, as was J. Stewart, for a similar offence.

Patrick J. Dowd, charged with vagrancy, was given seven days to date from the day of his arrest.

Kiwanis Members Given Address On "Electronics"

"Electronics will be the most glamorous industry of the future" J. C. MacFarlane, Vice President of the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto, told members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Mr. MacFarlane has been with the company for more than 25 years entering the organization as a legal advisor. The address was one of the most interesting that has been given to the club in some time because it did not deal with the question in a scientific manner but rather from the layman's point of view. The speaker was introduced by R. A. Pringle and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Garn Dobbs.

The speaker explained that a short definition of electronics was a current of electricity from a conductor going out into space and causing a lot of commotion. The word was coined by Lord Kelvin fifty years ago and scientists say that all atoms contain electrons that are relatively free to run around. Comparing the size and weight of the atom was far too technical for the members because a billion billion atoms would not cover the head of a pin and in weight it takes three billion, billion, billion to weigh one ounce. He described the modern vacuum tube, which control the volume and movement of the atom. The speaker stated there were three ways of distributing the atom, boiling, scaring it out and yanking it out. The modern power tube boiled out the atom, the photo-electric tube scared them out and the X-ray tube yanked them out. "The clistron tube" said the speaker "used in radar is the most outstanding tube so far developed."

The cathode tube is another outstanding mechanism and was made in Canada before it was manufactured in the United States. He stated that electronics was the life work of a great many scientists and the personnel of the electronic world included Arraday, Volte, Hertz, Gilbert, Franklin, Marconi, Fleming, Watt, Edison, De Forest, Langmuir, Arnold, Armstrong and many others. He showed how electronics had furthered communications, the modern long distance telephone, the radio for entertainment, talking movies and world of pure music. Mr. MacFarlane did not delve into the developments of electronics during the war because the full story cannot yet be told but he stated they would surpass the human mind when exposed. It was explained how electronics had aided the industrial, agriculture, and medical world.

The members were invited to attend the district convention being held at Oshawa next Tuesday and also the party that is being arranged for the club members and their wives at Roblin's Lake. "Spike" Pryke and Mrs. Eddie Logan are co-chairmen for the event. Lorne McDougall presided at the luncheon with Albert Jones collecting the fines and Bruce Lattimer leading the singing. Bill Navin presided at the piano. A number of guests many of them returned veterans were introduced to the members and a welcome was extended by the president.

Soldier Given Warm Welcome By Grandmother

She was a little old lady, just 94 years of age. She had seen five wars come and go, but the other day there was a gleam of happiness in her eyes that revealed a pleasure that comes rarely in a lifetime.

She stood on the station platform here, eagerly leaning forward and scanning the war-worn faces of Canadian soldiers returning from overseas.

Her face lighted up. She pushed forward in the crowd that thronged the Canadian National Railways station platform here, and within a minute was clasping a stalwart young Canadian artillery sergeant in her arms.

Tears stole unheeded down her cheeks. She did not see the interested looks of spectators. The lad she held in her arms was her grandson, Sgt. C. R. Crosby, R. R. 1, Belleville, who had served overseas for the last five years with the 34th Field Battery.

Sergt. Crosby's family was there to meet him, but the warmest welcome he received was from the little old grandmother, Mrs. James Crosby, of Dufferin Avenue, whose cup of happiness was complete when she embraced the gallant grandson on his return to home and loved ones.

ATOMIC BOMB

ed. It was not made by gouging out and blowing away earth, except right at the base where a few score of barrels of dirst were blasted out. This depression was made simply by pressure which pushed the solid earth straight down. The pressure is also a secret, except or the British official estimate that it was many million times the 14½ pounds a-square-inch pressure of the atmosphere.

The great bomb exploded only 100 feet above the earth here. The result was to make the crater soil temporarily radioactive. It was still emitting X-rays when the party entered Sunday. To read the strength of these rays, scientists carried what looked like camera boxes, each with a long, solid snout.

The boxes gave readings showing the rays would not harm anyone remaining a short time, perhaps for hours. But they indicated that more than a month after the July 16 explosion the rays were still strong enough to make spending a day and night right in the crater a possibly risky business.

One box whose meter was set wrong nearly caused a mass exit when its dial showed X-rays as powerful as doctors use or treatment.

The camermen were warned that the mild rays were strong enough to fog plates and film if pictures were not taken rapidly.

Before he entered every man donned white canvas foot-bags shaped like shoes. This was to insure that no grain of radio-active sand might enter his shoes to remain for weeks after the expedition.

The members scattered over the crater picking up souvenirs of atomic glass, hunting bits of partly-melted iron, occasional pieces of red glass colored by iron in the dirt, charred bricks and stones with one face boiled. At the centre the explosion had blown away the glass, except for a few small pieces an inch thick and far harder than those of the jade carpet.

In the carpet were fantastic shapes. Often there were small clods of earth encased in glass not much thicker than an egg shell. The enclosed dirt was unchanged showing that the atomic heat spent itself mostly in a fraction of an inch of earth.

Just in the outer rim of complete destruction sits Jumbo, so named because he is a huge, stubby bottle of steel, with walls about six inches thick. He was neither harmed nor blown over although the tower above him was seared and laid flat. Jumbo is 800 yards from the centre of the explosion, and a good marker for the fact that the blow of an atomic bomb loses its punch rapidly with distance.

Late Sunday the writers circled above the crater in a plane. Far off on the Mesa they could see cavalrymen riding guard. Every entrance to the area is closed by military guards 25 miles from the crater.

The plane view indicated that the crater is disintegrating rapidly in the occasional rains. Already the dried beds of rivulets run down to the centre and cut crooked swathes in the carpet. They are destroying the amazing outer contours, which from above, look like a bursting spot of blue-green flame, frozen right at its peak, with long, slender fingers reaching out hundreds of yards.

In the Sunday party was the man who directed the making of the bomb, Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, head of the secret laboratory in northern New Mexico.

He said the Japan heights of explosion — still secret — were picked so that there would be no indirect chemical warfare due to poisoning the earth with radio-active elements, and no horrors other than the familiar ones due to any great explosion.

Gen. Groves and the scientists said there were no dangerous neutron rays unless there may have been some in the flash itself. These rays travelled with the speed of light, and, in the main, did not travel as far as the death-dealing heat and pressure. The General explained that all bomb explosions have freakish results in spots and that atomic bombs are no exception. An example at Hiroshima was a Japanese unhurt on a concrete platform which was all that remained of a good-sized building. This man might have suffered from blast injuries, plain heat, falling debris or X-rays, but none of them appear to have harmed him.

Early Japanese reports claimed people were dying of strange burns, days after the explosion, when they had been apparently unharmed. They reported that a ray counter showed rays still coming from the earth days after the explosion. Gen. Groves said the symptoms given in these early Japanese broadcasts were the wrong symptoms, medically, for the troubles they were supposed to describe. The Japanese reports did not disclose the amount of rays coming from Hiroshima nor explain that the counter they used shows similar rays all the time, everywhere on the face of the earth.

Gen. Groves said there were evidences of some Japanese deaths due to radio-active rays, but that the information now available indicates that this number was relatively small.

Gen. Groves said reports now coming to the army from the Japanese themselves state definitely that 11 days after the Hiroshima bomb fell, it was safe for a person to move permanently into the centre of the blast area and live there all his life if he wished.

Dr. Oppenheimer said that one hour after the blast it probably was quite safe for rescue workers to be in the centre of the blasted area.

The latest Japanese reports state that rescue workers from outside Hiroshima who were not present during the explosion have shown no signs of ray trouble. Early Japanese reports declared that rescue workers who entered the area a week afterward showed dangerous low white blood counts. But revised information indicates that these workers were in Hiroshima when the bomb burst.

Japanese reports declared that hair and teeth fell out and that people had digestive troubles. Medical scientists explained that too much X-rays can cause hair to fall out, usually temporarily, and will cause stomach troubles. They said there is no evidence to support falling-teeth stories.

Evidence from plants on the Hiroshima parade grounds shows that the atomic bomb planners succeeded in their efforts to spare the Japs from the rumored, lingering hobgoblin horrors. Plants are so sensitive to radio-activity that they are used for tests of danger points. The Hiroshima parade ground plants which were close to the bomb blast centre are budding apparently unharmed.

The Board of Directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society have completed plans for what they say will be the "biggest and best" exhibition in history of the Society which will be formally opened at the Fair Grounds, Monday evening by Warden J. Fred Wilson, M.L.A., before the grandstand.

The office of Secretary Erle Denyes and his assistant, Miss Ruth Dunning, has been a hive of activity for the past ten days with entries in all classes of livestock, grains, poultry and other phases of the Fair, coming in in a consistent stream.

Well known for its outstanding therds of dairy cattle, Hastings County and its sister districts' breeders will have on display an outstanding array of the cream of bovine aristocracy. In conjunction, from distant points, will be the choice selections of beef breeds. Sheep, hogs and poultry entries are well to the fore while the horse classes entries are near a record if not establishing a new one.

In the building will be lavish displays of rural and urban merchandise while war auxiliary services will occupy one of the buildings with exhibits of their war work. The Belleville Shrine Club will have a display of prizes amounting to $1,000 which will be drawn for on the last night of the fair.

Lovers of harness-racing will enjoy field days on Tuesday and Wednesday when the best trotters and pacers in the province will vie for track honors. These trials of speed have attracted outstanding drivers and horses and the purses are generous. In addition there will be running races for enthusiasts of this sport.

In front of the grand stand a de luxe stage entertainment has been arranged for under the capable supervision of popular Billy Garden, who has catered to the public here along entertainment lines for the past decade.

Big Midway Attractions.

Then there is the Midway, a streamlined exhibition of brilliant lights, whirling wheels, tented shows, mystery, music and mirth. Games of chance and bingo, rides that are breath-catching and features of educational history and many other attractions will be there for the public's entertainment.

The Baby Show has attracted an unusually large number of entries in both classes. Proud parents will be on hand to see their cherubs vie for championship honors and many substantial prizes are awaiting the winning.

All-in-all the 1945 edition of the Belleville Fair bids fair to be an outstanding event in the history of the city and county, and the same large crowds that patronized the exhibitions of the past few years will no doubt be on hand again to visit and enjoy this agricultural show-window of the county and district.

TERMITES IN TORONTO

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP) — City officials said yesterday termites have made their first recognized appearance in Toronto, possibly in Canada, and have been reported in a large manufacturing plant and three homes.

Civic officials have conferred with provincial and Federal authorities on the appearance of the pests.

BIRTHS

THOMSON — Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thomson, Foxboro Road, are happy to announce the birth of their son, John Howard, in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday, September 10th., 1945. — a brother for Gary.

ROWE — At Picton Hospital on September 11th., 1945, to Lieut. and Mrs. David Rowe, a son—a brother for Donna.

DEATHS

BRIDGE — In the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning, September 10, Mrs. Doris Mabel (Corby) Bridge, 268 George Street, in her 49th. year.

Resting at Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, whence the funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon, September 13th. Service in the chapel at 2 o'clock. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

Hiroshima Damage "Much Greater" Than Expected

San Francisco, Sept. 12 — (AP) —Allied experts returning from atom-bombed Hiroshima reported today the destruction was "much greater" than they had expected, but that there was no dangerous radio-activity lingering in the area, radio dispatches said.

American broadcasters quoted Col. Stafford Warren, chief medical officer of the atom-bomb project for three years, as saying that 70,000 to 100,000 Japanese casualties at Hiroshima would be "the best guess." Most, he added, were from blast, missiles and fire; and the casualties from radio-activity resulted from exposure at the instant of the explosion — rather than afterward

He said the investigators had tested the area but found nothing to support Japanese claims that radio-active matter remained in the area.

The bomb was designed as a blast weapon and radio-activity was confined to the point of detonation, he added; and he also denied Japanese reports that gases had been released by the bomb.

He reported 68,000 buildings destroyed or damaged — 80 to 90 per cent of the city, with the area completely devastated for a radius of 1¼ miles. Buildings three miles distant were half destroyed, he said.

Rev. A.L. Sisco Inducted In Tweed Charge

The order of service: Call to worship; Hymn 153; Responsive Psalm 7-14; Scripture readings Rev. J. R. Trumpour; Prayer, Rev. A. Poulter. Anthem choir; Induction: Minister inducted by Chairman of Presbytery, Rev. A. Poulter; Hymn 148; Address to the minister, Rev. J. R. Trumpour, Cannifton; Address to the congregation, Rev. J. A. Dilts, Belleville; Offering; Hymn 344; The minister was conducted to the pulpit and pronounced the Benediction.

At the conclusion of the service a reception was held in the church parlours. The ladies of the congregation served a dainty lunch after which words of welcome were addressed to Mr. Sisco and family by Clarence Graham, John Sager, Thos. Beatty on behalf of the congregation and Mrs. Geo. Gordon, President of W.M.S., Mrs. J. Reeves, President W.A., Mr. S. H. Connor, choir leader. Rev. Mr. Sisco expressed thanks for the kind and warm reception and pronounced the Benediction.

Compare your complexion with your shoulders. You'll find your shoulders look 5 or more years younger. Why? Because shoulder pores are kept clean by your regular Palmolive Soap baths—and so, able to breathe freely. But face pores, clogged with dirt and make-up, can't breathe freely and soon your complexion loses its flexible softness and ages before its time. That needn't happen to your complexion. Palmolive offers an easy way to keep it radiantly lovely.

You can look younger in 14 days! Wash your face 3 times a day with Palmolive, and each time, with a face-cloth massage Palmolive lather into your skin—for an extra 60 seconds! This easy Palmolive Massage stimulates the circulation, clears the pores to help your complexion regain its flexible softness, become softer, smoother in just 14 days!

Jap Surrender Party Arrives At Singapore

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

Singapore, Sept. 12 — (AP) — Japanese officers in brass and braid gathered here Tuesday to join Lt.-Gen. Seishiro Itagaki in surrender to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten today.

However, the Japanese still were showing a tendency to appear at their own convenience. Three lieutenant-generals who were expected to arrive Monday night had not put in their appearance by noon.

Gen. Itagaki, as Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese 7th Army area, will go through with the ceremony in place of the ailing Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, who has convinced British medical officers sent to Saigon to examine him that he is too ill to come to Singapore. However, he will be brought here later.

It has been established Terauchi is actually paralytic, but he is not bedridden or even confined to a wheel chair.

Japanese labor parties under Indian guards toiled under the hot sun preparing the site where the surrender ceremonies will take place.

Congressional Medal Awarded Gen. Wainwright

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP) — President Truman on Monday presented Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright with the Congressional Medal of Honor, the United States highest decoration.

The presentation came as a complete surprise to Gen. Wainwright, and was the highlight of a day in which Washington acclaimed the hero of Corregidor.

More than 200 persons, mostly White House employees, looked on as the President placed the coveted military honor around the neck of the tall, thin military hero.

"It gives me more pleasure than almost anything I have ever done to present Gen. Wainwright with the Congressional Medal of Honor," the President said.

The visit with President Truman came after Wainwright had told Congress that the United States must never again become so weak that it invites another Corregidor.

Washington gave the tired, gaunt general a hero's welcome. The man who symbolizes the United States' greatest humiliation and its greatest triumph said the United States must:

1. Be prepared so that never again will American soldiers be "forced senselessly to suffer . . . torment and starvation."

2. Be firm with those "truculent men," the Japanese.

- - And Finally the Jap Private Beat the Horse

(Written for The Canadian Press by George Hawkes).
(Sidney Daily Mirror Correspondent)

Tokyo, Sept. 11 (CP Cable) —Emaciated from lack of food in Japanese prison camps, a Canadian who hitchhiked to Tokyo yesterday from a distant camp was able to chuckle, however, as he recalled the vengeance Japanese took on one another after a Japanese camp orderly broke a chain.

A Japanese officer arrived and asked who the culprit was. No one seemed to know so he beat the Japanese sergeant with a whip and departed. His pride injured, the sergeant bashed a Japanese corporal and left. The corporal passed on the beating to a three-star private who whipped a two-star private who passed the beating down the line.

A one-star private, having nobody lower than himself to punish, looked around for something to attack and found a horse used to carry supplies from one end of the camp to the other.

The private beat the horse mercilessly and the startled animal kicked to pieces a rubber-tired vehicle to which he was hitched. This was responsible for further official inquiry into the responsibility for the vehicle breaking.

No satisfactory answer being received, the officer started on the sergeant who passed the beating to a corporal who would have passed it on to the three-star private—except the Japanese were diverted by receipt of word that the prisoners were to be released.

The guffawing Canadians, Australians and Britons had to leave before they could see what happened.

A HELL OF A PLACE

Johannesburg, Sept. 12—(Reuters) — Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa yesterday described as "really a hell of a place where you have a dreadful desert wind, dust and monotony" the Helwan camp near Cairo where South African soldiers staged "repatriation" riots Aug. 21. He said he had seen enough of Helwan to have the deepest sympathy with the men who were there.

NO INCREASE EXPECTED

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP)—Although considerable sugar-producing territory in the Southwest Pacific has been recovered by the Allies, no increase in the Canadian sugar ration is likely this year, Prices Board spokesmen said yesterday. One official said it would take about two years before those territories could be brought back into normal sugar production.

Tojo's Suicide Attempt Shows Jap Militarism in True Colors

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

One would search long and hard to find anything good about Gen. Tojo, but we must give him credit for making a valuable contribution to the welfare of Nanking when he shot himself yesterday in Tokyo.

Tojo was whelped in militarism. He grew in strength until he become the mainspring of the mighty war-machine which tried to establish a greater East Asia under the rule of Japan. His was the hand which held the dagger that stabbed the United States in the back, for the general was premier when the sneak attack was made on Pearl Harbor.

A God with Feet of Clay

Through the long years succeeding Pearl Harbor the Japanese people came to look upon Tojo as the arch militarist who would lead them to victory and make them overlords of their fellow men.

Now suddenly the public is stunned with the disclosure that its god had feet of clay. Tojo, the chief of all the militarists, shoots himself because he has failed, that is, because militarism has failed. Many Japanese will nod with approval and say that this was the only honorable thing the general could do; this was the only way he could atone for dishonoring his Mikado. But whatever construction you put on it, the fact remains that the people of Japan are for the first time seeing militarism in its true colors.

Should Enlighten Japanese

We may expect, I believe, that Tojo's action — and similar events which are emphasizing the evils and futility of militarism — will be of invaluable assistance to the Allies in remoulding the character of the Japanese people. For that is their task, and it must be done by enlightenment.

Apropos of this vast educational job, we have an interesting comment from Saburo Kurusu, the Jap diplomat who talked peace in Washington as the Imperial fleet struck at Pearl Harbor. The United States naturally has a very low estimate of Kurusu, but even the devil himself may make wise remarks at times, and so we find food for reflection in the diplomat's statement:

"I cannot see Japan exactly like the United States overnight. The people are not ready, they have been so long under militaristic government. Changes must be gradual or the world will find Japan in a grip as bad as that of the military clique that precipitated the war."

Tojo Bullet 'Tracer of Light'

Wherever the truth may lie in this matter, the bullet which Tojo sent through his body will act as a tracer of light to help the people of Japan see the truth about aggression. Democracy may move fast in the Mikado's domains, once it gets under full way.

Thirty Jap Zeros Pounced on Catalina Flying Boat That Warned British Fleet

Shot up and overwhelmed by 30 enemy fighters, an R.A.F. Catalina flying boat, captained by Wing Cmdr. Leonard Birchill of St. Catharines, Ont., hovered long enough in the air to flash a warning of an impending Japanese naval attack against the British base of Ceylon. The valiant effort saved what otherwise would have gone down as a black April day in 1942. For months the fate of Birchill and his crew remained a mystery and it is only today that the full story of the unequal air battle and the subsequent adventures of the Catalina crew can be told.

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C. P. War Correspondent)

Manila, Sept. 12 (CP Cable)—Wing Cmdr. Lenoard J. Birchill of St. Catharines, Ont., who before he was shot down with his crew April 4, 1942, sent a message to Ceylon warning of the approach of a Japanese carrier fleet, reached Manila Tuesday from Japan.

Birchill and his navigator, a Huntsville, Ont., flying officer, both are safe after having been in Japanese hands since the day they were shot down by overwhelming number of carrier-borne enemy fighters until a few days ago.

When the Catalina in which Birchill and his crew were flying, badly crippled by fire, made a forced landing near the Japanese fleet, six of the crew of nine were badly wounded and the others suffered burns. Of seven who were R.A.F. personnel, one sank with the aircraft and two others were killed in the water by strafing. The remaining four with Birchill and his navigator were picked up by a Japanese destroyer.

First For Crew.

The daylight patrol from a Ceylon airbase April 4 was the first in that region for Birchill's crew which had flown their Catalina from the Shetland Islands barely 48 hours before.

However, when it turned out that their Dutch plane was not properly equipped for a criss-cross patrol, Birchill's mission was switched and his crew was given the patrol job, which resulted in the vital warning of the Japanese approach and the subsequent defeat of the Japanese planes by the R.A.F.

They spent a monotonous day flying well southeast of Ceylon on the long "X" course back and forth. About 5 p.m. ,with but one leg of the patrol left a change of course was ordered in a wireless message from Ceylon.

Fleet of Ships Sighted.

Within a few moments a fleet of ships was sighted on the horizon and Birchill headed in that direction. As the plane drew near enough to identify the ships as seven Japanese aircraft carriers and eight battleships, besides cruisers and destroyers, the first planes of the fleet's outer screen were encountered.

The Catalina crew counted 10 formations of Zeros and Birchill went down as quickly as he could to prevent an attack against the flying boat's unprotected underside. The wing tanks were shot into flames, some of which licked inside the hull. The fire was brought under control but another started and beacon floats inside exploded. The gunner in one of the rear blisters had part of his leg blown off by an explosive Japanese shell.

The navigator hurriedly got away a signal to Colombo, warning of the approach of a large Japanese naval force as well as giving its exact position and speed.

Started to Break Up.

The Catalina started to break up under fire from the Zeros. After the wounded gunner was moved into a bunk Birchill made a hazardous but safe landing and the more able among the crew scrambled to save the wounded before the plane sank.

Three days later they were taken over to the aircraft carrier Agaki which went down some time later in the battle of Midway. When questioned, they were ready with a story of how they had come to India from Canada and moved to Ceylon by train. The Japanese interrogators apparently missed an important discrepancy in the fact this story gave the sea trip from Canada in a record-breaking, if not impossible, time.

The questioning wasn't a simple question-and-answer routine but involved the use of sticks. The Catalina crew were badly tripped up after they assured the Japanese they were unable to warn Colombo about imminent attacks. The enemy ships's wireless had picked up a Colombo message asking for a further repetition of the warning.

However, the prisoners refused to break down on their story about the convoy which seemed eventually to satisfy the Japanese. When they were taken to Yokohama they were unaware of the failure of the Japanese attack on Ceylon although the brutal treatment they received probably was due to the fact that the carrier planes suffered an important reverse.

The Day in Parliament

TODAY

The Commones will hear continued debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The Senate will consider two interim supply bills.

YESTERDAY

The Commons will hear continim supply bills totalling more than $429,000,000; heard State Secretary Martin announce Canada will return to Standard Time; Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, (PC—Nanaimo) V.C., criticize the government's demobilization system; Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt (PC—Vancouver Burrard) say people wanted to know how overseas men would get jobs if discharged after those now in Canada; heard maiden speeches by Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF—Qu. Appelle); Don Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton); Maj. L. E. Baker (L—Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare) and Capt. Fernand Viau (L—St. Boniface).

The Senate heard Senator Brewer Robinson (L—Prince Edward Island) move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne; Senator Vincent Dupluis (L—Quebec), second the address.

NEW UNION TERMINAL

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP) —Cooperation in remodelling the railway approaches to Ottawa, eliminating cross-town rail lines and ultimately erecting a new union terminal, was pledged yesterday by the Board of Control and the Federal District Commission at a meeting with representatives of the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and New York Central railways.

Atomic Power-Driven Engine To be Built

Belleville, N.J., Sept. 12—(AP) —Construction of an atomic power-driven experimental locomotive is scheduled to begin here soon, Ralph Lucas, Chief Engineer of the United States Industrial and Development Company, Elmira, N.Y., said Monday night.

The locomotive will be fitted with a mercury turbine employing a formula for the disintegration of mercury and steel atoms.

Lucas said he obtained in 1939 a patent on the formula to manufacture electronic power by fusing steel and mercury through intense heat created by electronic disintegration of the mercury and steel atoms. He said the formula produced a controllable disintegration of the atom.

"One teacupful of the mercury atoms, exploded," Lucas said, "would run a locomotive, pulling 120 loaded freight cars, for 45 round trips between New York and San Francisco."

He described the turbine like this:

"It has a 300-horsepower gasoline-driven engine, generating 220 volts alternating current, which is increased to 1,440 volts direct current by transforming coils, this, in turn, creates an electron discharge between two electrodes in an eight-inch-thick steel casting which will withstand 580,000 lbs. of pressure per square inch, although it will use only 350,000 pounds.

"The horsepower generated from that atomic pressure will be 350 times greater than that created in the ordinary locomotive."

Lucas estimated that a 300-horsepower engine, working with a heavy freight load would use up an average of five gallons of gasoline per hour.

He predicted that the turbine would be ready for installation in about four months and that experiments with the locomotive would last from six months to a year.

Homma Much Wanted.

High among the others wanted is Gen. Masaharu Homma held responsible for the horrible "death march" on Bataan.

As the 61-year-old Tojo lived on, although not yet out of danger, the Tokyo newspaper Mainichi said bluntly:

"The general masses clamored for his death."

Three guards stood watch throughout last night at Tojo's bedside on the third floor of what once was an elementary school.

More than a patient, Tojo is detained officially on instructions of Gen. MacArthur who pointed out in an interview that the stolen empire Tojo helped build already has been cut down to a fourth rate nation with little hope of ever again becoming a world power.

Gen. MacArthur, obviously pleased with the progress of the occupation, directed any skeptics to contrast the situation with that in Europe.

Make Many Points.

1. In Europe, the only Axis leaders the people ever followed were of necessity placed in jails, if still alive; in Japan, Emperor Hirohito has obeyed every order issued under Gen. MacArthur's name since the occupation and has made no requests on his own behalf.

2. In Europe, it already has become necessary for the Allies to provide coal and they are faced with the prospect of supplying other necessities; in Japan, despite the inevitable hard times ahead, the people must rehabilitate themselves without hope of assistance.

Gen. MacArthur said the defeat of Japan's army was the most crushing in history, but that this had been overlooked generally in reports of military disintegration stressing naval and air triumphs.

No War Industry.

He declared that food for Japan's armies would have run out in six months and that there wasn't sufficient war industry left in the Tokyo area to build a musket.

The machinery of occupation rolled smoothly with plans calling for occupational landings of army divisions in extreme north Honshu and in Hokkaido within the next two weeks, but Associated Press correspondent John Grover reported an uneasy situation in Korea. Grover said Japanese police were seizing Korean property without authority of the Allies and in other ways seeking to retain their hold on that country which has been waiting so long for independence.

A Friendly Custom

The custom of making farewell gifts to a fellow employee by his co-workers when she or he leaves for another field of endeavor is a decidedly happy one. It makes a person feel that he is appreciated and liked and perhaps, helps to make up for the odd time when one wonders whether he has a friend left in the world. Rare is the person who has not experienced some periods of discouragement at one time or another.

This was brought to mind the other day when a young man who was presented with a gift expressed his astonishment to a friend that he should be worthy of such thoughtfulness. He had done his full share in the war and after his return had sought employment in the city, and as a result had not been more than a few months at his work when his plans were changed and he had to leave. His willingness to work and his cheery disposition had won friends for himself among all his associates.

"Why," he said, "I don't know half of the crowd by name and here they go and give me this present. It was mighty nice of them and I'll certainly never forget their kindness. I had no thought of ever receiving anything because I was there only a short time but it sure makes a fellow feel pretty good."

We venture to say he will always have a kindly feeling about Belleville and his friends here, and that is a fine thing to have in the hearts of our youth who seek employment in other places. It costs so little and the results are all out of proportion to the effort expended. A little thoughtfulness can do much to make life happier and brighter for those who are worthy. It, also, reflects much credit on those who contribute to these tokens of good will. It's a grand custom and we're all for it when it can be done.

Thefts From Gardens

The report in this paper the other day of a garden owner chasing a woman thief from his corn patch probably brought many smiles of amusement to readers at the thought of any man in pursuit of a woman across backyards and over fences. However, there is a serious aspect to the matter that many do not know about except those who have gardens. A number of gardens have been stripped of vegetables this summer and if there is anything which annoys any gardener more than having the fruits of his labor taken by some low-life then we don't know human nature. These intruders are greedy for one man lost nearly all his carrots while another had tomatoes and potatoes stolen.

This is a miserable kind of thievery and we hope that some one will have the good fortune to nab one of these gentry and hold the party until the police arrive. It must be no fun having to indulge in midnight chases but if it has to be done then we hope it will end in the success it deserves.

Pinching Vegetables

Shoppers in the U. S. who mutilate fresh vegetables to test their desirability cause a waste estimated at close to 9,000,000 pounds a year. That amount of green food, we are told by the research department of Farm-Fresh, of Floral Park, would supply the requirements of 4,295,000 children or 142 army divisions for a week. It would meeet a week's needs of the combined populations of Boston, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, or of all the inhabitants of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. The practice, says the N.Y. Times, must go a long way toward counteracting the best efforts of the Victory Garden movement, though we are not advised about that.

String beans in the food-store bins suffer heavy casualties from this habit of shoppers. Are the beans tender and crisp? The Mrs. Doubting Thomases, who do most of the household buying, find out by snapping them, after which the broken beans are not wanted by anyone. Green peas and lima beans, shelled to find out how mature and well-filled they are, cease to be marketable. Tomatoes pinched and punched become damaged goods, as do peaches with thumb-nail cuts in their tempting skins. Spinach, head lettuce and apples are other victims of the choosy shopper.

Perhaps the purchaser of peaches says to herself, "Just one pinch won't do any great harm." The grocery statisticians take another view of it. They say that if just one shopper in each food store between our coasts should pinch just one peach a day, the national daily loss would be nearly three tons. Actually, however, the weekly loss is eighty-four tons, or 1,680 tons in a five-month season. And that, they argue, is a serious thing in a world as hungry as this world is at the moment.

Without Clutch or Gearbox

(U.K. Information Service)

When car production gets going in Britain, some cars will use an entirely new form of transmission system, with no need either for the conventional type of clutch or gearbox. Control of the car will depend entirely on the accelerator. This new invention, which is entirely British and is known as a hydrokinetic transmitter, consists of a unit in which a form of flywheel, constructed with turbine vanes and ducts, rotates and is immersed in oil. Adjoining this flywheel and running concentrically with it is a two-stage turbine motor, which is coupled to an output shaft. The latter is coupled to the propeller shaft, which carries the drive to the rear axle and wheels in the usual way. When the engine is running, the vaned flywheel, acting as a pump, flings the oil, in which the whole of the mechanism is immersed, tangentially upon the blades of the turbine motor. The kinetic energy thus created turns the rotor and transfers the rotation to the wheels. The faster the engine runs the greater the energy available, and, according to the load and speed, so does this mechanism transmit the power at the correct torque ratio. This ratio is never higher than that which is actually needed, and its selection is entirely automatic. In this way the ratio is lowered when the car is climbing a hill, and is raised progressively when the summit is reached and the speed is increased.

Embodied in the transmitter is a simple mechanism which is brought into operation when the vehicle is to be reversed. It is brought into engagement by the movement of a small lever, which is the only control fitted to the mechanism. Cars fitted with this transmitter are said to have maximum ease in driving (no gearshift), operate smoothly, and are very economical in gasoline consumption.

The Hardships of Return

(Ottawa Journal)

No more the delightful persistence of the whippoorwill from his perch in a neighboring tree. No more sunburn or poison ivy, no more bonfire song-fests at midnight, no more leaky boats, no more the clatter of outboard motors. No more roughing it for 10 months. No more pioneering.

Instead of the enchantment of a primitive way of life the erstwhile cottager now resumes a softer existence. Not a wood stove but a gas or electric range; not coal-oil lamps but light at the turn of a switch; not bath water heated in kettles but by turning another switch; not the broom but the vacuum cleaner. Not the romantic ways of our grandfathers but the solid comforts of the modern world.

And will the lady of the house just hate coming back to all this?, She will not; she will love it. She will love it until about next May, when the lure of wood fires and the open spaces, the skunk in the underbrush and the loon on the lake, once more will fasten upon her. Then she will begin packing for the cottage—she can hardly wait for the day the schools close.

THE LIKELY BOY

In the research work of the future the apt pupil will be singled out for assistance.—News Item.

* * *

The eager boy, the willing boy where'er he may appear!
The older men are making plans to further his career.
There's much to learn and much to do, the men of science say,
And many a triumph's waiting for the youngsters of today.

"Research, research" is now the cry that goes the world around.
The better way, for countless tasks, by searching can be found.
And eager boys, and boys alert who question how and why
Will noticed be among the throng and given a chance to try.

'Twas always so and will be so unto the end of time
The older men will welcome lads who show the wish to climb.
Today they're setting funds aside to search for methods new

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 12th., 1925.

Mr. F. M. Little of Campbellford won sixth prize for July white cheese at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

The picnic organized by Charles E. Hanna, M.P., and held at the Agricultural Park here yesterday was a great success. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was present and was given a great reception.

Mr. Cecil Facer has returned home after spending his vacation at Bass Lake.

The Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, Mrs. Malott and family have returned to the city after spending their vacation in Muskoka.

Bus service was introduced on the west side today. The bus service on the east hill is proving very successful and people wonder how they ever got along without it.

Mr. Wilfrid Holmes, city clerk, is spending his vacation at Oak Lake.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 12th., 1915.

Sixty-one patients were admitted to the Belleville General Hospital during July and fifty-four patients entered in August. There are now thirty-three patients in the hospital.

Credit is due Mr. F. G. Mills as chairman of Coleman Ward Patriotic League and Mr. R. Bogle as secretary of the same for the success of the meeting which was held Friday evening on the lawn at the residence of Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P., North Front Street. These gentlemen were assiduous in their efforts to make the gathering the success which it proved to be.

Mr. J. O. Herity and family have returned home after a vacation trip to Toronto, Markham, St. Thomas, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Cleveland. A very interesting day was spent at the home of the Roycrofters at East Aurora, N.Y.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 12th., 1905.

Dr. Perry G. Goldsmith has returned to the city after spending some months in England and on the Continent.

Mrs. George Bergeron and family have left for their home in Holyoke, Mass., after visiting relatives here.

The Rev. A. M. Hubly, pastor of Emmanuel Church, is attending the annual meeting of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Ottawa.

The Rev. Dr. MacTavish of the Presbyterian Church, Deseronto, has accepted a call to Cook's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, and the same has been approved by the Presbytery. The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in this city has been appointed Interim Moderator of Deseronto during the vacancy caused by the departure of Dr. MacTavish.

Mr. Henry Carr is spending a few days in Ottawa.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 12th., 1895.

The excursion to the Montreal Fair per the steamer Alexandria on September 16th., promises to be well patronized. The return fare is $3.00.

The government dredge Queen is at work dredging the channel west of Mill Island.

During the severe storm last night the Rosebud Cheese Factory in the 7th concession of Tyendinaga Township, about seven miles east of Plainfield, was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire, together with 200 cheese and all appliances. Mr. Hagerman, the cheesemaker, barely escaped with his life so rapid was the conflagration. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Phil Harte arrived home yesterday after attending the Toronto Fair.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

The sun shining at midnight in the Arctic or Antarctic summer is known as the midnight sun.

Norway is popularly called "The Land of the Midnight Sun" because this phenomenon has been more frequently observed in that region by visitors from Western Europe and the United States.

The description would be equally applicable to other high latitudes above the Arctic Circle, such as northern Russia, northern Alaska, northern Canada, and Greenland, where in midsummer the sun does not sink below the horizon at any time within the 24 hours of the day.

Instead of setting as it does in our latitudes, the sun in these regions merely goes around and around above the horizon, being part of the time in the north.

In Iceland, for instance, during June and July, daylight is perpetual and a person can read a book by natural light at any time of the night.

Within a distance of about four minutes of arc from the North Pole the sun rises and sets but once a year; in other words, the year is composed of one day and one night, each six months in length.

The number of sunrises in a year increases from one at the Pole to 365 at a short distance south of the Arctic Circle. Strictly speaking, only the northern part of Norway lies within the domain of the midnight sun.

Similar conditions with the seasons reversed exist in the Antarctic.

On March 21 the relative positions of the earth and sun are such that the latter illuminates exactly one-half of the surface of the former, and on that date night and day are equal in length in all parts of the world. Three months later, when the earth has completed a fourth of its journey around the sun, the North Pole is turned towards the sun and the South Pole away from it. In another three months the days and nights are again equal in length everywhere on the earth. By December 21, when the earth has completed three-fourths of its journey around the sun, the South Pole is turned towards the sun and the North Pole away from it.

DEPARTURE HASTENED

Hamilton, Bermuda, Sept. 12 — (CP Cable) — Their departure hastened by a tropical storm approaching this island, Governor Lord Burghley and a Bermuda mission boarded an RAF plane last night for a flight to Washington where they will discuss the future commercial use of Kindley Field, big United States Army Air base in Bermuda.

ANNULMENT REFUSED

Montreal, Sept. 12 — (CP) — Annulment of a marriage because the husband, who became a convert to the Roman Catholic religion, failed to practise his new religion, was refused by Mr. Justice Alfred Forest in Superior Court yesterday. Petitioner was Ann McBride and defendant was Russell J. Sheppard whom she married 34 years ago.

VICTORIA CROSS

Works to Disadvantage

The other Victoria Cross speaker was Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes (PC — Nanaimo) who charged that demobilization was working to the disadvantage of the long-service soldiers still overseas. He said the first-in, first-out policy had been whittled down with too many exceptions.

Gen. Pearkes, former general officer commanding, Pacific Command, urged the immediate discontinuance of the country's "futile two-army system."

"We should no longer have this bifocal army through which one class of men see it as their duty to go wherever their country calls them while the other class see their duty as lying only in so far as the shores of Canada restrict their activities," he said.

Wants System Adhered To

The soldiers who volunteered for the occupation force and the Far Eastern force were in the main, younger men who had seen less service than those who went overseas first. For the rest of the army it was understood they would be released on the basis of a point system, as far as possible on the principle of "first-in first-out."

There were many exceptions made, far more than the people expected would be made. The exceptions all applied to the army in Canada. He recited the exceptions.

Gen. Pearkes caused a shuffling in the Commons when he said that every veteran in the Commons should support the Progressive Conservative party's non-confidence motion which accused the government with failing to adopt proper demobilization procedure.

Cries of "Ho! Ho!" come from the Liberal benches when he made the statement in a loud voice which carries slight traces of an English accent.

Speech Draws Reply

The general's speech drew a reply from Defence Minister Abbott who said neither Gen. Pearkes nor any other member had said which of the different grounds, on which army discharges are granted, should not be accepted. He promised further details of the demobilization plan later but suggested those who criticized it should say wherein it should be changed.

Compassionate leave always had been a ground of discharge as Gen. Pearkes, an old soldier knew. No objection had been raised to discharges on recommendations of the industrial selection and release boards. Discharges on medical grounds had always been the rule. Discharges for admission to universities were very popular judging from the number of applications from Progressive Conservative members.

No Objection Raised.

No objection had been raised to discharging men to return to agriculture or to work in essential occupations. Men unsuitable for training had always been discharged. If opposition members favored tax reductions they could hardly ask that men unsuitable for training be kept in the army.

No suggestions had been made about what should be done with the home defence army although there was criticism. They were being kept in the army on essential military duty. If opposition members wanted them let out or sent abroad for occupation duty they had not said so.

Gen. Pearkes interjected that he had suggested the home defence army be forged into the proposed standing army that would be ready to serve anywhere in case of emergency.

Mr. Abbott said that "if these gentlemen think there is something wrong with our methods of demobilization I would like to hear them say what they would do."

More than 120,000 men in three services had already been repatriated to Canada, with 18,000 arriving last Sunday alone. By the end of September there would be more men repatriated than anticipated.

To this in his later speech, Col. Merritt replied by saying it was not the duty of the opposition to devise policy for the government. The troops looked to the government to see that there were jobs when they returned and that all the jobs were not taken by soldiers now in Canada when overseas men got back.

Col. Merritt said he knew Mr. Abbott was not responsible for the government's two-army system, because he was not defence minister when the system was adopted. However, he had hoped to hear a concrete statement from the minister of demobilization plans. All he had heard were deprecatory remarks about Gen. Pearkes' speech.

Debate Continues.

Debate continues today with Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East) holding the floor and will be interrupted late in the afternoon when the first bills of the session receive Royal assent from the Deputy Governor-General.

These are two interim supply bills to provide the government with funds to meet current expenditures to a total of more than $429,000,000 — $400,000,000 on war account and $29,000,000 in civil estimates — pending passage of the main supply bills. They were passed in the Commons last night and introduced in the Senate which is expected to pass them today.

Donald M. Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton), assigned the post of chairman of a Progressive Conservative caucus committee on social security and a former Toronto alderman, said he was critical of the government's housing policy.

During wartime the government agency, Wartime Housing Limited, had been dictatorial. Had the government given private builders the same access to materials and labor it would have obtained better houses at lower cost. The same now was true and yet Wartime Housing was preventing private builders from meeting the housing needs.

Claims Act Deficient.

The National Housing Act was deficient in that it approached the problem from a "financial" rather than a "social" point of view. The government based it on the recommendations of the Curtis Committee but failed to adopt the committee's proposals for subsidizing low-rent housing, that was the only approach to the problem and Canada lagged behind Britain and the United States which had started subsidizing housing.

Public money spent on housing brought returns because bad housing meant bad health, delinquency and crime. There were 300,000 sub-standard houses occupied in Canada.

"There must be an end and an end at once of government by order-in-council," said Mr. Fleming. "There must be an end of bureaucracy."

He was sorry to see that just on the eve of the opening of parliament the government had resorted to dictatorial and arbitrary methods. Under the War Measures Act it had brought about an amendment to the National Housing Act. That could have waited for parliament. It had also "hauled down the Union Jack" from the Peace Tower.

Not Discussing Merits

He said he was not discussing the merits of a distinctive national flag. That question would come up later but it should be decided by Parliament.

"I say that was a high-handed action and coming as it did on the day parliament opened was a flouting of parliament," he declared.

(He was referring to the flying of the red ensign on the day parliament opened which was mentioned in the Speech from the Throne as ordered for the occasion.)

Another member to make a maiden speech was the House's only woman, Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF. — Qu'Appelle) who said there should be a floor placed under family incomes.

"No modern industrial nation can afford the luxury of poverty," she said.

From the Liberal side the house heard other newly-elected members, some veterans of the war.

Maj. Loren Baker (L — Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare) said he had confidence that the government which brought Canada thru to victory in war would see the country through to a successful peace.

Not Built in Few Weeks

The armed forces which made the war record they did were not built in a few weeks. The opposition should be a little patient and not raise trivial issues because reconstruction could not be accomplished in a few weeks either.

Ottawa as the capital of Canada should be made a city of which all Canadians could be proud.

Maj. Baker suggested that each province and territory be assigned a part of the capital in which it could take a special interest and that soil from each province be sent to the appropriate part of the capital to symbolize this connection.

The suggestion that Canada maintain a full-scale military set-up in peacetime with periods of training for young men was advanced by Capt. Fernand Viau (L-St. Boniface).

If this was done, he said, there would be no repetition of incidents such as those which took place at the outbreak of war when some "ultra-nationalists" from Quebec opposed any participation in the war even when the enemy was almost at the gates. Training would have made for better citizenship.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PYORRHEA IS DEGENERATION

On several occasicns I have talked about this before, and even if I seem to harp on it I must repeat now and again that, as it appears to me, a careful study of Nutrition and Physical Degeneration, by Weston A. Price, D.D.S., published by Hoeber of Harper & Bros., (now out of print but perhaps available at the public library) and an article by W. Robert Foran on Thistan da Cunna in National Geqrgaphic Magazine, Nov. '38, is essential for a fair comprehension of the nature of pyorrhea or whatever name you prefer to apply to it.

The unsophisticated layman and the small calibre doctor and dentist may imagine ther is some dividing line between a healthy state of jaw bones, gums, tooth sockets and teeth and pyorrhea, and that a dentist who knows his business can decide by examination whether you have or have not pyorrhea.

Maybe a "specialist" of some sort could do that for you. Stu (short for stupid—if I spell it out some stupid people resent it furiously), but if my jawbone (ah, ah, let us dispense with the obvious), tooth sockets, gums and teeth were under the scrutiny of physician, dentist or specialist I wouldn't pay any attention. After all it would make little difference what the physician or dentist might prefer to call the trouble if I had one or more of these symptoms, which Louis I. Grossman, D.D.S., D.M.D., desribes as symptoms of pyorrhea alveolaris in the Cyclopedia of Medicine, Surgery and Specialties, Vol. X, '43:

Gums bleed on slight provocation ("pink toothbrush" to you, Stu).

Pockets form in gums and finly suppurate. Teeth begin to become loose and may be painful during laterial or grinding movement in chewing. Bad taste in the mouth, especially on rising. Offensive breath.

Some dentists break it gently by saying the trouble is just "gingival irritation" or maybe they call it atrophic gingivits. Whatever the dentist calls it one may as well face it—every one must face it sooner or later—it means one is beginning to—now do try to get hold of yourself and understand this pains me just as much, probably more than it does you—beginning to die.

Listen, I mean merely happens to every individual as soon as he or she has attained full browth and development. It is the way of life.

Let us acknowledge before we begin treatment that we can't cure pyorrhea. If you are interested only in a sure cure further discussion is useless—you should go to some quack who canvasses suckers.

All I can tell you about it is prophylaxis—prevention.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nervous Indigestion

For your information storehouse: I have obtained the most remarkable relief from nervous indigestion and spastic colon of years standing after adopting your suggestion of supplementing my diet with 1200 units daily of vitamin B complex. In fact I believe I am cured. Oddly enough, two years ago a physician gave me daily injections of synthetic B1 (thiamin) for several weeks, with no apparent benefit. I certainly feel grateful. (W.R.H.)

Answer—In any case where a single isolated entity of the natural B complex may seem indicated it is better to use the natural B complex, physicians with experience in this field find. If the diet has failed to provide enough B1 (thiamin) it is almost certain that it has failed to provide enough B2 (riboflavin), nicotinic acid, growth factor, weight factor, anti-gray hair factor etc., as well. So the deficient diet should be supplemented with not just one but all of the factors of the B complex.

Old Time Specialists Have Their Day

Where do you get off now? The clipping inclosed says the American Laryngological Association spokesman at Atlantic City stated that the discussion of the throat specialists at the convention proved that drafts cause colds.

(S.A.N.)

Answer — Oh, well, you shouldn't hold 'em responsible for what they say and do on an outing like that. If saying a thing proves it the case was thrown out of court long before we became daffy about drafts.

Radio Talent in Audition Queues. . .

Birmingham, England, Sept. 12 (CP)—Queues are so much an accepted thing in Britain now that even singers, pianists, conjurers and comedians lined up outside the BBC Midland regional station here for auditions, hoping to find fame as radio stars.

It all began when the BBC announced that a nation-wide search was being made for "regional" talent. But the dreams were shattered when the hopefuls learned that auditions would be confined to selected artists and by appointment only.

PENNISTON TO COACH

Hershey, Pa., Sept. 12—(CP)—Don Penniston of Montreal was named coach of the Hershey hockey team of the American Hockey League Monday night. Penniston, who coached Quebec Aces in the Quebec Senior Hockey League last year, succeeds Cooney Welland in the berth.

WEDDINGS

BOWMAN—BOLTE

On Saturday, September 8, at eleven o'clock, Bridge Street Church, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Barbara Louise Bolte, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Bolte, of this city, became the bride of P/O. Alexander B. Bowman, R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bowman, Cowdenbeath Fife, Scotland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald C. Amos.

Given in marriage by her brother, William Bolte, the bride was lovely in her street-length dress of gold crepe with moire silk trimming and brown accessories. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses and a double strand of pearls.

Miss Marguerite Jones made a charming bridesmaid in her pretty street-length frock of melon pink gabardine with black accessories. She had a corsage of matching gladioli daintily placed upon her shoulder.

Mr. Douglas W. Bolte, brother of the bride, of Morris Plains, N.J., was groomsman.

The groom's gift to his lovely bride was a double string of pearls and earrings to match. The groom received a leather billfold.

Following the ceremony a delightful reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in rooms artistically decorated with Summer flowers. The immediate families sat down to the bridal table prettily adorned with its white lace cloth centred with the wedding cake. The bride's mother received the guests in an attractive navy blue gabardine suit with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Later the bridal couple left on a wedding trip to Toronto, Buffalo and points in the U.S. For travelling the bride donned a teal blue gabardine suit with harmoniously matching accessories. The groom sails for England on September 20 and his bride will follow at a later date.

HANCOCK—GOODMAN

Standards of white and coral gladioli, palms and ferns formed the setting in King Street United Church, Oshawa, for a pretty wedding at four o'clock, Saturday afternoon, September 8, when Ruth Evelyn Goodman was united in marriage in a double ring ceremony to Glen Clarke Hancock, by Rev. J. Verner McNeely. Mr. Walter Jackson played the wedding music and Miss Hazel Rundle sang "Love's Coronation" just before the ceremony and "Because" at the signing of the register.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Goodman, of Oshawa. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hancock, of Orono.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a gown of traditional white satin, fashioned on princess lines, with square neckline and lace yoke. Lace was also inset in the gown to form full length panels. Tiny satin buttons appeared on the back on the gown. The sleeves were long coming to a point over the wrists. The graceful skirt was floor-length. A heart shaped headdress held her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion. Her jewellery was a strand of pearls and she carried a cascade of Sweetheart roses with long white satin streamers.

Mrs. Stanley Gomme was matron of honor, and wore a frock of peach taffeta, styled with fitted torso bodice, sweetheart neckline and long bouffant skirt. The sleeves were bracelet length, outlined with shirring. Her headdress was made of frilled net and flowers and she carried a cascade of gladioli petals. Miss Mary Flintoff, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore orchid taffeta and flower and net headdress styled on the same lines as that worn by the matron of honor. Her flowers were a cascade of gladioli.

Harold Hancock attended the groom as best man. Ushers were Keith Goodman and Marlow Hancock.

Summer flowers and pink and white streamers decorated the banquet hall of the church for the reception. Mrs. Goodman, who received with bridal party, wore a street-length dress of turquoise crepe, large black hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. H. E. Hancock, the groom's mother, who assisted in welcoming the guests, wore a two-piece street-length dress of military blue, corsage of pink roses, small black hat and matching accessories.

Rev. J. Verner McNeely proposed the toast to the bride. A group of the Women's Association of the church, of which Mrs. Vernon Osborne is the leader, served the wedding luncheon. The tables for the guests were arranged in the form of a V, and were very attractive with lighted tall tapers in crystal holders.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a two-piece dress of teal blue crepe with matching braid trimming, small navy veiled hat, matching accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hancock will reside in Orono.

Miss Mary Flintoff, the bridesmaid at this wedding is a former Belleville girl, (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Flintoff), and is now in training at Oshawa General hospital.

PITCHER—MAYBEE

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, Sept. 8, at 2.30 p.m., by Rev. H. H. Lackey, when Vera Irene Maybee, Frankford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Maybee, and William Henry Pitcher, Frankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The wedding was performed in the bride's home under an arch of cedar boughs, beautifully entwined with flowers. The rooms were decorated with pink and white crepe paper and Summer flowers. The wedding music played by Miss Helen Way blended fittingly with the occasion and Mrs. H. H. Lackey rendered the delightful solo "Always".

The bride was a picture of girlish loveliness in her floor-length gown of white sheer over taffeta with shirred bodice and with flowers appliqued around a sweetheart neckline. Her finger-tip veil fell in soft folds about her shoulders and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Bernice Way, Trenton, made a charming bridesmaid, choosing a floor-length gown of pale blue taffeta with sweetheart neckline, shoulder length veil and matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Petite Miss Janet Baker, Oshawa, was a darling flower girl, frocked in a floor-length gown of dusky rose taffeta trimmed with velvet.

Mr. Harold Pitcher, Frankford, ably supported his brother as groomsman.

The groom's gifts to his bride was a handsome cheque and a floor lamp and mirror. The bridesmaid received a dresser set; the flower girl, a locket; the groomsman, a ring with Orange Lodge symbol; the pianist, earrings; the soloist, a relish dish; the ladies waiting on table, relish dishes.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held with the bride's mother receiving the guests, attractively attired in a black crepe ensemble with black accessories. The groom's mother assisted the bride's mother in the receiving line and was charmingly frocked in a two-piece powder blue crepe with black accessories. Later the bridal couple left on a wedding trip to points west, the bride donning a two-piece turquoise wool suit with black accessories. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the groom, Murray Township.

Out-of-town guests present were from Belleville, Oshawa, Stirling, Trenton, Smithfield, Wellington and Toronto

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.A.

Roslin.— The Woman's Auxiliary held their September meeting at the home of Mrs. Floyd Meeks on Thursday evening with sixteen present.

The President, Mrs. A. Bates was in charge of the meeting, which was opened with a devotional period led by the Rector, Rev. F. C. Beazer. Mrs. Clare read the Scripture Lesson.

A business period followed and Mrs. Chauncey Sills was in charge of the program and read a poem. Mrs. W. Bates gave a reading and Misses Evelyn and June Sills sang a duet.

Rev .F. Beazer closed meeting with prayer after which the hostess served refreshments and all enjoyed a social hour.

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.

Thomasburg. — Mrs. F. C. Beazer entertained the ladies of Christ Church Woman's Auxiliary at St. Paul's Rectory, Roslin, on Friday evening for the regular meeting and a good number of members were in attendance.

The President, Miss Emma Porter, was in charge and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Edward Carter invited the Auxiliary to her home for the October meeting; the roll call to be answered with a verse containing the word "Thanksgiving", and each member was asked to contribute something toward the program with regard to the Elkorn Indian Residential School, where the W.A. bales are sent annually.

It was also decided to purchase a Study Book to be taken up at the monthly meetings, which should prove of interest.

The President then gave a very interesting reading on the picture "Christ in Gethsemane. Rev. Mr Beazer gave a solo "The Stranger of Galilee", and a contest the "Alphabetical Names of Christ", which was also interesting. The closing hymn "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross", was sung and the rector pronounced the benediction.

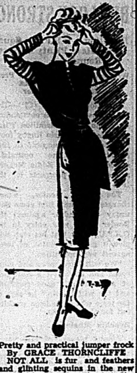
Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

CENTENARY W.M.S.

The Sept. meeting of Centenary W.M.S., was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Roblin on Thursday afternoon. The President, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, was in charge. The meeting opened by singing and prayer. Mrs. Thrasher gave a reading on Japanese-Canadians which was very interesting. In Mrs. F. Aiken's absence Mrs. B. Roblin gave a chapter in the study book. Mrs. Thrasher read an article on Africa which was an introduction to the new study book on Africa's Missions.

The W.A. meeting immediately followed with the President, Mrs. H. Roblin, in charge. The meeting was opened by Theme song and prayer. Mrs. B. Roblin took the devotional period. Two readings "Each in His Own Tongue", and "I Live for To-morrow" were very helpful to all. The next meeting to take place at the home of Mrs. D. Thrasher. The meeting was closed by the Mizpah benediction. Refreshments were then served by Mrs. H. Roblin which were enjoyed by all.

Wool Jumper Dress



Pretty and practical jumper frock

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

NOT ALL is fur and feathers and glinting sequins in the new fall fashions. Very much to the fore are some pretty and practical frocks, such as the brown wool jumper frock. It is made with a deep armhole and is slit part way down the front. A set-in belt ties at one side to hang in long ends, and there is a practical patch pocket. Worn with a brown and pale green striped jersey blouse with high neckline and long sleeves.

Couple Honored Before Leaving Marysville District

Recently over 150 neighbors, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Waddingham, Marysville, to honor of Mr. and Mrs. Derward Waddingham, who were moving to their new home near Napanee.

After a social time spent together the gathering was called to order and a complimentary address read by Mrs. W. H. Bell, and signed on behalf of the community by Frieda Bell, Ruby Tucker, Roy Stapley.

Mrs. R. A. Tucker presented the family with a complete service for eight of Community Plate silver in Lady Hamilton design.

Derward and Ila very suitably thanked their friends for their good wishes, and lovely gift and invited everyone to visit them in their new home.

TRENTON

Shower is Held For Bride-to-Be

Trenton, Sept. 12.—Miss Dorothy Barker, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. J. Button and Miss Mary Barker, entertained at a delightful shower on Friday evening in honor of Miss Elsie Jackson, Reg. N., whose marriage takes place this month.

The guest of honor was presented with a beautiful table lamp, and bride's book which was assembled during the evening, each guest contributing to its contents.

On Saturday afternoon, Miss Jackson was guest of honor at a trousseau tea given by her aunt, Miss Hazel Walker, 24 North Scott Street.

Tea was poured by Mrs. E. H. Ingram, Belleville, and Mrs. H. J. LeClair, Montreal, aunt of the bride, with Mrs. J. Button and Mrs. H. Hutchinson serving the guests; while the bride's trousseau and many beautiful gifts were shown by Miss Dorothy Barker, Miss Audrey Barker and Miss Jean Ingram.

Afternoon Bag

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE CAN BE casual about a bag with simple Summer outfits, but come fall, the right bag must provide the finishing touch to the smart town outfit. Josef designs this "Wrist Warmer" model a softly draped bag in his new "Josefelt". The warm brown is accented by two drop ornaments in mock tortoise shell. The fabric bag in satin for late afternoon, in broadcloth and felt for general wear, is so well done that most of us hardly miss the bag of suede without which no smart costume was considered complete.

The Marry Go Round

The Kind Men Marry

A "marrying girl" is not necessarily just a girl who wants to marry or even one who is destined to make a success of marriage, although she may be both. But she is primarily the kind of girl men want to marry and do marry.

I met a perfect example of this type recently. Pretty, sympathetic, easy-going, good-tempered and diplomatic, she was the most eloquent listener I ever talked to. And probably the most appreciative and tactful.

In short, without being a beauty or a glamor girl or especially brilliant, or too snappy or efficient, she had a most winsome and irresistible personality and the potent charm of tranquillity and poise for which all men fall. She was the kind of girl that men like to come home to—"the kind that men marry".

The mail on the desk of many women columnists constantly overflows with letters from women (young and old) asking the time-worn questions: "How can I make him love me?" and "What can I do to be popular?" or "What is it that makes a girl attractive to men?"

If any writer could give an exact, foolproof recipe for charming men, she would be a millionaire in no time, and would not have to write a column.

But, trying to teach a girl how to be a popular man-charmer is almost as difficult as trying to teach her to look like Lana Turner or Anne Sheridan or Claire Booth Luce.

Girls, who are naturally attractive to me, like geniuses, are born, not made. Not every girl can expect to be a "marrying girl", any more than everybody can expect to be a genius or a screen star. There have been many beautiful and brilliant women who never married.

There seems to be a special talent for marrying, which is born in some women, like a talent for acting or dancing or singing. There doesn't seem to be any formula, rules or regulations; and a popular "man's woman" can no more tell you how she makes men marriage-conscious than an animal trainer can tell you how he makes friends with lions, leopards and tigers. Although, of course, the methods may be superficially the same.

You must understand animals or men and, above all, you must like them before you can touch what they call their "hearts"—before you can appeal to them, charm them, or "tame" them. Most women love men or some man individually; but the girl whom men love is the one who is fond of them collectively, who enjoys them in crowds as well as tete-a-tete; who can no more help being gracious and attractive to any man she meets than an animal lover can resist petting any dog he happens to meet.

The other big secret of the marrying girl is the fact that she is "easy on the nerves", emotionally controlled and at the same time responsive and sympathetic. She is restful and at the same time good company. No man can resist a combination like that. All the glamor and brains in the world haven't a chance beside it. She is the kind men marry!

Crofton

Crofton — The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Ernest Crook on Thursday afternoon with a large number of ladies present.

Miss Noreen Jones, of Belleville, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Jones of Belleville, were dinner hour guests at the same home on Sunday.

Trout's "Five-Victory Plan" Nearly Complete as Detroit Pulls Away From Washington

Detroit Hurler Stops Boston Red Sox With Two Scratch Hits

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

The "five-victory plan" of Paul (Dizzy) Trout, designed to assure Detroit of the American League pennant during the Tigers' final swing through the east, today is 80 per cent complete.

Before the talented righthander took the mound against New York, Sept. 4, for the opener of the 20-game tour, he revealed a self-made schedule calling for five victories along the Atlantic seaboard.

After blanking the Yankees 10-0, he beat them with relief help, 11-4, trimmed Boston in the fireman role, 6-2 and shut out the Red Sox yesterday, 5-0, four decisions in eight days is a torrid pace even for a Trout.

Now Tigers have lengthened their lead over Washington to two full games with 17 to play and only 13 more for the Senators.

Trout's sparkling two-hit performance in Boston was his 17th success of the season, the triumph was made easier by Doc Cramer's three-run homer in the seventh inning.

Drop a Toughie.

The Senators dropped a discouraging 2-1 toughie to Chicago after a 1-0 lead into the ninth inning. The White Sox beat Johnny Niggeling with two runs in the ninth on only one single.

New York and Cleveland were washed out of their final meeting of the campaign and the other American League clubs were not scheduled. Only news from that quarter was Luke Sewell's retention as Brownie manager for 1946-47.

The National race has developed into a close battle again with St. Louis only 2 1-2 games behind Chicago.

Borowy Earns 8th Win.

Hank Borowy, whose sale by the Yankees remains one of the big mysteries of the season, hurled his 10th complete game in as many starts for the Cubs, earning his eighth triumph by a 5-4 score.

St. Louis had to come from way back, trailing one by four runs, toi finally catch and pass New York in the last of the ninth, 6-5, on Whitey Kurowski's two-run single with the sacks loaded.

Pittsburgh continued its September drive, tightening its hold on fourth place, by dumping the Phillies twice, 5-4 in 10 innings and 5-1 on a five run spurt in the eighth frame.

After Al Libke's 10th-inning single gave Cincinnati a 5-4 shade over Brooklyn in the opener, the Dodgers snapped back with a 15-hit attack on Howie Fox and two successors for an 11-6 victory.

A GRAND GAL

Here is a popular Vicky Hillier, ace hurler for the Mountain View Bomberettes, Belleville City Champions; Interstation Champions and champions of the No. 1 Air Training Command R.C.A.F. softball loops, pictured with the Ted Schwab Trophy, emblematic of the most valuable player in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League in 1945. Vicky was the "iron woman" of the Bomberettes squad and her good right arm and stout heart paved the way for all three titles. She pitched three games in one day during the R.C.A.F. softball and swimming meet and then went on to hurl for her team in the WPSU playdowns at Peterborough and Mountain View. Today she leaves her pals at the station and henceforth will be known as "Miss" Hillier, until that lucky guy comes along. Ho hum, we were born twenty years too soon. Good luck chum!

Phil Cavarretta Spark Plug Of Chicago Cubs

By JIMMY JORDAN

Chicago, Sept. 12 — (AP)—One spring day back in 1934 a scout for Chicago Cubs watched a 16-year-old youngster avorting around for a Chicago high school baseball team.

Today he's still holding down a first base job for the Cubs, and right now he is eight percentage points ahead of Boston's Tommy Holmes as he battles for the National League batting championship.

He's Phil Cavarretta, and he's the big spark plug in manager Charlie Grimm's offence as the Cubs fight toward a National League pennant and the world series.

His batting average for this season is .360 today, compared to Holmes' .352. His fielding average is over .980, and he's driven in 87 runs. The last Cub to win the National League batting title was Heinie Zimmerman in 1912. But, Cavarretta isn't worrying about the hitting crown.

"We've got the best pitching in the league. But those pitchers need some hits and runs behind them to win," Phil avers.

He's getting his share. Yesterday, for example, he hammered out three hits and scored two runs including the winning one in the ninth to beat Boston, 5-4.

If he helps get the Cubs into the world series, it won't be a new experience, either. He played against Detroit in 1935, and against New York in 1938. Cavarretta was playing the outfield that year, but he batted at a .462 clip in the four games.

UNDERDOG TEAMS IN INT. LEAGUE TAME LEADERS

Baltimore Defeats Montreal 5-0, While Toronto Takes Newark Bears 4-2

(By The Associated Press)

The underdog teams in the International League play-offs today held a one-game edge in the battle for the Governor's Cup.

The fourth-place Baltimore Orioles, league and Little World Series champions of last year, hung a 5-0 shutout on Montreal's newly crowned loop champions Tuesday night while the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs cooled off the red-hot second-place Newark Bears 4-2.

Fred Pfeifer, Baltimore second sacker and relief pitcher Red Kress shared the honors for the Orioles. Pfeifer drove in what proved to be the winning run in the third inning when his double scored Kenny Braun. The Orioles iced the game in the ninth with four runs on three safeties.

Kress went to the aid of fireman Johnny Podgajny, who reversed roles by starting, and tamed the Royals. Kress came to Podgajny's rescue in the seventh with two out and one man on and protected the whitewash job by holding the Royals to three hits in 2 1/3 innings. Podgajny was belted for nine.

Jean Pierre Roy, Montreal's 25-game winner, was touched for only seven hits but he walked three and made two wild pitches.

Davis Hits Homer.

Les McCrabb, who joined the Leafs six weeks ago, held the Bears to five hits while Manager Harry Davis led the offence by belting in two runs with a double and homer. Jerry Crosby accounted for the Newark scoring by poling homers in the second and fourth innings but outside of that McCrabb was in complete control. He fanned five and after stopping the Bears with the bases jammed in the fifth, he retired the side in order in the last four innings.

The same teams will face each other tonight in the second tilts of the best of seven semi-final series.

SIX SURVIVORS IN THE TOURNEY

London, Ont., Sept. 12 —(CP)—The second day of the three-day army softball tournament for the championship of Military District No. 1, narrowed the field down yesterday to six survivors. Spirited ball playing saw Woodstock, Camp Ipperwash and No. 101 Company, C.W.A.C., of London, fall by the wayside.

In the morning, Central Mechanization Depot of London squeezed out a 10-9 verdict over Camp Ipperwash. In the afternoon, No. 1 C.W.A.C. of Kitchener defeated No. 101 C.W.A.C. of London 28-1. The evening game went to London C.M.D., who got away to an early start and trounced S-5 Driving and Maintenance School, Woodstock, 11-1. This gave London C.M.D. the right to advance into the men's finals.

WILDCATS LOSE SEVERAL STARS BUT LOOK STRONG

Hamilton O.R.F.U. Squad Will Have Plenty of Speed All Round

Written For The Canadian Press
By TOMMY MOORE
Hamilton Spectator

Hamilton, Sept. 12 (CP)—The loss of several of the outstanding stars who helped Hamilton Wildcats win the Ontario Rugby football Union Championship in 1944 hasn't dimmed the optimistic outlook of Coach Eddie McLean as he surveys prospects for the 1945 season.

The portly mentor, whose charges play their first game Saturday in Windsor against the Border City's new entry in the O.R.F.U., feels that his club will give a good account of itself against any opposition.

"We will have speed and more speed and above all a collection of athletes with good condition and the will to win," he says of the team which has been working out for three weeks.

Zvonkin Missing.

Among players of last years team who are missing from the Wildcats roster this season are Joe Krol, outstanding halfback in the country the last two years, hard-hitting Paul Peterson and veteran linesman Eddie Remigis and Abe Zvonkin.

The loss of these stars is practically offset by the return of George (Scotty) Wright who had experience in the Big Four before he joined the Canadian navy in 1942. The veteran Wright, who has just been discharged, is showing his old-time punting form. Ready to help Scotty with the kicking chores is young Joe Guaircia, junior sensation with the Eastwoods, provincial champions in 1944. The youngster held his own with Wright in a pre-season skirmish last Saturday and climaxed a good afternoon's work by kicking a 25-yard placement from a difficult angle.

There is plenty of strength along the wingline built around Bill O'Breza, one of the outstanding snapbacks in the Dominion, and veteran middles Reg. Boviard and Reg Wheeler. Boviard has played with the Hamilton Tigers and Wildcats and was with Hagersville R.C.A.F. last season. Wheeler was with the Tigers in 1940.

Good Outsides.

Jimmy Fumie, twice an O.R.F.U. all-star choice, and a hard-hitting tackler, is expected to hold down one outside wing position and his mate is expected to be Ross Hemingway, a school league product whose football career was interupted by overseas service with the R.C.A.F.

The rest of the team is largely an unknown quantity. Several junior players, hefty and fast, are in line positions. Joe Zavadowski, who has had both high school and junior experience, is a backfield prospect along with a youngster named Thomas, who can pass and receive, and a player named Chicocki who played with the University of Western Ontario last season in exhibition games.

OPEN TRIP WITH WIN

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 12 — (CP) — Rochester Red Wings of the International Baseball League opened an Ontario barnstorming trip last night with a 7-4 win over the Niagara Falls Houcks of the Niagara District League. Jeff Kalbfleisch of the home team was the batting star of the game with a homer, a double and a single. Second baseman Mizerak paced the visitors with three singles.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Toronto-Bound.

The Columbian Squires softball juniors took off for Bellwoods Park, Toronto, shortly after one o'clock today in search of victory in the second round of the Junior O.A.S.A. playdowns....They play at six o'clock with the second game scheduled here for Saturday. Present indications point to the game here being played on the Fair Grounds diamond with special dispensation for the Belleville Fair Board of directors.... More about that later.

• • • •

Coach Eddie Schrieder tells us that interest in football is perking up with the youngsters of the city and if it maintains its present tempo prospects for an entry in Junior O.R.F.U. pigskinning looks pretty good. So far Peterborough has entered a squad with Oshawa a possible entry. Coach Schrieder feels the lads are showing plenty of promise but a lot of work must be done before the kids round into shape. Practices are being held regularly and any youngster desirous of making the squad cannot afford to miss one.

• • • •

Splinters.

Marg Bradfield and two other members of the Bomberettes champion softball squad are in hospital suffering from after effects of a hectic mushball season ....Vic Bagnato and his players are throwing a party tonight at Mountain View for Vicky Hillier, ace hurler who is leaving the service for her home near Regina ....They're going to present her with a silver compact, Ronson lighter and several other gifts... Walt Gerow Jr., is bigger than Walt Sr., and promises to be as good a ballplayer as he is a hockey star. Walt Jr., was offered a spot with the Providence Reds hockey squad but declined. "I've done enough traveling for a while" the ex-gunner smiled, "and I think I'll settle down for a while." The pretty girl friend at his side blushed a bit at that remark.

• • • •

Later.

And here's that "more later" promised in the first paragraph about the Columbian Squires Junious. Secretary Wally Harden just phoned to say that the Toronto team will play the second game here at 3.30 p.m. Saturday. The game will be played on the Alemite Field and not on the Fair Grounds as at first reported. The boys left today at full strength and will be the same here on Saturday. "All the birth certificates have been filed" Sec. Harden informed us "and everything is hunkey-dory. It should be a diller of a series." So it behooves the fans to flock to the Alemite Field on Saturday afternoon and get behind this gallant gang of youngsters. They have proved a distinct asset to the city and to sport hereabouts, and have several outstanding members who will be able to play junior for a couple of years yet. Get out there and root for them—and don't forget to take some change with you. There will be a silver collection.

Help, Murder!

Olaf Olsen, the Swenska Swivel expert intends, so he boasts, to take Earl McCready apart tomorrow night, put him back together again and just for fun disassemble him a second time. The big Swede to whom mayhem, muscle mutilation tonsil- tickling and point jerking is just a bit of a pastime is one of the real bad boys of the wrestling ring and his treatment (if he gets away with it) of McCready at the Hume Arena tonight will be a masterpiece of rasslin' ferocity. But the Moose won't be taken so easily. The big son of Aurora is willing to meet the Svenska halfway and what will happen—well that remains to be seen. Al Bunny Dunlop and Pat Flanagan will stage another of their fast-moving bouts while Jumping Jim Bennett is slated to tangle with Irish Tom Collins.

Trenton Air Station sports officials say that Air Force athletes from Quebec and Ontario will compete there Thursday, Sept. 13, to decide track, field and tennis championships in No. 1 Air Command.

For men, events include relay races, 100-yard dash, 220, 440, 880 and the mile, high and broad jumps, shot put, pole vault, and discus throw. Members of the Women's Division are limited to the 75-yard dash, 300-yard relay, and running high and broad jumps.

Clad in shorts and singlets, the contestants will march past Air Vice-Marshal E. E. Middleton, CBE, Air Officer Comanding No. 1 Air Comand. The parade will be headed by the celebrated R.C.A.F. pipe band, formerly of Centralia.

Entered in the 100-yard and 220-yard events are Flt. Sgt. Joey Richman of Air Force Headquarters and Sgt. Doug Pyzer of Toronto. Sgt. Scotty Rankine, veteran marathoner, will run in the half-mile and mile.

Crests will be presented to all winners in the contests.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 12—(CP)—Short shots on sport:—

One possible peacetime hazard for sportsmen is indiscriminate use of service ammunition dumped on the civilian market through illegal channels or brought home by military personnel. To guard against this possibility, Canadian Industries Limited has issued a set of warning rules. Some tips:—

Don't use doubtful ammunition with a lacquered bullet nose. It may be unsuited for sports rifles. A green or black bullet tip in British, American or Canadian ammunition indicates the bullet is armor-piercing and has high penetrating power. A blue nose hints an incendiary bullet which will ignite any inflammable object. A red or white nose means tracer ammunition which will ignite wood if not burned out before contact.

Ammunition with copper-red cartridge cases shouldn't be used in a sporting rifle. Probably it will turn out to be a proof round of stronger charge than normally designed for sporting barrels.

Bill (Sarnia Canadian Observer) Brennan says a Sarnia sport group is behind a move to 'adopt' Toronto Oakwood Indians of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. The idea is that Indians, homeless now and practising in a public park, could use Athletic Park in Sarnia as a sort of "foster" stadium. "It is our opinion that Sarnia, a football-hungry town which has starved for its favorite sport since the Imperial Club folded, would welcome the adoption of the Indians for at least one season," said Bill.

Four of Canada's top-ranking amateur golfers — Nick Wisnock of Burlington, Ont., Phil Farley of Toronto Scarboro, Henry Martell, the Edmonton policeman, and Ken Black of Vancouver have been invited to compete as Canadian representatives in the National Amateur Golf Championships at Mexico City Nov. 1-4. The invitation from H. L. Keenleyside, Canadian Ambassador to Mexico, was relayed by BZML. Anderson, secretary of the Royal Canadian Golf Association. Wisnock says he'll go if expenses can be arranged.

Professional hockey teams can write Claude Bourque off their lists for this season. Bill (Moncton Transcript) Hutchinson said the former Montreal and New York National League goaltender is likely to spend the winter, 'and then some,' in the Far East. Claude is an RCAF flying officer attached to RAF Transport Command.

Blind Institute Has Big Job In the Province

There are 13,133 blind men, women and children in Canada. In Ontario there are 4,073. In a recent statement, Lieut.-Col. E. A. Baker, Managing Director of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind gave these figures and pointed out that the business of providing many different types of service for such a large number required a great deal of organization and a considerable sum of money.

When asked what these blind Canadians did and how the Institute helped them, Colonel Baker stated that 1,242 of them were regularly employed in the factories and offices of the Institute, in jobs found for them by the Institute's placement officers in private industry, and in concession stands and cafeterias operated by the C.N.I.B. He went on to say that, in the larger centres at least, practically all blind men and women capable of regular employment were working. There were, however, he said, a great many blind men and women not fitted for regular work and large numbers of these were put in a position to do part-time work either in their own homes or in one of the Institute's plants.

Colonel Baker declared that the public sometimes seemed to think that The Canadian National Institute for the Blind was only interested in finding employment for blind people. That was, of course, he said, one of the most important features of the Institute's work, but there were thousands of blind people in the country who needed other services and the provision of these was by no means the least of the Institute's activities. He told of the case of an elderly lady in a small Ontario town. The lady was too old to work. She had some means. She was active in mind and body and was looking forward to a very sad and uninteresting life when first called upon by an Institute representative. Now she is reading Braille, listening to the Talking Book, weaving, knitting, doing her own housework, taking piano lessons—leading a happy and useful life. Though blind, she is, through the opportunities brought to her by the C.N.I.B. taking her place in her little town.

It was the aim of the Institute, said Colonel Baker, to bring to every blind person every type of service and give them every kind of assistance, which would compensate them, in some small degree, for the sight they had lost. In some cases it was simply a question of giving them a few necessary comforts. In others it was a case of teaching them, training them, reviving them. "The word 'rehabilitation' is somewhat over done these days," said the Colonel, "but we have scored many fine successes in actually rehabilitating blind people, and these is no limit to what we can do for the blind of Canada if the necessary funds are placed in our hands.

The citizens of Belleville now have the opportunity of assisting the Institute in its program of rehabilitation by providing some of the necessary funds for this work. This campaign is being carried on by the Hastings County Advisory Board of which Mr. A. D. Archibald is the Chairman. This board is composed of public spirited citizens who see to it that the blind of this county are not neglected. Only one appeal is made each year. This is an important humanitarian effort, and deserves whole-hearted support.

ADANACS HAVE EDGE

New Westminster, B. C., Sept. 12 — (CP) — New Westminster Adanacs edged out Vancouver Richmonds, 11-10 in overtime here Monday night to take a two-game lead in the semi-finals of the inter-city Senior Box Lacrosse League playoffs.

Third game of the best-in-five series will be played at Vancouver Wednesday and the series winner will meet Vancouver Burrards for the right to represent Western Canada in the Canadian finals.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 779
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert used to double on general principle. But every time he did, it backfired. Declarer always took advantage of the information to pull off some special play.

See what happened to him when he sat west in this deal:

NORTH
♥ Q 6 4
♦ 7 4 3 2
♣ 7 4

WEST
♠ 10 8 7
♥ K 10 9 8
♦ A K Q
♣ 9 8 6

EAST
♠ Q J 9 5
♥ None
♦ 9 8 6 5
♣ J 10 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 6 3
♥ A J 7 5 3 2
♦ J 10
♣ A K Q

The bidding went like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	1 S
2 H	4 H
Pass

When the contract reached four hearts, west thought his hand should take a cut at it. So, he doubled. But south had confidence in his own partner's advices and redoubled.

West led out three top diamonds. He took the first two but the third was trumped by south. Assuming that the west double was based on the trump king, south led a small heart toward enemy dummy queen.

When west refused to go with the king, dummy queen won. As east showed out on that trick, south got his cue of what must be done. He knew that west must be caught in an endplay.

Taking two top dummy spades, trumping a third spade, and winning three top clubs, south led a small trump. West won it with the nine and was in the lead, of course.

But by this time west had nothing left but K 10 of hearts and he had to come to papa with one of them. Whichever he led would be straight into the jaws of the south A J

If west had not doubled, south might not have been so careful with his handling of the trump suit. A trump finesse might have been taken the natural way and west would have taken two trump tricks.

Just another case of talking too much.

Belleville Jrs. Defeat Swacos By 3 to 0 Count

Bob Bunton, Belleville Juniors hurler was in rare form last evening against SWACOS at the Alemite Field setting down the radiomen with 3 hits and blanking them by a 3-0 score.

The slim hurler struck out seven and walked one. The game developed into a pitching duel between Bunton and Juby of the SWACOS but the Juniors' ace had much better support behind him than did the opposition. SWACOS erred five times in the field against twice for the winners.

Juniors scored in the second innings on Manager St. Louis' hit and infield outs. They got another in the third, when Speedy's triple drove in Fitzpatrick, who had doubled ahead of him. Their third marker came in the eighth on two errors.

SWACOS threatened in the 5th, when Philip hit a single and Juby followed with a double, but both were left stranded on the bags as Bunton settled down and retired the side.

Juby deserved a better fate. He struck out ten Juniors and walked one, but the fielding behind him could have been better.

Speedy St. Louis who donned the catcher's gear for the game led the Junior attack with three hits, one a triple. Reeves got a pair and Semark, Strahan and Bush came through with singles. Juby got a two-baser for the losers with Latchford and the left-fielder getting singles.

Cornwall Beaten By Smiths Falls

Smith's Falls, Sept. 12—(CP)—Smith's Falls Durantes trimmed Cornwall C.O.T.C., 12-4 last night in a six-inning game called by darkness and first of a best-of-three Eastern Ontario Softball Association semi-final series which Durantes now claim to have won by virtue of Cornwall's failure to appear for the opening game originally scheduled for Saturday. Date of the next game, if another is played, will not be known until the outcome of the protest.

Discharge 90,000 Members of Three Services in 4 Mos.

Ottawa, Sept. 12 (CP) — The Defence Department announced Tuesday that almost 90,000 members of the three services were discharged between May 1 and Aug. 31.

In those four months the army discharged 54,884, the air force 25,629 and the navy 8,414 men and women.

At the same time, it was disclosed that during the same period 108,527 men and women of the three services were brought home from overseas. Of this number, 70,422 were with the army, 31,452 air force and 6,703 navy and other "miscellaneous" services. A total of 559 came by aircraft.

August saw the greatest tide of repatriation with a total of 35,302. They came by air, troop transports, grain ships, tankers and numerous Canadian naval vessels.

Referring to discharges, the department said the navy has also discharged at outside bases approximately 3,100 persons whose documents have not reached Ottawa and some 15,500 naval personnel are at prsent on leave awaiting discharge.

Discharges from the army now have reached an average of more than 1,000 per day.

The navy has established quotas for demobilization at all commands and naval divisions and these required a minimum of 2,250 discharges a week. This figure was considerably exceeded during the latter part of August, totalling more than 3,200 during the week ending Aug. 25.

The R.C.A.F. has quotas of more than 20,000 a month for releases, but this rate has been exceeded, the total discharges for the first week in September being 7.547.

TO PLAY FOR TITLE

Seattle, Sept. 12 —(AP)—Pacific Coast League Secretary Al Leader has announced that the mythical United States amateur ice hockey championships will again be played on the coast, with the winner meeting Canada's Allan Cup victor in a U. S.-Canadian play-off—also to be staged on the Pacific Coast.

Last year Frank Dotten's Seattle Ironmen copped the mythical blue ribbon by defeating Boston Olympics.

EXPLANATION OF THE SPOT

London (CP)—War secretary Jack Lawson plans to fly to Southeast Asia to visit British troops there and outline demobilization procedure. Other officials will make similar visits to troops in Europe and the Middle East.

German Industry Occupies Key Positions in Spain

By JOHN KIMCHE

London, Sept. 12. (Reuters)—German industr yin Spain, backed by money, technicians and business experts, is closely linked with practically every phase of Spanish economy is found in a recent trip to Spain.

Allied investigators seeking to liquidate German assets are finding it is virtually impossible to smash German interests without serious harm to Spanish interests.

The problem facing the Allies is a serious one. German industry occupies key positions in the Spanish national economy. The Spanish Government, quite apart from its natural political inclinations, is therefore concerned in maintaining the structure of German industry in Spain as intact as possible; the Germans for their part have seen to it that their expulsion from the Spanish economy should be as difficult as possible.

German technicians and business experts were sent to Spain to become naturalized citizens and a great many married into the Spanish aristocracy and commercial elite. German businesses were turned into Spanish concerns with Spanish directors while the German brains occupied comparatively minor—but in reality all-powerful—positions.

Brilliant Student

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP) — George McCowan of Paris, Ont., student at Pickering College, took first class honors in nine senior matriculation examinations, won three University of Toronto scholarships and was awarded two college prizes for all-round leadership, it was announced Monday night.

The three U. of T. awards won by the 18-year-old student who will enrol in social and philosophical studies at the university included a Blake Scholarship in English and history, one in English, history and mathematics and the Elizabeth Blurr Tyrre Scholarship in English and mathematics.

New Destroyer Is Commissioned

Clydebank, Scotland, Sept. 11. (CP)—In a thick mist, HMCS Crescent, Canada's newest destroyer, was commissioned yesterday.

The tones of "O Canada!" sounded along the tall buildings overlooking the Clyde as the brief ceremony was conducted. Chaplain E. G. B. Foote, of New Glasgow, N.S., dedicated the ship to the Glory of God and for battles of freedom.

The officer commanding, Lt.-Cmdr. C. P. Nixon, 28, of Victoria, spoke briefly, thanking the builders for providing "such a fine ship". Capt. P. B. German, newly appointed head of the Canadian naval mission in the United Kingdom, was present.

The ship's company was mustered and a guard of honor presented arms as the long, slender commissioning pennant was raised with the white ensign.

Several Toronto Officers.

The Crescent's sea trials will start within a few days.

The Crescent is the first of the Crescent Class destroyers and larger than the River Class, in use by the Royal Canadian Navy since the war began. However, it is smaller than the Tribal Class destroyers added to the Canadian fleet more recently.

Designed For 30 Knots.

The Crescent has a displacement of 2,500 tons and is 362 feet long. She is armed with four 4.5-inch guns, two fore and two aft, a Bofors 40-mm. anti-aircraft gun and one quadruple mount of 21-inch torpedoes. She has a designed speed of more than 30 knots and its engines generate 40,000 horsepower.

She carries a crew of about 250 men.

PRISONERS UNHAPPY

Singapore, Sept. 12 — (Reuters)—Freed Allied prisoners and internees are still quartered in the squalid surroundings of their former prison camps in the Singapore areas, while German sailors and soldiers lounge unguarded in luxury seaside villas of the select residential district of Pasir Panjang, six miles to the west.

Hong Kong Area To Be Surrendered To Adm. Harcourt

Hong Kong, Sept. 12 — (CP) — Formal surrender of Japanese in the Hong Kong area is scheduled for Tuesday in this one time fortress city which shows war scars only on the fringes.

The surrender document will be signed a short distance from Victoria jail, in which six Japanese were lodged Sunday after they had been ferried from Kowloon to face war criminal charges for abuse of Canadian and British internees and prisoners of war in Stanley and Samshuipo prison camps.

Capt. Wallace Creery, of Vancouver, commander of the Canadian anti-aircraft cruiser Prince Robert, will sign for Canada, while Lt.-Gen. O Cho Yin, former commander of the Chinese Expeditionary Force in Burma, will sign for China.

The signing followed by less than 24 hours the departure of the liner Empress of Australia from Hong Kong harbor with many liberated Allied Nationals, most of them Canadians who were part of the garrison which fell Christmas Day, 1941.

The ship went to the opposite side of the island to pick up most of the remaining Stanley Camp internees for departure last night. Destination of the Empress was not announced, but it was believed she would make her first stop at Manila.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 12

The count laughed.

"But my dear, you have certainly been unconventional about everything else. Never once have you asked me to meet your family. You have always suggested that I meet you down town."

"I might have known you wouldn't understand," she said bitterly. But even then she could not explain to him that she had been ashamed for him to see the shabby old house when no doubt he had imagined her living in a mansion like the Whitcombs. She rose saying magnificently, "My wrap, please! I must be going."

For the first time he seemed to realize she was not playing a game. Putting his arms about her he cried, "Please don't go, Folly! I'm sorry I made such a mistake about you. Truly I am. But it's silly to run away now since you are here. Let's have a quiet little dinner together then you may go. After all we are not alone. My servant is here."

He Kisses Her.

"A lot of protection he would be," Folly thought, recalling the cold-eyed, sinister face of the man who had pretended to call Eric to the telephone.

"No," she said childishly. "I must go. I guess this just about finishes everything."

More eagerly than ever he pleaded with her to give him one more chance but Folly was hurt and a little frightened. She pushed him away and intrigued by her resistance, he seized her in his arms and kissed her.

At the same moment the chime sounded which announced the arrival of the elevator.

"Sit down," commanded the count, and Folly, too astonished to refuse, dropped into the nearest chair. Her heart threatening to suffocate her. For once she had gone too far and she began to wonder if he would let her leave.

Bruce at Door.

If only this would be some friend of his so that she could slip away while he was there. Eric had opened the door now leading into the tiny entry and to her surprise and delight she saw the uniformed figure of Bruce Potter.

"Oh, Bruce!" she cried running toward him.

"Chan gave me your message," he said smiling.

She said, "I was just leaving." Turning to the man who stood with ice blue eyes fixed upon her she said, "Mr. Potter, may I presen Count Lindstrom?" In her confusion she had presented the count to Bruce when it should have been the other way round but she didn't even care. Eric bowed stiffly and Bruce grinned in his usual friendly fashion.

Chan's Message

Putting the blue velvet wrap about her shoulders he said, "Good evening, sir!" as if the count were an old man. A moment later they were in the lift which was suddenly just an elevator. The door man touched his hat respectfully. He'd been mistaken about her, too, although Folly would never know it.

As they walked into the fragrance of the cool, starlit night Folly said "Oh, Bruce, I was so glad to see you. But what message did Chan give you?"

"Do you mean you didn't send word to me to call for you here?"

Folly shook her head.

"Did Chan tell you that?"

"Naturally! Do you think I'd come bursting into a strange man's apartment for any other reason?"

Folly laughed hsyterically.

"What I really said was for you to call me later. I was—I was very busy when you telephoned."

She could feel the muscles in his arm contract with disappointment and she cried quickly, "The count had invited me to a dinner party but after I got there I found I was to be the only guest. That's why I was leaving."

"Where did you meet him in the first place?" Bruce inquired.

Bruce Understands

"At the Whitcombs. Susan was a classmate of mine. They are very nice people. Mrs. Whitcomb met Eric in New York."

"I suppose that's why you haven't been to the Hospitality house latel,y" Bruce continued.

"Yes, it is," she confessed. "But please don't think I've been doing anything I shouldn't. I mean anything. . ."

She had not known a boy's smile could be sweet.

"Do you think I don't know that? How about having something to eat? You must be starved and I certainly am. Let's see if we can find a taxi."

For one fleeting instant Folly had a touch of the same feeling she had about Bruce before she had seen him. In the black out the pressure of his hand had thrilled her. Perhaps because she had been more frightened than she realized in Eric Lindstrom's apartment the appearance of Bruce seemed providential.

She had treated him shabbily but she would make up for it by being unusually nice to him tonight. They had never had so much fun. In her engagements with the count she had been too conscious of his importance to fully enjoy herself. It was not necessary to make any impression on him. He adored her as she was and she promised to see him again soon. She even permitted him to kiss her good night.

Gift of Roses.

But the next morning when Chan appeared with her breakfast tray she said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Listening to my conversations over the telephone."

"You get home all right?" he inquired.

"Yes I did. But that still does not make it right for you to give people messages I didn't say."

"Maybe next time you talk yourself," he said calmly, walking out of the room.

There was no use arguing with Chan. Nor complaining about him to her sisters. Folly told herself it didn't matter now. She never expected to hear from the count again. She went out for lunch but when she returned there had been no telephone calls. Chan was arranging a bunch of magnificent hot house roses in a large cut glass vase.

"Where did those come from?" Folly asked.

He replied, "For you."

"But who sent them?"

"Probably from soldier boy," Chan surmised.

Thinks of Count.

Folly ran to the kitchen but although she searched the box which had contained them she could find no evidence of the sender. Were they from Bruce or the count? How could she find out?

Returning to the drawing room she saw tiny bits of cardboard in the empty fireplace. And she knew, because if the roses had been from Bruce, Chan would not have torn up the card. It was useless accusing him of it. The fact that Eric had sent her roses softened her heart toward him. She had been thinking about him all day, feeling more a woman of the world since her experience of the night before.

Now that it was over she could see where she had been partly to blame. Just as he had said how was he to know what kind of a person she was when she had constantly agreed to meet him away ffrom her home? She was smart enough to realize that all men took a girl at her own evaluation.

Hadn't Bruce Kissed her early in their acquaintance? She had promptly slapped him and he had not repeated it until last night when his kiss had been very different. More like a brotehr's, Folly recalled. Yes and it was not until after he found out she wouldn't stand for casual petting that Bruce had proposed marriage. Suppose it worked the same way with Eric! What if he should come to her now admitting that he had misjudged her, asked her to be his countess?

Pressing her face against the velvety petals of the roses Folly began to weave another romantic dream. He would say, "I was wrong about you, darling! Will you marry me?" And she, eyes remote and brooding, would reply, "You are forgiven, Eric. But I must have time to think it over before I can promise to become your wife."

Says Gift From Bruce

When Chan had left the room she retrieved the pieces of cardboard. They were too fine to put together but she could see enough to tell that it bore Eric's name. Purring with delight at her own cleverness she left the torn card on the table so that Chan would realize she had not been deceived and climbed the stairs humming a little tune. At dinner that night when Marta commented on the beautiful roses Folly said boldly, "There was no card in the box so they must have been from Bruce."

She glanced at Chan but his impassive expression did not change. "Eat your soup, Missee Folly," he said, as if he had not heard. "Soup very good tonight."

Folly Neglected.

Marta had continued talking to Hilton and the matter of the rose was dropped. Folly had been feeling rather neglected lately. Even when she did have dinner at home no one paid any attention to her. Hilton Wood had disappointed her even more than the count. At least Eric was interested in her while "grandpa" didn't seem to know she was alive.

It wasn't much fun eating with a couple of people who seemed to have a lot of secret meanings in everything they said. From the way they talked they must have been seeing quite a lot of each other. Marta was blooming like a rose. She hadn't looked like that even when she was engaged to Jim. Folly wondered if Hazel knew anything about it and realized it had been weeks since she had any real intimate conversation with either of her sisters.

It must be the war. Always before they had known every single thing she was doing. At no previous period in her life could Folly have spent so much time with anyone without their suspecting it. But now Marta was home so seldom and Hazel so busy at the haspital that no one bothered about Folly.

Most people seem to think the only way to get relief from their sore, painful piles is by local treatment. Local treatment may give temporary relief from the itching but you can easily see why such treatment will not correct the cause of your piles.

No lasting freedom from pile misery can be had unless the cause of the trouble is corrected. Piles are due to internal causes so the best way to get lasting relief is to treat them internally with a medicine like Hem-Roid.

Hem-Roid is a formula that has been used for over 40 years by thousands of pile sufferers. It is a small, highly concentrated tablet, easy and pleasant to use. This cleverly compounded tablet formula directs its medical action to relief of the congestion that is the real cause of your piles. Hem-Roid promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements, quickly relieves itching irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the lower bowel the painful pile tumors soon heal over leaving the sensitive rectal membranes clean and healthy."

We invite you to try Hem-Roid and let it prove itself. You can make your test, in the privacy of your own home. NO COST if you are not convinced that this is an amazingly easy and surprisingly effective method of treating your sore, painful piles.

Get a package of Hem-Roid today from any drug store and use it as directed for JUST FIVE DAYS. At the end of that time if you are not absolutely sure Hem-Roid is the nicest, cleanest and most effective pile treatment you ever tried, return the unused portion of the package to your druggist and he will promptly refund your money.

NOTE: This generous offer is backed by a reliable firm doing business in Canada for a good many years. Hem-Roid must help your pile condition quickly, easily and pleasantly or this simple, easy test costs you nothing. Try it today.

RED-CONTROLLED BALKAN REGIMES CREATE PROBLEM

Big Five Ministers Turn Attention to Peace Treaty With Italy

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 12 — (AP)—Foreign Ministers of the Big Five powers turned their attention today to a peace treaty with Italy, a question laced with a complexity of European problems which hold the key to the future of the continent.

Overshadowing the discussion will be the problem of the Communist-controlled Balkan governments. The Soviet Union seeks recognition of the existing governments in the former Axis satellite states of Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Some Britons and Americans appear to interpret the Russian stand as indicating that Moscow seeks a free rein in those countries and therein may lie one of the conference's principal stumbling blocks.

The task of the foreign ministers as outlined in last night's first communique is: "To continue necessary preparatory work for peace settlements and to consider any other matters which may from time to time be referred to it (the conference) by agreement of the governments who are members of the council.

Austrian Situation

Less pressing than the Balkan situation but still important is the Russian insistence upon Allied acceptance of the government of Dr. Karl Renner in Austria, which was established provisionally under conditions of Soviet occupation.

From Vienna came announcement of a proclamation of the Allied Control Council stating that the proposal for recognition would be studied by council members who would "submit recommendations to their respective governments."

A series of French proposals to be taken up is in process of preparation or presentation to the conference. The French seek internationalization of Ruhr industries, severance of the Rhineland from Germany, with the Rhine as a defence line, and the establishment there of an autonomous state, with western protection.

No One Prevented From Entering House Report

Ottawa, Sept. 12 (CP)—No one was "prevented" from entering the parliament buildings Monday on the occasion of a visit by a labor delegiaton, a report from Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons, read in the House by Speaker Fauteux, said yesterday.

The speaker received the report in answer to an inquiry Monday from M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, as to the authority by which citizens, including Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, were stopped from seeing members of parliament.

Dr. Beauchesne's report said that a large crowd of visitors was expected Monday and as there were only four House constables on duty he asked for some men from the Royal Canadian Mounted police.

Members of the labor delegation came to his office and asked for the use of the railway committee room to meet members of parliament. He told them they could have it if a member wished to see them there. They asked to be directed to Mr. Coldwell's room and Mr. Beauchesne sent them to the front door where there was a constable to assist them.

Remained There.

They then went to Mr. Coldwell's room and remained there. Some others insisted on seeing the C.C.F. leader, but were informed the C.C.F. was in caucus and the constables could not disturb the members. Eventually, a message was sent to the caucus and Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) came out and spoke to them. Constables had standing orders not to permit visitors to go to members' rooms unless the members wished to receive them since members should not be disturbed at their correspondence.

The report said Premier Douglas had informed Dr. Beauchesne he was not prevented from entering the building but was asked for his name, and on giving it came in.

The staff was not told to keep anyone out and Commissioner Wood of the R.C.M.P. said his men had not stopped anyone. There was some confusion when a large number of people tried to come in at once and in order to slow up the rush the front doors were closed for about a half hour, but were not locked.

TO GET PAY AND INTEREST

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP) —Canadian prisoners of war liberated from Japanese-held territory will arrive home correctly dressed and find back pay plus three per cent interest credited to their account, it was disclosed in a 12-page booklet issued by the Inter-service Committee on prisoners of war.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP)—Industrials posted an index gain of .65 and golds were up .16 at midday on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Base metals recorded an index of 34. Turnover at 1 p.m. was 695,000 shares.

The market showed little change from the open. In the golds, Regcourt, Northern Canada, Amaque and Aubelle were features. East Sullivan picked up toward noon after steeper losses and boarded a loss of 10 at 460.

Little change was recorded in industrials. New tops were boarded for Canadian Brewers at 19½, Donnaconna at 12¾ and Abitibi Preferred at 66.

Steep Rock was a feature in the base metal group, rising to a gain of three after a firm opening.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 12 (CP)—Prices were steady in trading today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 75; sheep and lambs 71; hogs 123; calves 48.

Most cattle offered were just of common to medium good quality. Steers of medium quality sold from 10-11. Common were 8 up. Heifers were weighed in at 6-10. Good cows were 9, medium 7.50-8.25 and common 6.50-7.25. Canners and cutters were 5-6.25. Bulls of good butcher type were mostly 8-8.75 and common as low as 6.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 12. (AP)—Selected Steels, Motors, Rubbers, Aircrafts and Utilities continued to advance in today's stock market while the rest of the list followed an irregular trend with rails generally declining.

The pace was moderately active at times but volume lagged occasionally near the fourth hour.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 12 (CP) — Dressedweight were down 10 cents cwt. at Barrie and prices unchanged at Brantford in the only two bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Barrie $15.25, Grade A, delivered; Brantford $17.85 plus transportation, Grade A.

Four Bandits Rob Bank Of $40,000

Langton, Ont., Sept. 12 (CP)—Four armed and masked men today robbed the Imperial Bank of Canada branch in this village 25 miles southwest of Woodstock and in the heart of the fluecured tobacco-growing area and it was reported they escaped with $40,000.

The four entered the bank at 10.45 a.m. and after the robbery they drove away in the direction of Tillsonburg.

The bank has a staff of three or four persons and the manager is John Brayley.

Bank officials and provincial police declined to say just how much money was taken but is was believed to be considerable as wages as high as $10 to $12 a day now are being paid tobacco harvest workers.

Police said the four men were dressed in raincoats, their hats pulled low over their faces and with silk stockings pulled over their heads.

They threatened the four employees in the bank with revolvers, then, after forcing the teller to give them the money in the cage, drove away in a grey Ford car.

New Rationing Rules Headache For Meat Dealers

Customers entering city butcher shops the past three days have seen the strange sight of butchers and staffs, one set of fingers scratching puzzled heads, the other tracing fine figures on a large chart that is hung prominently in all shops.

In short the butchers' headache this week has been beef and bottlenecks, cutlets and coupons; tokens and tripe, and rationing and rib stew.

A consensus today revealed that Madam Housewife, not yet fully cognizant with the intricacies of the new meat rationing edict, is carefully conserving ration coupons until the end of the week in order to secure a satisfactory weekend roast.

It is all new and strange this meat rationing. Delay in service is occurring due to the unfamiliarity of butcher shop staffs with the new meat groupings and the value of coupons and tokens. One meat dealer looks for plenty of "bottlenecks" on Saturday when the weekend rush starts.

"Oh, well," sighed one dealer, "it's like anything else. I suppose we'll get used to it in time, but if this keeps up the whole darned staff will need spectacles after trying to decipher the different values and groups"

Another muttered something about going back to school again and what were the chances of hiring a chartered accountant to work behind the counter. A waggish customer in a downtown store, grabbed his tokens (change for coupons) and wittily suggested that they be used to play bingo.

In more serious vein another dealer declared that in his opinion there is no need for meat rationing. "There is plenty of meat in the country and this new wrinkle is just to give some big shots a job in Ottawa."

Volume of meat sales this week, has naturally decreased, but in figures larger than was anticipated by dealers. The public apparently is carefully studying the rules and regulations and while at present not quite clear on some of the phases, is taking no chances on buying cuts that will result in depletion of meat for the all-important weekend.

FRESH PROTESTS

Strike Threats Heard

Strike threats have come from Windsor, Ont., Kitchener, Ont., Victoria and Saint John, N. B., and protests have been made by Halifax-Dartmouth and North Bay, Ont., dealers. Milder opposition has arisen in Saskatoon where retailers have expressed protest but have decided to give the plan a trial for a week or two.

Suggestion that the government should have asked for a voluntary reduction in the use of meat rather than demanding it by its rationing program was made by James Edmonson of Chatham, Ont., who said "If every man were asked to give he would do so, but we won't be taken by the necks and forced to do so."

Yacht Club Discusses Plans to Resume Power Boat Regatta

Picton, Sept. 12 — The possibility of resuming the annual power boat regatta on the Bay here, was discussed at a meeting of Prince Edward Yacht Club. It was decided to secure the sanction of the American Power Boat Association for such a regatta, and that a date be set aside for this event. The last regatta was held in 1939, and when gasoline rationing came into effect such races were impossible. At two of the regattas new world marks were set. Vice Commodore J. C. Cooper stated that many of the famous drivers who had competed here in the past were anxious to return, as the bay is one of the best courses in North America, being sheltered. The first Monday in August 1946 was preferred as the date, but definite action will be taken later. The committee named to make arrangements included Harold Knapman, C. Lewis, Harold Demille and William Gillies.

Mr. Cooper suggested that plans be secured from a boat designer for a 16-foot runabout, with exact specifications to apply for boat racing in that class. Several boats would no doubt be built locally for that class of racing, and the design would be the property of the local club, he stated.

Ministers Form Federation.

Ministers of the town have formed a Federation for the purpose of handling the many special occasions when their services are demanded outside of the church. These include the holding of the Week of Prayer, services at the Old People's Home, Thanksgiving Day, Remembrance Day, Bible teaching in the schools. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon was elected president, Rev. W. G. H. Swayne vice president, Rev. R. T. Holton secretary-treasurer.

Trees Bloom.

The unusual weather this year is providing some freaks. At the home of Joe Morrison, Talbot Street, there is an apple tree which has a good showing of blossoms. Edward Smith at Cherry Valley reports a crab apple tree there in bloom for the first time this year.

Brief Items.

Major Gordon Walmsley, Mrs. Walmsley and sons visited her mother, Mrs. H. W. Kerfoot in Toronto over the weekend. Mrs. Walmsley's brother, Lieut. Jack Kerfoot, had just returned from overseas.

Dr. Ray Clapp attended a short course for veterinaries at the O.A.C., Guelph, last week.

Flying Officer J. V. H. Forrester and Mrs. Forrester visited relatives in town this week. They were married in Ottawa on Sept. 8, the bride being the former Lieut. Jean VanDusen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton VanDusen, Picton.

Mrs. J. H. Rhodes is receiving treatment in Prince Edward County Hospital, having suffered a broken hip.

Patrick Widdifield, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Widdifield, will attend boys' school at Lakefield.

Donald Bateson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bateson, was stricken with infantile paralysis late last week. He was taken to hospital at Kingston for treatment and a report yesterday indicated that paralysis of the lower part of the body had set in.

PICTON

21 Returned Men Welcomed Home From Overseas

Picton, Sept. 11. —Twenty-one Prince Edward County service men are returning to Canada from overseas this week. The first group, those docking at Quebec on Sunday, arrived at Belleville yesterday and were greeted by relatives and friends, as well as the County Reception and Welcoming Committee.

Among them is Sgt. George Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright, Picton. He was awarded the United States Silver Star for gallantry in action in Italy. As a paratrooper Sgt. Wright was one of the originals of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and his father went overseas at the same time, in December, 1939. Volunteering for duty as a paratrooper, he trained in the U.S.A. He saw service at Kiska and then went to Italy, where he was wounded in action.

On the night of Feb. 15-16, 1944, near Borgo Sabatino, Italy, Sgt. Wright and a fellow soldier were assigned an outpost position at a point along the front defending his unit. At dawn, approximately 35 Germans struck this section of the outpost line and in the opening fire, Sgt. Wright's assistant was wounded in the leg and arm. Sgt. Wright ordered his companion to retire, and to cover the withdrawal he advanced toward the enemy, firing his automatic rifle from the hip. Although he placed himself in an extremely dangerous position by advancing alone, he succeeded in delaying hostile advance sufficiently to permit his comrade to withdraw.

Sgt. Wright then made a fighting withdrawal to his own main line of resistance. The citation covering the award was signed by Lt.-Col. Mark W. Clark, commanding U.S. Army.

First Dropped Into France.

Sgt. Wright later served on the Western Front as a paratrooper, being one of the first dropped into France when the invasion was just starting there. He had served there since. Recently, he married an English girl.

Overseas since 1939, Sgt. Herbert Vincent served with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, before transferring to the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards. He served in Sicily, Italy, Holland, Belgium and in Germany. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vincent.

Another vet of '39 is Pte. Harry Vancleaf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Vancleaf, Picton. Originally with the local regiment, he was later with the Postal Corps and served in England and on the Western Front. His brother, Donald, is still overseas.

Pte. Elmo Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Pierce, had been overseas since December, 1939, as had been Cpl. A. W. Still. Cpl. A. J. Saucier was met by his family from Consecon.

Sgt. Jack Welbanks was reunited with his English bride, who arrived here some months ago. He is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Harry Clarke. Overseas with the First Division, he served in Sicily, Italy, Holland and Germany.

Leading Sniper.

Recognition as a leading sniper was given Sgt. Claude Browne, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Browne. With Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, he went overseas in 1939, taking part in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns before going to the Western Front.

Pte. Fred Smith will be welcomed by his wife and four children, whom he has not seen in nearly six years. Pte. C. I. Cole was welcomed by his family, who reside near Bloomfield.

Staff Sergeant Harry Welsh had served overseas with an anti-aircraft battery, since 1940. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Welsh.

Pte. Eric Mead is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Meal, Bethel, and has been overseas since 1939. His brother, Alfred, recently returned to Canada after being liberated as a prisoner-of-war.

Others in the list of arrivals were Pte. R. G. Adair, of Consecon; Gunner G. H. Velez, Picton; Spr. Raymond Brown, son of Mrs. Joel Goodmurphy, Wellington, who had three sons in the Services; Cpl. Charles Martin, RCAF, son of Mrs. Cecelia Manlow, Picton.

Squadron Leader Merlin Hicks, M.D., joined his wife in Montreal. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hicks, Picton.

MARMORA

Bamboo Pole Used to Land 8-Pound 'Lunge

Glen Wellman, fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wellman wound up a fishing expedition in fine style on Sunday afternoon with her parents and W. B. Wilde, when she visited Deer River near the fish hatchery. Her choice of tackle was an old sixteen-foot bamboo pole and, incidentally her father also took along a bamboo pole, while the other two anglers had more modern equipment. Some pickerel and bass had been landed in which Glen had no share. Not wishing to be outdone, she got on to a small island by herself and using a small bull frog for bait, cast her line. To her great satisfaction she landed her first muskie alone. It was thirty-seven inches long and four hours after being taken out of the water weighed eight pounds and eleven ounces. Glen is of the opinion now that more depends upon the angler than on the tackle.

White's District

Presentation to Bride-Elect.

White's District — On Wednesday evening over 160 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson to honor their only daughter Helen who is being married in White's Church on Saturday, Sept. 15th. Community singing was enjoyed and Mrs. Glenn Meyers and Mrs. George Bilham favored with two duets. The Rev. A. C. McCallum as chairman called the gathering to order with a few well chosen words and called on Mrs. B. Bonisteel to read the address.

Helen, although moving to a neighboring community will be greatly missed as she has faithfully held the position of pianist of White's Church for several years was teacher of the Junior class of the Sunday School and also took an active part in the Young People's Union. A miscellaneous shower of glassware, silverware, china, pyrex, linen and towelling testified to the high esteem with which Helen is regarded. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

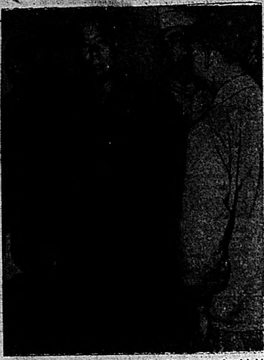
JAP GENERAL ENTERS BILIBID PRISON



The gates of New Bilibid prison in Manila, are closed behind Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, commander of all Japanese forces in the Philippines and conqueror of Singapore, who once boasted that he would drive Gen. MacArthur from the Philippines. Gen. Yamashita is shown as he arrived at the prison from Baguio, in northern Luzon, where he had signed surrender documents a few hours earlier. His once powerful forces in Luzon numbered only a few thousand at time of surrender.

ARRESTED

Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, the Japanese naval minister who planned the Pearl Harbor sneak attack, has been arrested at his Tokyo home. "I don't suicide," was his message when permitted to finish his dinner.

HE'LL BE TRIED

FIRST PARTY TEST IN THE COMMONS MAY COME SOON

Former President Of Conservative Party In Quebec Left Because of Policy

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 13 (CP) — The House of Commons today moved towards the first test of party strength since the opening of the new session.

It was decided last night after a series of speeches that the Throne Speech debate would end today and in the vote which follows the government's small over-all majority may be put to a test in rejecting the opposition amendments which, if passed, would amount to a vote of want of confidence.

There is a C.C.F. amendment which, since it calls for "fundamental social and economic changes," is not likely to be supported by Progressive Conservatives and so will not unite the opposition. There also is a Progressive Conservative amendment so worded that all opposition members can, if they wish, unite on it.

Yesterday the House heard Bona Arsenault (L-Bonaventure) former president of the Progressive Conservative Association in Quebec, elected as an Independent and now throwing his support behind the government, denounce his former party.

He said he had left the Progressive Conservative party because a certain element had resumed the policy "of playing one part of the country against the other...and of stirring up prejudice against Quebec."

Rfmn. D. Wellman Former Jap POW Flying to America

Mrs. Jennie Wellman, Allans Mills, received a cable last night from Rifleman David Wellman of the Royal Rifles of Canada, who has been a prisoner of war in Japanese hands in Hong Kong since December, 1941.

The cable was sent from Guam, dated Sept. 12 and read: "Flying to San Francisco. Convalescing from attack of pneumonia. Hope to see you soon. Love. Dave."

Rifleman Wellman, son of Mrs. Wellman and the late David Wellman, joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1939 and transferred to the Royal Rifles, a Quebec regiment. The unit was sent to Hong Kong and fought the Japs before and during the occupation of that city. Wellman was taken prisoner with a number of his comrades during the battle for the city.

Col. Merritt Says Cabinet Should Do More Visiting

He said the country looked to them for leadership but to give leadership they needed to do two things, get out around the country and see how their policies were working and give the people information, tell them what they wanted and why..

No general was any good who remained at his headquarters. A general was good only when he gave his orders to a staff officer and then got out with the troops to see how things were going.

International Control Of Ruhr and Rhineland Studied at Big 5 Meet

London, Sept. 13. (AP) —The Big Five conference of Foreign Ministers was in recess today for study of a flood of proposals, among them reportedly a set of detailed plans for Internationalization of the Ruhr and the Rhineland which the French are said to be pressing urgently. The recess ends tomorrow.

A French official said flatly France had no desire to annex any part of the Rhineland, but wanted it and the Ruhr severed promptly from Germany in time to prevent effectively any resurgence of German nationalism there.

This argument is based upon the premise that control of the Ruhr's industry and the Rhine's traffic should be international, because it affords domination of Western Europe—a power that no single state should hold.

Still the top consideration of the conference was the Italian peace treaty, however. A tentative document incorporating French proposals for altering Italy's borders and controlling her colonies was considered in last night's meeting of James F. Byrnes, United States Secretary of State, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov, former Minister Wang Shih-Chieh and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, of France.

Balkan Problem.

The Balkan problem still formed a complex backdrop for discussion of the treaty. It was reported that the argument between Britain, Russia and the United States would centre upon the question whether peace treaties should be written with the Balkan States now, as Moscow apparently desires, or should be delayed until the regimes of those countries meet Allied standards of what constitutes representative government.

A sign Moscow was squarely behind the government of Premier Petru Groza was seen in an announcement of a series of agreements negotiated between Russia and Romania, implementing the armistice terms in favor of the latter by a reduction in reparations demands.

The Moscow radio announced that Russia also had agreed to return to Romania her Black Sea and Danube River fleets and to lend her wheat and corn to relieve threats of starvation.

Reported Note From King Peter.

Tied in with the Balkan situation was a reliable report that King Peter of Yugoslavia had sent a note to Mr. Byrnes denouncing the government of Marshal Tito.

Mr. Byrnes' office said nothing was known thus far of such a note. But it has been an open secret that Britain and the United States are dissatisfied with some aspects of Tito's regime.

Mr. Byrnes talked today with the Greek Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, perhaps about the peace treaty with Italy and Balkan politics.

Diplomats say the Greeks are willing to join Britain and the United States in a lenient attitude toward Italy, even though Mussolini attacked the little kingdom. Greece and Dodecanese.

It is believed that Archbishop Damaskinos has the assurance of Britain and the United States that Greece will get the Dodecanese Islands, inhabited largely by Greeks, at the approaches of the Dardanelles.

There were strong indications the Greeks also will insist on reparations from Italy, although the British and United States view is that Italian economy should not be burdened with such payments.

United States representatives in eastern and southeastern Europe are gathering in London for urgent consultations with Mr. Byrnes on numerous touchy Balkan situations now before the council of foreign ministers.

Mr. Byrnes saw King Peter of Yugoslavia on the express invitation of the young monarch. Another Byrnes conference was with Herbert Evatt, Australian external affairs minister.

U.S. Diplomats to London.

GEN. TOJO LOOKS TOWARDRECOVERY FROM HIS WOUND

Tokyo, Sept. 13 — (AP)—United States 8th Army headquarters empowered the Japanese government today to round up the remaining Japanese on Gen. MacArthur's "wanted" list.

No time limit was set but it was indicated the government would have to show some progress within two days or the privilege would be withdrawn.

The government had asked permission to handle further arrests after Hideki Tojo, deposed wartime dictator, shot himself two days ago while American officers hammered at his door. Now in "satisfactory" condition and able to talk with correspondents today, Tojo had headed the list of those sought for questioning about war crimes.

Imperial Headquarters Abolished

Japan today reported formally that its Imperial headquarters had been abolished in compliance with Gen. MacArthur's orders and Gen. MacArthur announced that Gen. Walter Krueger of the United States 6th Army and Vice Admiral Harry Hill of the 5th Amphibious force would enter Sasebo, Kyushu, Sept. 20 to prepare for its occupation two days later.

The former premier, who spilled his own blood two days ago to avoid arrest as a suspected war criminal, shook off his earlier, professed desire to die as transfused blood improved his condition at an evacuation hospital in Yokohama.

As Tojo, raised to a semi-sitting position, ate his first food since his attempted suicide Tuesday, others who had played major roles with him since the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor either were being rounded up or were doing a more effective job of self-elimination.

ULYSSE LAUZON, WIFE CAPTURED BYMOUNTEDPOLICE

Chase for Bank Robber Ends Search That Spread Across Five Provinces

Charlottetown, Sept. 13 —(CP) —In a detective thriller ending a search that spread 1,000 miles seas. The other, J. Keefe of Ed-Canadian Mounted Police constables yesterday captured Ulysse Lauzon, his wife Eileen and a companion, following a tip by a mysterious woman at the Covehead race track, 10 miles from here. Gunplay and an attempted escape figured in the episode.

The 22-year-old Lauzon and his bride, 20, had been sought across Eastern Canada in connection with a series of holdups in Ontario and Quebec, including the theft of perhaps $320,000 in bonds and $10,000 cash from the Royal Bank of Canada branch at Bath, near Kingston, Ont.

Believed to Have Come

The $300,000 worth of bonds found by Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police in the Chicoutimi, Que., area are believed to have come from Bath, and if so that would give the tiny community of 297 the doubtful distinction of having Canada's biggest robbery.

The Lauzons and their companion, identified by documents on his person as Walter Koresky of Windsor, Ont., were taken in custody just outside the Covehead race track after the unidentified woman tipped police that the three strangers were plunging with unusually large bets at the parimutuels.

Their identity was not known at the time, since they were carrying false registration cards, but a trick attempt to escape, gunplay and a scuffle resulted in their downfall.

The trio appeared before Magistrate G. J. Tweedy today, with the men charged with carrying concealed weapons and the woman with vagrancy. They were remanded until Sept. 20 which was taken to be a routine move to hold them pending the arrival of Quebec Provincial Police who are now enroute to Charlottetown.

Spectators in the court noticed that Lauzon had a blackened eye as a result of yesterday's scuffle.

STRIKE PICKETS BAR GATES TO OFFICE WORKERS

Ford President One Of the Executives Not Allowed to Enter The Factory

By FRASER MACDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)— Some 300 strike pickets today barred the gates of the Ford Motor Company of Canada to office employees as a strike involving 10,000 members of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) went into its second day. Production workers made no attempt to pass the picket lines.

Onlookers estimated that about 800 of the 2,000 office employees arrived at the gates around 8 a.m. and after and were turned away. Police said there were no incidents except for a brief brush involving a number of pickets and Noel Campbell, son of Walace R. Campbell, President of the company.

The younger Campbell drive up to the gate in his car and one of the pickets said the bumper struck him on the leg. Another was seen to jump into the seat of the coupe and apparently was trying to drag the driver out. Order was restored quickly by Sergeant Alex Innes of the Windsor police force, one of a half a dozen policemen patrolling the vast plant area.

Office in Hotel.

The Ford President was among the office workers and executives turned away from the gates and a short time later the company took over a number of fifth-floor rooms in a downtown hotel (Prince Edward) to carrying on essential work.

So far there has been no statement from the company in the walkout.

In a statement yesterday afternoon President Roy England of Local 200 attributed the walkout to "persistent chiseling down of collective bargaining contracts."

Tom Maclean assistant regional director of the U.A.W. in Canada, told a mass meeting of union members last night that if members of Local 200 did not feel within a few days they were gaining ground, then amalgamated Local 195 with some 8,000 members in about 30 plants employing 12,000 workers would be called out on strike. Union members in 10 of these plants have already voted for strike action but so far the International Executive Board of the union has withheld its approval.

Bandits Obtain $33,000 in Loot At Langton Bank

Langton, Ont., Sept. 13. (CP)— Police throughout Western Ontario are still pressing today their search for four armed men who made their escape Wednesday after looting the Langton branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

Following a check up, it was reported the loot totalled $33,000 all in cash. Langton is 25 miles southwest of Woodstock.

No trace has been found of the bandits, who were last reported seen driving westward from Langton, in a car answering the description of one which had been stolen earlier in Windsor.

Clarence Hodson, municipal clerk of North Walsingham Township, had a close call during the hold up, when a revolver bullet fired by one of the bandits embedded itself in the mastic tile floor only a few inches away

Quake Rocks Chile's Capital

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 13 — (AP)—A violent earthquake shook this capital at 7:18 a.m. E.D.T. today.

Some damage was caused to buildings. Pieces of the cornices of the congressional building broke away. The statute of Mercury atop the building of the Newspaper El Mercurio was twisted on its base.

The epicentre was believed to have been between Curivo and Talca, south of the capital. Communications to the south were severed.

Protests Mount Across Canada Against Rationing

Meat Dealers May Strike Unless Rationing Abolished

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadian retail meat dealers from coast to coast today expressed their determination to go on strike should the federal government persist in rationing meat in the Dominion.

First to advocate the strike method as a means of showing butchers' displeasure with the rationing orders, retail meat dealers and grocers in the Halifax - Dartmouth area today said they would meet again, probably Monday night, to discuss their threatened strike.

More definite action was taken by 150 Edmonton retail meat dealers who voted at a meeting held last night to close their stores Sept. 24 unless rationing was lifted. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada and the Edmonton Retail Merchants Association.

Moves Toward Showdown.

These moves toward a showdown came despite the plea of the Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada for butchers not to strike until conferences have been held with federal authorities.

Federal authorities heard officially of the rumpus the rationing order was causing when Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross, Progressive Conservative member for Souris, Man., told the Commons yesterday that the quota basis was preferable to rationing as a move to obtain the quantities of Canadian meat desired for export to needy nations.

Announcement of the plea was made by Fernand Boisseau, secretary of the association, who said it represents about 65 per cent of the meat dealers in Canada, located in every province.

At Ottawa, a spokesman for the foods co-ordination section of the Prices Board said last night that officials of the branch would be willing at any time to meet with representatives of the meat trade to discuss the ration.

Says Plan Was Explained

He pointed out, however, that prior to putting rationing into effect, the whole plan had been explained to meat dealers by the Board. At their request they had been sent samples of ration tokens and meat charts. They had been invited to make suggestions on the plan and everything had been done to make the rationing system as simple as possible and as easy as possible on meat merchants.

Press reports telling of protests across Canada from butchers and other retailers over the new meat rationing system were read at a routine meeting of the Prices Board Council at Ottawa, it was learned.

It was understood the council discussed the reports briefly but took no action. The Prices Board itself, it was learned, has received few protests over the new plan.

Press reports of protests, with some threats of a meat "strike," have come from Saint John, N.B., London, Ont., Windsor, Ont., Chatham, Ont., Ottawa, North Bay, Ont., Saskatoon and Victoria.

Survey of Situation

From east to west, this is a brief picture of how retail butchers feel about meat rationing:

Eight centres in New Brunswick backed the Saint John Retail Merchants' Association in its decision to stop selling meat if rationing is not lifted by Sept. 24. In Ontario, home of the first rationing protests, practically all towns and cities joined in protesting the rationing order.

Charges Meat Going to Waste

Toronto, Sept. 13 (CP)—A meeting of the Ontario Livestock Exchange yesterday charged that most store-houses are full to capacity and that no more can be handled for the Prices Board with the result that meat in large quantities is going rotten.

Protests were wired to Minister of Agriculture Gardiner and Prime Minister Mackenzie King as well as Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken.

The meeting also declared that butchers are returning meat to packing houses as people won't buy it under rationing. Rationing was blamed as well for forcing out of business many independent butchers.

The protest wired Mr. Gardiner, with a copy sent Mr. King, follows:

"Understand War Board cannot handle any further shipments of beef until end of the month. Local butchers doing no business, and many shops closing up.

"The situation is serious to producers and we think it advisable these cattle should be permitted to be shipped to the United States. Quick action is essential."

The wire to Mr. Bracken pointed out that prices are lower due to unnecessary government restrictions and that there is a serious situation facing cattle producers.

Knew Time Had Come When Tojo Saw American Officers Outside Home

By DUANE HENNESSY

Yokohama, Sept. 13 — (AP)— Hideki Tojo, in the first interview since he shot himself two days ago, said today he had planned to kill himself for a long time but that when he saw American officers standing outside his house he "knew the time had come."

The deposed Japanese dictator then shot and wounded himself near the heart with a 32-calibre pistol, but prompt blood transfusions and other treatment by American Army doctors saved his life and he was declared today to be in "satisfactory" condition.

In talking today Tojo brushed aside many questions relating to war and politics, but when asked if Saburo Kurusu had known about Pearl Harbor plans when he talked to Cordell Hull about peace, Tojo replied that he could not answer without documentary evidence.

Tojo was registered as patient No. 10,694 and was the 100th patient admitted Tuesday at the Army's 98th evacuation hospital.

He looked little like a dictator as he was interviewed He was propped up on his bed with a folding chair and pillows behind his back. He was covered by a clean white sheet, but his feet were sticking out. He was dressed in pajamas many sizes too large.

Tojo said he felt much better but suffered a little pain "inside," pointing to his left side. Maj. Elbert Elliott of Houston, Tex., said Tojo's condition was considered "quite satisfactory," but later the former war lord's eyes appeared to become slightly glassy and he complained of being tired

Asked why he decided to shoot himself instead of performing the traditional ceremony of hara kiri, he replied:

"While hara kiri is the traditional manner of ending your life, I feared I might miss."

He explained that the traditional ceremony calls for the performer to bring the knife up and across his stomach, and that a second person stands behind with a sword to cut off his head He explained he had no one to carry out the second part.

"I have nothing to say, because it is all being decided by the United States' government," he replied when asked how he felt about the fact he must face trial when he recovers.

He said his treatment in the hospital was "good" and that the United States Army was "abiding by international law," in giving him treatment.

Konoye Thinks War Could Have Been Averted if He Had Seen Roosevelt

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 13—(AP)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye, Japanese vice premier, declared today that he had tried in the summer of 1941 to meet President Roosevelt and avert the war but his proposal failed partly through militarist opposition and partly because the Japanese government long have had a reputation abroad as liars," he explained, "because they were unable to control Japanese militarists in the field, or often didn't know what the militarists were doing.

"It was that way when I was trying to see Roosevelt. The government was considered a liar, because no matter what we promised regarding China, final decision on the removal of our troops from China depended upon the military. That was one reason why the meeting was never held."

Konoye, premier in that fateful summer and fall, said that an argument with Hideki Tojo, then war minister, over continuing peace negotiations led to his own resignation and Tojo's climb to the premiership.

"I feel confident that if I had been able to see Mr. Roosevelt I could have established a basis for intervention of the Imperial House in the rising war tide within Japan at that time," Konoye said in an interview.

The Prince, who was succeeded by Gen. Hideki Tojo as premier in October, 1941, said the Pearl Harbor attack the following De-

Buildings and Race Track In Excellent Condition For Fair; Grandstand Enlarged

The success of the 1945 "Victory Fair" or the Belleville Exhibition as it is more familiarly known, and which directors feel now is an accomplished fact, weather permitting, is in no small way due to the efforts of the president of the Board, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, fair officials pointed out today.

President Sandercock has given his time and efforts unstintedly and has gone far afield in order to secure the best attractions for the fair-goers of the district.

Buildings which house cattle, horses and other livestock are in first class condition and are gleaming in a brand new coat of whitewash. Electrical fixtures are in excellent shape and breeders and other exhibitors need have no qualms as to the sanitation and general cleanliness of the housing accommodation for their prize stock.

Thanks to the efforts of the City Parks Board under the supervision of Chairman Cleo Colling, Harry Rollins and company, the track is now in excellent shape. A lot of work has been done in an effort to make the track as fast as possible and its condition now is said to be the best in years.

Extensions have been added to the bleachers at both ends of the grandstand which will allow for accommodation for hundreds of people who will overflow the grandstand.

The grounds in general have been given a thorough overhauling and present an attractive appearance. Directors stated today that all plans are now completed and everything is in readiness for the opening ceremonies which will be held on Monday.

Former O.S.D. Teacher Associated With Mrs. Spencer Tracy in Clinic

Miss Harris spent the summer at the University of California in Los Angeles, and while there met Mrs. Spencer Tracy, wife of the well-known actor. Mrs. Tracy is a director of the John Tracy Clinic for pre-school deaf children and their mothers. John Tracy, son of the star and his wife, is congenitally deaf and is now in college.

Mrs. Tracy, through her work with her son, saw the great need of pre-school education and started the clinic two years ago. It is still small as it is on a research and experimental basis.

Miss Harris was surprised to receive an invitation to associate herself with the staff of the clinic but immediately accepted the offer made by the actor and his wife. In a letter to the Rev. Dr. James Semple, Peterborough, former minister of Bridge Street United Church here, Miss Harris said she expected to be back in Los Angeles the last week in September to assume her new duties.

'Gunner' Arnott Buys Grocery At Rossmore

After twenty-two years absence from the city and district, Mr. Lionel Arnott, familiarly known in city and provincial hockey circles as "Gunner" has returned to the district and established himself in business.

The "Gunner" has purchased the grocery business of Mr. Ted Gerow at Rossmore, and took over his new duties this week.

An outstanding hockey star in city and district circles he played for Belleville junior and intermediate hockey squads.

His services soon became in demand and twenty-two years ago he went to Preston, Ont., where he starred as a centre player for years on the famous Preston Riversides squad.

He is a brother of Reg. Jack and Sergeant Clarence Arnott, City Police Force, here, also Mrs. Robert Naud, William Street.

Many Prominent Bandsmen In Attendance at Three-Day Convention Being Held Here

Two grand concerts played by outstanding bands will feature three day convention of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association which gets under way at the Hotel Quinte on Friday afternoon.

Approximately 200 bandmasters and their wives from all parts of Canada will be in the city for the annual conclave, and this number includes the most prominent band conductors, composers and musicians of the Dominion. Included among others are Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, N.Y., acclaimed as one of the leading conductors in the United States. Professor Charles Thiele, Waterloo, a household word in band circles and Dr. J. J. Gagnier, of Montreal, noted authority on bands and band music.

The convention will be guests of the Belleville Municipal band, Bandmaster Lieut. Fred Jobson and Band Manager Harry Moorman during its stay here. The convention will be held under the chairmanship of the association President Addison F. Laidlaw, former Belleville Kiltie and conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

Public Invited to Concerts.

It was emphasized today by convention officials that both concerts will be entirely free and a cordial invitation to attend them is extended the general public.

The Friday night concert which is being held inside the Armouries here at eight o'clock will be played by the famous No. 3 District Depot, Kingston, by kind permission of Lt. Col. J. Roberts, MC., E.D., officer commanding. It will be conducted by Bandmaster W. Jesse, WO. 1, a graduate of the Kneller Hall School of Music famous British band institution, whose band has travelled over 11,000 miles during its war career.

Arrangements have been made inside the Armouries for the accommodation of a large crowd and the concert will start at sharp eight o'clock. The Sunday concert which is being held at the Hume Arena will feature distinguished guest conductors and starts at three o'clock in the afternoon following a parade to the Cenotaph where delegates will pay tribute to Canada's dead. This parade will be headed by the Argyll Light Infantry Band under Pipe Major James Clark.

Activities Open Friday.

The convention proper opens at 3 p.m. on Friday with a meeting of the Composers' Guild. At 4 p.m. the Board of Directors will go into session and the concert at night ends the day's activities.

At 10 a.m. Saturday the general meeting of the association will be held and at 2 p.m. an educational session will take place. Featuring this part of the convention will be lectures by Dr. O'Neill, Professor Charles Thiele and Dr. Gagnier. The annual election of officers will wind up the official business.

On Saturday night the association banquet is being held in the Hotel Quinte and an outstanding feature of this affair will be the offering of several numbers by Miss Evelyn Gould, Toronto, winner of the coloratura soprano section of the "Singers of the Future" program sponsored by CBC. Miss Gould will shortly be given an audition by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York. Also heard will be Belleville's outstanding tenor, Jack Deacon. Mary Deacon will be the accompanist.

The Sunday afternoon concert will formally conclude the association convention.

Boy's Efforts to Prove Innocence of Theft Almost Successful

"I'll count three, and if you don't tell the Inspector the truth I'll pound it out of you."

Boyish voices were raised in argument at the police station this morning when two ten-year-old boys, both suspected of pilfering change from tills in shops, service stations and garages waged a verbal battle, one trying to establish his innocence and the other trying to remember an accomplice in his latest change-producing foray.

"If it wasn't you, then it was a guy that looked like you," came back the reply.

"Listen, I'm warning you. I'm in enough trouble and I had to be dragged from school to hear you get me into more," shrilled shrilled the first boy.

"Well, it may not have been you, but it was a guy that had a red shirt, and you've got one on."

"Listen, you, I've got more than one shirt, and I don't go around stealin' any more. The inspector told me what he would do with me and you try to get me into trouble."

"I still think it was you," opined the other lad.

The first turned to Police Inspector Hayes. "Inspector, get outta here till I pound the truth outta this bird," he asked.

The official turned away for a moment and a boyish fist was poised over the head of his companion.

"Okay, okay," he said. "It wasn't you."

Triumph lit up the other boy's face. "See, Inspector, I toldya I was gettin' into no more trouble."

But his triumph was short-lived. Told to go back to school, he walked to the door of the police station. At that moment a man appeared at the door, pointed an accusing finger at the self-styled innocent victim, and told police: "That's the lad who was seen in our service station on Friday when a certain amount of money was missing."

And our hero turned sadly back to the cell block to be allowed to "talk himself out of this one."

Shrine Club Prizes On Display in Window

The Belleville District Shrine Club's annual drive for funds for crippled children activities and its draw for prizes valued at $1,000 dollars will feature the Belleville Fair on Wednesday night. The fourteen prizes are now on display in the windows of the Percival Furniture Store, Front Street.

The Shrine Club here is affiliated with the Rameses Temple of Toronto and through the medium of the draw for prizes is raising funds to further the work for crippled children of all races and creeds at the Shrine hospital in Montreal.

Numerous kiddies from this district more physically unfortunate than their playmates have benefited from the Shrine fund, but more funds are needed to maintain the humanitarian work.

Tickets are now on sale at leading merchants and will be available at the Shrine booth at the Belleville Fair.

Approximately thirty members of the club visited the Coe Hill Fair on Wednesday where they distributed ten five-dollar cash prizes to lucky winners. A substantial amount of money was raised for the fund through the generosity of Coe Hill and district residents.

One of the most versatile girls' aggregations ever seen in the city of Belleville will be at the Hume Arena on Friday night when the Great Lakes Girls' Military Band stage their colorful spectacle of entertainment under the sponsorship of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion.

The performance which encompasses several acts of music and dancing will be heralded by a street parade in which twenty girls in uniform will take part. This will be in the afternoon and at 7.30 the girls will be heard on the Armouries lawn.

At night in the arena the Girls' Stage Orchestra will feature popular and classical numbers while outstanding singers and choral ensembles will handle the vocal and chorus numbers.

There will be a spectacular floor show in conjunction with the dance. Included will be a western girls' team with harmony and guitars; a dancing chorus of seven lovely chorines who will appear in various costumes and routines; a vibraphone team of two girls; military displays, the Dixieland Band with four-way rhythm and tap dancing, several comedy numbers and a girl soloist and trio by the name of Andrews Sisters.

The girls' band will appear on the street dressed in flame-colored jackets, royal blue skirts, white belts and shoes and hats, with a gorgeous high-stepping drum majorette who is a clever baton spinner. The band plays all the popular marches and will be heard in several numbers as it parades down the main thoroughfare.

The Canadian Legion will devote all proceeds to its building fund and other war work.

INTERNATIONAL

tives were hurrying to London. Already here are Arthur Bliss Lane, United States Ambassador to Poland, and Robert Patterson, Ambassador to Yugoslavia.

Some diplomats said they believed King Peter was trying to gain American support for his view that Marshal Tito's regime in Yugoslavia was dictatorial, and that the situation demanded a reshuffle of authority.

The young monarch was in Paris last week conferring with Dr. Valdimir Macek, Croat peasant leader, and was believed attempting to persuade Macek to come to London and set up a government in opposition to Tito.

Prediction at Moscow.

By EDDIE GILMORE

Moscow, Sept. 13 —(CP)—Well informed diplomats here predicted freely today that British and American hopes of having the current Romanian government replaced would meet with no success whatever.

These sources said that while State Secretary James F. Byrnes and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin were suggesting changes in the government of Prime Minister Petru Groza, that government was becoming stronger at home every day. They added there was not the slightest indication the Russians would change their opinion of the regime.

Groza and his ministers, looked upon by the Soviet Union as representatives of the Romanian people and capable of governing the country, will return to Romania strengthened by a conference in which they won substantial aid from Russia through new economic agreements.

GEN. TOJO LOOKS

rendered quietly at his home to an American officer, saying he had contemplated suicide but changed his mind. Like Tojo, he faces questioning and possible court martial as a war criminal.

Sugiyama Shoots Self

But the man whom the Japanese war machine had planned to lead the defence of Honshu's vital Kanto plain against Allied invasion, Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, killed himself with a pistol shot through the head at his office near the Emperor's palace.

"I regret the war ended in such a way," he had told his aide, Col. Tanaka, "and as I was in an important post I keenly felt my responsibility and am awaiting a significant opportunity to do away with myself."

One of Japan's three field marshals, member of the Kwantung army clique and a former war minister, Sugiyama found that opportunity yesterday while his wife was killing herself at her home. He had not been named on a list of more than two score whose arrests have been ordered by Gen. MacArthur.

More Suicides Likely

More suicides were believed likely as the hunt progressed for the listed persons, including seven suspected key members of the dreaded "Black Dragon Society," which has been ordered disbanded.

Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent, was told today by several informed sources that two of the seven men sought, Seigo Nakano and Ryohei Uchia, were dead. The same sources said that a third, Taketona Ogata, chief secretary of the present Japanese cabinet, has no connection with the organization.

Brines was told that Uchia, who helped found the terroristic group in 1902, died of old age in 1938. It previously had been reported that Nakano killed himself in 1943.

Masaharu Flees

Another man high on the wanted list, Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, suspected of responsibility for the ghastly "death march" on Bataan, fled to his ancestral home on an island off Japan's west coast.

Japan's cabinet was called into session today by premier Maruhiko Higashi-Kuni and sources close to the government said the members probably would be asked if their past records were satisfactory to Gen. MacArthur.

Japan's economic plight was discussed at press conferences by such business leaders as Kiyoshi Miyazaki, president of Mitsui and Co. They said Japan is short of money and foreign credits, needs 2,000,000 tons of rice, 2,000,000 tons of wheat, 20,000,000,000 board feet of lumber and 800,000 bales of cotton in the immediate future.

KONOYE

cember was engineered in strictest secrecy by a small group under Tojo and that many of the military clique, all the civilians and himself were totally unaware of the attack beforehand.

Col. Josef Meisinger, chief of the German Gestapo in Japan, previously had told me Konoye was leader of the pro-American faction in the pre-war struggle with militarists, and had been Tojo's strongest opponent.

When I asked Konoye if this were true, he replied affirmatively. The army, he said, named Tojo as war minister in a slight reshuffle of Konoye's cabinet in December, 1940, and there was nothing he could do to oppose the appointment, made by General, now Field Marshal, Shunroku Hata, former war minister. From then on, said Konoye, Tojo's power increased.

However Tojo and his backers still favored continued negotiations with the United States, and Tojo as late as August, 1941, had approved Konoye's plan to see President Roosevelt, the Prince explained.

"Up until then the army was undecided whether to accede to the basic American requirement that it withdraw completely from China," Konoye asserted, "but by October Tojo's attitude changed, and when my cabinet fell on Oct. 16, 1941, I knew that war was inevitable but I did not know just how or when it would come."

Konoye, who has been premier three times, said he had personally fought the militarists since 1937, when he first became premier, and that throughout the Pacific war he made "every effort" he could for its termination.

Jingoists constantly threatened him and police trailed him because of his political activities, he added.

IN MEMORIAM

GANNON — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Cpl. Warren M. Gannon, Irish Regiment of Canada, killed in action on September 13th., 1944.

One year today our love was called
To his eternal rest,
Gone where the angels sing so sweet,
And taken when God knew best.
We miss him here so very much,
His presence oft seems nigh,
But we all hope in Heaven to meet
Where no one says goodbye.

—Sadly missed and ever lovingly remembered by Father, Mother, Sisters and Brothers.

GANNON — In loving memory of Cpl. W. M. Gannon, killed in action in Italy, September 13, 1944.

I'm thinking of you today, Warren,
I'm thinking of you in the past,
Picturing you in my memory
Just as I saw you last.
If all the world was mine
I'd give it, yes, and more,
To see that smiling face of yours
Come smiling through the door.

—Sadly missed by wife and daughter.

Many Canadians Held by Fanatics In Mountain Jail

Tokyo, Sept. 12. (CP)— Forcibly held by Japanese still willing to die for the Emperor, a large number of starving Canadian and British prisoners languish in a "forgotten camp" in Japan surrounded by mountains so steep the weakened men cannot climb them, a group who managed to escape related Tuesday.

A Canadian soldier who, with several British soldiers, survived rigorous mountain ascent followed by a 400-mile hitch-hike to Tokyo told stories of indescribable horror in the camp, known as Osari, near the coastal town of Kamiishi, shelled recently by American warship. The camp is set amid huge steel works and lead mines.

Hundreds of tons of shells crashed in their area, killing 30 prisoners and causing shell-shock to others who were removed.

Canadians were forced to work in a lead mine after being awakened at four a.m., every morning and being driven by civilian guards with sticks and stones on a 12-mile route march to the scene of work. Then they were flogged back to the camp each afternoon, arriving exhausted at seven p.m.

The men got some food Aug. 14, dropped from an American plane, but it was badly damaged owing to a parachute failure. Since then they have received none.

Second of Smith Quadruplets Dies

Dunnville, Sept. 12. (CP)—A second of the quadruplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Smith died in hospital here last night.

A boy, the child died after Dr. E. L. McInnis, who delivered the four children, reported that his condition was fluctuating. He had been treated with oxygen but failed to respond.

The two surviving children, a boy and girl, are still in incubators as Dr. McInnis fights to save their lives. Mother's milk, sent from Hamilton, Ont., is being fed the two survivors of this town's first quadruple birth.

The 38-year-old mother was reported doing well. She took the death of the girl calmly but fear is expressed as to how she will be affected by news of the death of the second of her four children, born Monday morning.

There are three other Smith children—Bruce, 5; Ruth, 4 and Thomas, 2 1-2.

TELEVISION IN BRITAIN

London (CP)—Television will be broadcast throughout the United Kingdom through specially laid land cables as soon as the government gives permission. Many outside points, including Birmingham, already are wired for television at a cost of $4,500 a mile and thus may carry programs in London.

PRINTERS FOR NIGERIA

Lagos, Nigeria (CP)—The postwar period will see an immense development of the printing industry in this country and the government is sending three selected Africans to the United Kingdom to study printing. After full studies have been completed these men will return to act as teachers at a school of printing under government sponsorship.

Life Insurance Companies Will Finance Homes

Toronto, Sept. 12 —(CP)— Formation of limited dividend companies to finance construction of rental housing projects throughout Canada will be proceeded with immediately by Canadian life insurance companies as soon as a charter for a holding company to be known as Housing Enterprises of Canada is obtained from State Secretary Martin.

In a statement issued on behalf of Canadian life insurance companies, the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association said yesterday an application will be made shortly to Mr. Martin for the charter and the first projects will be located where the housing shortage is most acute.

A warning that some time may elapse before it is possible to get a substantial number of projects under way was contained in the statement which cited the necessity of a great deal of planning for construction of permanent housing projects, particularly if costs are to be kept to a minimum, as the main obstacle to quick construction.

The statement said Housing Enterprises will give preference to discharged service veterans and their families as soon as the proposed modern houses are built.

The Annual Fall Fair

Fall fairs are a time-honored institution and were maintained all through the war years for the very good reason that they were an inspiration to the rural people and likewise to the city-dwellers because they are part of the community life. There would have been a big gap in the year had there been no fairs and the time spent on organization and preparation for the exhibitions was time well spent and saved because they had a thrill and an inspiration for everyone.

With peace returned, there will be the freedom from the sense of war and everyone will enter into the spirit of the fairs which have earned an abiding place in the community life.

People are familiar with what is to be found at these shows, but the interest never fails. The reason is clear, to city-dweller as to those who live in the country, the fair is what it means to be—an exhibition of the life of agriculture and the progress of the past year. It is a place where farmers can make mental notes that will bring dividends in the future. Farmers are good judges of exhibits and pass nothing by that will help them to improve their grains, their methods, their livestock and thereby benefit this fundamental industry of agriculture.

It is not possible to put a limit on the benefits which a fair brings to a community. It is a proving ground where merit in exhibits wins. It is a bird's eye view of agricultural and community interests and in its good-natured and keen competition every exhibition points the way to improvement.

Belleville's annual exhibition has for many years been looked to as an institution which serves well. It has had a laudable history and in the large fair grounds in which it is held at has had scope for growth which has been marked steadily year after year.

The first three days of next week will again fill Belleville fair grounds with the large crowds which are accustomed to attend from a large section of this important surrounding countryside this exhibition after exhibition. The officers and board of directors are a thoroughly efficient and capable organization and like good showmen they know what the people want and they give them what they like—which happens to be the best possible. This year's extensive program should meet with the most generous appreciation and the largest attendances. The exhibits will be first class, the races will be excellent and the entire undertaking is headed, it may safely be said, for one of the most successful if not the most successful of the fair's long history.

It is the opportunity and the duty of every person in the city and in the district hereabouts to lend support and swell attendance to new peaks and so make the success of this year an inspiration for still greater success next year.

Diocesan Commissioner

After fourteen years' service in the parish of St. Thomas, Belleville, the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne has been honored by being chosen as the first appointment to the office of Commissioner in the history of the Anglican diocese of Ontario. The rector of St. Thomas' has been well known and has made his influence felt here and in the diocese. Through his military career as chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) he has been of influence among the men of that regiment and among war veterans as a national chaplain. He served in France as chaplain in the First World War.

The high office which has come to him calls for him to leave his parish and Belleville. He will be much missed in this community by the members of the parish of St. Thomas as well as by those of Christ Church parish with which he has been associated in joint services of the two Anglican congregations and by the people generally who have been privileged to come in contact with him. All will appreciate the honor which has been given him in this important appointment in the office of the church.

Welcomes Everywhere

Canadian personnel who have been in Europe are coming home in greater numbers so that already since V-E Day 121,640 of 160,000 personnel scheduled to be repatriated before the end of the year 1945 have arrived back home. In innumerable places the welcome home sign hangs out for the returning veterans of the greatest war in history and the ceremony of welcoming back the boys into civil life and the home life is going on day and night.

These young men have given their service with the full measure of devotion and their country is intensely proud of them. They are the best of the Canadian people and their civilian future will always be of important to the growth of every part of the Dominion.

The warmth of the welcomes they are everywhere receiving from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the International Boundary to the farthest north is not stinted but comes from the hearts of those who know them and who honor them on their great deeds in behalf of liberty.

Battles in Miniature

A team of British naval experts have for years been fighting a war of their own in specially built water tanks using scale models of British warships, miniature torpedoes, mines and bombs—high speed precision cameras film the whole action. The team consists of highly skilled constructors, engineers, mathematicians, physicists, chemists and metallurgists of the Admiralty Naval Construction Department who are responsible for the design of the Royal Navy's warships. Their job is the designing and producing of the "perfect" warship according to present-day standards irrespective of whether it be a battleship or an aircraft carrier.

These tests are carried out to enable them to compile statistics and data of performance as well as reaction to underwater explosions under action conditions. In addition to carrying out laboratory experiments, men of the Royal Corps of Naval Constructors go to sea with the Navy to gain firsthand experience, so that the best possible workmanship and materials shall go into the design and construction of all ships both building and refitting. All these tests and experiments are carried out before the plans of any new class of ship are handed over to the shipbuilder and the keel laid down. Ships undergoing major refits are also modified to conform with the latest information of ship construction and performance.

Reporting the Peace

(New York Post)

With the development of jet propulsion and the atomic bomb, the human race has less and less margin for error. If we are going to survive, we can never again sit back smugly as we did during the rise of Nazi Germany, and wake up to a blitzkrieg. We shall have to keep our eyes and ears and minds open. The strong support for freedom of the press officially announced by the President and the Secretary of State may prove to be one of the most important recent developments of American foreign policy, and the most effective move in our current diplomatic offensive to extend the area of democratic freedoms in the world. For a free press is one of the most deadly weapons against the kind of aggressive regimes which keep their people submissive to militarist tyranny. And if such systems do get started, a free press can act as a fire alarm to let world opinion know about preparations for aggression. Yet, as we try to remake the future, there is free access to information in a very small part of our world.

Will Tap German Brain Power

(Newsweek Magazine)

Germany's brain power, as well as its manpower and resources, will be tapped by the conquerors as a prize of war. In Frankfurt recently, headquarters of the United States forces in the European theatre revealed that a group of German scientists and technicians will be shipped to the United States and hired to continue their own military experiments and research, but without access to "classified American projects." When they have completed the work halted by their nation's collapse, the Germans will go home.

JUST FOLKS

MAN'S WAY

A man will try his best to be
The sort of comrade, in and out,
That others all are glad to see,
And like to have about.

When every hope has broken down
And loss is his instead of gain,
A man to those he meets in town
Will not too bitterly complain.

A man will carry mirth about
And helpfulness for others' care,
But when his luck is running out
He will not over-much despair.

Another's grief a man will share
As if it were his very own.
But, when there's sorrow he must bear
He'll slip away to weep alone.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 13th., 1925

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board yesterday 2200 boxes of cheese were boarded and all were sold at 22⅛ cents per pound, the peak price for this season so far.

Mr. James M. Booth rendered two enjoyable vocal solos at the meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday.

One inch and a half of rain fell here during the past two days and it was very welcome.

The Kiwanis Karnival and Style Show will open in the armouries tomorrow night and promises to be a very enjoyable affair.

Miss Jean Clinton has returned to the city after spending several months in New York City.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 13th., 1915.

An auction sale of unclaimed baggage will be held at Hotel Quinte on Sept. 15th.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson has left for Los Angeles, California, to attend the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

At Wallbridge, Sidney Township, the third annual fair under the auspices of the Sidney School Board, was held on Sept. 10th. and was a decided success. Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. was present and gave an address.

Considerable ore is being taken from the graphite mine in Monteagle Township. It will be treated at the mill at Wilberforce and the company intends shipping as soon as some repairs are made at the mill.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 13th., 1905

Sir Gilbert Parker arrived here today after a trip to Western Canada.

Mr. Will Kane has left here to reside in Bowmanville.

Hockey talk is being heard in many places about town. There is no doubt about it Belleville wants a good team this winter and wants one badly. Nothing enthuses our young men and maidens like the fast and wildly exciting game of hockey, which, by the way, is about the only sport Belleville has had in recent years. Hockey will pay here and there is no better town for its size between Halifax and the North Pole. Why not get a team together under proper management and give the people what they want this winter.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 13th., 1895.

The maple trees are fast taking on their autumn tints.

O'Brien's Bridge in the 6th. concession of Thurlow Township was formally opened this afternoon.

There is an abundant crop of hickory nuts this season and nearly every boy one meets has his pockets filled with them, although they are yet too green to gather.

Mr. Paul Denyes of the D. and D. Institute has returned to the city after an absence of 3 months.

Mr. H. Wills, G. T. R. engineer, and Mrs. Mills are spending a few days at the Toronto Exhibition.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Many theories have been advanced to account for the complete disappearance of the passenger pigeon, which was once the most numerous bird in North America.

It is not probable, as generally supposed, that this pigeon disappeared suddenly and mysteriously while it was still quite numerous.

Some believe that these birds migrated in mass to another part of the world, that they were blown out to sea by a storm and drowned, that they were killed by forest fires, epidemics, tornadoes, snowstorms, or other similar causes.

One writer believes the birds were destroyed by a species of chicken mite introduced from Europe. He reported that during the 70's and 80's of the last century he found thousands of dead squabs under the trees where the pigeons were nesting. Upon examination they were found to be covered with mites.

Perhaps many factors contributed to the extinction of these wild pigeons. The early settlers and hunters shot them by thousands and knocked them down with clubs and poles. Millions of them — even carloads of them— were shipped to market.

Shortly after the Civil War the commercial hunting of passenger pigeons became systematic. In 1879 these birds were selling on the Chicago market at from 50 to 60 cents a dozen. Pigeon hunters made from $10 to $40 a day.

The last large nesting of passenger pigeons on record was near Petoskey, Michigan, in 1878. It was from 30 to 40 miles long and several miles wide. Indians and boys captured large numbers of the birds at a cent a piece.

It is generally believed by naturalists that the indiscriminate slaughter of the birds by man was the chief factor that led to their ultimate extinction. This cause may have been aided by the destruction of the forests within their range.

Also, being "communistic" in their habits, the species may have been unable to adapt itself to more solitary feeding, migrating, roosting and nesting habits. At any rate, as civilization encroached upon the wilderness the birds began to disappear and kept on disappearing until there wasn't a single specimen living.

Priestly Favors Children's Charter

London, Sept. 13 — (Reuters)— J. B. Priestley, British author and playwright now visiting Russia, proposed in Berlin, where he broke his journey to Moscow, drafting of an "International Children's Charter" to ensure food and clothing for children throughout the world, the News Chronicle reported today in a Berlin dispatch.

After seeing the plight of Berlin children, Mr. Priestley was quoted by the paper as saying "These German children are guiltless yet they are the ones paying the heaviest price for their country's guilt."

TRUMAN CALLS CRITICISM OF LOAN PLAN "SILLY"

Washington, Sept. 13 — (AP) — President Truman said he thought it "perfectly silly" to suggest that American financial assistance to Great Britain was intended to finance socialization of that country.

Authorizing direct quotation, the president told reporters:

"I think that's a perfectly silly conclusion. Great Britain is entitled to the type of government that Great Britain wants."

The question arose as a result of criticism by some members of Congress of administration plans to give Britain a multi-billion dollar post-war loan.

FIRST PARTY TEST

The House also heard J. A. Ross (PC-Souris) say meat rationing was not the right course to follow at this time, Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) accuse the government of lack of co-operation with Labor, John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) call for a new technique in raising money and P. E. Gagnon (Ind-Chicoutimi) say he would support the government while preserving his freedom of thought and action.

In the Senate Royal assent was given to bills authorizing expenditures of $400,000,000 for war and demobilization purposes in the next two months and of more than $29,000,000 for civil administration purposes in the next month.

Mr. Arsenault, who helped reorganize the former Conservative Party into the Progressive Party at its Winnipeg convention, spoke from the Liberal side and said the Liberal Party was now the "only National Party" enjoying support in all provinces and from all classes of people.

Make Political Capital.

For years, he said, a section of the Conservative Party had sought to make political capital out of stirring up racial dissension. At the Winnipeg Convention he and others hoped that at last the party had rid itself of "the Tories and the reactionaries". He had great admiration for Mr. Bracken who for a year and a half had kept the party on the new policy.

But, following the defeat of the Progressive Conservatives in the Saskatchewan election and the rise of the Bloc Populaire in Quebec, a change had taken place. These developments caused those in control of the party to throw over a "gentleman's agreement" made at the Winnipeg convention and return to the old methods of stirring up anti-Quebec feeling.

Liberal Hold Strengthened

The short term result had been that the Liberal hold on the province of Quebec was strengthened without any material lessening of Liberal strength in Ontario. The long-term result was that the Progressive Conservative party had thrown away the best chance it had in many years to come into power and had thrown it away "for many years to come."

Mr. MacInnis said that in staffing the Department of Reconstruction, the government had not chosen any representatives of labor. There was a feeling in labor circles that the government was in a conspiracy with industry to force down wage levels.

The government spoke of carrying out plans for full employment. "The government has no plans and, under its present procedure, it can't have any plans because it doesn't take control of the economic life of the country," said Mr. MacInnis.

Returning veterans needed houses and the government was leaving that to private enterprise. When the men needed planes and ships to carry on the war that was not left to private enterprise.

Would Lead Nowhere

Mr. Blackmore said the great problem confronting governments was where money was to be obtained to provide for the needs of the people. Neither the government, the Progressive Conservative party nor the C.C.F. party, considered any means of obtaining money except by taxation and borrowing which would lead nowhere.

It was fear that money could not be obtained which kept Commonwealth governments from preparing for war and the same fear was holding them back now. Canada would need to find money in large sums to finance exports as well as for domestic purposes.

"The damage to Great Britain, I fear, is in a considerable degree permanent," he said. "The whole situation calls for a mutual aid scheme, extensive comprehensive and in large measure perpetual."

ULYSSE LAUZON,

Held for Quebec Police.

The Lauzons are being held for Quebec Provincial Police who are on the way here to take them in custody, but Koresky's connection with the case has not yet been established.

The two constables who made the capture are newcomers to the Prince Edward Island division of the R.C.M.P., and one of them, W. H. Waner of Saint John, N.B., rejoined the force two months ago after serving five years overseas. The other, J. Keefe of Edmonton, came here two weeks ago after serving with the Mounties in the Western Arctic region.

The constables questioned the trio just outside the race track as they were entering an automobile which police believed was stolen in Quebec City. It bore a New Brunswick licence plate number 3198, and inside were spare Michigan and Quebec plates.

When questioned the Lauzons produced registration cards made out in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jensen of Halifax, while the man identified as Koresky had a card in the name of Harold P. Kerr of Chatham, Ont. All names are believed to be fictitious.

Warner and the couple entered the suspects' car, with Lauzon driving, and Keefe and Koresky followed in the police cruiser as they set out for Charlottetown.

Lauzon Ditches Car.

They had only gone a short distance when Lauzon ditched the car, Mrs. Lauzon stepped out and collapsed on the highway, and Warner went to her assistance as Keefe drove up with Koresky.

The two men then pulled guns from their pockets and Warner seized Lauzon before he could fire. According to the constables, Lauzon yelled to Koresky to shoot Warner. The constable lifted Lauzon and held him in front of him. Confusing Koresky so his point-blank shot missed them both. Lauzon's gun fell to the ground, and Keefe seized and disarmed Koresky before he could fire again.

They were subdued and brought to the police barracks here, where a search revealed documents that established their identities.

Inspector A. J. Anderson, head of the P.E.I. division of the R.C.M.P. said the trio had both cash and bonds on their persons, but he did not reveal how much.

NEGLIGIBLE, EH?

In 978 cases of inguinal hernia that came to operation in the New York Hospital, recurrence of the hernia followed in 79. In his textbook on Hernia, recommended to physicians and students by the Jour. AMA, Leigh F. Watson, M.D., says the number of recurrences following operation for hernia varies from 5 to 10 per cent depending on the age of the patient, and the choice of operation. The recurrence rate in 6,027 operations for hernia performed by 34 surgeons was—so far as the surgeons knew or reported, 5.3 per cent. That would be more than 300 patients who submitted to the risks, absence from work, hospitalization, discomfort, expense of the operation, only to find not long afterward that they still had hernia. We had better not say anything here about 25 patients whose mortal worries were over when they went under anesthesia for the hernia operation—they never said anything about it either.

That is enough to show that operation for hernia (a) has a considerable percentage of failures, no matter how skilful the surgeon may be; and (b) operation for hernia has its own mortality rate.

Now what's this fine sounding blah I read in the papers about the injection treatment of hernia. In the first place I cross my fingers, for it purports to be the effusion of one Morris Fishbein, M.D. Morris is the fellow who is constantly telling us—period,— what "science" says and as constantly telling the dumb public that what we say—we being the rest of the medical profession— is communistic, radical, unscientific or how do you like it.

Well, in this newspaper harangue the great Pooh-Bah of the A.M.A. estimates, in his generous rapid-fire way, that "a study of a considerable number of cases reveals that about one fifth of those treated with the injection method fail to be cured, whereas the percentage of failures following surgery is so small as to be negligible."

Now you will notice that I give the source of my figures, whereas Morris Fishbein, M.D., in his usual way, assumes that the source of his figures or guesses is none of your business. I challenge the loud and fast taking Dr. Fishbein to name the source of his figures.

Three hundred failures and 25 deaths may be "negligible" in Dr. Fishbein's scientific view, but even if the injection method fails in one fifth of the cases so treated, I'd —want to have a go at it myself before I'd be willing to submit to the radical operation, if I had hernia.

In the first place it is far safer than surgery. In the next place it does not require weeks of hospitalization. In the next place it does not interfere with your ordinary work or play. In the next place it does not cost so much as the operation and hospitalization. And if it does fail you are not out much.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

One-Way Haste

To correspondents who use registered, special delivery or air mail to hasten delivery of letters to me, but inclose return envelope bearing ordinary postage or perhaps none at all, I commend a re-reading of the fable of the tortoise and the hare. Anyway, special delivery or registered letters must await their turn. We can't give them preferred attention here.

Low Basal Metabolism

Please tell me what doctors mean by low basal metabolism and the treatment for such condition. (Mrs. P. M. C.)

Answer—If a doctor uses such terms in giving his opinion or advice to a patient the patient should interrupt him, if the doctor fails to explain and ask him what it means.

Fine Big Brother

I have a brother who is fifteen. He gets eczema every year. We have tried many things and even had him in hospital for a while. I know he suffers and I hope you can suggest some kind of cure for it. (Pvt. S. C.)

Answer—At least it can do you brother no harm to give the calcium and vitamin D treatment a try. Details in pamphlet on "Eczema"—for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Now Is The Time to Reduce

Come spring I mean to begin a reduction regimen and no fooling. (Mrs. H. A.)

Answer—Why go on fooling until spring? Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address for "Rules for Reducing."

Two Major Radio Companies Back On Air Again

New York, Sept. 13 — (AP) — The American and National Broadcasting Companies returned to the air at 8 a.m. E.D.T. today, their regular opening time, but engineers who walked out yesterday remained away from their jobs.

Engineering executives and some radio announcers and producers turned technician to put the networks on the air — manning control panels, pulling switches and turning dials.

The CBC, CBS and MBS were not affected by the strike.

The engineers walked out at 6 p.m. yesterday, disrupting nationwide service and causing cancellation of some programs.

A. T. Powley, president of the Independent Engineers' Union, the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians, said last night the men would be asked to return to work today.

He was not available immediately for comment this morning as the networks went on the air.

Immediately after the walkout, which the Union said resulted from a breakdown in contract negotiations during the afternoon, there was "dead air" on NBC for 15 minutes, and on ABC for half an hour. After that, newsbroadcasts and transcribed music — requiring a minimum of technical work — were resumed.

Makeshift Basis

Both networks called upon executives of the engineering department to fill in for the emergency, and soon some of the regular programs were put on the air on a makeshift basis.

The walkout began half an hour after the two networks received notification from the union that a strike would be called after a 30-day waiting period.

NBC said, "The preliminary union demands, which were not accepted, were for wage raises from 40 to 60 per cent."

In all, 158 NBC stations and 190 ABC stations were reported affected.

Both ABC and NBC said contract negotiations would be resumed if the engineers return.

PHONEBOOKORDER EXPLAINS MATTER OFPOST-WARRANK

Capt. John Canuck Back on Civvie Street May Use His Military Title

Ottawa, Sept. 12 (CP)—What is known in army parlance as "the telephone book routine order" is coming in for wide usage these days as demobilized servicemen retain their rank in civilian life.

By this order Capt. John Canuck, back in Civvie Street, can use his rank in the telephone directory and in other ways.

The routine order does not provide specifically for recognition of ranks or permanent force officers after they retire from service, but it is generally accepted rule as one officer pointed out, "nobody is going to start calling Gen. Crerar, Mr. Crerar after his retirement becomes final."

A permanent force man serves to an age limit, retires and becomes a civilian. He can, however, join the Non-Permanent Active Militia and be re-commissioned and there is nothing to say that he can't use his title.

Officers other than permanent force men—this includes the great number of men who came into the army during the war—are classed as N.P.A.M. men for purposes of retirement and when they apply for discharge they automatically go into the reserve of officers.

The period of national emergency is not considered to be over and while it remains, certain demobilized officers will be placed in the reserve of active officers.

There is also a corps reserve of officers who wish to retain their unit affiliations. These officers can remain on their unit's peacetime reserve.

Then there is a reserve general list of officers for unattached men.

On Reserve List

Officers going into these reserves apply each year to remain on the reserve list, submitting medical certificates on their fitness. There is no time limit when they must relinquish their military titles but they automatically are removed from the lists at certain age limits depending on ranks. All these reserve officers in any category can turn out in uniform for mess dinners and ceremonials but in the case of unit reserve officers they do not necessarily take an active part in the routine of their regiments.

For instance, Capt. Jack Canuck can get his uniform out of the mothballs to attend his regiment's annual dress-dinner or the local remembrance day ceremonial. He can use the military title—captain—in an advertisement for his insurance business, in the telephone directory and at the golf club. But it is likely that he will never be called upon to perform an active military role again.

Officers, permanent or non-permanent in category, who have been maimed and are therefore unable to qualify for listing on the reserve, are permitted to retain their titles and wear their uniforms on proper occasions.

In the case of non-commissioned officers and men, it was said that they do not retain ranks for use in civilian life. However, if they rejoin N.P.A.M. units, they naturally can use the rank they attain in those units. Men in this category can get permission to wear their old uniforms on ceremonial occasions by writing to the commanding officer of the nearest naval, military or air force district.

The gifts of the bridal party at the Bowman-Bolte wedding on Saturday, Sept. 8, were as follows—bride's gift to the bridesmaid, a double strand of pearls and earrings to match; the groomsman received a leather billfold. The bride received a gold watch and the groom received an onyx signet ring.

WEDDINGS

SPRAGUE—BAIRD

Tabernacle United Church parsonage was the scene of a pretty Fall wedding at three o'clock, Monday afternoon, when Rev. Dr. A. J. Wm. Myers united in marriage Jean Isobel Baird, Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Baird, 20 Harriet Street, this city, formerly of Wellington, to Stoker John Allan Sprague, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sprague, Big Island, Prince Edward County.

The bride was charmingly attired in a turquoise blue suit, fuchsia blouse with matching hat and accessories and wore a corsage of red American Beauty roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a vanity set; to the bridesmaid a silver bracelet; to the groomsman, a set of brushes. The bride's gift to the groom was a leather wallet.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about fifty guests. The bride's mother received the guests attractively attired in a royal purple street-length dress with hat to match. Assisting the hostess in receiving was the groom's mother, wearing a pretty flowered crepe dress and black hat.

For the honeymoon, the young couple will visit Niagara Falls and Buffalo, after which they will take up residence in Toronto.

The bridal couple received many beautiful gifts, including a number of cheques.

Among the guests were friends and relatives from Toronto and Wellington.

HRYTZAK—PRINGLE

St. Thomas-Wesley manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Geneva Pringle, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Pringle, Point Anne, Ont., became the bride of LAC. Andrew Hrytzak, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Hrytzak, Saskatoon, Sask.

The bride looked lovely in a floor-length dress of white, with a fingertip veil held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her accessories were a pearl pendant and a jewelled watch, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of assorted cut flowers.

CURRY—HENDERSON

Christ Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on Sept. 10, at 2.30, when Hilda Mae Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson, became the bride of Ross Everett Curry, son of Mr. Samuel Curry and the late Mrs. Curry. The Rev. J. G. Sparling performed the ceremony during which "O Promise Me" was softly played. During the signing of the register the organist played "I Love You Truly".

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, looking radiant in a floor-length gown of white satin with a sweetheart neckline and lace inserts. She wore a floor-length veil and carried a beautiful bouquet of Better Time roses with baby's breath and fern. Miss Gladys Henderson, her sister's only attendant, wore a floor-length gown of pink crepe with a double net skirt over taffeta. Her veil fell in soft folds to her shoulders and she carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill and Butterfly roses with baby's breath and fern.

The reception was held at the groom's home which was decorated with pink and white streamers. The bridal table was centred with the wedding cake under a white bell with pink and white streamers. Receiving the guests, the bride's mother was beautifully dressed in a navy blue ensemble with matching accessories.

The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely gold locket, to the groomsman, a pen and pencil set. The bride's gift to her attendant was a pair of gold earrings.

Out-of-town guests were present from Millbridge, Kingston, Marmora and Frankford.

Mohawk Reserve

Mohawk Reserve —Fair weather, large crowds, a wealth of exhibits and delicious meals ensured the success of the forty-fifth annual fair of the Bay of Quinte Mohawk Agricultural Society, which was held on the Council House grounds Wednesday, Sept. 12th. The presence of the Ohsweken Band from the Brantford Reserve, did much to enliven the proceedings during the afternoon, and their concert in the early evening, which was interspersed with various Indian dances, was greatly enjoyed.

An event attracting must interest was the trotting race. Harrison Anderson of Ohsweken, won first prize, and Dr. Welbanks of Belleville, won second place. Three horses competed in the running race. "I Remember came in first; "Wise Criss", second and "Little Eva" third.

Horseshoe Pitching was a favorite sport, with Mr. Thomas Brant as master of ceremonies. In the team drawing contest, Floyd Hill's team won first prize and Howard Lewis' team, second. Ross Maracle and Earl Hill won prizes in the foot races.

After the band concert, old time and modern dancing was much enjoyed, this feature bringing to a conclusion one of the most enjoyable of the Mohawk Agricultural Society's long list of successful fairs.

Rawdon

Rawdon — Miss Mabel Sharp attended South Hastings' District Y.P.U. picnic at Oak Lake Wednesday evening. A few other girls from Wellmans also attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira David spent a day last week in Toronto and took their young son Roy, to the specialist. Roy has been very ill this summer with rheumatic fever.

Owing to unavoidable circumstances the Mount Pleasant congregation will revert to their old plan of former years and hold their anniversary early in November.

Mrs. Kenneth Smith, New York, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith.

Cpl. John Mulheron who has recently returned from four years overseas has been visiting the Barron families and other friends on the fourth concession.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb David, Stirling, spent two days last week at Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer entertained on Thursday Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bailey and Mrs. John Johnson.

Pte. Don Brown of Hoards returned home from overseas last Wednesday.

Mrs. Ross Hoard and Mrs. Frank Jeffs attended the McIntosh - Walt nuptials on September 5th in Stockdale United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Thrasher, Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. E. Emerson and son, Centenary, visited Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Easton, Toronto, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brooks recently.

Wellman's Cemetery has been greatly improved and the new paint has given a neat appearance to the grounds. Several plot-owners spent a few evenings at the job.

Food and Cookery

COOL DRINKS LOWER THE TEMPERATURE!

Let a cool drink lift the spirits while it lowers the boiling point. Many times this summer the need will arise for that cooling drink and something to munch when friends come calling or when the junior crowd invades the front porch after a session of tennis or swimming. Here is a neat pair to remember for such occasions:

MAPLE EGG NOG

1 egg yolk
1 cup chilled milk
2 tablespoons maple syrup
1 egg white few grains salt few drops maple extract
nutmeg

Beat egg yolks; add maple syrup, salt and maple extract. Mix well. Add milk. Beat egg white stiff; fold in. Serve in tall glass. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

Yield: 1 serving.

CORN FLAKES REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

1-2 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 cups corn flakes
1 3-4 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup milk

Blend shortening and sugar; add orange rind. Stir in finely crushed corn flakes and sifted dry ingredients, alternately with milk; mix well. Shape dough into rolls about 1 1-2 inches in diameter. Wrap in wax paper and chill until firm. Slice and bake on ungreased baking sheets in moderately hot oven (425 degrees) about 12 minutes.

Yield: 5 dozen cookies.

(Note: Dough may be chilled, then rolled and cut into fancy shapes, if desired.

THE TOP O' THE MORNING

Morning's at seven—these summer days. And in kitchens all over the country there is the pleasant bustle of breakfast a-making. But too often breakfasts, except for the late Sunday variety, are sketchy, hasty affairs, prepared in a rush and downed with the morning's headlines. These important first meals of the day, however, can and should be charming and delightful affairs to give zest to summer morning appetites. Summer's market stalls, gay with an array of colorful fresh fruits and ripe berries, provide the breakfast planner with abundant inspiration. A heaping bowlful of plump juicy raspberries or blueberries—ready for service on individual bowls of crisp wheat flakes or other ready-to-serve cereal—with milk or cream makes an early morning breakfast table service to set the right pace for an active happy day. Raspberries are favorites to serve as a perfect complement to crisp breakfast cereals. Blueberries, ripe to bursting, and the flavorful blackberry are also great breakfast cereal favorites.

Dramatic and interesting breakfast dishes may be made by mixing raspberries and blueberries in the fruit bowl ready to be ladled on to dishes of crisp cereal, or by surrounding each individual service of wheat flakes with a ring of plump berries, the fattest and juciest in the box. In these complete-in-one-bowl summer breakfasts, fruit with cereal and milk combine to supply food values difficult to equal as a starter for the day.

Fresh coffee cake is a good accompaniment for these cereal-fruit breakfast bowls—if more food is desired:

ORANGE COFFEE CAKE

3 tablespoons shortening
1-3 cup sugar
1 egg, well-beaten
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1-8 teaspoon almond extract
1 1-4 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup orange juice
1-4 cup milk
1 cup corn flakes
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1-8 teaspoon allspice
1 tablespoon melted butter.

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg; beat well. Stir in grated rind and flavouring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add to creamed mixture alternately with orange juice and milk, being very careful not to over-mix. Spread in greased baking pan.

Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs; mix with sugar, orange rind, allspice and butter. Sprinkle over coffee cake. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) 20 minutes.

Yield: 9 squares (8 x 8-inch pan.)

"AU GRATIN"

"Au Gratin" means "topped with crumbs", and there are a surprising number of dishes to which crumbs add the final touch of crisp, buttery goodness. It's a simple phrase—au gratin—and often misunderstood. Yet it dresses up a menu with a certain charm! And just to do the crumbs, though they seem a small detail in cookery, dress up the dishes they adorn.

Practically all casserole dishes are made more appetizing and delicious by virtue of a topping of well-seasoned crumbs. Sometimes the mixture used for topping is mixed with grated cheese, sometimes with salt, pepper and paprika. But crumbs finely rolled are a staple in most cupboards.

An "au gratin" secret which modern cooks are adopting these days for all sorts of dishes which call for dry crumbs is that of using corn flakes or all-wheat flakes for this purpose. Always available, convenient, easy to use, these crisp cereals are a delightful time-saver for busy hostesses.

The easiest way to make crumbs of the proper "au gratin" texture is to pour the cereal onto a fresh tea towel, fold the sides over the cereal, and roll the towel up, pressing down to crush the cereal. If fine crumbs are desired, open the towel and roll crumbs with rolling pin. This operation requires only a few seconds and produces crumbs of fine texture, crisp and flavorful.

Not only do casserole dishes of various types require the important addition of crumbs, but many fried foods, too, take on a crisply brown goodness when they are dipped in ready-to-eat cereal crumbs.

ESCALLOPED CORN WITH CHEESE

1 1-2 cups cream style corn
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups whole wheat flakes
1-3 cup diced cheese
1 egg
1 cup milk
1-4 cup melted butter or shortening
1-4 teaspoon paprika.

Combine corn, celery, onion and salt. Place in casserole in alternate layers with whole wheat flakes and cheese, reserving about 1-3 cup whole wheat flakes. Beat egg: add milk and melted butter; pour over top. Cover with remaining whole wheat flakes and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about 30 minutes.

Yield: 6-7 servings (8 1-2 inch casserole).

Melrose

Women's Activities

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

The September meeting of St. Paul's Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Bell, on Tuesday afternoon, September 11, with fifty ladies present. The President, Mrs. R. B. Duffin, presided over the business portion of the meeting. The Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, and several acknowledgments of cards and letters received during August, also reported nine cards sent during the past month. The Treasurer, Mrs. O. Stapley, presented the monthly financial report. The visiting committee, Mrs. R. B. Duffin, Miss Eliza Donnan, Mrs. W. L. Fox and Mrs. C. Pitman reported seventeen visiting calls made during August. Miss Donnan and Mrs. F. N. McKee will act as the visiting committee for this month. During the business portion of the meeting a committee consisting of Mrs. Nora Wescott, Mrs. Duffin, Mrs. C. I. Hatton, Mrs. O. Stapley, Miss Mildred White, and Mrs. J. L. Good was appointed to look after the selling of the Christmas cards. An afternoon tea sponsored by the W.A. will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Elliott. Miss Della Caldwell gave a very complete parsonage report, and a very satisfactory discussion was held regarding the re-decorating of the parsonage. Three ladies joined at this meeting.

The program of the day was capably directed by Miss Della Caldwell. The main feature of the program was a splendid paper on "The Highlights of Canadian Literature", by Mrs. A. Ellis. The speaker dealt first with the Canadian hymn writer, R. Murray, who wrote the well-known hymn, "From Ocean Unto Ocean", which many claim could be used as a National hymn. Next came Lillian Leveridge, who spent some of her early years near Coe Hill. One of her highlight poems, "What's the Use" was read by Mrs. R. A. Patterson. Following this was a brief sketch on the "Life of Wilson Macdonald", ending with his poem, "Maggie Swartz". The next author dealt with was E. Pauline Johnston; Mrs. Maurice Bell reading one of her highlight poems, "The Song my Paddle Sings". The writer, Helen Marell was next dealt with, ending with her poem, "When the Gulls Come in". The distinguished and well known writer, Bliss Carman was lastly dealt with. The speaker, reading the popular poem, "The Vagabond Song". Mrs. H. West favored the W.A. with a piano solo, "In a Monastery Garden". Mrs. Ellis gave an interesting sketch of the life of Joseph Scrivens, who wrote the hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus". The meeting then closed with the singing of this well loved hymn.

During the social period, Mrs. S. Murphy and Mrs. Arthur Hulin staged a very interesting contest. A very dainty luncheon was served by the committee in charge. The gratitude of the W.A. to the hostess, Mrs. M. Bell, all who took part on the program, and the entire committee in charge was voiced by Mrs. G. W. Jones.

The following ladies were responsible for this excellent program, and refreshments Miss Della Caldwell, Mrs. P. V. Helliwell, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Henry McCutcheon, Mrs. George White, Mrs. Maurice Bell, Mrs. Harry Hulin, Mrs. S. Murphy, Mrs. Ivan Caldwell, Mrs. Will Patterson.

Autumn in the Air Calls For Hot Dishes on the Supper Table

The ideal supper dish for fall evenings is built around vegetables, for at no other time of the year is there so wide a variety to choose from. Fall vegetables, squash, tomatoes, egg plant, cauliflower, peppers, lend themselves particularly well to use as main dishes in combination with other foods. With the addition of a very little meat many of these vegetable dishes can hold their own as main courses at dinner.

These vegetables, squash, peppers and cauliflower are featured in these timely recipes from the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

STUFFED PEPPERS

1 cup macaroni or spaghetti (1-2 inch pieces.)
6 sweet red or green peppers
1-4 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup ground cooked meat
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1-4 cup whole wheat bread crumbs

Cook the macaroni or spaghetti in salted boiling water for 20 minutes; drain and rinse. Meanwhile parboil the peppers five minutes in salted boiling water. Rinse in cold water, cut in half lengthwise or crosswise, remove the seeds, drain well. Saute the onion in fat until clear, add meat, salt, pepper, parsley, then macaroni or spaghetti; mix thoroughly. Remove from heat. Fill the peppers with the meat mixture. Sprinkle the bread crumbs on top and bake in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, until peppers are tender but not shrivelled, about 20 minutes. Six servings.

SUPPER CASSEROLE

3 cups peeled squash, cut in 1-2 inch slices
1 cup sliced green pepper (about 2 peppers)
1-4 cup sliced onion (1 medium)
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
3 hard-cooked eggs
1 1-2 cups medium cream sauce
1-2 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons fat

Arrange squash, pepper and onion in alternate layers in a greased casserole, sprinkling each layer with salt and pepper. Top with sliced eggs, cover with sauce, sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot with fat. Cover and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, about 35 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until crumbs are brown and vegetables tender—about 10 minutes. Six servings.

CAULIFLOWER-SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1 cup spaghetti, 2-inch pieces
1 small head cauliflower (about 3 cups flowerets)
2 tablespoons mild-flavored fat
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups tomato juice
1-2 cup grated cheese
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter, melted.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water for 30 minutes, drain and rinse. Meanwhile separate cauliflower into flowerets. Wash carefully and cook in a covered saucepan in a small amount of boiling salted water until tender—about 15 minutes; drain. Melt fat in saucepan, add flour and salt, and blend. Add tomato juice, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add grated cheese and stir until cheese is melted and sauce is smooth. Arrange spaghetti and cauliflower in alternate layers in a greased casserole. Then pour tomato-cheese sauce on top. Toss bread crumbs in melted butter and sprinkle over sauce. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until crumbs are golden brown, about 20 minutes. Six to eight servings.

Dramatic Diadem

By ALICE ALDEN

THE DIADEM that derives from the Russian, has inspired more than one designer to do beautiful hats. One of the most picturesque examples extant is this diadem hat designed by the Millinery Designer's League. The fabric is imperial purple felt and it has pointed felt petals lavishly embroidered with sequins, pearl beads and jewel tone stones. It sits beautifully atop a neat, long bob, a hair-do that is returning to favor.

FASHION FLASHES

NEVER, NEVER before have fur hats been so smart. A beautiful hat is of beaver made with thick brim. Bloused crown is trimmed with groups of tiny chartreuse feather birds.

Concentration on line rather than adornment is the goal of many smart young women. Beautiful lines mark a black crepe dress made with simple bodice—the yoke and deep-armhole sleeve cut in one. Rounded high neckline with tiny standing collar. Skirt has graduated swag drapery at one side.

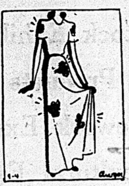
Star of the early coat season, so far, is the fur-trimmed shortie, the trimming concentrating on the border and sleeves. A high style coat is of American Beauty woollen with a very deep border of black fox and elbow-length black fox cuffs on the deep-armhole sleeves. High closing, with one self-covered button at the side.

Out-of-the-picture fashions are returning this season. A welcome revival for smart, late afternoon wear includes the black velvet suit trimmed with silver fox. A practical version of this luxurious fashion has a long tunic coat, bordered with silver fox, that would go beautifully with any smart black afternoon dress. When worn with its velvet skirt it is snugly belted.

New beauty appears in furs designed for formal night life. A beautiful short tunic coat is of white moire Indian broadtail lamb, with wide, deep cuffs of Hudson Bay sables. The broad shoulder line in back curves down to a soft waistline which is belted in front with knotted self-fur ties. Tunic hemline is softly flared to a dipping back.

Nice idea of one designer is that of embroidering "bracelets" on sleeves. A black crepe frock made with deep, webbed armholes, draped bodice, smooth midriff and modified skirt fullness, has three "bracelets" in pearls, colored stones and gold thread embroidered on the left sleeve.

It's About Time



By DOLORES BOLAND

IT'S ABOUT TIME to try this bit of camouflage on a crepe dress which has a hole or stain on the skirt. Embroider over either of these. Arrange motifs for a balanced effect. Use black embroidery floss and jet beads.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Matrimonial Bureau Proved to be just Another Love Racket.

During the years in which I have answered letters in this column hundreds of inquiries have come to me asking the names and address of a good matrimonial bureau. I've always answered as far as I know: "There ain't no such animal". Matrimonial bureaus are not to be recommended.

Hardly a week passes without the daily press revealing that some charlatan has taken a contemptible advantage of some lonesome persons, particularly men, who are too shy to do their own courting. The bureaus advertise that young, beautiful, well-educated girls financially independent are considering matrimony. And the lonesome brotherhood snaps at the bait like a hungry bass in the Springtime.

The latest of these love racketeers told reporters the other day that she was "misunderstood". Some of the men who had turned over to her considerable sums of money, to meet that non-existent beauty, felt they had not only been misunderstood but swindled in the bargain.

The lady who is alleged to have grown comfortably off in her love racket is held for $2,000 bond to the Grand Jury and tearfully toild reporters present: "No one is perfect". At this announcement her attorney whisked her away, though she might have confessed that "practice makes perfect" and explained the tiny little fortune she had made.

Apparently she had a good come-on line and would describe herself in the ad. columns as young, attractive, single and enclose a photograph of a beautiful girl. When her proposal of marriage clicked, the enterprising dame would demand money for train fare, room-rent, incidental bills, and other expense charges. The bridegrooms usually arrived on time, well tailored, and wearing flowers in their buttonholes. But the lovely young bride, whose photograph likely as not had been reposing under the bachelor's pillow, failed to appear. Some of them sneaked off, glad nto to be discovered as the "suckers" they were.

But inquiries in Chicago pursued the lady and now she's out on bail. Sometimes these matrimonial bureaus are just catch-dollar affairs; again, they don't stop at murder.

Some years ago I remember reporting a trial of a man operating a love-racket enterprise. He answered the letter of a poor, foolish woman who said she had $10,000 life insurance to invest. He invited her and her two children to his home for a visit. And when her family started an investigation of the whereabouts of the three, their bodies were found under the floor of the man's garage. He was tried for murder, convicted, executed.

Asking for the Chaplain's Help

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently we received a telegram saying that my elder brother had been killed in action. My other brother is at present overseas serving with the navy. We want to inform him about his brother, but we thought that, instead of writing him directly, it would be better to write the chaplain aboard his ship and have him relay the news. Will you please suggest what we should write?

H. C.

I'm so sorry about your sorrowful news and send you my deepest sympathy.

If you know the chaplain's name and rank, use this in your address and salutation: if not, address it to "The Chaplain" with the address you use when writing to your brother. And then write:

"May I ask you for your help in the sad circumstance that has come to us? My brother (write his name and rank here) has written often to us of his devotion to you, of his admiration for you, and so we know that you will be willing to help us, too.

"We have recently received a telegram that my elder brother (give his full name) was killed in action (write here the information you received), and we thought it would ease the shock to the brother who is aboard your ship if you would tell him the news, as gently as we know you will.

"Our family (my mother, father, and I) will deeply appreciate your kind co-operation, and send you our gratitude and every good wish for the wonderful service you are giving to the men aboard your ship.

Sincerely yours,"

Proper Signature for Mother and Daughter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the case of a mother and daughter jointly signing a greeting card, note or letter, I believe it is correct, especially if the recipient is a young person, to sign: Margaret Blank and Mary (either

However, a friend of mine contends that it should be either

"Margaret and Mary Blank" or

"Margaret Blank and Mary"

Would it not make some difference, Mrs. Beeckman, depending on who the addressee is: that is, a close friend of the mother's, a young friend of the daughter's, or an older person?

D. M.

The signature you suggest — "Mrs. Blank and Mary"—would never be oorrect, because in a signature it is never correct to use a title, "Mrs.", "Miss", or "Mr."

Your friend is right. If, for example, the two names are written by hand on a Christmas card or other greeting card, the mother's name would come first: Margaret Blank and Mary Blank, or Margaret Blan kand Mary (either of these is better than "Margaret and Mary Blank"). And on the cards to those who call the mother by her first name, the signature would properly be "Margaret and Mary".

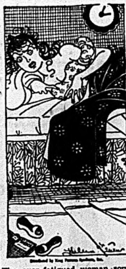
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Relaxation irons tense lines away.



The over-fatigued woman sometimes finds it impossible to relax.

Tearing through life at a gallop is no help to health, and it is devastating to good looks. That is what we have been loing these past few years. The world has been made, old institutions have been tottering, anxieties have been with us. We're all pretty frazzled, nerves curling at the edges. If here was ever a time when moments of relaxation were necessary, it is now. We must have them. We must learn to make the most of them. After one learns to relax, mentally as well as physicially, one can pluck release and tranquility out of the air.

Glimpse the passing throngs in the shopping districts of a big city and you'll realize that relaxation is what the beauty doctor would order in many cases of wrinkles, stooped shoulders, drawn-down mouth corners, eyes that carry the frantic, frenzied glint of overactivity. Tension ties knots in you, body and soul. The only way to untangle yourself is to do a flop, and to stay flopped until you have a sense of peace—"peace that surpasseth all understanding".

The over-fatigued woman sometimes finds it impossible to relax. She doesn't know how. The old bean keeps right on working—planning, looking ahead at the duties before her. She is accustomed to being on the jump. She is at the telephone, tearing through some work, or making appointments by the skin of her teeth.

Let us formulate a plan. The poor, tired dear has thirty minutes to spare, let us say. She should stand before a window, aerate her lungs, taking deep, long breaths, while she pulls herself up tall, hands on hips.

Flat on her back in bed, then, hands at her sides, every muscle limp. With each deep breath she says to herself "I will rest". The purpose of that part of the program is to keep her from remembering that the sink is full of dirty dishes or that she has stockings to mend. By repeating the words, over and over again, she will hypnotize herself, will really relax.

She must make her body feel heavy. This can be done by imagining herself as a log in the dark woods. Sounds silly? Try it. It works.

One can find relaxation in a change of work. A game of solitaire will put some fussed woman all together again, as a hot bath will soothe others.

The homebody has an advantage over the career girl. When duties kick her around she can quit and lie down. Even if she cannot sleep, she will find refreshment, especially if she exercises mental control, invites peace-giving thoughts. One can say a little prayer, ask God to help one to be composed.

Lipstick must blend with the color of your dress.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT IS A crying shame, but black does not look well with the suntanned complexion. Black is fashionable this autumn. If you select a frock or coat of that color, you had better get busy, restore your normal, pearly complexion. Strangely enough, white is becoming when the skin is bronzed. If you have a white formal, wear it now.

Brown is a good winter color; grey is not because it is cold and characterless. If you are wearing brown duds, use beige or rachel powder to give emphasis to the tawny tones in your skin. With this powder you can apply true-red lipstick. Lay off the wine or magenta tints.

Florid Skins

Blondes and those women who have florid skins should never wear red. Now and then a blonde tries it, or comes out in rose pink, and they do dreadful things to her golden tresses. Black is the best color bet for blondes and red heads; it is in such strong contrast to the delicate complexion that it glorifies it, serves as a black velvet background would serve to make beautiful the cameo that rests upon it.

When the brunette wears a red dress she must apply a powder of more neutral tones than usual; a deep ivory is becoming. But never, with the red frock, should she use deep peach, flesh or powders of rose shade. A tiny bit of faint rouge will give charm. The lipstick must harmonize with the frock.

Red Reflects

The reason one must be canny about make-up when wearing the flame-colored robe is because the red is reflected in the face. One doesn't want to appear lithographic.

Green drains the complexion of coloring, and so does grey. Therefore one can be more lavish with the items in the make-up box when these colors are worn.

That hat, too, must determine the tones of make-up. Such a lot to keep in mind!

Roslin

Roslin — The 108th. anniversary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was observed on Sunday with services at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. The Rev. C. E. Kidd, B.A., B.D., of Gananoque, was the special minister for the day.

Rev. J. W. MacDonald took Rev. Mr. Kidd's service in Gananoque on Sunday morning and assisted at the evening service in his own church.

The choir was assisted by members of the United Church choir. The church was nicely decorated with flowers and large congregations were present at both services.

Mr. Reginald Scott, who has been stationed at Niagara on the Lake for the past few months, and Mrs. Scott spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bailey.

Mr. John Fargey, RCNVR, who has been stationed at the East Coast, is spending a month's furlough at his home here.

Mr. Donald Chisholm, RCNVR, who has been stationed at the West Coast, arrived home on Saturday and is spending a leave at his home here.

Mrs. Thomas Leslie, of Queensboro, is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. Fitchett and Mr. Fitchett.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Copeland and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Carter attended the funeral of Mr. Sylvester Thomas in Wellington on Saturday.

School was re-opened on Tuesday, Sept. 4th., with Miss Ruth Wright as teacher. One new pupil, Donny Lee Vance, was enrolled.

Mrs. S. Fawns left on Saturday for her home in Toronto after spending the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. W. Gillespie and Mrs. McKee.

Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. T. Emerson.

Mrs. Ernest Morton and Miss Joyce Morton returned home on Friday after a holiday with friends in Detroit and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Way and children of Peterboro were callers on Sunday afternoon on his mother, Mrs. Jas. Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregorie and family and Mr. and Mrs. R. Herman of Trenton were visitors on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker.

A number of children who have been placed in homes by the Children's Aid Society, in this vicinity enjoyed the picnic at Tweed Memorial Park on Sunday. The outing was given to these underprivileged children by the generosity of the Kinsmen Club of Tweed and Belleville, and will long be remembered by all present.

3 THEFTS BELIEVED WORK OF GANG

Ajax, Ont., Sept. 12 — (CP) — A car and a truck were stolen at nearby Whitby last night and a groceteria here robbed of approximately $250 worth of cigarets, police reported today, saying it was believed the three thefts were the work of one gang. It was thought the gang stole the car and truck at Whitby and then drove here to break into the groceteria.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — Miss Nettie Mouck of Belleville and Mrs. E. Graham of Tweed are spending a short time with their sister, Mrs. James Bateman before her departure from the village.

Mr. Albert Green returned home on Thursday after spending the past four months in Northwestern Canada.

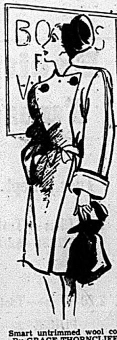
Wearable Winter White



Smart untrimmed wool coat.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

SOME OF THE smartest coats shown this season are untrimmed and rely for their undoubted appeal on line and color, with emphasis on such shades of off-white as winter white, tones that shade into the palest beige as does this coat of coffee cream wool. The convertible neckline is illustrated here buttoned up, with carved plastic buttons. Deep armholes permit easy wear over suits. The sleeves have outside seaming. A belt, attached to the back, ties in front in a bowknot. The slit pockets, also, have seamed detail. It is charming with brown furs and accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Carney and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grills.

The congregation of Thomasburg United Church are having the interior of the Church redecorated. Mr. Gay of Foxboro has been engaged to do the work and it was begun on Monday.

Rev. J. D. P. Knox, a former pastor of Thomasburg United Church charge passed away in Kingston on Wednesday last. The deceased was deeply interested in the welfare of all boys of the community, not only of his own congregation, and he was a friend to everyone in time of illness or bereavement, being a daily visitor at the homes where sickness was. He is survived by an aged sister.

When one of the MacFarland Construction trucks was passing north through the village on Thursday loaded with a very high piece of machinery, it was forced to the east side of the highway to avoid southbound traffic in front of Miss Emma Porter's residence and struck one of the limbs of the maple tree, tearing it loose as well as taking a piece from the trunk of the tree. The limb was dragged for some distance on down the street and was later removed by local highway employees. The limb was one that gave considerable shade to the home.

Situation in E. Asia Will Need Adroit Handling to Forestall Discontent

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The situation in East Asia as a whole is dangerous — and Japan is the focal point of the infection. It will require both adroit and quick handling to forestall an epidemic of discontent, and anti-western animosity, in the various countries.

For while Japan is the main source of the evil which has descended upon that part of the world, yet because the Allies are now in control they will get the blame if the disorganization isn't righted speedily.

In short, the western Allies are on trial in a big way in the Orient. Anyone who has studied the Far East at first hand knows that it long has harbored much suspicion of occidental motives. This is a mighty danger which either will be eliminated or accentuated, as Allied efforts at rehabilitation — economic, political and social — succeed or falter.

So it is good to get Gen. MacArthur's report that the occupation of Japan is proceeding smoothly. One notes in this connection that it's only a month since Tokyo surrendered—a short time to get a tight grip on a country which had some 3,000,000 crack troops still under arms, and the militaristic clique anxious for further trouble.

While the occupation was said to be going well in the Mikado's home domains, reports from other quarters weren't so optimistic — a situation which was to be expected in view of the widespread distribution of Japanese fighting strength throughout China, Indonesia and many islands of the Pacific.

Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten says the Japs in southeast Asia, "are finding it very hard to accept defeat and may try to wriggle out of the terms of surrender". He has ordered his troops to crack down on "obstinacy, impudence or non-co-operation".

Continued smooth progress in occupation of the Japanese homeland is bound to have a good effect on the Japs in other countries. It was to be expected that they would give some trouble until they had full understanding of their Empire's defeat. Indeed, before Russia came into the war there was a fair chance that the Jap warlords in China and Manchuria might try to carry on and establish a new Empire on the continent, despite the surrender of the mother country. Any such scheme was rendered impossible when the Red Armies swept over the Manchurian border.

Further important commentary on Jap war guilt comes from [illegible] Konoye, vice-premier of Japan. He pins the Pearl Harbor crime to Gen. Tojo and a small group who are described as operating so secretly that not even the rabid militarists as a whole knew what was happening.

Ottawa, Sept. 13. (CP)— The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan trained and graduated 131,553 aircrew including 72,835 RCAF men, Air Marshal Robert Leckie, Chief of the Air Staff, said in a final report to members of the Supervisory Board of the plan. The report was compiled after the windup of the plan March 31 of this year, but was made public only tonight by Air Force Headquarters.

The RCAF contributed 55.4 per cent of graduates, 72,835; RAF, 32 per cent, 42,110; The Royal Australian Air Force 7.3 per cent, 9,606 and the Royal New Zealand Air Force 5.3 per cent, 7,002. These figures do not include 5,296 RAF, and the Fleet Air Arm personnel who received training in RAF schools in Canada and were graduated before July, 1942, when these schools became part of the B.C.A.T.P.

Peak for the plan was reached in January, 1944, when there were 73 B.C.A.T.P. flying training schools and 24 RAF transferred schools in operation. High of construction contracts was reached in 1942 when approximately 1,000 were awarded for expenditures up to $80,000,000.

Strength of the trained staff of the plan, flying and non-flying, grew from 4,538 at the end of March, 1940, to a peak of over 104,000 on Dec. 31, 1943, followed by a gradual decline to less than 67,000 by March, 1945.

The volume of work made necessary by the plan was shown by the 191 airframes and 267 engines, suitable for training, which the RCAF possessed in September, 1939, compared to 11,000 airframes and 24,700 engines in 1944.

"One outgrowth of the plan, which required no planning and grew naturally was the better understanding which developed among the partners and among the men of the British Commonwealth and Allied countries who trained or acted as staff in Canada", Air Marshal Leckie said.

HOWE CANCELS MEETING

Ottawa, Sept. 13 (CP)—Reconstruction Minister Howe said yesterday in the Commons that he had cancelled a meeting between steel workers and employers scheduled for Ottawa this week after he had read newspaper reports that C. H. Millard of Toronto,, National Director of the United Steel Workers (C.I.O.) had said he "wouldn't attend the meeting until Mr. Howe apologized for something I had said."

Mr. Howe did not elaborate.

Japs Unbalanced But Many Brilliant and Educable Says Former Hong Kong Prisoner

By WILLIAM STEWART

Manila, Sept. 13—(CP)—Company Sergeant-Major Albert Bilodeau of Richelieu, Que., a permanent force officer since 1931 and with the Royal Rifles of Canada at Hong Kong, said yesterday that despite ill-treatment by the Japanese, nearly four years of living among them have made him believe there is an opportunity to educate and make something of the Japanese people.

Bilodeau, who seems to be a more serious type than the average person, has been beaten by brutal Japanese prison guards as have other Canadian prisoners. Many Japanese behaved worse than animals. But he also found among them kindness, fanatical obedience to the Emperor beyond logic and, among some, evidence of brilliant though impractical and unoriginal minds.

As copyists, Bilodeau thinks the Japanese have few equals and they display great talent in improvement upon original ideas, although a gap in their make-up usually leaves them helpless when it comes to devising something entirely new.

As a people, Bilodeau regards the Japanese as devoid of morals as Occidentals know them. A woman in society takes her place by the side of a man. Women do work equal to men's, eat with them and bathe with them.

Mentally Unstable.

Japanese education, particularly about the outside world, is sadly neglected and Bilodeau feels, that with proper teaching wonderful minds would be developed. At present a large proportion are mentally unstable. As an example a Japanese engaged in wrestling playfully with a prisoner at one moment would have him standing at attention and be beating him at the next moment.

Some of the guards who watched over the prisoners at Sumidagawn camp at Tokyo and particularly civilian work foremen treated the Canadians with respect and kindness. The attitude of others toward prisoners working in shipyards was the same as if they had been employees.

A few among them helped the Canadians to get newspapers. Some accepted money for this service. Later on as food became scarce, even for the Japanese population, they traded English-language newspapers for stolen food which the Canadians smuggled into their camp.

While the prisoners weren't supposed to smoke except during special periods, Japanese civilian foremen sometimes led them to places of concealment and let them light up.

Bilodeau said that the general run of camp guards and civilian work foremen was reasonable although usually they didn't permit prisoners to smoke except in barracks nor before roll call nor after roll call at night.

One-Track Minds.

The chief complaint was that prisoners couldn't lie down between morning and evening roll calls and frequently there were what the prisoners called "shakedowns" a turnout of their kits when the Japanese felt the prisoners were concealing such unpermitted articles as scissors or straight razors.

During these shakedowns the Japanese showed how queerly their minds worked, Bilodeau said. If they had been ordered to search the prisoners' gear for concealed scissors they looked only for scissors, overlooking any other articles they discovered which the prisoners were not permitted to have.

The Canadians found it a necessity to learn Japanese to avoid severe beatings when they got into trouble. They still use such terms as "meshi"—"food"—among themselves.

In camp they called their guards "foos"—an abbreviation of the Japanese word "furio". The prisoners gave their guards nicknames such as "Mizu Aru", which means "Have you any water?" and applied to a guard who was always asking that question.

Another expression still in use among the Canadians is "joto", meaning okay. They used "oyu" for hot water, "furo" for bath, "occha for tea, "kahu' for coffee, "byoke" for sickness, "gohan"" for cooked rice, and "kome" for uncooked.

Breakfast is "asameshi", lunch "ohiru meshi", and supper "yomeshi".

When the guards accused the Canadians of causing trouble, they protested "jiko hash"—no trouble—and sometimes got off more easily.

Distribution Plan to Aid War Housing

Toronto, Sept. 13. (CP)—The Prices Board last night announced a distribution plan for plumbing materials designed to facilitate construction of homes for returning service personnel. The announcement brought immediate criticism from the Master Plumbers' Association of Canada, which said it will demand that the order be rescinded.

Under the plan, manufacturers of bath tubs, lavatories, sinks single section laundry tubs, closet bowls, closet tanks, closet seats, range boilers, soil pipe (and fittings) and septic tanks are required to report proposed monthly production and distribution to the Board.

At the same time, said distributive trades administrator, J. H. Thomson, the Board will receive details of requirements of contractors from the Munitions Department's Priority Officer. The Board then will notify wholesalers which materials should be reserved for priority jobs and how much can be made available to other home builders.

In commenting on the order, Roy Belyea, past president of the Plumbers' Association, said "our entire association from coast to coast" will call protest meetings if the order is not rescinded.

"What the Association objects to is that so much stock-piling is being held for government houses which are only in the foundation or up to the rafters while other completed houses can not be occupied for lack of plumbing".

MARMORA

Marmora Boys Return Home With Their Brides

Marmora, Sept. 13—Leading Stoker William J. Nayler returned home on Monday afternoon from Halifax accompanied by his wife, the former Miss Frances Bishop of Paradise, Nova Scotia. "Bill" as he is familiarly known to his many friends in Marmora enlisted in the R.C.N.V.R. in August 1942, joined the commandos and served on a landing craft on V-E Day. He was home on furlough in October 1944 and has since been on duty at Halifax. He was married in May of this year, and is now enjoying a leave with Mrs. Nayler and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Nayler before receiving his discharge.

Returned Men Welcomed.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Nobes senior, was the scene of a happy gathering on Tuesday evening when relatives and friends numbering about sixty assembled to do honor to their son Private Everett Nobes recently returned from overseas and his bride, the former Ruth Burgess of Toronto and Norwood. The evening was spent in games and stunts. The newlyweds received many beautiful gifts and each made fitting reply to an address read by Miss June Walker.

Refreshments were served before the party broke up.

The bearers were James Whiteman, William Whiteman, George Sexsmith, James Brown, Thomas Dunwoody and Samuel Mastin.

Speed of Advance Against Allies In Early Days of War Surprised Japs

Written for The Canadian Press
By GEORGE HAWKES
(Sydney Daily Mirror Correspondent)

Tokyo, Sept. 13 —(CP Cable)— When the Japanese reached the Solomon Islands they found their lines of communication had reached as far as it was possible to stretch them. Capt. R. Iwamura, naval secretary to the navy minister said in a special interview yesterday. The Solomons was their breaking point, he said.

K. Sugita, the navy minister's private secretary, said "as a matter of fact, the war moved much too fast in the early stages. It got away from us and we were frankly surprised at the speed with which we were driving the Allies back. Then came the Solomons and that was as far as we could go."

"It was the end of the advance for us," he said, "unless we could build up a gigantic base from which to launch subsequent invasions."

"But then things began to slow down and then recede."

Both said the battle of the Coral Sea was the prelude to the invasion of Australia, which was not to take place immediately, however. They said the invasion would have begun after Australia's defences were destroyed and the invasion of New Guinea was completed.

STIRLING

Harvest Festival Held at Stirling

Stirling, Sept. 13—On Sunday, Sept. 9th., Harvest Thanksgiving services were conducted in St. John's Church, Stirling. There was a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and Harvest Service at 7.30 p.m. The Rector, the Rev. C. C. Brazill conducted the services and in the evening preached from the text: "Whatsoever a Man Soweth that Shall he Also Reap." The services were well attended and the choir under the direction of Mrs. Alger rendered the music suitable for harvest. Mr. Fred Houchin read the lesson. The church was beautifully decorated and a lovely bouquet of roses adorned the altar.

At 2.30 p.m. Harvest Festival was observed at St. Thomas church, Rawdon, when a service was held thanking God for the blessings of harvest. The church was well filled and decorated for the occasion. The Rev. C. C. Brazill conducted the service.

On Tuesday evening, at the Rectory an Altar Guild was organized. Mrs. Alger was elected President. Two ladies will be on duty each Sunday for a month and for special services during the week. There are twenty-four ladies in the Guild so that the full year will be included.

Firebug May Be Operating In Hastings Village

Campbellford, Sept. 13. (CP)—Police said last night they are working on the theory that a firebug may be operating in the neighboring village of Hastings.

A fire at St. George's Anglican church was extinguished Tuesday night and later a box of oil-soaked rags and waste was found in the cellar. Earlier this month a hotel and barn in the village were destroyed by fire.

SHIP BRINGS PRISONERS

Manila, Sept. 13 (CP Cable) — The Empress of Australia arrived here today from Hong Kong, bringing several hundred civilian internees from Stanley Camp, Hong Kong, and all the Canadian prisoners from Samshuipo Camp at Kowloon. They will disembark later in the day and the servicemen will enter the 5th replacement depot where all Canadians are being kept pending their homeward voyage.

Increasing Demand for Oil Advances Extensive Program of Exploration in Western Canadian Oil Fields

Although Canada is second-highest per capita consumer of oil in the world, only 15% of domestic needs are produced locally, mostly from Turner Valley, in southern Alberta. Due to the growing demands for oil, the most extensive exploratory program ever held in the Canadian West is under way in that area. Most oil-well equipment, like the drill (left) is mobile. Before gasoline goes to the storage tanks, sulphur is removed in "scrubbing" plants (top). In the acidizing treatment, spent acid mixes with oil so the well's first burst is burned off (lower). The rotary bits, shown (right) being set in a well on the end of a drill, cost $100. Each new well needs 100 bits.

SOUTH AFRICANS WATCH CANADA'S DEBATE ON FLAG

Observer Points Out Union Has Dual Language and Other Similarities to the Dominion

Written For The Canadian Press
By DAVID FRIEDMANN
South African Press Association

Perhaps nowhere outside Canada will greater public interest be taken in Canada's parliamentary search for a new flag and clarification of the definition of Canadian citizenship than in South Africa, whose independent constitutional development since the adoption of the Statute of Westminster has been rapid without in any way disturbing the solid bonds with other members of the British Commonwealth.

South Africa, like Canada, has two official languages, English and Afrikaans. To meet the sentiments of the two sections of the Union's 2,250,000 white population the South African parliament has succeeded in giving the country two flags, two anthems and two nationalities.

The flags of the Union are:-

The Union Jack to denote the association of South Africa with the other members of the group of nations constituting the British Commonwealth, and the National Flag.

Both flags are flown from the Houses of Parliament and from the principal government buildings in the capitals of the Union and the provinces, and on government offices abroad.

The Union Jack is also embodied in the National Flag, the design of which is as follows: three horizontal stripes of equal width from top to bottom, orange, white and blue. In the centre of the white stripe the old Orange Free State republican flag hangs vertically, spread in full, with the Union Jack adjoining it horizontally spread in full toward the pole followed by the old Transvaal Republican Vierkleur (Four-color) spread in full away from the pole. The superimposed flags are of the same size.

First Flown in 1928.

The national flag was first officially flown in South Africa on May 31, 1928—the 18th birthday of the Union of South Africa. The basis of the flag is the "Prinsevlag" (Prince's Flag) under which the Dutch originally won their independence and achieved their "golden age" in the 16th and 17th centuries. It was carried by William of Orange to England's shores in 1688. It is therefore a significant reminder of the measure of co-operation between the ancestors of the two white races in South Africa.

The new flag was not introduced to South African public without long, bitter controversy. This raged in and out of parliament and it was not until three years after the original bill to authorize the government to choose a design and proclaim it as the National Flag was submitted by the late General Hertzog's government that both sections of the people were satisfied with the compromise design.

South Africa has two national anthems—God Save the King and "Die Stem van Suid Afrika" (The Voice of South Africa"). Although the government of the day did not insist on placing this recognition of the two anthems on the statute book, it was agreed by parliament to allow the people to accept these national airs and today both are played at all official functions. Canada itself recently honored General Smuts in Ottawa by playing "Die Stem" when he attended an official ceremony at the Cenotaph.

Treason Trial Is Postponed

London, Sept. 12. (CP) —The treason trial of John Amery, 33, son of L. S. Amery, former British Secretary of State for India, was postponed today when his counsel announced the defence had been informed he was a citizen of Spain.

Amery, who was on the continent when the war broke out, is charged with attempting to induce British prisoners of war to fight on the side of the Germans against the Russians.

G. O. Blade, defence counsel, said inquiries were being made in Spain on the report that Amery became a naturalized citizen during the Spanish Civil war, relieving himself from allegiance to the Crown.

CONSERVATIVE CAUCUS

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — (CP) — A caucus of Progressive Conservative senators has been called for today when a leader will be chosen. It was understood that Senator C. C. Ballantyne, leader since Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen resigned, wishes to retire and it is expected Senator John T. Haig (PC-Manitoba) will be chosen to succeed him.

Government Helps Develop Western Oil Canada Small Producer but Big User

By MARGE DAVISON
(NFB Staff Writer)

Ambitious plans for the use of petroleum products, preceded by heavy wartime demands, have resulted in the advancement of the most extensive exploratory program ever undertaken in the Canadian west. This program is under way in the oil fields of Alberta, including Turner Valley, Vermilion, Taber, Conrad Fields, Princess Field, Jumping Pound, and others.

Canada is not a big oil producer. Although she is the second highest per capital consumer of oil in the world, the Dominion produces less than one-fifth of the world's annual production and only 15 per cent of her own requirements. For the past eight years, most of this came from a small structure in southern Alberta, Turner Valley, where the supplies have been declining.

Survey and drilling work employing 60 drilling rigs and seismographs are at present operating in the Alberta fields and $1,000,000 is being spent each month on the development of new fields. There are about 20 new areas showing oil in western Canada. In Turner Valley alone 262 fields are producing, compared to 231 a year ago. Vermilion is second to Turner Valley in production, with Conrad, 50 miles east of Lethbridge, third. Jumping Pound, 20 miles west of Calgary, is the biggest new discovery where oil men predict a second Turner Valley.

The Dominion Government has assisted the oil producers of the West in many ways, such as extending geological mapping and survey work, a necessary preliminary for testing for oil.

Ugly Buildings Can be Outlawed

(And Editorial in The Municipal World)

Unsightly lands and buildings present a problem which is common to a good many municipalities. Some of the common examples are junk or automobile wrecking lots! Abandoned buildings, often in a ruinous or unsafe state of repair; houses or shacks of no architectural beauty or needing paint and repairs, and with ill-kempt yards.

To cope with these problems, there is some authority under the Municipal Act. Councils of all municipalities may pass bylaws "requiring and regulating the filling up, draining, cleaning, clearing of any grounds, yards and vacant lots." Urban municipalities may pass bylaws "for requiring vacant lots to be properly enclosed." All municipalities may pass bylaws "authorizing the pulling down or repairing or renewing, at the expense of the owner of any building, fence, scaffolding or erection, which by reason of its ruinous or dilapidated state, faulty construction or otherwise is in an unsafe condition as regards danger from fire or risk of accident."

Counties, towns and townships bordering on a city may by bylaw license, regulate and govern junk or salvage shops and "salvage yards," which are defined to include automobile wrecking yards or premises.

In parts of a municipality not already built up with factories, stories or residences, a municipality may control the future character thereof by passing a restricted area bylaw—restricting the use of land and buildings therein to such purposes as the by-law permits. Any buildings or lands within the area at the time the bylaw is passed which are being used in a manner thereafter restricted by the bylaw are exempt from such restriction so long as they continue to be so used. These restricted area bylaws do not come into force until approved by the Municipal Board.

In spite of all these powers, what seems to be sorely lacking is the establishment of certain minimum standards of beauty — with which the builder of a shack or house, and simplicity, and with some regard for the character of the neighborhood, present and future. For residential areas, garage, store, factory or public building must comply — and once the standards were fixed, then in every municipality no building should be permitted until council or some qualified persons or board is satisfied that these standards at least will be observed. It is laregly ignorance of the fundamentals of architectural beauty that has left many municipalities with a bodge-podge of ugly buildings which might just as fell have been beautifully built at little or no extra cost to the builder. Beauty in buildings is not a matter of frills or fancies, but includes good proportions, balance, where possible, plans should provide a reasonable yard space for each house, and encouragement should be given to beautification of yards generally.

• •

A building construction bylaw which requires the observance of certain fundamentals of construction, for safety and fire protection, is good as far as it goes, but building for use and forgetting beauty is to forget that "man does not live by bread alone," and no man should be permitted to perpetuate ugliness in any neighborhood, even though he may be blind to it himself.

Overseas Educators May Teach in U. K.

London, Sept. 12 (CP)—Members of the Dominions and United States forces stationed in England who were teachers before the war are to be given an opportunity to teach in British schools if their qualifications conform to ministry of education standards.

Under a scheme recently announced, servicemen from overseas may, if they wish, go back to school for two or three weeks then, after their "refresher" courses, go into schools, solicitors' offices, hospitals, and technical colleges.

Selection of applicants is made by the Dominion and American military authorities who will be responsible for any expenses. The scheme is intended to provide servicemen specialists with an opportunity of seeing how the British do their "civvy" jobs.

Everything Goes Smoothly for King At Liberal Caucus

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Smiling broadly as he left a general Liberal party caucus, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told reporters yesterday he hoped they had noted the happy looks on the faces of the Liberal members as they left the caucus room because this indicated "unanimity."

Mr. King said he had opened the proceedings with a short address which included a summary of the program of legislation before the current session of parliament. He said this dealt with various matters but did not specify what they were.

He said his speech was followed by a "very free discussion" by various members on various subjects.

A reporter asked Mr. King whether parliament assistants to the various ministers would be appointed shortly, and he replied that there would be no immediate appointments because there were many new members and ministers would be given an opportunity of making appropriate selections from the men available.

Mr. King said that he hoped to be able to soon see parliamentary business in a condition where he could leave Ottawa for a trip which might possibly touch Washington where he would talk with President Truman.

He would aim at combining pleasure with such a business trip and try to take his first "real holiday" in seven years. However, it might not be possible to get away.

"Are you going fishing, sir?" a reporter asked.

Attack on Singapore Had Been Set for Sept. 9th Says Mountbatten

Singapore, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten disclosed yesterday that the invasion of Singapore — "Operation Zipper" — had been scheduled to take place Sept. 9.

When Japan surrendered the landings were carried out anyway as a bloodless exercise at approximately the same points where the invasion was intended, at ports Swettenham and Dickson on the Malay coast northwest of the city.

Calling it an "immense operation" that had been planned, with seven divisions tagged for the initial assault, Admiral Mountbatten said he held on the code name "Zipper Operation" when the occupation was carried out "because it was the only atomic bomb I had in Southeast Asia."

COLLABORATORS APPREHENDED

Yokohama, Sept. 13 — (AP)— General headquarters announced Wednesday that Jorges Vargas, puppet Phillipines Ambassador to Japan, his two sons, and an American, Mark Lewis Streeter, have been apprehended by American officers for questioning on orders of Gen. MacArthur.

Streeter was picked up on the U. S. Army hospital ship, Marigold, where he had been taken with other prisoners of war. He was accused of making propaganda broadcasts from prison camps for the Japanese. He was captured at Wake Island.

Your biggest wash comes

WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING

Oxydol is Far Ahead of Other Soaps in Preventing "Dirty Grayness"

Yes, Whiter! In wash test after wash test—Oxydol proved that it actually washes clothes cleaner and whiter than many other soaps which, unlike Oxydol, fail to get out that last possible trace of stubborn dirt and grime!

White and Bright Wash after Wash! You know, soaps often leave tiny discoloring particles caused by dirt in the clothes and the "hardness" of the water. These impurities stick in the clothes and turn gray or yellow under ironing heat. But Oxydol combats "dirty grayness" in an unusual way. It actually helps prevent grayness particles from forming in the clothes!

New "Hustle-Bubble" Suds Lift Dirt Out! Oxydol's new "Hustle-Bubble" suds are so active they lift dirt out. And they work longer, too—long after suds from many other soaps are all tired out. Yes, with Oxydol all your white things—except for unusual stains—come so clean they're White Without Bleaching. Sparkling white!

So Safe for Colors, Too! And Oxydol is so safe—safe for wash colors, rayons and your own precious hands. Its rich, safe suds wash your colored clothes so clean they fairly sparkle!

Next washday use Oxydol—and enjoy a wash so clean it's actually White Without Bleaching!

Will Supervise Tour Planning

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Dana Porter, Ontario Minister of Planning and Development, told the Ottawa and Junior Boards of Trade yesterday that his department's work would entail supervision of town planning and expansion of investments throughout the province.

Addressing the joint meeting the minister said there was a tendency to shift responsibility for financing and planning to the central body in the hope someone else would face all the problems and pay all the bills.

"But there is no magic about deriving money from a central spot. Its origin is the pockets of the people. It is a sound principle of democracy that those who spend must also take the responsibility for imposing taxes."

Under proposed plans of his department, he said communities affected would have the big share in making decisions and in financing town planning undertakings.

Navigator of Plane Which Warned Ceylon Safe in Manila

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

Manila, Sept. 13 —(CP Cable) —Navigator of the flying boat whose crew in 1942 warned Ceylon of the approach of a Japanese fleet apparently intending to attack the naval base of Colombo, was Flying Officer Grenville Onyette of Huntsville, Ont.

Both Onyette and Wing Cmdr. Leonard Jim Birchall of St. Catharines, Ont., pilot of the plane, now are safe in Manila after nearly 3½ years in Japanese hands.

Senator Haig Chosen Opposition Leader

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(CP)—Senator John T. Haig (PC-Manitoba) was chosen yesterday by a caucus of Progressive Conservative senators as Opposition Leader in the Senate to succeed Senator C. C. Ballantyne (PC-Quebec) who said he wished to retire because he felt that younger leadership was needed.

Senator Ballantyne, 78, and a member of the Red Chamber since 1932, thanked the members for their assistance during his five-year term as Opposition Leader through the last parliament.

Senator Haig is a 67-year-old Winnipeg barrister who had long experience in the Manitoba legislature before he was summoned to the Senate in 1935.

Upon learning of Senator Ballantyne's retirement and his replacement by Senator Haig, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told newspapermen that Senator Ballantyne had given parliament a "great and worthy" service.

He said he was glad to hear that Senator Haig had been chosen as Opposition Leader as he was a "fine type of man."

14 DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Miami, Fla., Sept. 13 — (AP) — Fourteen Navy men died yesterday in the crash of a big, four-engined Navy bomber which with one engine afire, was being guided to cleared runways by radio. One man escaped by leaping with his parachute.

The man who jumped was W. J. De Roche, aviation ordnanceman, who attempted to rescue his comrades but was driven away by flames and exploding ammunition.

Jap Admiral Changes His Mind, Will Await Trial

San Francisco, Sept. 13 —(AP) —Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, on the Allied occupation "wanted" list, has changed his mind about committing suicide and is awaiting the trial he expects as a war criminal, a Domei broadcast said yesterday.

The Domei dispatch quoted the former navy minister of Tojo's Pearl Harbor cabinet as saying: "Once I wanted to show my apology by committing suicide, but I changed my mind and I have calmly waited for this day to comply with the Imperial Command to execute the Potsdam Declaration in good faith.

"It is but natural that I have to be detained as a war criminal . . . There is nothing to say . . . I have no excuse to make for the Emperor and the people."

Gen. MacArthur Seeks Black Dragon Leaders

Tokyo, Sept. 13 —(AP)— Gen. MacArthur, decreeing dissolution of Japan's notorious Black Dragon militaristic secret society, placed seven leaders of the organization on his "wanted" list.

One of the most feared and sinister semi-official secret organizations in the Orient, the Black Dragon was instrumental in setting Japan upon the aggressive path to the Chinese invasion and the attack on Pearl Harbor.

There was no immediate report that any of the seven leaders had been arrested.

The Black Dragon society was organized in 1901 with strong backing from the army and navy and governmental leaders, many of whom held membership in the society. It had far-reaching power in the war ministry and abroad and was represented in all occupied territories.

It was notorious for its strong-arm methods—gangster tactics with an Oriental touch. Assassination groups carried out terrorist policies against any Japanese officials who dared offer even indirect opposition.

Intruder Overpowered After Fierce Battle

Toronto, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Overpowered by three watchmen at Sunnyside Amusement Park after a fierce battle in which a shot was fired, Ernest Graves, 20, was arrested and charged with assault and shooting with intent.

Police said that Daniel Cowley, nightwatchman, questioned Graves on his presence in the park at 3 a.m. Graves struck him in the face. John Wagg, another watchman, came to Cowley's assistance and the fight started. During the scuffle, Wagg said his revolver was removed from its holster.

A third watchman, William Collins, arrived on the scene. By this time, police said, Graves had got hold of the revolver. He fired a shot in the direction of Collins. The bullet was a blank.

Shortly after the youth was overpowered and placed in custody.

Govt. Plans to Spend $12,000,000 to Assist Indian Rehabilitation

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(CP)— D. J. Allen, administrator of Indian reserves and leases for the Department of Indian Affairs, told the convention of the North American Indian Brotherhood here that the government planned in the near future to spend $12,000,000 to assist in rehabilitation of Indians throughout Canada.

Some $2,000,000 of this money, he said, would be for eradication of slum conditions in some Indian settlements and Indian returned veterans would be employed under the plan under the guidance of qualified tradesmen and engineers.

The Indians' convention, swelled by arrival of delegates from the Six Nations, the United States and from the James Bay Indian reserves, also heard P. E. Moore, medical superintendent for the Indian Department. He said the department would take over operation of military hospitals in some parts of Canada for treatment of Indians, particularly those afflicted with tuberculosis.

Additional medical doctors also soon would be employed to care for Indians throughout Canada, he said.

P-C Caucus Votes Against "Pairs"

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(CP)— A caucus of Progressive Conservative members of parliament has decided against "pairs" with government supporters, as a general policy, a spokesman said yesterday. Only in an emergency would a pair be arranged.

This decision against pairs will mean that the Liberal members will have to stick on the job and not miss any votes, now that the government's over-all majority is so narrow, in case the members on the Opposition side should gang up against it.

Thus a practice reaching back to Confederation is being discontinued. The practice was that a member of the government side was paired with a member on the Opposition side and if one was absent, when a vote was taken in the Commons, the other abstained from voting. This gave the members more freedom to miss votes without endangering the government or hurting the standing of the Opposition.

Cardinal Farm System Can Still Produce Rookies, Leopatka Demonstrates in His Debut Win

Tigers Blew Chance to Increase Lead by Losing in 16 Innings to A's

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Sam Breadon's Cardinal farm system, shrivelled to a handful of outposts and smattering of talent, has turned up Lefty Art Lopatka to prove it still can produce a live one when the hurry call for help is sounded.

With Billy Southworth's St. Louis gang struggling desperately to catch the front-running Chicago Cubs, who had won via the shoutout route a few hours earlier Lopatka was given his big-league launching against the hard-hitting Brooklyn Dodgers.

The 25-year-old grad of Columbus Red Birds justified the management's faith by subduing the Dodgers with four hits, 3-2, keeping the Cards 2 1-2 games behind Chicago. A scheduled second game was rained out.

Hank Wyse made sure the Bruins wouldn't lose any ground by blanking the Phillies 4-0, on seven hits. It was his first victory in a month as he has been trying unsuccessfully since Aug. 12 to grab his 19th. Andy Pafko's double drove home three of the Cubs' runs off Dick Barrett.

Reds Shade N.Y.

Cincinnati shaded New York, 4-3, in the other National League contest on successive homers by Frank McCormick and Hank Sauer. Boston and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

Washington picked up a half-game on the Detroit Tigers in the blazing American League scrap, slicing their advantage to 1 1-2 games, all on the losing side of the ledger. Five big games with the Bengals this weekend in Washington will decide the issue.

Roger Wolfe pitched and batted the Senators to a 5-1 triumph over Cleveland in an arclight game witnessed by Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the hero of Corregidor. The knuckle-ball artist yielded only four hits in recording his 18th win and drove home three of the Washington scores with a bases-loaded double.

Detroit's crippled Tigers lost a heartbreaking second game to Philadelphia, 3-2 in 16 innings after romping to a 7-4 decision in the opener behind Al Benton.

O'Neill Gambled.

Yesterday's marathon nightcap was tough for Steve O'Neill who gambled with Prince Henry Oano, a big Hawaiian up from Buffalo, and saw his choice justified as the recruit allowed only one single for 8 2-3 innings. Roberto Estalleia tied it with a double and the same stocky Cuban finally broke it up with another two-baser in the 16th, scoring Mayo Smith.

The Yankees grabbed two games from Chicago 3-1 and 9-8, in 10 innings, to tighten their grasp on third place. Russ Derry and Charley Keller hit homers to ease Red Ruffing's task in the opener, and Frank Crosetti tied the finale in the ninth with a round triper. Oscar Grimes' triple followed by Aaron Robinson's single finally broke it up.

RED DURRETT GOAT AND HERO IN ROYALS WIN

Drops Fly Ball to Let Baltimore Ahead and Then Hits Homer to Win Game

New York, Sept. 13. (CP)—From goat to hero—in the space of a few innings—was Red Durrett's experience in the International League play-offs at Montreal last night.

The Royals outfielder dropped a foul fly in the sixth innings with two out and paved the way for two unearned Baltimore runs. In the ninth inning, with Baltimore leading 4-2, Durrett, who had been taking a roasting from a good portion of the 14,000 fans at the Delormier Downs, stepped to the plate with two of his mates on bases and poled a homer to win the game, 5-4.

The victory enabled the league champion Royals to even up the best of seven Shaughnessy semi-final series at one game each.

The other semi-finals between the second-place Newark Bears and the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, also was squared up at one-all as the result of the Bears' 8-3 conquest before a crowd of 6,110 in Newark.

Trailed to Finish.

Royals trailed the fourth-place Orioles right to the finish after the pair of unearned tallies in the sixth frame. There were two out and two on in this inning when Durrett committed his boner. Had he held the ball it would have retired the side.

Then Frankie Skaff and Sherman Lollar ,the loop's leading hitter, followed the fluff with a couple of singles to push across the first two runs. Orioles scored another two in the seventh when Fred Pfiefer produced a hit that resulted in runs Nos 3 and 4.

At this point, John Gabbard, who started on the mound for Royals, was relieved of his duties by Jack Banta, who retired the side without further ado. Tommy Warren pitched the last two frames, holding the Baltimore boys scoreless.

The Montrealers got two runs back in the eighth after George Hooks weakened and walked a couple of men with one out and Salty Parker doubled into left field to cash both runners.

Drews Stops Leafs.

Lanky Karl Drews put the Bears into the second Series semi-final running by stopping Toronto with four hits. The Bruins gave the former New York Yankee hurler a big lead by routing Tom Ananicz with six runs in the fifth inning. Toronto's big blow was a two-run homer by Bill Norman in the sixth.

The big fifth inning, cracking a 1-1 deadlock, saw two passes and a sacrifice, singles by Phil Weintraub and Steven Kuk, a double by Dick Baker and Bill Steinecke's long fly give the Bears ample margin.

The Toronto - Newark series will shift to Toronto tonight with Ed MacKay of Newark facing Toronto's Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin. Montreal and Baltimore take the day off and the series moves to Baltimore Friday.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Reay, captain of Quebec Aces in the Quebec Senior Hockey League last season, now is the property of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, it was revealed last night.

Reay, on the reserve list of Detroit Red Wings, comes to Canadiens in a deal involving Canadiens' Ray Getliffe and Rosie Rossignol and an undisclosed amount of cash. He was unable to obtain permission last season to playing games across the border. Tuesday Quebec hockey circles suggested Reay as probable coach of Quebec Aces succeeding Don Penniston.

Nick Wisnock of Burlington led nearly 100 Ontario golfers in a 36-hole annual invitation tournament at Burlington Country Club when he posted a one-over-par 145. Other prize winners included Jack Nash of London, Whitey Lathrop of Welland and Johnny Koval of Sarnia.

Corporal Dick, owned by Neely and Powell of Sarnia set a Western Ontario record for two-year-old pacers yesterday when he won the feature race at Dresden Fair in straight heats. Lee Dale owned by Butler of Strathroy won the opening 2.26 race with two firsts and a second.

A yearling colt owned by Sir Eric Ohlson, by Nearco out of Rosy Legend, a full brother to this year's Derby winner Dante, was sold at the Newmarket sales yesterday for 28,000 guineas ($132,100) to the Gaewar of Baroda. This is a world record price for a yearling colt at public auction. The previous record was 15,000 guineas paid by Miss Dorothy Paget for Colonel Payne.

A baseball doubleheader scheduled at Stratford Saturday was cancelled yesterday on receipt of word that Rochester Red Wings of the International League are not prepared to come to Stratford under an earlier agreement. As a result only one game will be played in which Windsor Local 195 and Stratford Nationals will clash in a senior B Ontario Baseball Association first-round play-off.

Public school soccer in Toronto is a post-war casualty, W. F. Kirk, principal of Jesse Ketchup and enthusiastic sponsor of recreational program for public school students, said last night customary September soccer activities are being delayed because of lack of soccer balls.

"There isn't a soccer ball to be had in Toronto," said Mr. Kirk. "As a result school teams can't even practice, let alone carry on usual interschool competitions".

Quebec hockey circles reported last night that Bill Reay, captain of Quebec Aces in the Quebec Senior Hockey League, is likely to succeed Don Penniston as coach of the team. Reay led the team to the Allan Cup in 1944 when he was playing coach. Penniston will coach Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League this season, it was announced yesterday.

T. H. C. Alison, president of the Toronto Argonauts football club, said yesterday he had written the Winnipeg Rugby Club that Argonauts would be unable to play an exhibition game with Bombers in Winnipeg after the Big Four opens its schedule Sept. 22. Winnipeg had suggested a Thanksgiving Day game.

St. Catharines Athletics Stave off Late Rally

Brampton, Sept. 13 — (CP) — St. Catharines Athletics, staving off a desperate fourth-quarter rally by Brampton Lakeshores, won 14-13 last night in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association title.

Flashing snappy combination play, the Mann Cup champions erased an early 4-3 deficit to gain a 14-11 lead in the final, then nipped a belated rush by Combines which netted two goals before the last whistle.

Second game of the series will be played at St. Catharines Saturday.

SYLVANUS APPS TO JOIN LEAFS AFTER DISCHARGE

Brilliant Hockey Player Volunteered for Pacific Duty With Canadians

Toronto, Sept. 13 — (CP)—Sylvanus Apps, one of hockey's great centres before he enlisted in the Canadian Army as a private, advised Toronto hockey officials by long-distance telephone from Vancouver last night he will join Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League as soon as he receives his discharge.

Sources close to the brilliant ice performer from Paris, Ont., previously were insistent that Apps, now a lieutenant, planned to concentrate on a business career after leaving the army. He was reported determined to abandon hockey to become a builders' supply salesman.

But last night coach Clarence (Happy) Day of the Leafs said Apps in a telephone conversation denied any intention of retiring.

"If you want me, I'll report as soon as I get my discharge," said the player once described by manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings as the "greatest hockey player I've ever seen."

Day said he has no idea when Apps will be free to resume hockey, but he is expected to be available before the N.H.L. season opens late in October.

Apps was graduated several months ago from the Officers' training camp at Brockville, Ont. where he finished first in a class of about 80 student officers. He volunteered for Pacific duty and was in Vancouver awaiting a move to Japan when the war ended.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

A Good Move.

A pat on the back to President Jack McVeigh and his executive of the City and District Baseball League for their action in ordering all future playoff games of the loop to be started at five pip emma. The extra hour, as exemplified in the Juniors - SWACOS game Wednesday night, is the difference between nine innings of baseball and satisfied customers and players, and abbreviated pastimes with the inevitable squawks and silly bickerings on the part of managers and umpires —in fact the fans as well.

As a matter of fact the additional hour has seemed to inspire all concerned. The other night the teams, umpires and the majority of the fans were on hand by the time the game hour rolled along and the pastime was well underway within a few minutes of the time the game was scheduled to start.

The fans appreciate the efforts of the exec. to get things running smoothly and no doubt the remainder of the games will note a decided upsurge in attendance. It should be remembered that this is the first year that any attempt at organized ball has been made and naturally it has had its ups and downs. However, all-in-all, the league has been a success and many wrinkles which were ironed out this year will not be apparent by the time "Play Ball" rings out in the spring of 1946.

The executive has done a good job in spite of many handicaps. The brand of baseball has been good and it looks as if the sport has received a decided shot in the arm this year which augurs well for the future.

Tonight Latta and Bata tangle in their all-important play-off tussle and tomorrow Juniors and SWACOS play the third game of their semi-final series. Both games are scheduled for the Alemite field and will start at 5 o'clock.

Splinters.

Don Thomas accompanied the Columbian Squires to Toronto to act as arbiter in the tussle last night with the Queen City outfit . . . Red Carson, who couldn't make the trip by car, followed the lads by train. . . . He wanted to give the boys some vocal support from the vicinity of the third base coaching box. . . . Vern Goyer, Bobby Bunton and Fitzpatrick also made the trek with the squad. . . . The Point Ann squad leaves tomorrow afternoon for Oshawa where they will take on the Mayfairs of that city in the second game of the second round Intermediate "A" playdowns. . . . Should be a worthy joust. . . . No word of the third game—if necessary. . . . Peterborough Westcloxers, conquerors of the Mountain View Bomberettes, met St. Catharines Ladies last night in the first game of the Ontario semi-final series. . . . No word yet as to the score. The winners take on the Brantford lassies for the provincial title. . . . Luke Sewell, maestro of the Browns, sums up the wild American League pennant scramble thus: "There isn't a club of the eight which can't be beaten four straight by any other club, regardless of their respective standings at the time." . . . Ryder Cup competition will be resumed in 1946, probably in England. . . . Stars and Stripes, the GI daily, recently printed the major league standings upside down ! ! ! "That," explained the editor, "is to give the Philadelphia fans a break." ! ! ! Charley Metro, young outfielder whom the Tigers peddled to the Philadelphia Athletics, calls Connie Mack "The best outfielder in the American League." . . . "We were playing the Tigers recently," Metro explained "and because I had played with Doc Cramer I figured I knew just where to be when he came to bat. . . . However, on looking toward the bench I saw Mack wave me over. I moved over 20 feet and looked again. Mr. Mack waved me still further over. . . . I figured he was 100 percent wrong but Doc lined the ball right at me and I caught it without having to move a single step."

One Down.

Columbian Squires Juniors ran into a snag in Toronto last night when the Toronto Mount Carmels an aggregation of smart young Jewish softballers defeated them 8-4 in the first game of the second round Junior O.A.S.A. playdowns. Boyle's pitching was absent for once and the homesters collected five runs off him in the first two innings, enough to salt the game away. The Mounts are a smart aggregation, can hit and have good pitching but their fielding could be improved upon. At that the Squires will have to be at top form and go all out to beat them here on Saturday. Donovan cocked a homer with two on board for the Squires and that with an unearned run was all the locals could produce from a batting point. However, the local kids will be in their own backyard and with lots of moral and other support should get themselves a win. They play on Saturday at 3.30 at the Alemite Field.

A SUGGESTION
about civilian clothing
TO SERVICEMEN AND WOMEN about to be discharged

To help returning Navy, Army and Air Force servicemen and women who want to get Tip Top Tailors clothes upon their formal discharge as quickly as possible, we make this suggestion:

As soon as you are notified that you will be discharged go to any Tip Top Tailors store—choose the material you like best from the special selection you will find there for service personnel only—have your measurements taken —sign a voucher by which you undertake to assign your Priority Suit Purchase certificate which you will receive upon discharge to Tip Top Tailors.

By doing this you will be gaining time and your tailored-to-measure Tip Top Tailors suit will be ready for you when you are formally discharged. Then you merely turn over your suit purchase certificate and step out in civvies ready for your return to civilian life.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Practice alone does not make a perfect bridge player. But it can help. And one of the great polishing off processes is to work out difficult double dummy problems.

Double dummy does not refer to your partner and the player who sits across the table from him. It means where all four hands are exposed to view like fish in a glass bowl.

Suppose a deal has been played and an argument results. If they remain alive, give back to each player the cards he held. Face them on the table where all can look them over. That's double dummy.

Surprising how good a bridge player you seem to be when you see the opponent cards, too. But even with everything in sight, there are some plays you will miss unless you repeat and repeat.

South was declarer at a no-trump contract. When only seven cards were left in each hand, declarer needed six tricks. But he took only five of them. That started a rehash.

One player contended that declarer could have taken six of the seven remaining tricks as the cards lay. Can you figure out how?

♠ 8 3 2
♥ 6
♦ Q
♣ 9 6

WEST
♠ 9 7 4
♥ None
♦ 10 9
♣ 8 5

EAST
♠ None
♥ 4 3 2
♦ K 6 5 4

♥ 5
♣ 7

Remember that the deal is being played in no-trump. South is in the lead at the beginning of the seventh trick. What card should he lead in that spot and how should he handle the rest?

There is a sure heart trick with dummy six. At least one sure trick is in clubs. There are at least three diamond tricks in due time. So the problem is to find another trick somewhere.

When you start working on a puzzle like this, you must keep your eyes peeled for enough entries to the desired hands. That's not always easy when you try to keep the cards in your head.

So, lay out the cards on the table and go to work on it.

Toronto, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Tip for Brantford, Ont., hockey officials: If you're looking for a timekeeper, there's a newcomer in the city who thinks hockey, every hour on the hour. His name is Frank Barsotta and he's itching for action.

Barsotta left for Brantford last week from Sudbury, where he lived for 22 years, served as Canadian National Railways telegraph agent and between times earned a reputation as timekeeper extraordinary.

"He wouldn't miss a hockey game if he had to plough through snow 10 feet deep," says Northern Ontario hockey official Maxie Silverman of Barsotta, who attended every hockey game in Sudbury for 18 years. His tenure as timekeeper is believed longer than all others except Bill Long, official timekeeper at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Silverman says Barsotta always played down his punctuality. Before every game, he'd say he was tired of the penalty box and wasn't sure if he coulld make the game. But no provision for a substitute was ever made, because everyone knew Frank would be there, stop watch in hand, ready for action.

The law of compensation probably accounts for Frank's devotion to the timekeeper's job. Always deeply interested in sport, he was prevented from participating actively in athletics when an accident forced amputation of an arm at the age of 14.

Around the Circuit: This department's prediction that Joe Krol's lazy style of play would antagonize Detroit Lions management looks pretty weak in view of Joe's performance against Philadelphia Eagles at Buffalo, N.Y., last Sunday. Eagles won 35-7 and Annis (Toronto Star) Stukus reported Joe looked as good as any other Detroit performer. . . . Krol told Stukus the biggest chance in the American game for him is in the tackling. "No one leaves it to George. Anybody who can get a piece of a ball carrier moves in and when they hit—they don't fool about it." Montreal's Sport Clinic, sponsored by the Quebec Association for Health and physical Education and Recreation, has drawn inquiries from Hart M. Devenney, director of Manitoba's physical fitness program. The clinic, a co-operative plan by coaches and officials of various Montreal sports groups, is designed to teach sport fundamentals to English and French youngsters in a city-wide and eventually a provincial basis.

Columbian Squires Lose 8 to 4 To Mt. Carmel Team of Toronto In Junior OASA Playdowns

Winners Secure Thirteen Hits Off Boyle and Adams While Locals Only Collect Three

Columbian Squires are one game down in their junior O.A.S.A. playdowns, when they were defeated on Wednesday afternoon by Mt. Carmel Jewish squad of Bellwoods Park, Toronto by a score of 8 to 4. The return game will be played in Belleville on Saturday afternoon and the local team will have to show a much smarter performance if they are to continue the Provincial playdowns. The team yesterday were outpitched and certainly outhit because Gorman limited his opposition to three hits, one a towering home run in centre field by Donovan.

Boyle was the manager's choice for mound duty for the Squires but it could easily be seen after the first frame he was not in form and his father, John Boyle, who is coaching the team pulled him in favor of Adams, who held the opposition to three runs but the damage had been done. Boyle did not have his customary control nor did he have his zip on the fast one and the winners were waiting for the "nothing pitch" and hitting late would drive the pellet into the opposite field to which they would normally hit with the result the Squires were all at sea. The opposition have a heavy hitting team but their fielding ability is not as good as some teams the Squires have played. In Gorman they have a real top hurler, who has plenty of swift, fields his position and can pummel the old apple. He had three for four, one being a homer down the right field line.

Went Ahead in First.

The winners went ahead in the first frame when they scored two runs on three hits. Boyle escaped the deluge in the second when his mates pulled off a fast double play on an out to the outfield but they came right back with three more in the third to practically salt the game away. Boyle was pulled after the three were scored and Adams put out the fire for the time being. Belleville got back in the picture in the third when after two were out Fitzpatrick doubled. Bunton walked and Donovan cleaned the sacks with his homer. The last run scored on a miscue by the opposition. The three runs garnered by the Squires were nullified by Mt. Carmel when they scored three on a walk, a double and homer. Boyle struck out three during his sojourn on the mound with Adams getting one but twelve bit the dust as Gorman blazed his fast one by. The walks allowed were equal and the winners secured thirteen safe blows off the two Belleville hurlers.

12 Newly Liberated P.O.W. Are Missing After Liberator Crash

Manila, Sept. 13 — (AP) — 12 newly liberated prisoners of war were missing today when a B-24 Liberator bomber carrying them from Okinawa to Manila crashed into the sea near Formosa, United States air force authorities announced.

Five crew members and eight other prisoners on the bomber, were rescued by a naval vessel. All had parachuted into the sea. The plane was one of nearly 100 on a mass flight from Okinawa to Manila. Authorities said the cause of the crash and the nationality of the prisoners would not be known until the rescue ship reached port.

Olsen in Bad Way From Arm Lock When Timer's Bell Rang

Olaf Olsen, the Swedish Swivel merchant failed to make good the promise to tear Earl "Moose" McCready apart at the Hume Arena Wednesday night and lost Referee Bert Maxwell's decision after 3 falls of hectic wrestling. Both men won a fall and the referee's nod went to McCready for the third fall after the Aurora Borealis had the Swedish hero in the throes of an armlock that almost made him say "uncle."

So, according to an announcement made prior to the bout, it looks like one of those prize sessions next Wednesday when Whipper Billy Watson will again match his wrestling prowess against that of the "Moose".

The "Big Swede" used his bag of unorthodox tricks practically all through the bout and continually appealed or threatened the faithful with fisticuffs or hand raised in the air in symbol of victory. He consistently resorted to something allegedly concealed in his trunks with which he gently but firmly massaged the 'Moose's' optics all of which was not missed by the crowd but added to the general atmosphere.

Didn't Like Same Treatment

He had a consistent yen to "guzzle" the "Moose" by the simple expedient of wrapping his arm around the McCready tonsils till that gent's tongue hung out like a barber sign, but remonstrated in no uncertain terms when the "Moose" applied the same pressure to the Svenska gullet.

At that he used cunning and a bit of strategy to cop the first fall. The pair were battling in a corner when by some formula known only to the three involved, the Swede tossed Referee Bert Maxwell over his head and followed suit with McCready. The "Moose" temporarily flattened by the surprise was "duck-soup" for the Swede who promptly squelched him for the fall.

The second bout was a replica of the first but with the Moose having the better of the go. He finally clamped one of those roly-navian opposition and the pair pivian opposition and the pair pirouetted upside down around the ring. The Swede saw more stars than a Hollywood night club, and that was that.

Equal to Occasion

The third fall saw Olsen go all out with his bag of tricks but the Moose was equal to the occasion. True they slung one another out of the ring on various occasions, and the change of venue did not hurt either. Finally the "Moose" put that famous armlock on the Swede and gave him plenty of punishment before the timer's gong ended the show at the expiration of the time limit. Referee Maxwell hoisted the Moose's flipper aloft in token of victory, and that gesture was as popular with the Swede as a Jap general with a Bataan prisoner of war. Olsen took exception to the decision and attempted to vent his wrath on the victorious Moose. But that worthy met him half-way and after a few fistic exchanges both decided to call it a day and go bye-bye.

Bunny Dunlop and Pat. Flanagan provided the action picture of the night's entertainment but The Ole Bunny went a bit too far, at least in Referee Fox's opinion and was disqualified after 20 minutes of fast milling.

Whitey Hewitt assumed a bad man's role against Phil Stack but his methods availed him nothing. He booted the Bowmanville pride all over the lot and took plenty himself. But the gong ended hostilities and a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 13

A Lonely Girl.

She felt depressed and out of everything. Perhaps she ought to go to Hospitality house again. It was an ordeal dancing with all kinds of boys from all parts of the coutnry but it was one thing she could do. Her friends from school were working at something. In the motor corps or some other kind of volunteer service. They no longer had time to lunch or go to movies with Folly. Even Suzan was receptionist at the Blood bank. It hadn't mattered so much while she was seeing Eric but suddenly Folly felt as if in all her little world she was the only one whom no one needed.

For several days she heard nothing from either Bruce or Eric then they both telephoned her on the same day. Eric called first and as she had hoped he would said pleadingly, "May I see you today, Folly?"

Her heart melted but she must not forgive him too readily.

"Why do you want to see me?"

"There is something I must say to you," he insisted. "Just this once, Folly. Then if you choose I shall not bother you again."

When she did not reply he asked hopefully, "Did you receive my roses?"

Asks Him to Her Home

"They were lovely," she admitted, adding impulsively, "You may come to see me here." Never again would she make the mistake of meeting him outside. Besides no one would be at home but Chan.

Yes, she decided, this would be her test of him. If he saw her in this old house and it made no difference in his interest she would know that he really cared for her. Meeting her at the Whitcombs had probably given him a false impression of her background but now it was time for him to know the truth.

She was so absorbed in anticipation of this visit that she completely forgot her resolution to be nice to Bruce. When he telephoned half an hour later she had to tell him she already had a date.

"With that count so and so I presume," Bruce said crossly.

"And what if it is?"

"I should think you'd have seen enough of him. Well, have a good time but don't expect me to rescue you again."

Folly was sorry about Bruce but after all she had not known he was going to call when she promised the count. It was Chan's disapproval which really worried her. With him as an ally she could carry off her plans for the afternoon so much more smoothly. After considering a moment she drifted into the kitchen where he was preparing the soup for that evening's dinner.

Seeks Chan's Help.

"I've been thinking," she said meekly, "and I've decided you were perfectly right about asking the count to meet my sisters. He is calling here for me this afternoon and I should like for you to answer the door."

Chan's beady old eyes did not even look up as he replied "I be here okay."

That was all but she knew that his promise put him definitely on her side. And she did not want him to tell her sisters that she had been meeting a man outside her home for weeks even if he were a count. Yes, it was better this way, Folly thought, listening that afternoon to the sound of the bell and Chan's shuffling tread through the hall to the front door.

Obeying her instructions he seated the caller in the drawing room and came up to her room instead of bawling her name from the foot of the stairs as was his custom. It was therefore several moments before the old man appeared. He had put on a clean white coat and looked quite presentable, Folly admitted, wondering why she hadn't thought of doing this before.

She said airily, "Thank you, Chan," and preceded him down stairs. If she could only carry off this scene as she had planned! She must be wistful but not sad, disillusioned but not bitter, gracious but not too yielding. . .

The figure reflected in the hall mirror was girlishly slender in beige sweater and skirt. She didn't look like the woman of the world she felt as she held out her hand saying, "Good afternoon, Eric. It's nice of you to come."

His ice blue eyes scanned her with some anxiety. Before the night at his apartment he had assured himself that he understood her perfectly. No longer certain, he waited for her to set the tempo of the scene today. Eric Gustavus Lindstrom secretly prided himself on his ability to handle women. He was not the kind of man to make the same mistake twice.

Bending low over her hand he murmured, "I would have come sooner if I had thought you wished to see me. Please forgive me, Folly!"

This was as she had dreamed it.

"You are forgiven," she said gravely. "Won't you sit over here by the fireplace? It's cold today."

He took the chair she designated, replying politely, "I understand the weather is colder than usual this year."

"Yes, that's true," Folly admitted.

Lacks Experience.

He was following her lead and because she had appeared impersonal he was veering away from the line she really wanted him to take. How could she bring him back to it? If only she had had more experience! She certainly had not expected to have to sit here discussing the weather after not seeing him for almost a week.

"This is an interesting old place," Eric said, idly glancing about him. "From the two entrances it must have been built for two families."

"My grandfather built it for my mother when she was married," Folly confided. "That other entrance was to his own little apartment. I used it after Grandpa died but just now it's rented."

She had told him the worst and to her surprise he did not seem to be disappointed.

"I have wondered about your family. You never speak of them."

Tells of Family.

"There are only three of us, all girls. My parents were killed in an automobile accident when I was very young and Grandpa died several years ago."

"You have no brothers, then?"

"No, Hazel is the oldest. She is a nurse. My other sister, Marta, is a private secretary."

She added quickly, "Grandpa was supposed to be wealthy but it was found he had scarcely any money after his death. It has been hard for my sisters as they were not brought up to work. All of us were sent to private school."

"That's where you met Susan?" he asked as if this point needed to be cleared.

"Susan and I graduated in the same class," she told him.

Now was the moment when he should inform her it did not matter how poor she was he loved her and wished to marry her. Instead Eric glanced at his watch murmuring "I have an important engagement later this evening. But I think we might have time to go to a movie if you like."

Disappointed, Folly cried. "But Eric you said you wanted to see me about something. You had something to tell me."

"I have told you," he said. "I wanted to be sure you were not angry with me because of what happened or rather did not happen the other night. It was my error to expect you to dine alone with me but you are so lovely, Folly. You can't blame me for trying."

This was not at all the mood she had hoped to evoke in him but there seemed to be no alternative but to accept his apology. If she didn't she would not see him again. And seeing him again was all that mattered, Folly told herself as she went upstairs. It was an anti-climax to spend the afternoon sitting calmly beside him in the loge of the local theatre.

Moreover Eric seemed to have something on his mind. He continually glanced at his watch as if he feared he might be late for the engagement he had mentioned.

Left Alone.

When the picture was over he called a taxi and took her home but he did not go in, although she invited him.

"Some other time I shall be delighted," he assured her, and drove away, leaving Folly feeling unsatisfied and forlorn.

She wished now she had promised to see Bruce after dinner but she had been so sure the afternoon with Eric would continue into the evening. Now here she was at home before six o'clock doomed to listen to Hilton and Marta.

Hazel had come home and was dressing for a date with her captain who was waiting in the drawing room. He was tall and handsome with keen daring eyes which seemed to see right through you. Hazel had said he was in the intelligence department, whatever that meant.

But he was so deeply interested in her sister that Folly didn't even attempt to flirt with him. She spoke and went upstairs to watch Hazel in her last minute preparations. Folly had never seen her look so radiant.

Hazel was not pretty in the ordinary sense of the word but her hair was like ripe wheat; her skin fair and blooming with eyes as clear as a sunlit pool.

Special Occasion

Men were crazy about Hazel but Folly had never seen her sister interested in any one man before. Her eyes were eager and excited tonight. Her mouth expectant. She pulled a hat over one eye and threw a thin coat about the shoulders of her black suit. The high heeled expensive shoes she wore when not on duty were green and matched her bag and hat.

"Bye, darling," she crooned with unusual affection and tripped down the stairs as if this were to be a very special occasion. Which it must have been because late that night Folly was awakened by Hazel's voice.

Folly sat up in bed rubbing her eyes. Hazel and Marta, usually so quiet when they came in late at night, were chattering in high, excited voices. For a momen she couldn't tell if they were laughing or crying. Certainly something had happened. Groping for her bathrobe and slippers Folly staggered to the door without turning on the light. Crossing the hall she appeared suddenly in the door of Marta's room. Marta was sitting up in bed embracing her sister whose glowing face told its own story.

"Oh, Folly!" Marta called. "Come in, darling! Isn't it thrilling? Hazel and the captain are engaged."

"Engaged?" Folly repeated, kissing Hazel's cheek.

Love at First Sight.

"We've been in love since the first day we met," Hazel declared happily. "He says he had no idea I felt that way about him but I was interested in him before I ever saw him. His mother talked so much about him and showed me so many pictures I felt as if I knew him. Mrs. Gates is so pleased. She told Charlie she couldn't imagine a daughter she would like better. Isn't it wonderful?"

"Well why shouldn't she feel that way? You're tops, Hazel Wainwright," Marta insisted. "For goodness sake don't get an inferiority complex just because you're in love."

"But he is so terribly intelligent," Hazel said seriously. "And at the same time so simple and sweet."

Folly blinked with astonishment. Never had Hazel raved like this before. She could scarcely believe that this starry-eyed smiling girl was the same cool efficient young woman who came in and out carrying the inevitable suitcase containing her uniform and white shoes. Who could have dreamed that Hazel would find romance in the line of duty taking care of a middle-aged woman?

She May Go Overseas.

"When are you going to be married?" Marta inquired.

"Soon as possible. That's what Charlie wants and of course he may have to leave again any time." A shadow crossed the radiant face as Hazel said soberly, "There's only one catch to the situation."

"You mean that you'll be separated?" Folly asked sympathetically.

"No, I don't mean that. You see, I've been thinking about signing up for overseas duty myself. They need nurses so terribly. It's one thing I can do."

"But Hazel there must be plenty of other nurses who would consider it a great adventure," Marta reminded her.

"Contrary to general belief it is far from a romantic experience," Hazel said frowning. "It means work and more work such as few nurses have known before. One has to be young and strong to take it. I've all the qualifications but they won't take me if I'm married. I wonder if I have any right to think of my own personal happiness at such a time."

Folly in Deep Thought.

"Of course you have," Folly cried, but Marta said thoughtfully, "Of course, dear, that's something only you can decide. But it does seem as if you've worked hard enough all ready to deserve a little joy and peace. You can help in other ways."

FEW WEEKS ON SYNTONA MADE BIG DIFFERENCE TO THIS LADY

"Brought Blessed Relief From Pains in Arms, Shoulders and Limbs, Also Stomach Troubles, Nervousness and Constipation After Many Other Things Had Failed," Says This Lady.

"It is quite a long time since I first took Syntona, but I am always glad to tell my friends and neighbors how much it helped me, and even now I occasionally use it," said Mrs. Margaret Hempstock, 146 Avondale Avenue, Hamilton.

"When I first began taking Syntona, I had been in poor health for a long time. My nerves were very bad and my stomach was weak and easily upset. I continually suffered from gas distress, shortness of breath and a nauseated feeling after meals. I had been troubled with constipation for years, would get frequent headaches and had such terrible pains in my arms, shoulders and limbs. In fact, my shoulder hurt so much that I couldn't raise my arm to comb my hair. I often had a feeling of dizziness and couldn't sleep at night.

"I tried various things without results, but when I got Syntona I soon knew it was going to help me. After a little while I could digest my food with no gas or distress after meals.

MRS. MARGARET HEMPSTOCK

The aches and pains left me and my bowels were moving nicely every day. Since then I haven't been troubled with dizziness or headaches and even now I have a grand, restful sleep at night. But if ever I do feel upset or not just as I should, I take Syntona for a little while and soon everything is all right again. I am glad to endorse Syntona and recommend that other pepole suffering like I did try it, too."

First Units 2nd Canadian Division Arrive at Depot

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Nijmegen, Holland, Sept. 13 — (CP Cable) — The first units of the 2nd Canadian Division reported at the Canadian Army repatriation camp here yesterday on the start of their journey home.

They are the Toronto Scottish Regiment under Lt.-Col. John Ellis of Toronto; the 2nd Battery of the 4th Canadian Field Regiment, R.C.A., bound for Ottawa, under Maj. John Cooper of Toronto; and the 14th Field Company, R.C.E., under Maj. Charles Bruce, of Ottawa, enroute to Winnipeg and Regina.

Arrival of other units at the repatriation camp has been delayed for four days and the Royal Regiment, the 5th, 14th and 26th Field Batteries, R.C.A., which were originally due here today will not arrive until Sept. 17. Reason for the delay was not given.

Maj.-Gen. Bruce Matthews of Toronto, 2nd Division commander, was on hand at the camp commanded by Lt.-Col. Louis Flynn of Ottawa and Kingston, Ont., to see the first troops arrive.

The Toronto Scottish held a formal ceremony when they left the De Bilt community near Utrecht where they have been stationed in recent weeks. Lt.-Col. Ellis inspected a 12-man guard outside the regimental headquarters commanded by S. Sgt. Elmer Huggins, of Brantford, Ont., and afterwards the regimental standard was lowered by Rsm. Edward Henderson of Toronto.

Pipe Major Adam MacDonald then piped 16 officers and 462 other ranks to the transport. He piped the regiment ashore almost six years ago when it was the first Canadian unit to touch British soil in this war.

Maj.-Gen. Matthews visited the unit orderly room during the afternoon to check administration detail with the adjutant, Capt. William Stewart of Sudbury, Ont., who came overseas in 1939 as a piper.

Col. Flynn's camp now handles upward of 2,000 troops every day. Yesterday's arrival totalled 2,284. So far Col. Flynn has dispatched 3,587 officers and 67,412 other ranks from the continent.

Besides the 2nd Division, his organization now is getting the last elements of the 1st Canadian Division en route to England and handling "Canada drafts" bringing Canadian forces in the Netherlands to the 130-point level.

BANDITS OBTAIN

from his head, as he lay, face down, in obedience to the bandit's command.

After the one shot had been fired, Manager James Brawley obeyed the bandit's order to open the bank safe which contained most of the $33,000.

Police said today "we have thrown a ring" around Langton in an effort to trap the quartet. Farmhouses, barns and shacks in the area are being searched.

Speaking today of his experience, Mr. Hodson said "at first I thought it was all a joke, but I soon changed my mind".

"I had just cashed a cheque and was about to pick up my money at the teller's cage when the bandits walked in", he said. "One shoved a gun in my back and snarled that this was a stick-up. He said to put my hands up, so instead of reaching for my money, I had to reach for the sky. I never saw the money again.

"I turned around to face the robber and it appeared to me that the gun was only a toy, it looked so small. I had half a mind to make a grab for it. I thank my lucky stars I hadn't started to grapple".

Three of the men, wearing raincoats and hats with silk stockings pulled over their faces, entered the bank, leaving the fourth in the car outside. Mr. Hodson said the holdup men ordered the clerks Mary LeVos and Thelma Boyd and Manager Brawley to lie on the floor with him.

"I was on the floor face down", he said. "The manager was beside me, face up. One of the robbers then ordered the manager to open the safe. He refused and the gunman threatened twice to blow a hole through his head. The manager still refused and another of the three came over near me and fired a shot. I didn't know it was so close until after, though the tile splinters stung my face".

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 13. (CP)—Little change was recorded at noonday trading, on Toronto Exchange today, Golds and Western Oils showing slight index gains and industrials and base metals both off .43. Sales at 1 p.m. were 629,000.

Quemont continued to drop after faltering at the opening, down 40. Aubelle showed fair activity throughout the morning but was unchanged at 1 o'clock. Cochenour was off 10 and East Sullivan down five. Buffalo Addison was up five and Bear one. In the industrials papers were almost unchanged. Walkers was off in the liquor group after a new high of 81 1-2 but latest sales were down again at 80. Canadian Brewers also made a new top at 19 7-8 but slipped to 19 3-8.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Scattered industrial stocks managed to add fractions today but many market leaders suffered from a slight case of indecision.

Activity dwindled after a fairly fast opening and the price horizon was a trifle murky near the fourth hour.

Ahead at intervals were American Telephone, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Goodrich, DuPont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, and International Telephone.

Minus signs were sprinkled through the Canadian group at midday. Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram each was off 1-2. C.P.R. eased 1-8. Lake Shore gained as much.

DURBAN BECAME SOUTH AFRICA'S TOP NAVAL BASE

Union Considers Plans to Increase Discharge Rate of Service Personnel

Cape Town,—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. E. Brink, director-general of demobilization in South Africa has announced consideration of a scheme to increase the financial powers of dispersal depot committees, thus hoping to increase the discharge rate of the Combined Union Defence Forces.

He said there is $26,250,000 available during the present financial year for reinstatement of volunteers into civilian life, excluding gratuities and clothing grants.

Among important decisions announced by Gen. Brink is one ensuring Union nationals who have served with British and other Allied forces of equal treatment and rights with other South African servicemen who are entitled to assistance in rehabilitating themselves to civilian life.

A second is an arrangement whereby the Governor General's National War Fund will, in consultation with the directorate of demobilization, provide additional financial aid to families of married ex-volunteers who want to return to university.

Durban harbor has emerged from six years as the finest port of the Union. It boasts a Royal Navy base capable of accommodating anything from a submarine to a battleship and new deepwater berths for large liners now have been completed.

Durban became the Allies' most important naval base in the Indian Ocean after the loss of Singapore. Besides standing at the cross-roads of British and American supply routes, its drydock was capable of taking large ships, providing an essential service, without which a fleet could not operate efficiently.

Wharf facilities are being extended to the oil sites and the state has assumed control of the former flying boat base. Total cost of these innovations is nearly £4, 500,000.

Thousands of citizens have been crowding the quaysides to learn what has been happening behind the barbed wire since its installation in 1939.

With the possible exception of rubber, timber and tinplate, goods from overseas will be obtainable in South Africa by the end of the year according to a large importing firm at Johannesburg, the Rand Daily Mail has reported.

In Pretoria it has been announced that petrol stocks are still low and that rigid control will be necessary until more gasoline is available.

However, the Sunday Times quotes "a well-informed source" as saying prospects were good that petrol restrictions would be eased within two months.

TOWN CRIER BACK

Walton-on-the-Naze, England, reappointed T. A. Barker, 50-year-old laborer, to his pre-war post as town crier in the Essex community.

Barker has the necessary lusty voice and the jangling bell but lacks a uniform, except for a peaked cap. He is paid a small fee and gets "cryage" rate of 50 cents a cry.

Why Don't You Write a Book?

(By "The Bookman" in the Atlantic Monthly)

Are you a notorious but reformed bandit? Were you ever trapped for six days in packing-house refrigerator while the whole country feverishly followed the news of your rescue? Are you a lady ventriloquist who has been the "toast of two continents" and the pet of the late king of Spain? Are you the district attorney who, just out of short pants and tooth braces, broke up the dangerous Stinky Slutsky gang and became "the boy D.A. who sends 'em away?"

If you are any of these persons; a former end man with Lew Dockstader's Minstrels, a Sunday school companion of Magda Lupescu, a friend of Hitler's dentist, the woman who was sawed in two by Herman the Great, the owner of George Washington's gall-stones, or a statesman whose moose call has been heard in Congress for 40 years—you have a story to tell, a book to write. ("I shall feel amply rewarded" and so forth.)

If you have a story to tell but cannot write, do not gloomily brood about it or take to tequila in the absence of bourdon. There is a remedy at hand and you do not even have to shake before using. You have only to hire a ghost; or, easier still, your alert publisher, hovering over the nation's culture like a hen setting on a clutch of china eggs, will hire one for you.

The ghost, far from being insubstantial, will probably turn out to be a graying gent of 40 with a wife and children to feed and an eye on his next installment of the income tax, the government being just as likely to clap a ghost into jail as anyone else.

He is, however, like the wraiths from whom he is descended, discreet and closemouthed, and no one will ever learn that he is the creator of the masterpiece bearing your name. Thus you will have clear title to your fame, and when your astonished friends say, "But, Wilbur, I didn't know you could write," you can come back at them quick as a flash with a sample of the dazzling wit that makes your book what it is: "Yeah, they's lotsa things you don't know."

If you do not like this arrangement, there is another. You may make your ghost emerge from his bat cave and walk in the daylight under the "as told to" system. Do not be afraid that this will deprive you of the fame and distinction which are justly yours, for few readers will observe the "as told to"—and, in any event, the discerning will realize that in your case the writer no more deserves the credit than does the microphone in the case of Raymond Swing. Your book will then appear in this style: "Nine Years in the Black Market at Home and Abroad, as told to Henry Clutcher by Alfred J. H. Singletree."

Under either system, all that you, the aspiring author, have to do is to tell your story to the perspiring ghost. He will then retire with his notebooks and his memories fo your strong, colorful personality, lock himself up with his typewriter, and emerge three weeks later with a book that only you could have written if you could write a book. Soon it will be published, you will be asked to lecture, Hollywood will buy it for a film, and you will become an author just as other good men and true have become authors before you.

In Memory of 'Bonnie Prince Charlie'

At Glenfinnan, Loch Shiel, where Inverness-shire and Argyll meet, a gathering of Scots representing various Highland societies will hold a service at the memorial erected there "to commemorate the bravery and fidelity of those who fought and bled in an arduous and unfortunate enterprise." That arduous and unfortunate enterprise was the attempt of Charles Edward Louis Philip Casimir Silvester Maria Stuart, better known as "Bonnie Prince Charlie," hero of song and story, to regain the throne from which his grandfather, James II of England and VII of Scotland, had been cast. On August 19, 1745, at Glenfinnan, the prince raised the Jacobite standard.

Prince Charlie, despite his immortality in Scottish history, was not as popular as the glamor thrown around him would seem to indicate. He was born in Rome of a mother who was Polish and a father half Italian, so that he had very little Scottish blood in him. Nevertheless, he aspired to the British throne, and when he found the English Army heavily engaged in one of its continental wars against the King of Hanover, he thought the time was opportune to return to the land of his forefathers and become King.

After several setbacks, due to storms he landed on the island of Eriskay in the Hebrides, where the chief of the clan MacDonald tried to dissuade him from proceeding with his venture. On July 25 he sailed for the Scottish mainland at Borrodale, and news of his landing quickly spread. The English Government offered £30,000 for his capture and he became a wanderer among the hills. But he gathered an army around him at Glenfinnan on August 19, and the "rising of '45" materialized, although he had many opponents, even among the Scots.

Charlie marched south, his objective being London. On Sept. 17 he reached Edinburgh, and occupied Holyrood Palace, greatly to the surprise of the City fathers. A short time later he met and defeated the English troops at Taddington, crossed the border early in November, and pushed southward until he reached Derby in the Midlands. Here he learned bad news. The English Army had returned from the continent, and one part under General Wade, at Weatherby in Yorkshire, another under the Duke of Cumberland, at Lichfield in Staffordshire, were behind him, while yet another army was waiting near London if he reached there. Much to his disappointment. Prince Charlie decided on retreat, and after eight months of wandering and fighting, his army was broken at Culloden on April 16, 1746, chiefly by German levies under Prince William Augustus, who had what was then powerful artillery.

That was the end of "Bonnie Prince Charlie's" enterprise. He became a fugitive in the mountains and caves, and although there was a high price on his head, not a Highlander betrayed him. One colorful event in his career was the historic story of how Flora MacDonald disguised him as her maid and escorted him to safety. He escaped to France, where he lived an aimless and dissolute life until he died in 1788, at the age of 68. His brother Henry became a cardinal and lived until 1807, being the last of the male line of the House of Stuart. Prince Charles is interred in a church in Rome.

Jacobite advocates harangued Scottish gatherings until well into the present century, but the movement practicaly received its quietus during the last war when it was found that the most vocal of the British-hating German generals was Count Rupprecht of Bavaria, who was, so far as could be traced, the next in line for the British throne under the Stuart succession. Up to that time the movement was regarded with some seriousness, for it was not until Edward VII became King that the custom of placing finger-bowls on the Royal tables was revived owing to a belief that Scottish guests surreptitiously drank to the king "over the water."

Prince Charlie appeared to have more ambition than talent or character, and the probability is he would not have made a very good king. But until this day there is a group of Scots who revere his memory and hold annual memorial services.

R.A.F. HAD SECRET BASE IN COCOS ISLANDS

Now that the shooting is all over, it can be told that the British had a secret air base on one of the palm-covered Cocos Islands, 750 miles from Sumatra, which was held by the Japs. The airfield was built in three months and Japanese shipping came under fire of the land-based bombers immediately. The Japs never did discover where these bombers came from. Above is a view of a flight strip at the base with the R.A.F.'s high scoring squadron lined up. This squadron had 100 kills and 150 probables to its credit.

Meat Dealers and Prices Board Officials To Meet Next Week to Discuss Problems

(By The Canadian Press)

Additional centres across the Dominion today had joined in strike threats against the re-introduction of meat rationing.

Latest to join the swing towards active resistance against the rationing order was Calgary and Woodstock, Ont., with Calgary meat dealers saying they will strike Sept. 24 unless the order is modified or rescinded and Woodstock merchants also threatening to close their stores.

These strike threats swelled those from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and other Ontario and Western centres despite assurances given by Finance Minister Ilsley in the House of Commons that officials of the Prices Board will meet next Wednesday with members of the Retail Merchants' Association to discuss problems in the rationing system.

This was a partial victory for the men who keep stores in innumerable towns and cities in the Dominion. It did not promise them that their headaches caused by re-introduction of rationing would be cured, but it did prove that the protest meetings they have been holding for days now had gained them a hearing.

Mr. Ilsley said, in answer to questions from Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel), W. C. MacDonald (L-Halifax), and George Cruckshank (L-Fraser Valley) that rationing was necessary in order for Canada to help feed her Allies.

Mr. MacDonald said it was reported the retail merchants had asked that rationing be discontinued and that the meat needed for overseas be requisitioned.

Planned Distributron Needed.

Mr. Ilsley said if this course was taken the very ones who were complaining now about rationing would be complaining that they could, not get meat. Some areas had more meat than they needed and others did not have enough. There had to be a planned distribution system in Canada.

Prior to the introduction of rationing in 1942 some shops had to close and some people had to go without meat. Rationing was introduced then to regulate distribution.

It was being re-introduced now so Canada could help feed the liberated peoples. Some butchers and customers would suffer if these supplies were obtained through requisitioning.

Maldistribution would breed black markets.

The whole topic would be discussed at the meeting between the Prices Board and merchants.

Mr. Graydon asked that ration boards be authorized to give farmers, now in the midst of the threshing season, additional meat to feed their help. Mr. Ilsley said he would bring the matter to the board's attention.

Not Lack of Buying.

Mr. Ilsley was backed up by Agriculture Minister Gardiner who answered a telegram from the Ontario Livestock Exchange. The telegram charged large quantities of meat were going bad in Toronto warehouses because the Prices Board could not handle any more. Mr. Gardiner said the carry-over of 3,000 head was due to the fact the weighing capacity of the market could not handle the weekend intake. He denied that it was due to lack of buyers.

In their protest, the members of the Livestock Exchange had telegramed Agriculture Minister Gardiner, with a copy to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, that since rationing "local butchers are doing no business, and many shops are closing up." They suggested that it be permitted to ship excess cattle to the United States.

To John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, they wired that prices were lower due to unnecessary government restrictions and that there was a serious situation facing cattle producers.

Protests Continue.

In Ottawa Alderman Martin Walsh placed on the city council order paper a motion asking that the city go on record approving of the suggested plan of butchers to refrain from selling meat for a week unless the government submits sufficient evidence to justify the re-introduction of rationing.

This was in line with decisions made in Edmonton where 150 butchers said they would strike Sept. 24 unless rationing problems were eased, and in the Halifax-Dartmouth area where a meeting will be held to sanction a strike for the same date. Eight New Brunswick centres will be meatless after Sept. 24 butchers say, unless something is done.

Calgary meat dealers will go on strike on September 24 unless the present meat rationing system is modified or rescinded, it was announced following a meeting last night.

Decision of the meeting will be sent to A. C. Mackay, Secretary of the Alberta Retail Merchants Association who now is in the east conferring with government officials on this and other matters.

U. S. Decision Uncertain

By OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, Sept. 14 — (AP)—A decision on when meat rationing in the United States should end is being delayed by two main factors:

1. Uncertainty over foreign demands.
2. Official fears that too-early action might cause new shortages and a revival of black markets.

This was disclosed today by a top-ranking agriculture department official who asked that he not be named.

JAPANESE PEOPLE TO BE GIVEN FACTS ON ATROCITIES

Gen. MacArthur Directs That Full Story Must be Told.

Yokohama, Sept. 14 — (AP) — Gen. MacArthur directed today that the stark facts of Japanese atrocities, committed all the way from the Philippines to New Guinea — and back again — be told in full to the Japanese people.

Representatives of Japanese newspapers agreed, at the suggestion of the supreme commander, to publish a summary of the atrocity reports as the start of a program to "educate the Japanese people in the acts of their military."

The beheadings of Allied fliers, the death march from Bataan, cannibalism in New Guinea, beatings and mistreatment of prisoners of war — all will be included in evidence to be presented to the Japanese people.

"It's purely educational," said Brig.-Gen. Bonner F. Fellers of Gen. MacArthur's staff.

The initial survey in the Japanese press will be followed by detailed documentary evidence, he said.

"The Japanese people didn't know about these atrocities, and we want to tell them," Gen. Fellers added. He said Gen. MacArthur had not issued any formal order for such publication, but that Japanese newspapers had agreed to publish the evidence as he directed.

Japanese civilians approached Associated Press correspondents yesterday, inquiring about reports of Japanese cruelty. They said they were alarmed because in the Japanese-Russian war, Japanese treatment of prisoners had been good, and they were now much disturbed by the stories.

Advised Nazi Editors During War Use 100 Insults Against Allies

Berlin, Sept. 14. (AP)—Otto Dietrich, Hitler's personal publicity man, advised Nazi newspapers during the war to keep handy on editorial desks a numbered list of 100 insults and epithets, for use against United Nations countries and their leaders, the newspaper Der Morgen said today.

He gave examples, the newspaper said, such as gangster, stooge of world Jewry, enemy of mankind, and told editors the most effective use of them could be made by employing odd-numbered epithets Nos. 1 to 25 the first day, even-numbered epithets Nos. 2 to 26 the second day and so on.

Dietrich, who was Hitler's State secretary for press affairs in the propaganda ministry, appended this observation to the editors:

"In that way you will be enabled to write the most wonderful articles".

GOVT. URGED TO INFORM PEOPLE OF WHAT IS AHEAD

J. M. Macdonnell Will Act as Conservative Financial Critic Of Govt. in Commons

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 14. (AP)— An appeal to the government to give the people a lead and let them in on what was expected of them in the reconstruction period was made yesterday in the Commons by J. M. MacDonnell, Progressive Conservative member for Muskoka-Ontario as he made his maiden speech.

The former financier, who dropped business to give his whole time to politics, is expected to be the financial critic of the official opposition in the new parliament. He received close attention from the House and drew one of the largest ovations yet received by a Speaker in the Throne Speech debate. There was almost as much applause from the government as from the opposition side.

As speaker after speaker appeared on the Whips' lists it appeared the debate would continue into next week before a vote takes place on amendments to the address in reply although one voice was raised in favor a speedy vote. This was from Maxine Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, who said the debate was delaying important legislation which the House should consider.

Mr. MacDonnell said in a modern democracy a member of parliament was the representative of his constituents and so he proposed to say what his constituents would say if they were in parliament. They would ask that controls be removed as speedily as possible. They would ask that taxes be reduced but they would want a proper balance kept between taxing and borrowing, a difficult thing to achieve.

not likely to team up with the Progressive Conservatives to support their amendment to the address came from A. M. Nicholson (CCF-MacKenzie). He said be-

Moscow, Sept. 14 —(AP)— A State Commission reported today that incomplete data showed German damage against the Soviet Union during the war was 697,000,000,000 rubles figured at 1941 price levels.

(The Soviet Monitor in London said 25 rubles in 1941 had the value of a pound. This would be at the rate of 18 cents to the ruble. On this basis Russia's war damage would amount to $125,360,000,000.)

The report, which 7,000,000 persons aided in compiling, covered damage to private citizens, state enterprises, collective farms and public organizations, but does not include reduction in National income as a result of the war, cost of food and similar articles confiscated by the Germans, or losses incurred by the slowing down of the natural economic development of the country. Even the damage figures in the categories covered are not complete.

The Germans destroyed or partly destroyed 1,700 towns, more than 70,000 villages, 6,000,000 buildings and deprived 25,000,000 persons of roofs over their heads in a territory inhabited by 85,000,000 persons, the report said.

Other figures included in the report were:

Industrial enterprises destroyed—31,850 factories which employed 4,000,000 workers; railway lines destroyed — 40,000 miles, 1,100 stations; hospitals destroyed—40,000; schools destroyed—84,000; collective farm destroyed almost 100,000; horses slain or taken to Germany—7,000,000. Cattle slain or driven away—17,000,000.

Hurricane Threatens Florida Coast

Miami, Fla., Sept. 14. (AP)—A hurricane of near-speed velocity, whipped by winds estimated as high as 135 miles an hour, was reported driving toward the Florida coast 570 miles southeast of Miami at 10.15 a.m., E.D.T., today.

As the storm approached, all army transport command planes were sped away from Miami airfields to safer zones in Alabama and Tennessee. Navy planes had already left.

In addition, the A.T.C. ordered all troops to be ready for evacuation to safer quarters by noon tomorrow.

At its present rate of movement, averaging 17 miles an hour, the storm may be expected to strike the Florida coast about 7 p.m. Saturday.

Troops Remove Debris

Nearly 1,000 troops in the Miami area were set to work this morning clearing away debris, signs and other loose objects which might be swept away and transformed into death-dealing missiles by the storm.

Field kitchens were made ready for a possible emergency, and the Red Cross had 5,000 volunteers standing by.

Army and Navy "hurricane hunters", equipped with new scientific devices, flew out into the swinging storm area to keep a close watch on the progress of the hurricane.

One pilot predicted the winds would reach a peak velocity of 150 miles an hour by the time they reached the United States mainland.

STRIKE CONTINUES INTO THIRD DAY, GATES BARRED

Plant Executives Turned Back But Pickets Generally Well Behaved

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, Sept. 14 — (CP)—For the second day in succession picket lines of striking members of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) today barred the gates of the Ford Motor Company of Canada's plant to office workers as the walkout involving some 10,000 production workers went into its third day.

There were no incidents at the gates before which pickets marched in close formation. Some 800 office employees clustered on the sidewalk opposite the office building in response to instructions broadcast last night by the company telling them to come to work and saying "assurance has been given that adequate police protection will be accorded to all persons lawfully seeking entrance to the company's offices."

There were only three isolated attempts to pass the pickets, marching in twos before the entrance to the office building — some 250 at one and about 100 at the other. Two company executives made futile attempts to pass the lines.

Hoots and Boos Heard

D. B. Greig, treasurer, drove up at 7.35 a.m. and stopped his car at the line. Hoots and boos were heard from the union men as a police constable suggested that he drive on. He drove off, smiling. He was followed about 10 minutes later by Wallace Clark, personnel manager, who also drove away after the constable talked to him. The policemen said later that "I've had no instructions to get them through the lines."

R. Campbell, a son of Ford president Wallace R. Campbell, approached the lines on foot and asked an officer for protection so he could enter the office to get some records. The pickets didn't open up and he turned away.

500 Pickets in Area

All told there were some 500 pickets in the office building area. At 7.30 a.m. there were three policemen on duty — a sergeant in plain clothes and two uniformed officers, one with each of the main groups of pickets. Later more officers came and by 8.30 there were about half a dozen, some devoting their attention to keeping office workers on the sidewalk to keep the narrow street clear for thru traffic.

REPORTED SUICIDE

San Francisco, Sept. 14—(AP) — The Tokyo radio reported that Gen. Teiichi Yos'moto, former commander of the Army district of Northeastern Japan, committed suicide this morning, slashing himself with a sword and then shooting himself through the head. The Federal Communications Commission recorded the broadcast.

BIG 5 SNAGGED ON THORNY ISSUE OF THE BALKANS

E. Bevin Presents Proposal for Italian Peace Treaty Which Is Being Studied

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 14 —(AP)— Foreign ministers of the five leading Allied countries resumed drafting of a peace treaty for Italy today as Egypt dispatched notes asking control of the greater part of the adjoining Italian colony of Cirenaica.

The Balkans continued as the main point of tension.

A slightly better atmosphere was created with the disclosure that the Russian - Romanian agreement parding down Romanian reparations was negotiated with knowledge of the Allied control commission in Bucharest. Concern had been expressed that Russia had acted alone.

King George II of Greece came back from a vacation in Scotland to confer with the Greek Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos.

The Greek Monarch, who has been living in London, went to Scotland at the precise moment Archbishop Damaskinos arrived here.

A busy working day was before the foreign ministers of Britain, the United States, Russia, France and China. A heavy volume of diplomatic communications flowed in and out of London as they labored to draw up peace treaties.

Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin has presented a proposal for an Italian peace treaty which is being studied by the other foreign secretaries, and Britain and the United States are pressing for consideration of an Italian treaty immediately.

The Russians, who have agreed to consider the Italian treaty first, now are reported arguing that the treaties with the former Axis satellite states in the Balkans, Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary, should be given just as prompt attention.

Britain and the United States were said to hold that they could not discuss the Balkan treaties so long as these nations are ruled by governments unrecognized by London and Washington.

State Secretary Byrnes has summoned his Balkan experts, possibly in anticipation of an impasse on the issue. Foreign Commissar Molotov and Mr. Bevin also were reported meeting their advisers.

Mr. Byrnes was busy yesterday with another aspect of the Balkans problem. He conferred with King Peter of Yugoslavia and regent Archbishop Damaskinos, of Greece, reportedly hearing their protests against plans for projected elections in their countries. Both were said to have asked U.S. aid in having the voting postponed. holding that democratic balloting was not yet assured.

King Peter was believed to have asked aid in broadening the Yugoslav government.

Damaskinos was said to have told Mr. Byrnes the Greek population was concerned over Communist-inspired outbreaks.

"Bluebeard" Promised Canadian POW They'd Work Until They Died

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

Manila, Sept. 14 — (CP Cable) —One of the toughest prison camps in which Canadians were held in Japan was at Niigata, a city of 1,000,000 population some 150 miles north of Tokyo, where starving prisoners performed hard labor under clubbings in coal yards, warehouses and a foundry.

There were 250 Canadians there and 89 of them died of pneumonia, beriberi and dysentery during their stay there from September, 1943, until they were liberated. The prisoners, some of them 4th United States Marines from Corregidor, were undernourished and without medical supplies.

During the winter it was bitterly cold and the camp was swept by great snowstorms, one of which made it necessary to move from one barracks to another through snow tunnels. During one period storms tied up railway traffic and the camp was isolated for three weeks. Practically until the moment they were freed most of the prisoners believed they would spend their last days in Niigata. Even when other prisoners brought in last June from Tokyo and Osaka told of the vast bomb damage created by American air raids few believed the reports.

At various times the prisoners lost up to 60 pounds, some of which they made up by stealing food while on one warehouse job. When they were caught stealing the prisoners were clubbed until they couldn't walk.

Private Leonard Mulvaney of Winnipeg saw an American prisoner clubbed to death in February, 1944, and a Canadian was forced to stand outside the guardhouse for four days in freezing weather, wearing only his trousers and without shoes. He suffered severe frostbite and died later.

The Canadians were taken to the camp from Osaka just two years ago. They were addressed upon arrival for work by a stringy, bearded Japanese who seemed to have charge of all prisoner labor in the Niigata area. He soon came to be known as "Bluebeard."

"You are my slaves. You are descendants of the Anglo-Saxon piracy that we are fighting today. You are here to work and you shall work until you die and be glad to.

"If you prove to be willing workers we will send you home when the war comes to an end. That will be when the Americans on their hands and knees are begging for mercy. It will be the year 1950.

"Though you are sick in body and mind your hands belong to me."

M'Arthur Suspends All Operations Of Jap Domei Agency

General Defends So-Called Soft Approach to Occupation

Tokyo, Sept. 14 — (AP)—There will be no "kid glove" enforcement of surrender terms on Japan, Gen. MacArthur promised today in a statement replying to critics of policies pursued thus far.

Simultaneously he ordered complete suspension of activities of the Domei agency, heretofore Japan's greatest propaganda outlet.

The Allied Supreme Commander, noting impatience at the so-called "soft" approach to the occupation of Japan, issued a lengthy statement, explaining its position, and declaring:

"It is extraordinarily difficult for me at times to exercise that degree of patience which is unquestionably demanded if the long-time policies which have been decreed are to be successfully accomplished without repercussions which would be detrimental to the well-being of the world, but I am restraining myself to the best of my ability and I am generally satisfied with the progress being made."

The supreme commander observed that, in view of the "atrocities committed by the enemy," impatience on the part of the Allied peoples to have the surrender terms rapidly carried out was but a natural impulse.

Terms Not Soft

Fulfilment of that desire can be accomplished only through careful procedure, he said, but promised:

Meanwhile, the Japanese government reported to United States 8th Army headquarters that most of the former Nipponese leaders on Gen. MacArthur's "wanted" list were in custody.

Urge Larger Reward For Brave Signalman

Brigg, England, Sept. 14—(CP) —The reward of one guinea ($4.75) from a railway company to 60-year-old Signalman Walter Ward, for saving this Lincolnshire town from disaster by extinguishing a fire in a wagon of an ammunition train, is being widely discussed by the population.

Residents declare that one guinea reward is totally inadequate for such an action, and are thinking of inaugurating a fund for Signalman Ward.

SOUTH AFRICAN BEEF, CHEESE GO TO BRITAIN

Agricultural Courses Planned for Ex-Volunteers to Union's Forces — Civilians Come Second

Cape Town, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Agriculture Secretary C. H. Nevling of South Africa announced 1,000,000 pounds of cheese and 5,000 prime beef to Britain and the Union government would give every assistance in obtaining the necessary shipping space.

Shipping companies would be asked to waive charges on the proposed food gift to Britain. Canning interests in the Union have agreed to provide a substantial portion of their output and farmers have offered gifts of cattle, the minister said.

Plans for setting up a joint British-South African-Australian-New Zealand organization to take charge of the disposal of accumulated wool stocks and new clips, have been accepted by the agriculture ministry, subject to parliamentary approval, Agriculture Minister Strauss said in an official statement. The plans were originally drawn up at a London conference last spring.

A comprehensive range of courses at various agricultural colleges in South Africa has been planned for 1946 to meet the requirements of ex-volunteers to the armed forces. No civilian applications for admission to the courses will be considered before all ex-volunteer applicants have been enrolled.

Cattle losses in the districts of East London, Komgha, Peddie and King Williamstown during August were the highest yet recorded during the present drought in the Union. Fourteen thousand head of cattle were lost in that month against 10,000 in July and 12,000 in June. Losses in the four districts since March total more than 46,000 head of cattle.

In an address at Johannesburg, Prime Minister Jan C. Smuts said "land lease saved us during the war."

Commenting on the termination of United States lend lease, Mr. Smuts said "if I understand my America right, if I remember what Americans did when they started lend lease, they will never go back."

"Lend lease is not going to rupture this great partnership which has been built up between the American republic and the British Commonwealth. This new development need not cause us any sleepless nights."

CLAIRE WALLACE TO AIR STORY OF PET RABBIT

Fame comes easily to 'Queenie' educated pet rabbit belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Murray Black, Chatham Street.

'Queenie,' who was picked up in a crate on the highway some time ago, has developed a remarkable degree of intelligence and in fact, according to the family, is almost human.

Now 'Queenie's' accomplishments are to be the subject of a radio talk over a coast-to-coast network.

Claire Wallace, well-known radio personality, telephoned the other day and got 'Queenie's' history as material for one of her discourses, which will be broadcast in the near future.

SERIOUSLY CUT BY BROKEN GLASS

Seriously cut about the face by broken glass of a storm window, little Mary Simpson, aged 2½ years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, Cedar Street, required twelve stitches to close the cuts.

The little girl had wandered from her home to 86 West Moira Street where she knocked the storm window down, the broken pane cutting her about the eyes and nose. A near neighbor, Mrs. Clarke Potter, took the girl in and called Dr. G. S. Cronk.

LARGE SKUNK SHOT ON MacDONALD AVE.

A shot rang out in the east end of the city the other day and when the smoke had cleared, one of the largest skunks ever seen by those involved breathed its last "scent".

The striped kitty which had been raiding chicken pens in the vicinity of MacDonald Avenue, was neatly trapped by a Mr. St. Denis.

Sam Munnings and police manouevred carefully about the trapped terrified animal, keeping a discreet distance between themselves and the skunk's artillery.

When a favorable moment presented itself Mr. Munnings pulled the trigger, there was a cloud of vapor and Brer Skunk breathed his last.

R.C.A.F. PERSONNEL ON THE "SCYTHIA"

Included in the RCAF personnel arriving in Canada on Sept. 17 aboard the troopship "Scythia" which docks at Quebec City are—Flying Officer R. C. Sharpe, Deseronto; WO.1 J. Clairmont, Trenton and LAC. J. F. Doyle, Tweed.

POLICE COURT

Eighteen-year-old Hazel Cornell, of Tweed, was sentenced to two weeks in jail in city police court, Friday morning when she pleaded guilty to the theft of $66 from a soldier at a local overnight cabin.

The Cornell girl with Florence Hancock, of Wallbridge, had gone to the cabins with two men and after consuming liquor had departed with money, the property of one of the men. Miss Hancock was charged with receiving and after pleading guilty was remanded for sentence pending restitution. Restitution of $33 was made by Miss Cornells' father.

Twenty-one cases were listed for hearing during the morning's court proceedings, nine of them being settled out of court. One paid $32.50 for "having liquor"; another paid $13 for having second wine and beer ration books.

Ernest Lywood, member of an R.C.A. Reserve Army unit in Toronto was given suspended sentence after being found guilty of stealing a watch which was later pawned in Toronto. He appeared in court in his reserve army uniform which he stated he was wearing in order to obtain transportation at a cheaper rate.

Edward McKay was fined $50 and $3 costs on a second offence intoxication charge and in default will spend one month in jail. For selling liquor Lloyd Warren was sentenced to two months in jail without alternative of a fine. A local sailor was fined the usual amount for intoxication.

Local taxi proprietor, Mr. Lorne Munro, paid $5 fine and $6 costs on a careless driving count after merits of the case were discussed for half an hour by the Crown and defence counsel, R. Pringle.

Belleville Fair Program

Monday — Gates open at 9.00 o'clock, and placing of exhibits will take place. Judging of Dairy Products; Grains and Seeds; Roots and Vegetables; Fruit; Plants & Flowers; Ladies' Work; Fine Arts & Handicrafts; Domestic Science; and Schools Exhibits will be done on Monday.

Monday Evening—Fair will be officially opened by Mr. J. Fred Wilson, M.P.P., Warden of Hastings County, followed by band music, supplied by the Belleville Municipal Band, and Bill Garden's stage show, consisting of many new acts.

Several Original Compositions Will Be Played at Sunday Band Concert; Composers Will Conduct Own Scores

Featuring the three-day convention of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association which got under way at the Hotel Quinte this afternoon, will be the grand concert played in the Hume Arena on Sunday night starting at eight o'clock.

The concert, played by the Belleville Municipal Band which will be augmented by outstanding professional and amateur players from all parts of Canada, will highlight the first renditions of several original compositions. The composers themselves, all members of the C.B.A., will conduct the band during the playing of the scores.

Other numbers will be conducted by distinguished guest conductors from the United States and Canada who are in the city for the convention.

Outstanding Conductors.

Some of the outstanding conductors who will be seen during the concert are Captain J. J. Goulet, silver-haired artist who is now in his 76th year. Capt. Goulet formed and conducted the first symphony orchestra of Montreal. Then there is Lieut. Commander A. E. Zealley, former Belleville bandmaster who recently retired after a distinguished career in naval musical circles. He founded the Royal Naval School of Music in Canada. Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, New York, one of the United States outstanding conductors, will also wield the baton during the concert. He has just concluded a triumphal appearance in Toronto where he conducted the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in a series of brilliant concerts.

Among the original compositions which will be played here for the first time are: "Dauntless Heroes" by Laidlaw Addison; "Men of the North" by W. S. Shepherd; and "Les Tesserau de Montmorency" by Decelles, director of music of the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto.

Fire Destroys Badgley Barn In Thurlow Twp.

Catching fire from the straw stack when a ball of fire from the thresher blower set the pile ablaze, the large frame barn, together with corn silo, pig pen, and machine shop owned by Mr. Thomas Badgley, 4th concession Thurlow township, was destroyed at mid-day on Thursday.

The threshing machine owned by Mr. Fred Robinson, was saved from the flames. Also lost in the blaze was approximately 40 tons of hay and several hundred bushels of grain.

Owing to the close proximity of the other farm buildings to the barn, nothing could be done to save them, but the Belleville Fire Department, with assistance of volunteers managed to save the residence. Loss will amount to over $4,000, which was partially covered by insurance.

The Badgley loss is one of several barn fires which have occurred in the Bay of Quinte districts this season with sparks coming from threshing machines being held responsible.

Property Owners Association Hints Taxpayers' Strike

Winnipeg, Sept. 14 — (CP) — A suggestion that it may be necessary to call a taxpayers' strike unless confiscatory property laws are repealed is contained in a statement issued here by the Canadian Federation of Property Owners.

A statement, signed by Jamieson Bone of Belleville, Ont., president, and A. E. Craddock of Vancouver, secretary, said the federation, meeting here, will seek to have Provincial Governments amend their laws so that "owning property will be economically sound."

The federation comprises property owners in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Vancouver and Calgary, with similar associations in other districts in Canada.

"Property owners in the past have been crucified by confiscatory regulations that virtually stopped building and allied trades, largely accounting for the present housing shortage," said the statement.

"The federation is determined that these stupid laws will be repealed or it may be necessary to call a taxpayers' strike from one end of Canada to the other in order that Canada may progress as it should along sound economic lines."

WOMEN OF HOSPITAL AUXILIARY TO HOLD TAG DAY SATURDAY

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary are holding a Tag Day on Saturday the proceeds of which will be devoted to the cost of further furnishings, decoration and purchase of equipment for the Belleville General hospital. The efforts of this ladies' organization along hospital lines are well known and it is expected the public response to the appeal will be generous. In the past the Auxiliary has contributed large amounts to the decoration and furnishing of the men's section of the public wards and their work along these lines is deserving of the public support. Buy a Tag and contribute generously.

Shannonville "World's Fair" Offers Many Fine Attractions

The Shannonville "World's Fair" popular fall exhibition of the "little town to the east" holds forth on the Fair Grounds on today and Saturday, Sept. 14 and 15.

Advices from Fair officials reveal that the annual fall exhibition bids fair to equal any held in the history of the Shannonville Agricultural Society with larger entries, more attractions and additional entertainment.

Livestock and horse entries are said to be good while other agricultural exhibits are on a par with those of other years. A splendid prize list has attracted breeders from all parts of the district with many coming from faraway points.

Trials of speed that have attracted many prominent horsemen of the district are scheduled for Saturday afternoon and good purses are offered. There will be two classes and a free-for-all besides a running race.

The famous "greasy pig" contest will be held again this year and this novel feature, as before, will provide amusement for the large crowd expected to be present. A fine midway has been secured with rides, shows, games. A baby show for two classes, 1 to 6 and 6 to 12 months will be held in the afternoon with good prizes for the winners.

Tonight a dance is being held in the Town Hall with a good orchestra in attendance. On Saturday evening a smart variety program is scheduled for the Fair Grounds. There will also be dancing and games.

Fair Bd. Distributes 12,000 Tickets To Hastings and P.E. School Children

Tickets for free admission to the Belleville Fair which gets under way on Monday, Sept. 17 and lasts through Wednesday Sept. 19 have been distributed to 12,000 school children of the elementary schools of Belleville, Trenton, Hastings and Prince Edward counties. The tickets are good for any day of the fair.

The final meeting of the Board of Directors was held in the office of Secretary Erle Denyes last night with President Elmer Sandercock, Treasurer Ben Bleeker and the directors being present.

It was brought out at the meeting that the different milk and bread distributors of the city have donated cash prizes and will parade their delivery horses on Wednesday afternoon for judging purposes. Ten prizes will be awarded.

Baby Show Tuesday.

The Baby Show will be held in the large dance hall on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock under the management of Mr. Harry Rollins. A number of experienced nurses will be present to assist with the judging. There are two classes in the show and the number of entries to date have passed all committee expectations. Excellent prizes will be awarded to the various winners.

Entries in all classes and phases of the Fair have passed all anticipations of the board, Secretary Denyes stated today. The augumented prize list has attracted a large number of exhibitors who hitherto have not shown their exhibits here.

The Belleville Exhibition is in line for some sort of governmental recognition due to the fact that it has been in operation for over 100 years, according to statistics compiled by W. C. Mikel.

The fair will be formally opened on Monday evening in ceremonies in front of the grandstand. Warden J. Fred Wilson, M.L.A., will officiate.

MEAT DEALERS

It may take a few weeks to get an accurate picture of foreign needs. But in the meantimbe it is possible that by or before Oct. 1 the government may ease meat rationing further. It might do this by lowering ration point values on most outs or by taking some types off rationing altogether — or by a combination of these two methods.

The official who discussed these matters today said Great Britain has indicated it would like to obtain some meat to supplement supplies being obtained from Canada and Argentina. But British purchases will depend, he added, on whether that country is able to make financial arrangements here.

Likewise, it is probable that some meat may be needed to supply other froeign exports, both commercial and relief. Any large scale buying of American meats for relief will depend, it was said, on whether the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, or some other relief agency, secures necessary funds.

Conceding that supplies of some types of meats — particularly lower and medium grades of beef, lamb and mutton — have increased sufficiently in recent weeks to warrant further easing — if not the end — of rationing, this official said entry of British and other export buyers into the market could easily soak up a considerable portion of the extra supplies.

Obituary

DONALD E. BATESON
(Picton)

Picton, Sept. 14 — Stricken with infantile paralysis on Sept. 8, Donald Edwin Bateson, 15, died in hospital at Kingston, Wednesday night. The body was brought here yesterday afternoon, service at the graveside in Glenwood cemetery being conducted by Rev. A. E. McCutcheon of the United Church.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bateson, Donald was born at Cressy and resided with his parents there until moving to Picton in 1940. He graduated from the public school and had started in the woodworking and carpentry business with his father, having developed an aptitude for this work. He was popular among those of his own age and his death brought sadness to many.

Survivors are his father, until recently a member of the R.C.A.F.; his mother, four sisters, Rose, whose husband, WO. Ronald Stakes, R.A.F. was killed overseas; Irene, Mrs. Gavin Greig whose husband is in Egypt; Mrs. Thompson Robinson and Miss Lena Bateson, all in Picton.

LATE MRS. DORIS MABEL BRIDGE

The funeral of Mrs. Doris Mabel (Corby) Bridge, late residence, 288 George Street, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, on Thursday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by Mr. L. E. Bignell, Past Reader of the Third Christian Science Church, High Park Avenue, Toronto.

The bearers were Messrs. Fred Elgie, Sandy Lummiss, Rex. Bridge, Flt. Lieut. F. A. Johnson, George Corby and Richard Parm.

MRS. LOUELLA CAUGHEY
(Hillier Township)

Mrs. Louella Caughey, wife of Mr. Lorne Caughey, died suddenly at her home in the 5th concession of Hillier Township, Prince Edward County, early Friday morning.

Born in Prince Edward County the late Mrs. Caughey was in her 68th. year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Smith Pearsall. All her life was passed in the district where she was born and she was highly esteemed in the community. In religion she was a member of the Baptist Church.

Surviving her are her husband; one son, Leon Caughey, at home; one sister, Mrs. Stanley Calnan, Crofton, and one brother, Walter Pearsall, Halloway.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until late this afternoon then at her late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

MISS CATHERINE AIDE
(Carlow Township)

Miss Catherine Aide, age 76 years, home address Carlow Township, died in the Belleville General Hospital this morning. She was in ill health for some time.

HERBERT SILLS FOSTER
(Bloomfield Road)

Herbert Sills Foster died suddenly at his home, Bloomfield Road, near the town of Picton, Prince Edward County, late Thursday afternoon.

The late Mr. Foster was in his 61st. year and was born in Huntingdon Township, his parents being the late Owen Windsor Foster and his wife the late Sarah Elizabeth Sills. For many years he lived at Moira and was engaged in farming. Thirty years ago he moved to the Bloomfield district and continued farming operations there.

BIRTHS

DEATHS

CAUGHEY — Suddenly at her home in the 5th Concession of Hillier Township, Prince Edward County, on Friday morning, September 14, Mrs. Louella (Pearsall) Caughey, wife of Mr. Lorne Caughey, in her 68th year.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell St. until late this afternoon, then at her home at the above given address, whence the funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon, September 16th. Service at 2.30 o'clock. Interment Burr's Cemetery.

FOSTER — Suddenly at his residence, Bloomfield Road, near Picton, on Thursday, September 13th, Herbert Sills Foster, in his 61st year.

Resting at the Palmateer Funeral Home, Picton, whence the funeral will be held on Saturday, September 15th. Service in the Chapel at 2.00 p.m. Interment Glenwood Cemetery. (Masonic direction.)

IN MEMORIAM

DAFOE — In loving memory of my father, Ernest J. Dafoe, who died two years ago today.

His death was sudden, the blow severe.
We little thought his end was near.
We have lost but heaven has gained
One of the best the world contained.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Bly wish to thank their many friends, relatives and neighbors for their kindness during their recent bereavement, also for their beautiful floral tributes and use of cars.

Mr. Foster was widely known and was prominent in the life of the community. In the regard of many friends in Prince Edward County and also at his former home at Moira he held a high place and to them his death has brought much regret. He was a member of the United Church at Picton and took an active part in the work of the congregation. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order. In the community he will be much missed.

Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Delmer (Henrietta) Huff, Bloomfield Road, and Mrs. Melvin (Edna) Dulmage, Cressy; three brothers, Mr. George Foster, Moira; Mr. Harry Foster, Bloomfield, and Mr. Theodore Foster, Bloomfield; two sisters, Mrs. Harold (Clara) Huff, Bloomfield Road, and Miss Mabel Foster, Nursing Sister, Dundas Street, Belleville. His wife, the former Lucy Wellbanks, and a sister, Mrs. J. R. (Helen) McCullough, Kingston, died some years ago.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

AIDED ESCAPES

In her bomb-damaged home in Arlington Road, Twickenham, Eng., Evelyn Gore-Symes (above), 25-year-old English girl, told how she went for a summer holiday to Budapest in 1938, stayed seven years, and all through the German occupation helped Allied prisoners to reach safety. She gave them food, a change of clothes and forged papers. It was not until suspecting Germans questioned her landlady that she fled from her flat.

SEPTEMBER

The meadows now are brown and sere,
The harvest fields are bare;
And lo! along the country road
The golden-rod glows fair.
While on the lakeside hill-top
The sumach's turning red,
And from a dainty handing nest
The Orioles have fled.
As in the early twilight
We hear the south wind sigh—
It seems like summer's quiet voice
Bidding the earth good-bye.
—Helen B. Anderson.

September, the first month of autumn, brought days of intense, summer heat, leaving the meadows and lawns, parched and brown, but a brief shower Sunday night cooled the air and brought temporary relief.

Local women employed in the L. Grier canning factory, Wellington, have been working a half-day at a time, the tomato crop being reported about half of normal.

No fires have been reported since the one on Monday, Sept. 3rd. that threatened the South Lakeside cottages owned and occupied by Belleville residents which caused considerable alarm, but was controlled and extinguished by the crowd that gathered.

Mrs. C. L. Jones entertained the Hillier Guild on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting opened with devotional exercises, including the singing of a hymn with Mrs. Merritt McFaul, pianist, followed by the reading of a psalm and prayer.

Following reports given by the secretary and the treasurer, a program was presented consisting of a travel-talk by Mrs. Fred Morton, who spoke of her holiday in Flint, Michigan; poems read by Mrs. H. B. Anderson; and a flower contest won by Rev. E. N. Grant.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs F. S. Anderson, Belleville, entertained friends from Bradford, Pennsylvania, at their summer cottage, Consecon Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield French and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sprung, Belleville, returned home on Wednesday after enjoying a motor trip to Rochester where they visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cochrane, Peterborough, who spent a week's holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton, also enjoyed a motor trip to Boston, where they visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton were at home on Sunday entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Garratt Morton and family of Tweed, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. James Morton, Consecon Lake.

On returning home Sunday night after spending the day at the Sandbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Gamble, South Lakeside, were surprised to find their various farm implements on the lawn, tractor, wagons, plows, etc. with a placard announcing an auction sale on Monday, Sept. 10. Evidently some practical jokers had visited their home during their absence and in this way had announced their visit.

Mr. W. Robb, editor of the Western Canadian, Manitoba, on his way to attend the convention of editors of weekly newspapers at Quebec, was with his brother, Mr. Robb of Trenton, a caller at Mrs. W. H. Anderson's on Monday.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cunningham celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, South Lakeside on Sunday, August 28. Guests numbering twenty-four partook of a wedding dinner, the table being artistically decorated and centred with a beautiful wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham were married in Bloomfield Methodist parsonage, Aug. 28, 1895, Rev. Mr. Lambly officiating. Her twin sister, Miss Lina Crippen was bridesmaid and Sandy Donald supported the groom. They have four daughters and one son Jack in service overseas; also eight grandchildren, one Mr. Clayton Bowers, a war veteran, recently returned from service overseas. The bride and groom received beautiful gifts and flowers and cards. Their many friends wish them years of health and happiness.

POST-WAR MILEAGE
PLUS OUTSTANDING SAFETY FEATURES

You can get the Post-War Mileage you'll need from the B. F. Goodrich Synthetic Rubber Tires you buy for your car now.

Built with Hi-Flex cord—previously used only in B. F. Goodrich Truck Tires—these strong, flexible passenger car tires have proved their long wear in all kinds of service.

And Ply-Weld Construction, welding all Hi-Flex cord plies into an integral unit, gives greater protection against blow-outs.

To these safety features is added the famous B. F. Goodrich non-skid, road-gripping Lifesaver Tread, that wipes wet pavements dry with its never-ending "Windshield-wiper" action.

When you buy tires today, it is good business to buy tires that can roll out the greatly increased mileage you will need in the Post-War Period. Insist on B. F. Goodrich Synthetic Rubber Tires for your car.

B. F. GOODRICH BATTERIES

As famous as the name it bears, there is a B. F. Goodrich long-life battery for every make of car, truck or tractor, for radio too. Ask your dealer for a B. F. Goodrich Battery and put extra pep in the electrical system of your car, truck or tractor.

Welcome Bandmasters

Band music is king in Belleville this weekend, for the Municipal Band is then entertaining the Canadian Bandmasters' Association in annual convention in this city. Besides the presence of two hundred and more guests, members of the association and their wives and friends as well as distinguished conductors and composers of band music and members of band organizations whom it will be the privilege and pleasure of the citizens to meet, there will be two concerts for the public.

In their capacity as hosts to the association and the visiting members and their friends, the Belleville Municipal Band, their talented Bandmaster Lieut. Fred Jobson and Band Manager Harry Moorman are providing the people of this district with the opportunity of hearing the guest bandsmen. The citizens welcome this great company of leaders in music.

Belleville is fortunate in being the choice of the meeting for 1945 and her citizens realize that this is a tribute to the city and to the tireless efforts of Lieut. Jobson, Belleville's bandmaster, on behalf of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association whose aims and cultural service he has striven to spread across Canada.

Bands and band music enjoy enduring popularity in all parts of Canada. This fact is one of the best testimonials and happiest auguries for the continued appreciation of the work of band organizations and of the future of band music. The pleasures of life are greatly enhanced by this agency of band music than which there is no more inspiring entertainment. They play a noted part in giving the people a liking for the best in martial and other music and thereby aid in the creation and composition of the music that is and will be heard by the Canadian people.

Belleville citizens, always lovers of band music and supporters of band organizations from the earliest years, greet these artists in music, the performers, the leaders, the creators of music.

Vidkun Quisling's conviction on a charge of high treason and his condemnation as a traitor to Norway, which has been one of the leading democratic nations, brings a sense of relief to the world of free men. Quisling represents a type of man that can stoop to the lowest depths of infamy. During his trial he claimed that his name did not have the meaning which people attach to it today, but it means just what it has meant since he began the infamous career which is bringing him to his death. It is not the people of the world who have given his name a "bad name" but it is Quisling himself, the architect of his own destiny, by betraying the land of his birth.

His pleas that what he did in collaboration with the Germans was to avoid a worse fate for his country and that what he did was in his own country's interest, failed to ring true and to convince the court. His actions during the occupation by the Germans spoke so loud that they were heard about the earth. His picturing himself in the role of a hero was an insult to everything that is noble in Norway and her brave people. Here was the coward speaking, for cowards and traitors do not like to die and well might they dread what is to come.

He was given a fair trial and every opportunity to present his case to the court.

His weeping when he tried to make the court believe in the virtues which he claimed dominated his actions, did not convince. He left no stone unturned if perchance he might save his life, the life which had betrayed his country. He had been found guilty and will go the way of one who is unfit to live in the society of a free and loyal people, for he was so foul and cheap a criminal that humanity in its own defence must put him out of the way.

Sometimes traitors get away or manage to escape the penalty, but Quisling will pay with his life for his crimes, for the war has been the most serious menace of all time against liberty in which desperate Nazis conspired with a man, Quisling, to uproot the very foundations of the way of life that the free people love.

While the Norwegians were suffering death and anguish and had to submit to the German occupation, Quisling paid himself over a quarter of a million dollars as puppet premier. This money was ordered by the court to be returned to the state.

There will be no regrets for Quisling when he faces the death penalty. He made his choice and by that choice he has fallen and will leave a memory that will be scorned by loyal and true men everywhere. He preferred to go with the enemy who was oppressing his fellowcountrymen. By the judgment of the court that tried and found him guilty he will be executed and so be made to keep company with the Nazi gangsters forever.

Stand No Fooling From Japs

Admiral Mountbatten will not permit any fooling by the Japanese with their surrender. The other day at Singapore he expressed the determination of the Allied leaders to get tough with any signs of obstinacy or impudence of the surrendering Japanese. He explained that the Japanese southern armies were finding it hard to accept defeat and might try to wriggle out of the terms of surrender. "They may behave arrogantly," he said, and "you will have my support in taking the fullest measures against any Japanese obstinacy." At the same time he made it clear that the Japanese prisoners would be treated with justice and humanity but "we are going to be their masters.

"In the new areas you will be occupying the Japanese have not been defeated in battle. You may well find, therefore, that those Japanese who have a fanatical faith in their divine superiority and who feel that we are too soft to put them in their place will try to behave arrogantly. You are to stand for no nonsense from those people." At the same time he disclosed that Japanese defences had been found so negligible that beachheads could have been taken with "half a dozen casualties."

The Allied leaders know the enemy too well not to make them realize that they are conquered and that they must pay the price for their attack and conspiracy against law-abiding nations.

Runaways

(Ottawa Journal)

A runaway horse on Laurier Avenue brings memories of those tranquil and easy-going years before World War I. Alarmed by traffic, the big animal dashed down the street at a clumsy gallop, and stopped only when the wheels of the bread-wagon it was pulling struck the curb and overturned on its side.

The inevitable crowd gathered around the kicking animal, and while the men who rushed to untangle it from the twisted harness had trouble in finding the right buckles they made up in spirit what they lacked in efficiency. To the crowd of children along the sidewalk it was as good as a show.

The day of the jet plane and the atomic bomb is a far cry from the times when runaway horses were an every-day occurrence in Ottawa streets, and soldiers were splendid figures in the scarlet of the G. G. F. G., the rifle-green of the 43rd and the brass helmets, blue broadcloth and clinking swords of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards. We weren't very progressive in those days, measured by a modern yardstick, but life was lots of fun—and plenty of runaway horses for excitement.

Bumping Off the Merrymakers

(This Week Magazine)

A bunch of soldiers stationed in a southern town borrowed a truck to go to a chicken-dinner festival. The driver soon discovered that the several brake and clutch pedals were arranged peculiarly, and when he came to a steep hill he stamped about wildly, trying to brake the truck.

His friends in back began yelling, and it was some time before the rattled GI could bring the vehicle to a halt.

"Any trouble back there?" he yelled. There was no answer. There were no soldiers. He'd been operating a dump-truck.

WEATHER EXPERIENCE

When blows the winter wind I think
'Tis difficult to work with ink.
On milder days, sans ice and snow,
Ideas may more smoothly flow.

But when the skies are blue with spring
I find to laziness I cling.
I ought to work, but I decide
The day's too nice to spend inside.

Through summer and the dog days hot
My choice is for a shady spot.
I let the work neglected stay
Till cooler are both night and day.

But framed with autumn's bronze and gold
I think it were a shame to lose
The splendor of such glorious views.

• • •

Since work and weather won't agree,
Perhaps the fault may lie with me.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

"Mexican jumping bean," "jumping bean" and "bronco bean" are the popular names given to the cells in the seed-pods of several varieties of swamp shrubs native to northern Mexico and southwestern United States.

These shrubs belong to Euphorbiaceae, or spurge family of plants.

When the shrub is in bloom or shortly thereafter a bean moth, "Carpocarpsa saltitans," closely related to the destructive coddling moth or "apple-worm," deposits its eggs in the blossoms or the green seed pods.

After the egg hatches the larva of the bean moth eats the interior of the cell of the bean cell and lines the sides with silk of its own manufacture.

By the time the three-celled pod has separated from the shrub and fallen to the ground the larva is about one-fifth the size and nearly as heavy as the pea-sized, thin-walled cell that serves it as a shelter.

The larva is strong for its size and for a time is very active. It catapults itself with enough force to cause the "bean" to tilt, roll, tumble, jerk and jump.

Many people find this phenomenon so amusing that many tons of "Mexican jumping beans" have been gathered, shipped to market and sold at several cents apiece.

Of course, only "wormy" beans are marketable as oddities.

As a rule there is a bean moth larva in only one of the three beans in a pod.

GOVT. URGED TO

Would Like Lead.

"They would like a lead", he continued, "They would like someone whom they regard as having moral authority to tell them what the score is, to tell them where we are, to tell them what can be done and what cannot be done and to tell them, as honestly as possible and as persuasively as possible, what their sacrifices are going to be.

"Still more, they would like someone to tell them honestly that the sacrifices are being shared, to tell them it is going to be a square deal all round, that no one is going to be left with the short end of the stick. That is what they are afraid of. That is particularly true, I suppose, of labor.

"If Labor is dealt with fairly and persuasively there is nobody in the world that can be more reasonable or more understanding than they are. But it has to be in time. And nobody must try to drive them. What is needed is to try to get their co-operation, to work with them".

First in Long Time.

Mr. MacDonnell will be the first financial critic the opposition has had as a recognized institution for some time. When the Liberals were in opposition in 1930-35 Hon. J. L. Ralston filled that role. In the last two parliaments, when the Progressive Conservative Party had a small representation, the Party leader usually acted as financial critic.

An indication the C.C.F. was cause of that Party's record while in office he could not vote for their amendment condemning the government's housing efforts, although he was critical of what was being done.

Urges Larger Pensions.

Patrick Ashby (SC—Edmonton East) went one better than his leader, Solon Low, in urging larger Old Age Pensions. Speaking a few days ago Mr. Low said the pension should be $50 a month at age 60. Mr. Ashby said it should be $60 a month at age 50. He also called for removal of all taxes on incomes under $3,000 a year and removal of all taxes on goods.

A request for a minority bill of rights came from a new member, Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), who claimed there was need for such a Bill because of racial discriminations in Canada.

Claims Discrimination

He said there was discrimination against the Jews, colored people, the Poles, Ukrainians and other racial groups. This discrimination not only existed in immigration laws, but also was to be found in educational institutions, and he mentioned McGill University at Montreal and Toronto University.

Prime Minister King announced that Lt.-Col. C. H. S. Macdonald was heading a war crimes section at Canadian military headquarters in London to deal with crimes against Canadian servicemen or civilians.

Labor Minister Mitchell disclosed that a conciliator of his department was attempting to settle the Ford motor dispute at Windsor.

During the Throne Speech debate a variety of suggestions were heard from other speakers, including H. A. Archibald (CCF—Skeena), J.S. Sinnott (L—Springfield), Park Manross (PC—London), H. W. Herridge (People's CCF—Kootenay West), A. E. Robinson (PC—Bruce) and D. F. Brown (L—Essex West).

Wants Uranium Secured

Fred Rose, member for Montreal Cartier and the House's only Labor-Progressive member, said he believed Canada should place its uranium under the control of the Security Council of the United Nations as a step to ensure world peace and the avoidance of any possible use of atomic bombs for aggressive war.

Mr. Manross, making his maiden speech, asked that the government abolish the $2.50 annual radio fee.

He urged that the discriminatory tax on carbonated beverages be removed. He felt that carbonated beverage companies should be given as much sugar as the makers of sweets and wines.

He said opposition leader John Bracken, when premier of Manitoba, had done little about housing in the capital city of Winnipeg.

In view of the Conservative government's record while in office, he would be unable to support that party's non-confidence motion in the government. The motion charged the government with failing to take adequate action to solve the housing crisis.

Mr. Robinson (PC—Bruce) said an Indian delegation, including men from his county, now was in Ottawa seeking the correction of some injustices. He hoped they would be assured justice would be done. In the delegation were a sergeant and a corporal who had served with him in the last war.

Mr. Robinson called for decentralization of industry to keep alive rural areas which now were sparsely inhabited.

Exchange of Scholarships

He suggested that as a means of spreading international goodwill there be an exchange of scholarship with various countries of the world. In Canada unity could be furthered if people learned one another's languages.

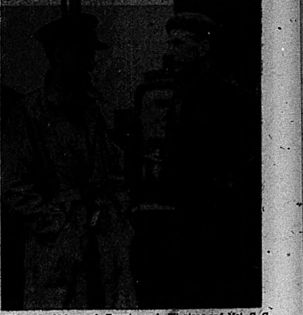
He said the country was found unprepared for war in 1939 and now with the same administration it was unprepared for peace.

D. F. Brown (L—Essex West) said the young men and women in Canada should be urged to get into public life. If all members urged this the young people would take a more active interest in public administration. A reduction in the number of parties and an increase in the vote likely would follow "and we probably would have better government."

BEAST OF BATAAN

High on the roster of Jap officials facing arrest, trial, and possible death for brutality to prisoners of war is General Masahara Homma, here, conqueror of the Philippines, whom General Jonathan Wainwright charges with the death of 4,000 Americans in the infamous Camp O'Donnell on Luzon.

FIRST CANADIANS IN TOKYO



Col. R. S. Malone of Toronto and Winnipeg and Maj. C. C. McDougall of Ottawa are seen here aboard U.S.S. Missouri on which the Jap surrender was signed. They were the first two Canadians to enter Tokyo, arriving with the U. S. airborne troops.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

PROPHYLAXIS OF PYORRHEA

Pyorrhea is irritation, inflammation, bleeding, shrinking or recession of gums, pus pockets, loosening and eventual loss of teeth. Only a few people are aware that this common disease of degeneration involves not merely the gums, but also the tooth sockets, the teeth themselves, and the very bones and muscles of the jaws and the digestive (salivary) glands whose function is so important in carbohydrate metabolism.

Some dentists apparently do not understand clearly what the much abused terms "oral hygiene" and "prophylaxis mean. Too many dentists acquiesce in the commercial propaganda which gives the American wiseacre the impression that "oral hygiene" is a nice refined way of saying brush your teeth.

To many layman and some dentists I may seem inconsistent wen I talk about the prophylaxis—the prevention—of pyorrhea. Do I not scout the popular notion that one can save one's teeth by brushing them with just the right dentifrice and just the right twist of the wrist, just so many times a day?

I do. And if you will grant that I am not fooling about it I'll add that, with all your fuss about tooth-brushing your teeth are hardly as clean as a hound's tooth and for the very good reason that the hound never brushes his teeth—he just uses 'em as teeth should be used.

For health's sake, dentists and people, put aside this childish notion soap and water can change diseased or deteriorated mouth, jaw, tooth sockets gums, digestive (salivary) glands and teeth into a soud state. Once such deterioration, degeneration, decay has begun the very best you can hope for is to retard or check the process. How to retard or check the deterioration, as I see it, will appear presently. Right here I want to impress upon you the fact that the prophylaxis of pyorrhea comprises much more than periodic inspection, cleaning, removal of tartar or other accumulations, repair of any minute cavities or fissures and perhaps burnishing or polishing by the dentist — though this is the very minimum of dentistry every one needs regardless of the apparent present condition of his mouth. At least as important for the prophylaxis of pyorrhea is adequate nutrition, and I'll endeavor to explain in talks to follow, not just my notions about it, but what recognized nutrition authorities have recently learned about the prevention of tooth decay, gum and tooth socket degeneration and the other familiar manifestations of so-called pyorrhea.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Please Keep in Line

We . . . . want your answer immediately by return mail, so we inclose airmail special delivery stamps. (T.A.S.)

Answer — Your query must await its turn. This is the only fair way for all of our readers. Incidentally, folks, I do not reply to telegrams. Use plain Air Mail if you desire speed, but save the cost of "special delivery" and spend it for some good purpose.

Husbands Hard to Teach

We have gotten a lot of good from your recipes for wheat muffins, pancakes, cookies—they're delish. Even my husband now enjoys them and he thought it was foolish to eat plain wheat at first. (Mrs. K. E.)

Answer — Husbands are like old dogs in that respect. On written request (no clipping will suffice) I'll send any reader who incloses stamped self addressed envelope the pamphlet "Wheat to Eat" which tells how to use plain wheat in the everyday family dietary.

To Help Young People

If you wish to be of help to young people particularly, you might more often discuss causes and prevention of skin troubles such as acne which cause so much mental anxiety to adolescents.

(——— CSp (R) (T) USNR)

Answer — Thank you, son. The young people take precedence here of course. I remember how I suffered from blackheads and pimples and from the unresrticted quackery and the popular indifference and benightedness of those days. Let any kid in the blackheads, pimples (acne) stage of development—for, after all, kids, it is normal for healthy youngsters to go through that stage for development and have their share of blackheads and pimples—write me, enclosing stamped envelope bearing his or her address, and I'll send a pamphlet which will at least ease the anxiety which is due to ignorance (of parents, relatives, the public) and misinformation. It contains instructions for relief of the trouble too.

TOJO, FORMER PREMIER OF JAPAN, RECEIVES BLOOD PLASMA AFTER SUICIDE ATTEMPT

A dramatic scene in the home in the outskirts of Tokyo of former Premier General Hideki Tojo, as the latter was given American blood plasma in an effort to save his life after he had attempted hara-kiri by using a pistol on himself. Capt. James Johnson of Newark, Ohio, army surgeon, is shown administering the plasma, with the aid of a Japanese nurse. In background is the bowing native doctor who attended Tojo immediately after the suicide attempt.

A closeup of former Premier General Hideki Tojo of Japan as he appeared semi-conscious in his home on Tokyo outskirts, after his attempt to end his life by shooting himself below the heart. Taken to a hospital and operated on for removal of the bullet, Tojo is expected to survive, to be tried as a war criminal.

Former Premier. General Hideki Tojo looking out of the window of his home near Tokyo, a few minutes before he turned a gun on himself in a suicide try. In looking out of the window Tojo invited officers of U. S. Intelligence to come into the house. He then closed the window and shot himself.

Himmler Planned Arrest of Top British Leaders After Invasion

Berlin, Sept. 14 —(AP)—Heinrich Himmler's Gestapo prepared for the invasion of Britain in 1940 by compiling a list of more than 2,300 persons ranging from Winston Churchill to obscure Jewish refugees for automatic arrest, secret Nazi papers showed today. Paul Robeson, Negro singer, and Bernard M. Baruch, American economics expert, also were named.

The 1st included all available responsible officials of exiled government or national committees of occupied Holland, France, Belgium, Norway, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

In addition, key administrators of the universities of Oxford, Bristol and London were named, along with heads of 171 firms ranging from banks to Telegraph Companies, Masonic Lodges, Odd Fellows, Rotary International and the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Also ordered arrested after the planned invasion, which never came, were the administrators of 389 societies including the Fabian Society, the Pen Club, the Society of Friends, the Y. M. C. A., Church of England Committee for non-Aryan Christians, the Co-operative Society of Friends of the Soviet Union, the Maccabi World Union and Trade Unions.

American Prisoners Were Bled to Death To Save Jap Wounded

By VERN HAUGLAND

Yokohama, Sept. 14 —(AP)— A navy physician, fighting to save the lives of enfeebled former prisoners of war, said today he had been told that Japanese doctors deliberately bled American prisoners to death to obtain blood for transfusions for the Japanese.

"I was told this by one of my patients, a medical corps captain who was taken on Corregidor," said Capt. Stanton Allison of New York, medical director aboard the hospital ship benevolence.

"The captain said that Japanese at Tokyo's Shinagawa hospital made a fairly common practice of bleeding Americans mercilessly for transfusions for wounded Japanese. In some cases they bled the men directly to death, and in others so weakened them that they died of other causes."

Four Teen-aged Youths Strapped

Lindsay, Sept. 14 —(CP)— A crime wave started by four 'teen aged youths which extended from July 28 to Aug. 25 when the quartet was arrested, led today to Magistrate E. A. Gee imposing sentences ranging from 12 months with the strap to two years with the strap.

Norman Walters, 19, said to be a deserter from the army, was sentenced to two years with two years indeterminate and 10 strokes of the lash; Thomas Gillard, 19, to 18 months and 18 indeterminate and eight strikes; Thomas Marston, 16, 15 months and 12 months indeterminate and six strokes; Donald Fairlee, 16, 12 months and 12 indeterminate and six strokes.

The accused faced from seven to 15 charges each, the major one being armed holdup and attempted robbery. Others were breaking and entering, stealing cars and theft of gasoline and money.

Ask Fair Division Of Food Supplies

London, Sept. 14—(CP)—Many British housewives now are suggesting that there should be revision in the division of food supplies between restaurants and homes—to the benefit of the latter.

Some housewives say that the distribution is inequitable and that persons who can afford to eat in restaurants fare better than ordinary householders of moderate means. The housewife's troubles are due to increase by the return to normal employment as, during the war, hundreds of thousands of war workers had their noon meal at canteens but now will have to provide for themselves out of the household ration.

Adjustments in the food supply by districts also is suggested. In safe areas now abandoned by evacuees from large cities, food supplies are abundant while in other areas, such as southeastern England, shortages are reported.

British Naval Hero Honored Seven Times

London, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Vice-Admiral Sir Philip Louis Vian, 50, "Vian of the Cossack", is Britain's top winner of 1939-1945 war awards. He has won seven decorations since September, 1939.

Second on the list are Wing. Cmdr. James Brian Tate, who sank the Tirpitz, and ace fighter pilot Group Capt. Johnny Johnson, whose score of 38 enemy aircraft destroyed is the highest of any fighter pilot in the European theatre. Both won six awards.

Vice-Admiral Vian was awarded the K. C. B. last year for his work in the planning and execution of the Normandy landing. His other awards are the K. B. E., for bringing a Malta convoy through, the D. S. O. and two bars, a mention in dispatches and the U. S. Legion of Merit.

Tait has the D. S. C. and three bars and the D. F. C. and bar, while Johnson has the D. S. C. and two bars, D. F. C. and bar and the American D. F. C.

Railways Had Role In German Defeat

London, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Sir Charles Newton, chief general manager of the London and North Eastern Railway, has revealed that to send 1000 bombers on a raid to Germany the L. N. E. R. ran 36 special trains to carry 2,600,000 gallons of petrol, and 362 trucks to carry 2,900 tons of bombs.

One thousand seven hundred trains were run in 10 months with rubble from blitzed London for American and R. A. F. airfields. Nine hundred trains carried cement to make runways, and some country stations in East Anglia were handling 80 to 160 times as much traffic as they were built for.

Minimum Price Fixed For War Wool Stocks

Canberra, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Australia, Britain, South Africa and New Zealand have a 14-year plan for wool. They have agreed to fix minimum prices for all wool sold in the three dominions while the stocks accumulated in the war are worked off. It is expected that this will take 14 years.

Each Dominion will buy and hold all its wool that comes on the world market at less than the minimum prices. The Australian and British governments will bear half the cost of doing this; the wool-growing industry in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa will find the other half.

Australia, New Zealand and South Africa now have piled up wool stocks to the value of $715,000,000. Of these Australia has 63 per cent, South Africa 20 and New Zealand 17. While 14 years has been set as the time that it will probably take to get back to normal the exact period depends on the amounts of wool held in the United States, South America and other wool-growing regions.

However the three southern hemisphere dominions produce the great bulk of the world's fine wools. The world's chief flocks of Merino sheep are in Australia and South Africa.

The British government has bought the whole of Australia's wool clip, now being shorn.

IN MEMORY

The sun shines o'er the Autumn fields,
The woods are bathed in mellow light,
And on the fence the clustering grapes
Gleam tempting — an alluring sight;
A yellow leaf drops slow to earth
While Autumn broods in silence here,
And all is bright and calm and still
As in the days of yester year.

But oh! the sun seems not so bright,
The walk along the old farm lane
Has lost its charm, as all alone
I wend my wandering way again;
For he, who joyed in Autumn strolls,
And leaped and barked in rapturous glee,
Lies sleeping in his lowly bed,
Who roamed these Autumn fields with me.

A tribute in my heart I bring,
A loving word in memory,
A wish that I may ever prove
A friend as kind and true as he.

ON HER WAY TO CANADA

On her way to Canada to join her husband, Mrs. Margaret Eeeg is shown as she came ashore from the S. S. Stavanger Fjord at Brooklyn, N.Y. This was the first Norwegian passenger ship to arrive in New York since the war ended. It brought, among others, 750 Norse seamen to alleviate the marine labor shortage. The little girl is Mrs. Eeeg's daughter, Magda, three.

Four Charter Members Attend 50th Anniversary of Cannifton W.M.S.

Some two hundred and fifty ladies gathered at the Cannifton United Church on Thursday afternoon to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Cannifton group of the Women's Missionary Society. The church was artistically decorated with summer flowers and the date of the founding of the organization.

The president, Mrs. John Williams opened the meeting and called upon Mrs. J. R. Trumpour who welcomed the ladies to the meeting. This welcoming address was responded to by Mrs. Hammond who was herself a member of the original group. She told of her many hours spent with the group and reported that there were only four chartered members of the original group still living. They are Misses Minnie and Florence Adams, Mrs. Callery, Toronto, and herself.

History Given.

The president then called upon Mrs. C. Callery of Toronto who told the story of the active years of the organization. She explained that the organization had not been too popular in its earlier days and that the members worked hard to meet their financial difficulties. She stated that the group never missed a chance to increase their treasury. On one occasion the ladies enacted the play "The Temple of Fame" which they took to the surrounding communities. This was not only an adventure to the ladies but brought a welcome income.

Mrs. Callery told how the organization had been formed one Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Ely Massey. Mrs. Charles Haight was President; Mrs. F. Adams, Vice Pres.; Mrs. D. Farley, Belleville, Corresponding Secretary; Miss Minnie Adams, Recording Secretary, and Mrs. Hammond, Treasurer. There were four members.

In closing the speaker pleaded for the assistance of the Women's Missionary Society in helping to train the young tots of the church. This work is important for we have placed upon their shoulders one of the largest debts in the history of Canada.

Corsages Presented.

The president then called forth Mrs. Callery, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Dunning, Miss M. Clazie, Miss L. Rorke who were presented by Mrs. Mills with lovely corsages of gladioli and maiden hair fern. The president, too, was presented with a corsage which she accepted on behalf of the society. The ladies who received the corsages were all members of the original group Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Kerr, also original members but were unable to attend.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth then took charge of the memorial part of the service and after Mrs. H. Tweedy had read the names of those members who had passed on into their eternal rest, pausing throughout while Mrs. Roblin placed a stalk of gladioli in a vase and Mrs. A. Loucks read an appropriate verse, she read a passage of the Bible. Miss Bessie Walker rendered the solo "Beyond the Sunset," which suited this part of the service beautifully.

Mrs. Morley Davidson then sang "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked."

Missionary Tells of Work.

Mrs. Trumpour introduced the guest speaker, Miss Luella Rorke, whose father ministered on the Cannifton circuit many years ago. Miss Rorke is a missionary just returned from Trinidad. Before serving in Trinidad she served in Japan but owing to the commencement of hostilities all but six missionaries were forced to return home. Miss Rorke stated that her only wish was to return to Japan where missionaries are needed so much but this would be impossible for a few years yet. Miss Rorke stated she would return to Trinidad and continue her teaching in the Apernima High School for Girls.

In her classroom she finds all races of students, the East Indians, the Chinese, the Creoles and the occasional Canadian, American and British girl. The Chinese girls, too, were descendants of Chinese slaves brought by the Spaniards. Miss Rorke stated that no race was more intelligent than the other.

Miss Rorke had been in Japan for twenty-one years and had served in Trinidad for four years. In closing she expressed her eager wish to return to Japan as soon as possible for she felt that Christ had called her for that special work of administering the gospel in those lands.

Life Membership Presented.

Following her address Mrs. E. Farnsworth and Mrs. J. McMullen, Toronto, sang a duet "Be Still My Soul." The president then called forth Mrs. F. Spafford, Presbyterial President, who spoke briefly of her associations and delightful times enjoyed with the group.

This was followed by Mrs. Charles Mills being made a life member. She was presented with a certificate and a corsage by her husband, Mr. Chas. Mills. Mr. and Mrs. Mills have done much for the furthering of the work in this organization and will never be forgotten by their associates.

The Mission Band rendered a vocal number. This was followed by refreshments being served with Mrs. Harry Brenton cutting the huge anniversary cake and Mrs. Dunning, Mrs. H. Empson, Mrs. A. H. McGuire and Mrs. S. Bird pouring tea. Everyone agreed the afternoon was one that would be remembered for years to come. Before the gathering dispersed the president, Mrs. Williams, thanked those present who had contributed to the success of the meeting.

Hair Fashions On the Upsweep

New York, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Hair fashions for fall are still on the upsweep with a multitude of styles that include braids, buns, twists and poufs.

The vogue hit a peak during wartime when war workers found it a neater proposition and less dangerous than the long bob.

Not that the modern miss hasn't retained her long bob — she has. But it's tucked away neatly.

One of the most interesting things about the upsweep is that it can be done at home so easily for times when it is impossible to reach a hairdresser.

Braids are easily accomplished by parting hair neatly from the brow to the neckline, gathering all hair on each side and braiding. Then cross the braids along the top of the head.

If your hair isn't long enough to braid, you might try winding it around a hair roll band that is stretchable and washable. The band will keep the hair from slipping.

Before you try any hairstyle, however, make sure your hair is washed thoroughly with one of the conditioning liquid shampoos and rinsed until thoroughly clean.

Wooler.—Mrs. Jennie Warren, of Trenton, was a noon dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bell on Wednesday and they all attended the Fair in the afternoon.

Five o'clock dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bell on Sunday were—Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Moynes, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clegg, of Trenton.

Mrs. Harry Wilkes, of Colborne, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sharpe on Wednesday.

Late Mrs. E. W. Hawley

Mrs. Cinda Hawley, wife of Ernest Wilmot Hawley, Havelock, Ont., died at her home on Thursday, September 6, 1945, after an illness, as the result of severe burns, of nine months' duration.

The late Mrs. Hawley, who was 72 years of age, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Vanvolkenburg. The majority of her life was spent at Trent River, and for the past six years she has made her home in Havelock. She was a member of the United Church, and was well esteemed.

Surviving are her husband; two sisters, Mrs. Maggie Davidson and Miss Jennie Vanvolkenburg, of Campbellford; two brothers, Geo. Vanvolkenburg, of Trent River, and Arthur, of Western Canada, also several nieces and nephews.

The funeral took place from her home to the United Church at Trent River on Saturday, Sept. 8. During the service two grand old hymns were sung, favorites of the deceased. The floral tributes were beautiful.

Relatives to attend the funeral from a distance were— Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheppherd and Mrs. Elgin Mitchell, of Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Elgin McMaster and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sharpe, of Wooler.

Women's Activities

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The opening Fall meeting of the W.M.S. of the Tabernacle United Church, was held in the church last Tuesday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. Froats in the chair. After a short song service reports from secretary and treasurer were then given. Prayer was offered on behalf of Mrs. Myers, who is critically ill in the hospital. Mrs. Burgess read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Froats gave an inspiring talk based on the Story of Hagar. A short business meeting was conducted by the president and it was decided to hold a joint meeting of the W.M.S. and Woman's Auxiliary in October.

W.M.S. JUBILEE AUX.

The re-establishment of the churches in Europe was the topic at the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. of Bridge Street U.C., at the September meeting.

These churches are weak in material resources but strengthened in spiritual faith. They need material help; we need their deepened sense of fellowship with God.

Something was told of the experience and condition of Protestant churches in Norway, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, France and Germany. Christians in Germany under Niemoeller were the earliest anywhere to stand up against Nazilism. The minds of prisoners and people are open. Across the barrier of war the one link is the Service of God.

World Council of Protestant Churches calls us to help repatriated people rebuild European civilization on a Christian basis. Their needs are not only material but that of a world fellowship. They are now called not to stand against something, but to stand for something.

It was voted that the churches of Great Britain are not asking but are giving help.

The program was in charge of Mrs. T. Franklin, who was assisted by Mrs. Harris, Miss G. Lazier, Miss M. Lashbrook and Miss G. Kenny. Mrs. Burgoyne contributed a solo. The supper group was convened by Mrs. McCabe.

A Married Woman's Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My maiden name was (let's say) Ethel Hall, and my husband's name (also let's say) is Robert Davis.

1.—I am about to open a bank account. Please tell me how I should sign checks?

2.—How should I sign a business letter? How should I sign, correctly, this letter to you?

3.—How should I sign my son's school excuses?

4.—When should I sign "Mrs. Ethel Davis?"

E. D.

1.—The best form of signature for your checks is Ethel Hall Davis. Proper alternatives are Ethel H. Davis or Ethel Davis. Ethel Hall Davis is the best form, because, obviously, it gives complete name-information: your first name, maiden surname, married surname. This form of name is your signature to checks and letters.

2.—This is the correct signature for your business letters:

Very truly yours,
Ethel Hall Davis
(or Ethel H. Davis, or Ethel Davis)
(Mrs. Robert Davis)

Your letter to me should be signed like the above, except that perhaps instead of the business form "Very truly yours" you would use "Sincerely yours". In other words, you should sign business letters or letters to people who need to be informed of your formal name, with your informal name (your signature), and add, in parentheses underneath, your formal name, either for information or identification.

3.—And you would sign as I have indicated in question 2 the notes of excuse you wrote to your son's teacher.

4.—You should never use or sign "Mrs. Ethel Davis". Socially it is not correct for a married woman to use her first name after "Mrs."

Wedding Gift Always Sent to Bride-to-be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—My husband and I have been invited to a wedding to take place soon. Since we are friends of the prospective bridegroom we are wondering whether we should send the wedding present to the bride's house or to the bridegroom's house.

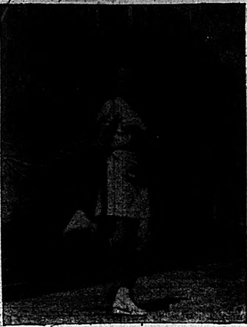
2.—We have no engraved cards. Therefore, on the plain white card I'm enclosing with the gift, should I write "Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts", or our first names, "Mary and John Roberts"?

Reader

1.—Even though you are friends of the prospective bridegroom and do not know the bride-to-be, you should send your wedding present addressed to the bride-to-be at her house.

2.—If you write only your names on the card to be enclosed—that is, write no message on the card, and a message isn't necessary when sending a wedding present—you should write "Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts", just as your names would be on a visiting card.

Skip and Roll Away the Fat



Skip rope daily and slim down.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THIS is the season of the year when the girl whose legs have followed a policy of expansion vows that, before next summer comes, she will have slenderized her pins. She envies the pretty little slimpsies on the beach. She hates her bulging ankles. Over-developed legs look bad enough with short skirts, but when one wears a bathing suit, one is ever conscious of them.

Let her get herself a jumping rope and hop off adipose tissue. She can clip off a few feet of clothes line, tie a knot in each end and go at it. Strenuous effort is necessary to demolish fat cells, but rope jumping will do it. It will also cause padded ankles to take on more pleasing lines.

General Reducing

This exercise is helpful for general reducing. It acts speedily upon hips that are like the spreading chestnut tree. By lifting the arms to spin the rope, measurements at the waistline are lessened, flabby breasts are made firmer.

If Miss Plumpie has been living an inactive life, if her muscles are practically lying down on the job, she must not overdo at first. Three minutes of rope jumping at a time will do. Each day the period can be longer. Better half a dozen three minute periods than a prolonged one. At the first sign of fatigue, she must rest.

Watch Diet.

Mind the diet. Cut down on starches, sweets and fats; they are fat builders. Live mainly on lean meat, fish that is not fat, poultry, eggs, vegetables, green salads, fruit and fruit juices.

No cereals, cream, butter, macaroni, sweet desserts. Take tea and coffee clear. You don't like it that way? Well you don't like the report of the bath room scales either, do you? What's a little sacrifice in an effort to restore the svelte shape? Time won't help; unless something is done, time will add more poundage.

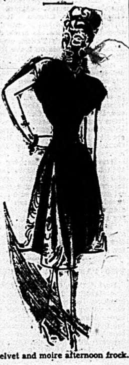
Broad Shoulder Beauty



Velvet and moire afternoon frock.

By VERA WINSTON

SOME VELVET is appearing for afternoon wear both on its own and as part of the two-fabric scheme liked by so many designers. Inky black velvet is used for the top of this smart afternoon-into-evening frock, the graceful bodice joined to a skirt of black moire. The top has a high round neckline all the better to set off a gold necklace with a stone drop. Deep armhole shoulder caps serve to achieve a broad shouldered look. It has a zippered closing in back.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Colors For the Ash Blonde

During childhood, the hair of the ash blonde was pale yellow. During the teen-age it went off the gold standard. In the twenties, it had got to the state where it was just drab. Then she started bawling. She felt that she was betwixt-and-between, neither blonde nor brunette. Sometimes she found consolation in the peroxide bottle, became a victim of the bleaching vice. That kept her busy with touch-ups, and the beauty overhead mounted.

It is the opinion of your good-looks reporter that her grievance was largely in her eye. There's nothing terrible about drab hair, not if it is beautifully arranged and if the growth is shimmering and abundant. It is largely an idea, and a wrong one, that the ash blonde doesn't belong in the pulchritude chorus. It is not always true that drab hair lacks character.

She felt she was neither blonde nor brunette.

It is surprising how much can be done by wearing flattering colors in dry goods and millinery to enhance drab tresses. Blues, if dark or of smoky tints, form a delightful contrast. Navy blue makes for freshness and clearness of the complexion. French blue does wonders for blue eyes, and appears to give more life to the hair. Violet is flattering, especially above the face. Buy yourself a violet-colored hat, if you are this type. A hat brim faced with vermillion will reflect attractive coral shades in the hair.

Black and white, alone or in combination, are safe selections for frocks. Blondes of all types are at their cameo-best in black, especially velvet. The fabric of dull finish is more flattering than one with a gloss.

Yellow is a doubtful color. Browns, deep shades of pink, and soft greens are friendly. The ash blonde is about the only type of girl who can wear purple successfully.

In the matter of make-up this lady should watch her cosmetic steps. If the complexion is pale, as often happens, the powder should be rachelle or ivory. In some skins there is a faint golden cast, in which case the powder should be a combination of beige and flesh.

If the natural blush has done a fade out, a rouge that is faint and delicate—but not of the old-time carmine tint—should be used. Orange-red rouge and lipstick are a happy choice if the skin has been sun-kissed during the summer months.

It is difficult to set down strict make-up rules, since all ash blondes can't be lined up in the same pulchritude class. Skins differ in tone, the drab hair has variations, and the eyes always must be considered.

Eye shadows are a help when togging up for evening festivities. A pale sage green brings out the best points of the glorious crown. It is a mistake then to use rouge. The lipstick must be of a neutral shade.

The Marry Go Round

Price of Being a Good Sport

With the approach of the football season, lots of happily mated women are stocking up the medicine closet with quinine, aspirin and mustard-leaves, and taking the steamer rugs and heavy wraps out of moth balls.

So many women are married to college alumni, Navy men, Army men and sports enthusiasts, that three-quarters of the feminine population are busily preparing for the annual flirtation with pneumonia, grippe and the 'flu. They hope to live through it—but they are prepared to die, just in order to be "a good pal!"

To the average women, a football game means a day of frozen discomfort, mingled with pennants, chrysanthemums, ear-splitting tumult and pocket-flasks. Not one woman in twenty understands football or knows what it is all about, no matter how many games she may have attended. All she knows is that a lot of men are apparently trying to kill one poor fellow by throwing him, falling on him, and grinding their boots in his back. That's why she sometimes happens to scream at the right moment. If she can synchronize the scream with the waving of a pennant, she's a 'swell little sport'.

But football isn't the only manly sport to which a woman martyrizes herself in order to be a pal to her husband. Many a woman has sat under a hot, broiling sun all day long, waiting for her darling to catch something—a minnow or a salmon or an old beer-bottle—anything will do.

She isn't particularly wanted on a fishing trip; but she thinks it's her "duty" and she tags along and tries to be bright and cheerful, while she watches the live worms wriggling on the hook, and longs to be home under a nice cold shower.

Of course, there are lots of expert women golfers, women who are golf-crazy and women who are bridge-mad. But there are also women who will never learn to play golf and women with no card sense who insist on playing, anyhow, and boring both themselves and their better halves to death. They want to be "good sports" at any price!

Last but not least of the marital martyrs is the nervous woman who hates prize fights so much that she shuts her eyes when they are thrown on the screen, but drags along with her husband who is a fight fan, and yells "Kill him! Kill him!" whenever the crowd does. Women have followed their big-game-hunting mates into jungles; women have sat up all night at night clubs with their convivial husbands, and women have roughed it on sailing vessels with their sea-going husbands.

Of course some women are natural born sports and adventurers who love and enjoy all these things. The point I'm trying to make is that lots of women only pretend to enjoy them, yet will bore themselves to tears in order to join a man in his play.

But, did you ever see a man who would bore himself, for any reason on earth? Did you ever hear of a man joining a Ladies' Aid Society or learning to crochet hang-bags or entering into a gossip-fest, just to "be a pal" to the Little Woman? Well—not yet! That's what I envy and admire about men—they refuse to let themselves be bored!

FASHION FLASHES

NEW SHAPES appear in many of the latest reptile handbags. Rich red or green alligator is used for a big bag made like an inverted V. It has a Gothic-shaped frame of tinted lucite, a scoop base and rigid leather handles.

New styling lends emphasis to the increased importance of knitted jersey or tricot for lingerie. Black jersey is used for a handsome nightgown made with satin edged black net that flares out from the shoulders and cascades down the back to the hem.

A sure-fire hit is the basic dress smart enough to look dressy without accessories. Black crepe is used for such a dress cut with high-necked surplice closing and side-saddle skirt. Diagonal tucks at the side of the bodice extend to the skirt below the waist. Gilt arrows drawn through self belt.

Simple, but good, is the cry for general campus wear. A practical coat for blustery weather is of red horse-blanket checked woollen, cut on full length, boxy lines with deep armholes, slit pockets and high sports collar.

We admire the profile brim felts approved by some designers for early autumn wear. A cheerful and pretty hat is a large-brimmed shape of terra cotta felt, the profile brim dipping gently on one side, and sharply raised on the other, where it is caught by a bunch of yellow flowers.

Many women are concentrating on the untrimmed coat for next season. For general wear it is treated to simple accessories, but, come late afternoon, it blossoms forth with a fur hat and muff or fur ascot. The plain, perfectly-cut coat of black, brown or gray woollen is starred.

Nervous Washington Senators Swap Locker Room Punches As Club Half Game From Tigers

Two Players Trade Blows Over Pet Bat and One Wants to Hit Boss

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Frayed nerves are wearing thin in Washington with the challenging Senators swapping locker room punches while the club storms to within half-game of 1st place.

On the eve of the pay-off five-game series with the front-running but crippled Detroit Tigers, Alex Carrasquel and Marino Pieretti traded blows over a pet bat and manager Ossie Bluege plastered a $100 fine on second baseman Freddy Vaughan who wanted to sock the boss after a rumpus earlier in the week.

Bluege excused the fisticuffs as "one of those things" in the thick of the flag chase as the underdog Senators seek to become the first club in baseball history to jump from last to first in one year.

Walter Masterson, recently discharged Navy vet, was the latest hero of the nation's capitol after taming Bobby Feller and his Cleveland tribe, 4-0, allowing only two singles.

Tigers Drop Full Game

Detroit dropped a full game off its lead when Jim Tobin blew up in the ninth inning, yielded three hits and two walks and bowed to Philadelphia, 3-2.

Bobby Estalella drove home the tying run and scored the winning tally when Tobin missed the corner of the plate on a 3-2 pitch to Ed Busch with the bases loaded.

Hard luck Bill Zuber of New York Yanks ran into his seventh goose-egg treatment of the season, bowing to Chicago, 7-0, strangely enough in 10 innings. "Sinker ball" Zuber had allowed only one hit in the full nine innings but was clubbed to the showers in the overtime spurt.

St. Louis regained third place from the Yanks by shading Boston, 2-1, for Nelson Potter's seventh straight success. A messed up double play in the ninth set the stage for the Brownie triumph with Vern Stephens romping home on Skeeter Newsome's wild peg.

Pirates Win Two

Pittsburgh made seven hits good for a double decision over Boston, 4-3 and 2-0, advancing to within two percentage points of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers in 3rd place.

New York dropped its sixth successive game by one run, 3-2, to Cincinnati. The Reds scored all their markers in the seventh off Jack Brewer.

Rain halted the Nationals' thrilling pennant race, washing out a single Philadelphia at Chicago afternoon tilt and a twi-night doubleheader between the Dodgers and Cardinals at St. Louis.

Cubs— Phil Cavarretta, back after lay-off because of bad shoulder; Heinz Becker, sore feet . . . Tigers — Eddie Mayo, shoulder and chest strapped up; Hank Greenberg, sprained ankle; Hal Newhouser, pain in back . . . Senators — Dutch Leonard, lame shoulder . . . Maybe the explanation is that they started out this year with wartime 4F squads.

MAYO, GREENBERG WILL NOT SEE ACTION IN SERIES

Outfielder Still on Limp and Mayo's Shoulder Pains When He Swings Bat

By GAYLE TALBOT

Philadelphia, Sept. 14—(AP)— There scarcely is a chance that Detroit Tigers will be able to use either Hank Greenberg, their slugging outfielder, or Eddie Mayo, their sparkplug second baseman, in the crucial five-game series opening Saturday in Washington.

The American League leaders, in consequence, are not a happy lot, though manager Steve O'Neill is refraining studiously from crying out loud.

"It's tough," he admitted, "trying to win with your top men out. If Mayo hadn't hurt his shoulder we would have been way out in front now. It's not only Eddie's great playing. He's been an inspiration to the others with his hustle and talk."

Mayo's left shoulder still pains him when he tries to swing a bat. He's in uniform but admits it's doubtful he will be ready by the weekend. Greenberg also suited up yesterday and limped about for a time in pre-game practice, but said his left ankle still felt very stiff. "Guess I'll be ready for the world series," he grinned philosophically.

"I'll sure use either or both of them against Washington if I can" said O'Neill, "but I don't think there's much chance. We'll need all the help we can get against that Washington pitching. Griff's got five mighty good pitchers."

The case of Hal Newhouser, Detroit's top pitcher, has everybody guessing. Just when the Tigers need him most, Hal is complaining of a "lump" under his left, or pitching, shoulder blade. He warmed up briefly yesterday and returned to the dugout looking gloomy.

"I don't know," he said. "Steve wants me to open against Washington Saturday, and I will if I can."

While the Tigers fully realize the importance of the Senator series, they are not convinced that their pennant chances hinge on it. They point out that Washington, while apparently very close to them in the standing, actually is a lot worse off in the matter of games lost. That, they say, is where it counts.

O.R.F.U. OPENS ON SATURDAY WITH FOUR GAMES

This is the 63rd Season for Popular Loop Formed in Toronto in 1882

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

After standing alone through three wartime seasons, Canada's oldest rugby football league opens tomorrow under peacetime conditions for its 63rd season of continuous operation.

Formed in 1882 at a downtown Toronto hostelry then known as Gus Thomas' English Chop-House the venerable Ontario Rugby Football Union initiates an eight-week, 20-game schedule with games at Ottawa and Windsor— first scheduled senior games in Ontario.

The opening card for the five-team circuit matches Toronto Indians against Ottawa Trojans while Hamilton Wildcats, 1944 champions, meet Windsor Rockets at Kennedy stadium in a game that will mark the Border City's first O.R.F.U. football in 16 years.

Secretary Harold Bailey, key figure in the Union which kept senior football alive in Ontario after the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union folded in 1941, said today he has received optimistic reports about the 1945 opening from all five entries including Toronto Balmy Beach which drew an opening-day bye.

Beaches, slated to open at home Sept. 22 against Ottawa, are coached by popular Ted Reeve, one of Canada's most successful football mentors before he joined the Canadian army in 1940.

Bailey said the O.R.F.U. has "every faith" in the new Windsor entry, which will be coached by Johnny Murray. The Rockets are considered strongest along the wingline where the average weight is more than 200 pounds per player, but new drive was added to the backfield this week with acquisition of Jimmy Farmer, barging halfback with University of Western Ontario and Toronto Argonauts before he joined the navy.

Farmer Joins Windsor.

Farmer, until recently demobilization officer at H.M.C.S. Hunter in Windsor, joined the club with Bernard (Trip) Trepanier, light but experienced lineman who formerly played with Sarnia Imperials.

In Wildcats Rockets will face a championship club admittedly shorn of much power with loss of such standouts as Joe Krol, plunging Paul Peterson, Eddie Remigis and Abe Zonkin. But coach Eddie McLean feels their loss is partially offset by return of George (Scotty) Wright, Big Four veteran before he joined the navy in 1942, and a host of promising high school graduates.

Bill O'Breza, one of the game's best snapbacks, forms the nucleus of a durable front wall which includes veteran middles Reg Bovliard and Reg Wheeler, with two-time O.R.F.U. all-star choice Jimmy Fumio at outside. Al Lenard, leading scorer with Wildcats for several seasons, is expected to join Beaches when he receives his navy discharge.

The game in Ottawa will mark the gridiron baptism of a co-operative plan conceived by Indians whereby all players will receive an equal voice in club affairs. Associated in Indian's much-publicized share-in - the wealth plan and such name players as head coach Harry Sonshine, the Stukus brothers Annis, Frank and Bill, backfield flash Ross McKelvey, Fred Kijck, Don Durno and Jake Gaudaur, plus an imposing list of younger players.

To match the classy Indian backfield coach Arnie McWatters of Trojans has Ed Edwards, vetern Montreal and Ottawa performer; Gord Brennan and Jim Cumming from Indians; and such freshmen prospects as Fern Labrosse, Stan Molinski from Winnipeg, John Kozak and possibly Frank Garvey of Windsor.

"While short of experience, we've got a rugged, fast and cagey team," says McWatters, who will direct the club from the quarterback spot.

BALMY BEACHERS NOT SURE WHO WILL LINE UP

Reeve Don't Know Where Next Team Coming From or Where Last Team Went

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 14 —(CP)—The turnover is so terrific these days at the football training camp of Toronto Balmy Beach Tip Tops that Coach Ted Reeve says he literally doesn't know where his next team is coming from—or where his last team went.

The 42-year-old veteran coach and sports columnist hasn't seen anything like it before. He's not making any predictions about Beach chances in the 1945 Ontario Rugby Football Union race because he hasn't been able to shape a definite starting lineup for the team's opening game here Sept. 22 against Ottawa Trojans.

"Players come and players go," said Reeve. "One night we have a good turnout and things look pretty fair. The next night — pouf!"

The schedule accords Beaches one windfall. While the other four teams in the five club O. R. F. U. open the regular schedule Saturday, Beaches have a bye and will be able to test their strength in an exhibition game against Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Union. By that time, Reeve hopes, the player situation may have crystallized.

Going to University.

Meantime, Reeve already is reconciled to loss of backfielders Stu Scott and Bert Hamm, earlier regarded as possible main props of the half-line. Scott and Hamm will attend University of Toronto and Varsity Coach Warren Stevens has informed Beach officials that all Varsity students will play their football for U. of T.

Despite the speedy player movement, Reeve is pretty sure he can count on Hugh Cuddie, a star in Toronto Senior ranks before he joined the Navy three years ago; Bobby Porter and all-round man Sammy Sward from old Beach teams; young Tommy Ford and Harry Dick whom Reeve described as a hockey player who is also a "good hard runner" at rugby; and speedy Bob Henry who formerly was with Toronto Indians and Toronto R.C.A.F. teams.

Andy Tommy May Play.

In the not-so-sure category are Andy Tommy, veteran of championship Ottawa Rough Rider teams who has promised to play if he obtains his army discharge, and Boris Tipoff, who is attending practices on leave from the paratroops.

Along the line Reeve singles out several who have been turning out for practice "more or less regularly"—Ken Sluman, formerly with Toronto R. C. A. F. Hurricanes and Beaches; Gord Downard, Beach veteran; George Meen from Argos and Varsity; dependable Max Lister; and campaigners like Doug Walden, Bill Brass, Gord Burdick and Harry Donner.

Reeve, who quit coaching in 1940 to join the Canadian army and returned to Canada early this year after obtaining a medical discharge—he suffered a fractured elbow near Caen and didn't report it for months—hopes for reinforcements shortly.

"In fact, we should have quite a good team by the middle of October," he says. And that's as far as he'll go.

TWO PASSENGER STEAMERS

Port Arthur, Sept. 13 —(CP)— The Canadian Pacific Railway is planning the construction of two new passenger steamers for the upper lake service, supplementing that now given by the Assiniboia and Keewatin on the route between Port McNicoll, Ont., and Port Arthur-Fort William, it was learned yesterday.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Some will argue a baseball diamond is no place for a brass hat, but you can't prove it by Lt.-Col. Robert (Hank) Goudy, former Halifax High School principal and veteran of Overseas Service with an ack-ack regiment.

At 38, Col. Goudy finds sport still an exciting business and indulges actively in it by playing second base for the Canadian driving and maintenance school ball team at Woodstock, Ont.

How a Colonel came to be playing second base for an army ball team intrigued Jack (London Free Press) Park, who investigated and discovered that Goudy has been steeped in sport since he was "knee high to a croquet hoop."

Native of Yarmouth, N. S., Goudy played soccer, English rugby and other sports at Acadia University. He got into hockey through is father-in-law, Pop Wheeler, whom he assisted with Moncton Hawks when that great team of the early 30s won two senior titles.

Goudy also was a noted baseball and basketball star in the Maritimes and later played both sports in Montreal, doing an infield stint for Canadian National Railways in the Atwater Park Senior League in the summer and serving with Notre Dame de Grace basketball team in the winter.

He was principal of Morris Street High School when war broke out and hopes to return there when he receives his discharges.

Army life took him to the Pacific Coast as officer commanding an anti-aircraft battery and the hockey bug bit again. He helped organize and manage the strong Victoria Army hockey team which was defeated by Ottawa Commandos in the 1942-43 Allan Cup finals, still wears one of their windbreakers and thinks the team was one of the best truly amateur hockey squads ever to play on a Canadian rink.

The enthusiasm generated by that club, he believes, has done much to stimulate hockey interest on Canada's west coast and thinks the day not far instant when a strong Pacific Coast amateur set-up will operate in hockey.

Now, at Woodstock, his fellow players rate the Colonel as "one of the boys" and ace-high as a player.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

On the Spot.

Columbia Squires are definite-on the spot here on Saturday when they face the Toronto Mount Carmels, Toronto junior OASA champions in the second game of the second round play-downs. The Queen City kids looked good in Toronto so we're told and the Squires will have to be on their their toes over the weekend. Don Boyle who was chased from the box on Wednesday will likely be Jack Boyle's pitching choice and if the kid is at top form, the Squires should pull out with a win . . . The game is scheduled for the Alemite Field and starts at 3.30 . . Go out and root the kids home to a win . . .

• • •

Saturday Not Friday.

This corner was erroneously informed that the Point Anne-Oshawa Mayfairs second tilt was scheduled for Friday in the Motor City. Since then we have learned that the game will be played on Saturday afternoon instead . . . A good crowd of Ox Point rooters are said to be making the trip . . . Mayfairs are a smart team and their fans can't see anything but victory . . . Well, stranger things have happened . . .

• • •

Home Again.

Tempes has fugited a lot since "Gunner" Arnott flitted down the centre ice lanes in these parts, it must be at least twenty-two years ago. Now he is back in the old haunts again as a staid business man with headquarters at Rossmore . . . The Gunner was a brilliant centre iceman when he played junior and intermediate hockey here and later he scintillated for the Preston Riversides in many years of hard campaigning . . . Now he has settled down with the wife and family and will be clicking the cash register instead of hockey goal nets . . .

• • •

Splinters.

Juniors and SWACOS tonight at the Alemite Field at 5 p.m. That should settle some sort of argument although another game will be necessary if SWACOS pull the unexpected and set the kids back on their baseball haunches . . . That, too is possible . . . Vern Goyer failed to poke the pill in Toronto the other dusking . . . Red Durrett of the Montreal Royals, had a taste of the fickleness of John Baseball public the other day . . . The Royal let a high foul trickle through his gove and two Baltimore Orioles romped home with what looked like the turning point in the game . . . For the next innings or two, 14,000 razzed the Montrealer with large yelps of "goat" and other endearing terms contained in the fans' vocabulary . . . But within the next few minutes the scene changed . . . So did the atmosphere . . . Durrett became a champ from a chump in a few seconds when in the ninth innings he poled out a mighty homer to score two mates ahead of him and win the game . . . Such is life . . . Coach Eddie Schrieder is pushing his ORFU youngsters through their paces on the Collegiate Campus these balmy un-football-like nights and the kids are taking to the work like a thirsty chorine to a champagne cocktail . . . So far Eddie has handled the chore alone but in future would like a little assistance from his colleagues on the executive . . . Next practice will be held on Monday at 6.30 of the clock . . . College sports start soon, we hear . . .

A Word in Time.

The deer hunting season starts in these parts on November 12 to November 27 inclusive. Hunters would do well to study the list of "dont's" they receive with their hunting license. If they are followed there should be no accidents. The tips apply to others who use firearms in the woods or anywhere else. Here are some of them . . . Never carry a loaded gun in the car with you—it's against the law . . . Before entering a camp unload your gun and while so doing point the muzzle away from yourself, and your companions . . . Work the bolt, lever, or pump several times after the last shell has apparently been ejected . . . Load the magazine only when you start off from the camp to hunt . . . You can slip a shell into the chamber when you have separated from the others . . . After you load the chamber see that the safety device is set in the "safe" position. There is less danger of accidental discharge and it takes but an instant to release it when necessary . . . Don't stand with the butt of the gun on the ground and both your hands draped over the muzzle; nor drag the gun by the barrel through a hedge or over a fence . . . Never stand a gun upright against a tree, or other insecure rest. Lay it on the ground with the muzzle pointed away from you . . . It is a wise precaution to "open" the action when handling a gun in any way that might conceivably be dangerous . . . Before you shoot, make sure. It might be a man . . . Observe the laws, act wisely and you will have no regrets . . .

The Bata Shoemakers eliminated Doc Empson's Latta nine from the City and District Baseball Loop playoffs last night at the Alemite Field by a 10-7 count. They now await the winner of the Juniors SWACOS series for the loop title. The Batamen arrived with only a few regulars and commandeered coaches, batboys and janitors to round out the squad and at that showed power enough to go on and win.

Dresden Here Monday.

The Dresden junior baseball squad youngster pick of Western Ontario will be here on Monday for the first game of the Ontario Junior Baseball Championship with Speedy 'St. Louis' Belleville juniers. The game which will be played at the Alemite field starts at 3.30. The second game is scheduled for Dresden on Sept. 22.

LAVISH SPENDING BY INDIAN RULER FEATURES SALE

Record-Breaking Thoroughbred Sale of Yearlings Held at Newmarket

By HENRY JAMESON

Newmarket, England, Sept. 14. (AP)—The lavish spending of the Gaekwar of Baroda, ruler of 2,126,000 Indians and the eighth richest man in the world, featured the record-breaking thoroughbred yearling sales here this week.

So far a total of 283 yearling colts and fillies from the blueblood of English horsedom have sold for an aggregate of 474,700 guineas ($2,597,682). The final lot of 36 racing babies will be sold today.

Signifying his intention of becoming one of the Western World's leading turfmen, the 38-year-old Maharaja, who has an income of more than $8,000,000 a year, spent £70,455 ($316,945) for six of the most promising animals without batting an eye.

"When I want something I pay for it", Gaekwar (his family name) told reporters.

He made history when he paid £29,400 for one horse—a world's record price for a yearling race-track doubtful. For this tidy sum he acquired a full brother of Dante, this year's Derby winner.

Gaekwar began running horses in Britain only two seasons ago but he already has a rich stable which turned out a number of money-winners this summer.

LESSON NO. 781

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Believe it or not, you will not work out this puzzle while running for a street car. At a no-trump contract, south is still in the lead and trying to take six of the seven remaining tricks in this deal.

He sees a cinch trick with dummy heart six, which is now top in that suit. He sees a cinch trick with dummy club nine, which is now top in that suit.

He also sees three diamond tricks after the east king of that suit is forced out. So, the idea is to find another trick that can be brought in against any defence the opponents can put up.

Suppose south leads a heart. Dummy would win and return the diamond queen. Or suppose south leads a spade which west wins and returns a diamond. Or suppose south leads a club and west refuses to cover.

In either of these cases, east would refuse to cover the dummy tiffany queen. Thereafter, no play by north and south could stop east and west from taking a total of two tricks. So, that's no good.

Suppose south did not lead a heart or a spade or a club at the beginning of the seventh trick. Instead, suppose he led a small diamond toward his dummy queen.

If east refuses to win the queen with the king, south is shut out. He is unable to get back into his own mitt to take any of his south diamonds. So that's no good, either.

On the other hand, if east takes the diamond queen with the king, he could return a heart. That would have to be won by dummy heart six. That, too, keeps south from getting back into his own hand.

In any of these cases, west will take at least two tricks. So, if south is to take six tricks, he must find some lead not yet named. There is such a lead and resulting plays.

To give you a hint, start by leading the diamond ace. What then?

Prim of Chicago Southpawing The Opposition Dizzy

By JERRY LISKA

In fact, the Bruins' pace-setting rush is exactly paralleled by the renaissance of 38-year-old Prim, a minor league pitching wow who knocked feebly and fruitlessly at big time's door for more than a decade.

Until July 6, just two days before the Cubs moved into the National League lead, Prim appeared destined to fritter away his fourth chance to make the Major League grade. He had a faint 2-4 record and made the Cubs wonder how he ever won 22 games for Los Angeles in 1944.

But then the quiet, unassuming guy in his 16th year of professional competition started southpawing the opposition dizzy. Since July 6, in winning 10 games and losing only three, Prim fashioned an amazing earned run average of only 1.13.

Two of his three setbacks during that span were by the challenging St. Louis Cardinals, but one was a 3-1 defeat in which all three Cardinal markers were unearned and the other a 4-0 reversal when Charley Barrett pitched a one-hitter against him.

Even with his unimpressive start, Prim has a 2.70 earned run average for his 12-7 record. "He's a ball-player's pitcher," praised Manager Charley Grimm. "He has superb control to get the jump on most batters and then he feeds them a wicked curve or screwball."

It's been a long, winding road that carried Prim to the top after joining Greensboro in the Class B Piedmont League in 1930.

Silver-thatched Prim hopes to win "a couple of more important ones" for the Cubs. "No, my arm doesn't get tired," he grinned, "it's been waiting too long for this chance."

LEAFS CASH IN ON OPPORTUNISM TO DEFEAT BEARS

Make Seven Hits Good for as Many Runs in Gaining Playoff Edge

By BILL FREEDMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The flair for opportunism which characterized Toronto's mid-season drive from the International league cellar to first-division ranking and drew grudging admiration from rival managers seems to be standing up well in the post-season Governor's Cup semi-finals.

In the only play-off game last night, the weak-hitting Maple Leafs made seven hits good for as many runs while Luke Hamlin hurled five-hit ball for a 7-0 decision over Newark Bears, whose canny Manager Bill Meyer has ruefully confessed he would rather face any team in the league than Leafs.

The victory before 15,000 fans in Maple Leaf Stadium gave Toronto's "hitless wonders" a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series which resumes in Toronto tonight. Montreal Royals and Baltimore Orioles, deadlocked at a game apiece in a similar seven-game set, clash at Baltimore tonight.

One .300 Hitter.

With onl yone consistent .300 hitter in Ira Houck and the lowest team batting average in the league, Leafs fashioned their seasonal climb from cellar to first division around uncanny clutch hitting and ability to exploit opposition misplays. They demonstrated those same aptitudes again last night, blending timely hits with 12 walks from three Newark pitchers for a decisive result.

"We don't hit much, but we hit when it counts, and we don't leave many opportunities lying around", Toronto Manager Harry Davis told The Canadian Press. The 37-year-old Davis, recently signed to a 1946 contract, has a .363 average for the three games of the current series.

Morgan Sparks Attack.

But it was veteran centrefielder Chet Morgan, with a meagre .142 average, who sparked Toronto's attack last night. Morgan batted in four of the Toronto runs, two with a first-inning home run after Vern Thoele singled.

Georgce Ogorek, who claims good defensive pla yis as vital as sharp hitting, singled Frank Piet and Jim Pruett home in the third to make it 4-0. After that Leafs pecked away at the three Newark twirlers—Jack Maldovan, Ed MacKay and Johnny Farmer—for three singles, using two walks as leverage for each tally.

Bata Shoemakers Enter Finals By Defeating Latta

Losers Had Seven-Run Lead in First Two Innings But Succumb by 10-7 Score

Bata Shoemakers earned the right to enter into the finals of the Belleville district baseball league against either the local Juniors or SWACO when at the Alemite field Thursday evening they came from behind to defeat the Latta nine by a 10-7 score.

Each team previously had a win to its credit in their best of three series, while a third game ended in a draw.

Seven runs in the first two innings seemed sufficient for "Doc" Empson's Latta nine to cinch the game and the series, but the spirit of the Shoemakers was not to be denied. Held to one run up until the 5th the winners then got to Joe Marsh who retired in favor of Hall and before the dust had settled five runs were across the platter. Again in the seventh Bata went to work on Hall to shove 4 runs across and go into the lead.

Not His Night

Peacock started on the mound for the Bata nine but it was definitely not his night as a series of walks combined with timely hits soon saw the Latta nine go into a lead. Muffitt relieved in the third to stem the Latta parade and although he in turn was relieved in the fifth by Stojan, Empson's hopefuls were blanked from the second inning on.

Muffit led the hit parade for the winners, getting two triples and a single, while Peacock and Stojan also hit triples. Haffey clouted a round tripper in the seventh with two aboard to put his team into the lead, while Aquino connected for a brace of singles and a double. Callahan for Latta got a double and a triple.

Teams — Latta: McCreary cf; Carleton, Parks 1b; Empson 3b; Bleekman lf; Jarrell ss; Lawrenson 2b; Marsh and Hall p; Callahan c and Thompson rf.

Score by innings —

Latta	340	000	00—	7,	7
Bata	100	050	0x—	10	14

Umpires: Townsend, plate and Thomas, bases.

Quebec League To Retain Status Of Amateur Loop

Montreal, Sept. 14. (CP)—The Quebec Senior Hockey League will retain its amateur status during the coming season, it was learned officially last night following a meeting between senior group President George Slater and Mervyn (Red) Dutton, president of the National Hockey League.

Earlier reports said the six-team Q.S.H.L. was interested in operating as a professional league, with a working agreement with the N.H.L. The present announcement gave no details as to any agreements which may have been reached at the meeting between the two league presidents.

SYLVANUS APPS HAS APPLIED FOR DISCHARGE

One of Hockey's All-Time Stars Will Join Leafs if it Comes in Time

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Sylvanus (Syl) Apps, one of hockey's all-time stars, is anxious to get back to the game soon, but just when will depend upon how quickly he gets his discharge from the Canadian Army.

Apps, who joined the Army as a private two years ago, now is a lieutenant stationed at Vernon, B.C., as an instructor at an officers' training school.

In a telephone interview between Vernon and Vancouver, the rangy centre who was near the top of the scoring lists all during his seven years with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League said that he has applied for a discharge.

"If it comes in time, I'll be playing hockey, otherwise I won't be," Apps added. "When they deal with it, that's when I'll get out. I have no idea how soon it will be."

Apps who has won both the Calder and Lady Byng trophies has been giving military instruction to cadet officers for the last six weeks since he was transferred to Vernon from Brockville, Ont.

Syl figures it will take a "little while" for him to get in shape for N.H.L. play again as he is a "little overweight and has not done much puck-chasing in the last 2 years.

Besides his regular instructing chores, Apps has been active in track meets at Vernon.

His specialty is the pole vault. Syl placed first in this event at the British Empire Games in London in 1934 and he represented Canada in the 1936 Olympics as a pole vaulter.

Syl gave an indication of his versatility by placing second in the 12-pound shotput event at a track meet at Vernon yesterday.

Aerial Invasion Smashed Japan Says Industrialist

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 13 — (AP) — Japan was beaten to her knees before surrender by the Allied 'aerial invasion' which virtually paralyzed industry and so completely blockaded the islands that 7,000,000 Japanese probably would have starved to death if the war had continued another year.

This was reported by seven prominent industrialists at a press conference yesterday.

They said that Allied air raids decided the outcome of the war and that Japan was defeated before the first atomic bomb was dropped. Only the militarists and industrialists, however, knew they had been beaten. The former would not admit it and "we industrialists were too cowardly to speak out."

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 14

"That's what I've been telling myself. One can count on so little nowadays. And love is so hard to find. Real love I mean. A man who wants to marry and protect you. Who will be kind to you. . ."

Back in bed Folly lay staring into the darkness with thoughtful eyes. Imagine Hazel doubting her right to happiness which had come to her so unexpectedly. Folly tried to imagine how she would feel if she were engaged to the count. He was such a fascinating person and so thrilling. He would take her away from this monotonous environment. It would be the escape for which she had been longing all her life. Hazel hadn't even mentioned the captain's looks nor how tall he was. She had talked about his intelligence and kindness. Naturally one would expect a husband to be kind. But imagine falling in love for such a reason.

Folly told herself she was happy for her sister's good fortune but in the back of her mind was a gnawing unworthy resentment of the fact that some one else was now the centre of attention.

Hazel was not working that week and most of the telephone calls which came seemed to be for her. Flowers arrived twice but they were not for Folly and the card neatly sealed in a small envelope was proudly saved for Hazel by the approving Chan.

It certainly made a difference who sent the flowers Folly thought and waited with an impatience which grew hourly for the count to telephone.

When he finally called at the end of the week she discovered that he had been out of town.

Eric Nicer Than Usual.

"Well why didn't you tell me you were going?" she asked childishly.

"I had no idea it would matter to you," Eric assured her. "But now that I am in the city again how about dining with me this evening?"

They had not had dinner together often as usually at night he was engaged. Folly looked forward to seeing him with anticipation made the keener by their separation. She was in a soft melting mood such as she thought Hazel must have felt befor the captain's proposal, and as if sensing her emotion, Eric was even nicer than usual.

Although he disliked crowds he took her to the Palace to dance beneath the brilliant sparkling lights of the Rose room. Life seemed very sweet to Folly that night. For once Eric's mind was not preoccupied. He was intent on nothing but pleasing her. And late in the evening as they were dancing he murmured. "You are so lovely, Folly! All the time I was gone I couldn't get you out of my mind."

A Proposal

She did not answer, only pressed the hand holding hers, but after they had seated themselves at their table he leaned across it to say, "A man has a right to some happiness, if he can find it. Life is short. Surely I am entitled to something."

The words were almost the same that Hazel had used as if he were trying desperately to convince himself. But Eric's country was not at war. Sweden was one of the few not involved. Even Folly knew that but before she could ponder the matter Eric suddenly uttered the words she had been longing to hear.

"I'm leaving San Francisco soon but I can't go without you, darling! You are so young and beautiful. So untouched! Will you marry me, Folly?"

The words Count Eric Gustavus Lindstrom was repeating were precisely those Folly wished to hear. It was her own reaction to them which disappointed her. Her feeling was one of triumph with little emotion. Something inside her was saying, "This is what you wanted. What are you going to do about it?" Her unexpected reluctance to promise to marry Eric alarmed her. At the same moment she realized that he was taking her acceptance for granted. He was going on with his plans exactly as if she had answered him.

"I am going to leave San Francisco soon," he confided, glancing over his shoulder as if he feared some of their mutual friends might hear. "For reasons of my own I think it wiser not to say anything about our engagement to anyone yet. We can send announcements after we are married if you like."

Folly said nothing but the idea of not being able to tell any of her friends took much of the thrill out of it. Being a bride had been her life-long ambition. Hearing the other girls cry, "Oh, Folly, you lucky person!" Exhibiting her small store of linens and handsome lingerie. Telling her plans. Listening to her sisters murmur, "Yes, Folly is going to be married. Strange isn't it that she should be the first in the family although she is the youngest."

"What is it, darling? Why do you look so far away?" the count asked, as if suddenly conscious of the fact that she had not spoken.

Folly recalled herself with a faint smile.

"It's sweet of you to ask me to marry you," she said.

"SWEET of me? Good God, I am mad about you," Eric cried passionately. "You must have seen that. With all the responsibilities and appointments I have to keep. . . Why do you think I have spent so much time with you?"

Love and Duty.

"But I didn't think you had been with me very much," Folly said childishly. "So often you have to leave me because of some more important engagement. You have seen much more of Susan and the Whitcombs than you have of me."

"Ah, but that is in the line of duty," Eric assured her. "Mrs. Whitcomb has been my social sponsor, but you, my lovely little Folly, are my pleasure."

"I don't see why a person who is a count in his own country should have to consider such things," she pouted adorably. Now that she was sure of him, she found herself wanting to prove her power.

Folly Asks for Time.

"Of course you don't see," Eric admitted, smiling. "There are many things you need not bother your pretty head about. Take my word for it, darling that it will be wiser to say nothing of our plans until they have been accomplished."

It was then that Folly surprised herself by saying gently, "But I haven't said I'd marry you yet, Eric! I must have time to think it over."

"You. . . what?" he demanded.

"You haven't met my sisters yet," she reminded him. "And there are a lot of things to be considered. I don't think I could be married very soon. I'd have too much shopping to do."

"But that is what I want to avoid," he insisted. "Why have a lot of fuss? We can fly to Reno for our wedding and go on to New York where you can shop all you wish. We shan't be able to take much baggage with us you know. Most of it will have to be sent."

"I don't like to be hurried into the most important act of my whole life," Folly objected.

"All right," the man said trying to sound reasonable "Say you have to think it over. How long will it take?"

Answer in a Week.

"I don't know exactly," she teased. "But I will give you some kind of an answer in a week."

For the first time since she had met the count, Folly was daring to be herself. That spoiled, dimpling, pleading little girl who managed to wheedle almost anything that she wanted from grandpa and later her sisters and Chan.

But Eric did not seem either amused or intrigued by this. Later that night, wide awake in her own bed, she wondered how she had had the courage to oppose him. Away from Eric she began to appreciate the honor he had done her. He had actually asked her to marry him and even if she could not boast about it to Susan and the Whitcombs they would be bound to know about it afterward.

It didn't seem possible, Folly thought delightedly, that all her dreams should be coming true. It was only that she wanted to savor them to the utmost that she had begged for time. The precious hours of antitipation and planning a wedding meant so much.

Always she had imagined herself clad in white, swathed in tulle, kneeling on a satin cushion to repeat her marriage vows. Even if they had a small, unostentatious wedding, she would insist upon that. With Eric tall and handsome and dark.. . No, not dark. Eric was fair and his eyes were ice-blue.

Troubled Dreams.

She must be almost asleep because the man she had pictured kneeling beside her had been Hilton Wood. And later in her troubled, restless dreams he changed to Bruce Potter, wearing his uniform and grinning.

"What are you doing here?" she cried. "I am marrying the Count, not you."

"Oh, hadn't you heard?" he laughed. "I am the count."

Folly wakened with the feeling of his hand over hers, tender and protecting, as it had been the night of the blackout. In her dream she hadn't cared at all that it was Bruce instead of Eric which proved how silly dreams were, Folly decided, opening her eyes to see her coffee cold as a stone upon its tray. Chan must have brought it hours ago. And there was no use asking for more.

Ah well, what did it matter. Before many weeks passed she would be a countess. Probably with a personal maid of her own who would draw the curtains and serve her mistress with a deliciously fresh breakfast at whatever hour Folly chose to waken.

No longer uncertain of her answer she decided to tell Eric as soon as he telephoned that she had made up her mind. Meantime she would make plans to have him meet her sisters. Glancing at her watch Folly saw that it was almost noon. Marta would be at her office and Hazel at the hospital. And tonight was Marta's night to work with the Fourth Interceptor Command. It was going to be difficult to arrange an evening which would suit everyone. Eric was so often busy with his everlasting social engagements. But after all, Folly chuckled, she would just tell him he would have to arrange to spend at least one evening with the family of the girl he intended to marry.

Kellogg's ALL-WHEAT

. . . formerly "Canada's most versatile athlete" in all sports. Played on many championship teams! Now "Ace" is our leading all-round coaching expert.

	RIGHT	WRONG
BODY LEAN	Your body should lean well forward—your head in a natural position.	Running with body in upright position with head thrown back, chin well up.
STRIDE	Drive hard when foot hits ground—bring foot forward quickly. Keep driving!	Letting feet kick back and up slows you down—wastes your strength and energy.
FINISH	Take deep breath. Lunge at tape with chest—arms down and well back.	Taking a jump at the tape, when finishing a race will only slow you down!

WHOLE WHEAT helps build strong muscles. Kellogg's All-Wheat is whole wheat in its most delicious form. It's flaked, toasted, ready-to-eat! Get some at your grocer's tomorrow.

Plans Mile Dive Off Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, Sept. 14—(CP) — Otis Barton, New York explorer and photographer who was associated with Dr. William Beebe when the latter took his bathysphere one-half mile below the ocean surface off the coast of Bermuda in 1934, plans to make a record-breaking dive in 1947.

Now on his own, Barton hopes to make a one-mile dive in a sphere he has named the benthoscope. Construction of the sphere will be started next March, and it is expected to be completed by February 1947.

Barton has already arrived in Bermuda to pick up the main winch used on Beebe's bathysphere. He said the benthoscope will be equipped with wheels to make it more mobile and allow wider examination of the ocean floor. The wheels also will act as shock-absorbers in event of a collision with an underwater object.

The explorer expects to make his first trials off the Bahamas, and then explore the sea bottom off Bermuda.

Barton, who served four years in the United States Navy until his recent discharge photographed American actions and landings in the Philippines and in New Guinea.

Although he drew little publicity after the Beebe dive in 1934, Barton was actually the one who developed and constructed the bathysphere and took the publicized under-water picture of marine life. After that he commenced designing his benthoscope, but private business and then the war prevented him going ahead with his plan.

Tall and soft-spoken, Barton believes there is a great world under the sea to be explored, and he hopes his promised one-mile dive will provide opportunities for minute examinations of as yet unknown sea life. He hopes to link up with various scientific institutes in the United States to aid in his work.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Small index losses were boarded for all groups and sales at 1 p.m. were 522,000 on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Buffalo Addison lost slightly after a strong opening, up 23, and Quemont, down at the start, rallied at noon to post a 35-cent gain. Sliding gold issues included Beattie, recording a new low at $1.41, Cochenour, off 15, Sullivan and Chesterville, down five and Central Pat, off four. Elder improved, up two after morning losses.

Industrial sales continued slow with few changed. Dominion Foundries lost fractionally.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—The stock market stubbed its collective toe today after 11 successive sessions without a single average decline. Prices slipped after a fairly active opening. While dealings dwindled subsequently, losses of fractions to two points or so were widespread near the fourth hour.

Prominent on the setback were U.S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union "A", Goodyear, U.S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Lockheed, Anaconda, General Electric, Du Pont and Texas Co. Easiness was the rule among Canadian issues at mid-day. Dome Mines was off 1-4 and Lake Shore 1-8. Hiram Walker eased 3-8.

16,000 UNEMPLOYED IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Some 16,000 persons are listed as unemployed in Montreal at present, after placing of more than 12,000 men through National Selective Service since the end of the war with Japan, N.S.S. figures indicated today.

Of the 16,000 unemployed about 6,000 have registered for unemployment insurance, while N. S. S. still has 6,600 openings for unskilled workers and 2,700 open for skilled craftsmen listed. About 50 per cent of the unskilled openings offer wages below 50 cents an hour.

SPRINGBOK AIR SERVICE

Cape Town—(CP)—At the suggestion of British authorities it has been decided to call the Johannesburg-London air service the "Springbok" service. The date of the opening of the service is not known as "various questions remain unsettled." South Africa's plans are at an advanced stage.

R.C.A.F. STATION, ROCKCLIFFE, WINS ATHLETIC SHIELD

Monster Track and Field Meet and Tennis Championships Held at Trenton Station

Trenton, Ont., Sept. 14 — R.C.A.F. track, field and tennis champions of No. 1 Air Command were crowned yesterday in the final day of the Command Athletic Meet, at R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton.

Stations in both Quebec and Ontario were represented by the contestants, who opened the sports pageant with a parade in colorful athletic garb, headed by the R.C.A.F. pipe band. Air Vice-Marshal E. E. Middleton, C.B.E., took the salute and greeted the service athletes, bidding them carry their enthusiasm for active participation in sports into civilian life. The A.O.C. later presented crests to the winners of the events.

In the track and field contests, airmen from R.C.A.F. Station, Rockcliffe, massed 12 points to nose out A.F.H.Q., Ottawa, with 11, and No. 1 Wireless School, Mount Hope with 9.

In the Women's Division, A.F.H.Q. collected 10 points to edge Mount Hope's 7 and No. 1 Air Command Headquarters 4.

The A.F.H.Q. tennis team captured all the doubles events, men's, women's and mixed, to complete the honors for the Ottawa contingent. Men's singles champion was Cpl. Lando, of Camp Borden, while Cpl. Lilian Jacobs of No. 1 Air Command Headquarters took the women's singles.

Sgt. Scotty Rankine of No. 4 Release Centre, Toronto, veteran long-pacer, had no trouble sweeping the mile and half-mile running events.

New command championship records were set in the men's 100-yd dash by LAC. Fairhurst of No. 5 Radio School, Clinton (10.3 seconds), and in the women's 75-yard sprint by Sgt. Gertsman, of No. 1 Wireless School, Mount Hope (9 seconds).

Results in other field events: 220-yd, LAC. McDonald, No. 1 W.S., Mount Hope; 440 yd, PO. Howe, R.C.A.F., Rockcliffe; 440 relay, A.F.H.Q., Ottawa; High jump, LAC. Young, No. 12 E.D., Montreal; broad jump, PO. Valliere, No. 1 S.F.T.S., Camp Borden; shot put, FS. Blais, No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton; pole vault, FS. Sheunnenan, R.C.A.F., Rockcliffe; discus, FS. Blais, No. 6 R.D. Trenton. Women's division: 300 yd. relay, A.F.H.Q.; high jump, LAW. Van Nice, R.C.A.F., Mountain View; broad jump, Sgt. Gertsman, No. 1 W.S., Mount Hope.

Judges for the meet included Tommy Armour and Chas. F. Higginbottom, with S. W. Steel acting as chief starter.

Delicate Operation Brings Normal Sight To Edmonton Girl

A month ago Miss Lillian Cameron of Edmonton called at the office of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. She looked at the fireplace in the hall; the deep chairs in the lounge; the pictures on the wall; the young blind girl operating the switch-board, but she did not see them clearly. Lillian Cameron was on her way to New York to undergo an operation which might restore vision to her clouded eyes.

The other day Miss Cameron called at the offices of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind again, and admired the pattern on the chair coverings; read the inscriptions on the framed photographs on the wall; took in the beauty of the old marble fireplace; learned the features of friends who had only been voices to her before. Lillian Cameron could see again.

In Canada there have been only one or two instances of the successful transplantation of a section of the cornea. The operation consists of cutting out a very small section of the cornea of a sightless eye, and replacing it with a clear section of cornea from a good eye, which has been removed from another person. It can only be done in cases where the damage to the sightless eye is of such a nature that a portion of the cornea can be replaced without laying the foundation for the growth of a scar tissue which would leave the patient no better off than he was before. Of the thirteen thousand blind people in Canada, there are only a very few who can hope to have their sight restored through such an operation. Lillian Cameron is one woman in a thousand.

A Possibility.

Eye specialists in Edmonton told Miss Cameron that there was a possibility that surgical skill might restore her sight. She got in touch with The Canadian National Institute for the Blind in her own city and arrangements were made for her trip to New York. She is now home again "catching up," she says, "on the long years of sight seeing that I missed."

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is not only interested in finding employment for blind people; in teaching them the things that make it possible for them to enjoy some of the comforts and pleasures of life; in supplying them with books; in maintaining them in residences, but it is also engaged in a constant program of preventing blindness and in endeavouring to arrange for medical and surgical treatment which might restore or improve vision.

The appeal which The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is now making in Belleville and Hastings County should receive the support of every person who enjoys the blessing of sight.

Gnr. H. Reid Glad Days of Button Polishing Over

Gunner Harold Reid stepped off a Toronto bus yesterday, a broad smile wreathing his face and a shiny button and a piece of paper in his hand.

"There it is," he smiled, "an official receipt for over five years' service in the army. You fellows can call me 'mister' now. Gone are the days of fatigues and firing parties, kitchen police and parades, salutes and button polishing. I am now a buck private in the Civilian Fusiliers."

The ex-gunner who arrived home from overseas some time ago enlisted with the 47th Field Battery and served with that unit throughout the war, in the 5th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment.

He went overseas in 1941 and trained in England until 1943 when he went to Italy with his unit. He served there for upwards of 18 months, then went to France, Holland and Germany.

A softball and baseball star before going overseas he became associated with the artillery squad that eventually won the Canadian Softball Championship of Italy. On the team which was managed by Sergt. Don Thomas were several other Belleville athletes including Leo Goyer, Lum Carson and Walt Gerow.

Among his row of campaign ribbons is the laurel wreath of the "Mentioned in Despatches" but the ex-gunner shuts up like the proverbial clam when queried as to how he won it. That is a secret that he hasn't divulged as yet.

He has two brothers in the service, both outstanding athletes, one of whom is arriving home on Saturday aboard the troopship "Scythia."

MACARTHUR

A Former War Lord

Koizumi was on the list of more than 40 former war leaders, Black Dragon Society members and brutal prison commanders and guards whom the Japanese undertook to round up.

Supreme headquarters gave no reason for suspension of Domei, and the order came without warning.

In his statement regarding the occupation, Gen. MacArthur explained that the "paramount consideration of withdrawing" and evacuating former prisoners of war and internees, plus the necessity of getting occupation troops into position without the precipitation of "calamity" prompted the methods taken.

The demobilization of Japan, withdrawal of prisoners and placing of occupation troops, he said will be complete by the middle of October.

TRENTON

R.C.A.F. Kiltie Band Stationed At Trenton Station

Trenton, Sept. 14 — With an objective of $1,800 the Salvation Army opened its home front appeal in Trenton this week. Last year the citizens contributed two thousand and Captain Holmes feels confident that this record will be repeated. The Army during the war operated a Red Shield Centre in Trenton for service men and women and over 50,000 registered and enjoyed its facilities. The Centre is still in operation.

Would Ban Gambling

In view of the criticism heard throughout Canada concerning operation of gambling devices at carnivals held for charitable purposes, Trenton Rotary Club has named a special committee to investigate the possibility of an alternative. The Club holds a Carnival annually and many of its members are known to frown on games of chance and what have you. This committee has been instructed by President R. F. McInnes to make a report at the end of the year.

Kiltie Band Here

The RCAF Kiltie Band, from Centralia, the only kiltie unit to be attached to the RCAF, was welcomed in Trenton this week. The members of the band, which has been posted at Trenton RCAF Station, were the guests of Trenton Rotary Club at luncheon and gave a brief program on Front Street. A pipe band is certainly something new in these parts. The bandmaster is Flight Sergeant Tom Carroll. The band played at Wooler Fair on Wednesday afternoon and was given a rousing welcome.

To Hold "Shell-Out"

Trenton Kinsmen will on Hallowe'en Night hold its second annual "Shell-Out," which takes the place of youngsters calling at homes and stores as has been the custom for years. This year ninety per cent of the proceeds will be devoted to community work. The Club will use the funds still on hand for Milk for Britain, that is the money which the citizens gave for this purpose. The Club operated a very successful fresh air camp for underprivileged children this summer.

With Norman Banford as chairman, a committee will be set up on Friday evening of this week to handle the collection of clothing for people in distressed countries as part of the national campaign. There will be a meeting of the committee in the Town Hall.

3 Burmese Turned Over

First men turned over to the Allied authorities by Japanese today were three Burmese and one Dutchman:

Thein Maung, former Burmese Ambassador to Japan; Josias Van Dienst, Dutch radio announcer in Tokyo; Aung San, organizer of the Burmese "independence" army; and Pratap Mahendra, leader of the Burmese "Aryan" army.

Others in Japanese custody were to be turned over to the Allies whenever specified, an 8th Army spokesman said.

Those seized were not identified by name but headquarters was informed they ranged from former Tojo cabinet members to prisoner of war guards. High among those Gen. MacArthur permitted the Japanese to go out and get was Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, instigator of the Bataan death march, who is reported to have fled to his home on an island off Honshu.

Koizumi a Suicide

The suicide of Koizumi, 61, followed that of Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, of the Kwantung army clique, who was not on Gen. MacArthur's list but decided to eliminate himself when Gen. MacArthur dissolved Imperial headquarters. Sugiyama was in several cabinets as war minister.

Informed sources said Koizumi, former army surgeon general, was a close henchman of Tojo and "lied to the people in repeating promises which thte entire Tojo government made".

From Seoul, Korea, Philip Potter of the Baltimore Sun papers reported that Lt.-Gen. John R. Hodge of the American Occupation Army there has dismissed two Japanese officials, Noboyuki Abe, governor-general, and Tadao Nishihiro, director of the police bureau of the governor general. Potter said Gen. Hodge made known his action at a conference of about 1,000 Korean delegates, many of which had criticized sharply the use of Japanese functionaries.

London, Sept. 13 — (Reuters)— The Daily Express said today that Field Marshal Ernest Von Busch, 60, German commander at the siege of Leningrad, died two months ago in a British prison camp hospital at Nottinghamshire and was buried in a military cemetery at Aldershot.

London — (CP) — London has been wetter than usual this year. To July 31, rainfall of 25.46 inches was recorded. The average is 24.3 inches a year.

Mayor McKibbon Requests Welcome Of H.&P.E. Regiment Held at Picton

Picton, Sept. 14 — Picton's Mayor, G. N. McKibbon, is hopeful that the Department of National Defence may be persuaded to have the welcome for the First Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held in Picton instead of at Belleville, as has already been planned.

In a letter to Hon. Douglas Abbott, Minister of National Defence, Mayor McKibbon stated, "There is a strong feeling of resentment in the town of Picton and the County of Prince Edward regarding the decision to have the home-coming of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment disembark at the City of Belleville to receive official home-coming welcome in that city.

"I would remind you that back in 1939, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was mobilized in the Town of Picton. As a direct result, the citizens of Picton went 'all out' to extend their fullest hospitality to the men of the regiment. They opened their homes and developed all possible means of entertainment for the troops while they were still with us. In the intervening years, they have closely followed the exploits and gallant action of these men—'Our boys,' as we came to regard them.

"Up to the present, these veterans returned to Canada, and to their home county, individually. Thus no opportunity has been afforded our citizens to extend anything in the nature of a public reception to mark their return from overseas."

The Mayor stated that he felt the town should be given the opportunity of extending the welcome to the unit, and that Belleville would receive the honor rightly due this county, inasmuch as this was recruited as a rural regiment. As to the transportation question, the Mayor pointed out that "this was not considered an obstacle at the time the regiment left Picton in 1939."

The Mayor expressed the hope that it "is not too late for official action on your part to ensure the rights of Picton in this instance, and that you will be pleased to consider a diversion of the present formative plans and authorize the official dispersal of the regiment in the Town of Picton, so that our citizens may come into their own and be afforded an opportunity to pay homage to this gallant body of men."

Second Case of Polio.

A second case of "polio" is reported here. Charles Hunt, local taxi driver, was stricken on Tuesday and taken to the Isolation Hospital in Kingston, where his condition to date is satisfactory, although there is some paralysis of the lower part of the body. The local Medical Officer of Health pointed out that this is the season for "polio" and that there were usually one or two cases each year. No epidemic of the disease is expected here, and the two cases were quickly isolated.

The Day in Parliament

TODAY

The Commons will continue debate on the Throne Speech.

The Senate will not sit.

YESTERDAY

The Commons heard Finance Minister Ilsley announce a meeting on meat rationing; J. M. MacDonnell (PC —Muskoka-Ontario) urge the government to tell people what to expect; P. H. Ashby (SC — Edmonton East) ask for abolition of income tax on income of $5,000 a year and less; Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg north) suggest a bill of rights for minorities; Fred Rose (LP — Montreal Cartier) urge that Canada place its uranium under a security council.

The Senate heard Senate House leader Wishart Robertson say the single transferable voting system was worth considering; Senator Iva Fallis (PC — Ontario) criticize the government on the labor situation; Senator A. C. Hardy (L —Ontario) say Liberal senators would be "glad to welcome" Progressive Conservatives to their side of the House.

Layoffs Paralyze Ford Factories Throughout U.S.

Industry-wide Stoppage Threatened by C.I.O. Union

Detroit, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Paralysis swept the Ford Motor Company's immense factory system scattered throughout the United States today, throwing 50,000 employees out of work. Across the river at Windsor, Ont., 10,000 Ford employees were also on strike.

The Ford Company, halting all production of automobiles, trucks, tractors and engines, tossed the blame for the shutdown on strikes against plants which supply Ford with parts.

Answering by cracking down hard on the striking workers of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company, principal supplier of Ford parts, the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) made its first move toward disciplining wildcat strikes.

In return, the union pitched an ultimatum at the automobile industry, demanding a 30 per cent wage increase for their members. Backing its demand with the threat of an industry-wide labor blockade, the union chose for its test case the vast General Motors Corporation.

Layoffs of Ford workers, 40,000 of whom were employed in plants in the Detroit area, pushed to nearly 80,000 the number of workmen forced into idleness by strikes and resultant layoffs.

Ford plants were forced to close because of "crippling and unauthorized strikes" against suppliers, said Henry Ford II, executive vice-president.

Naming Percy Llewellyn as administrator of the Kelsey-Hayes unit, Local 174, the U.A.W.-C.I.O. executive board meeting at Flint in effect told the 4,500 strikers to get back on the job. The board empowered Llewellyn, a former president of Ford Local 600, U.A.W.-C.I.O., to take over affairs of the union and to call a meeting of the strikers this weekend.

R. J. Thomas, U.A.W. president, said the union would negotiate the dispute—the discharge of three minor union officials—after work was resumed.

Walter P. Reuther, U.A.W. vice-president, stated that General Motors was chosen for the test case in the union's wage demand because it is the "biggest corporation." He asserted General Motors "dominates the industry and calls the tune on industry policy matters."

Thomas pointed out that this does not mean that every worker would receive a 30 per cent hike in his current earnings. He said the industry's wage disbursements would rise 30 per cent. The general increase, he explained, would be split, after union deductions, on a mathematically equal basis among all the workers, regardless of their skill or present earnings. He said the industry can "easily absorb a 30 per cent increase" in wages.

(CP Staff Writer)

Windsor, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Possibilityof a decision this weekend on a general strike in the automotive and allied industry in the Windsor area as an outgrowth of the Ford Motor Company of Canada walkout was suggested today by union leaders.

A meeting of the committeemen, plant chairmen and stewards of Amalgamated Local 195 of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) which has some 8,000 members in 30 plants employing about 12,000 workers has been called for Sunday night to discuss the Ford strike, called Wednesday by U.A.W. Local 200.

U.A.W. members in 12 of the local 195 plants have already voted in favor of strike action. The largest is Chrysler Corporation which employes about 3,000 workers. The other 11 have a payroll of more than 3,000.

The possibility of joint action of Local 195 members with the estimated 10,000 Ford production which employees about 3,000 be discussed Sunday at a meeting of the joint policy committee of the two locals.

Local 200 pickets, who have barred the 1,000 Ford office workers from the huge plant for two days, maintained their close patrol of the 17 entrances to the 245-acre property this morning.

This is the semi-monthly payday for the office workers and they were speculating late yesterday as to whether they would be able to draw their salaries.

Treasurer Refused Entrance.

At about 8.30 a.m. D. B. Greig, company treasurer, and Wallace Clark, personnel manager, drove up to the picket line and were stopped. Mr. Greig asked to see a policeman and Sergeant Alex Innes was called.

"Do you refuse to open this picket line?" Mr. Greig asked.

"Yes, I do," said the sergeant, adding that the procedure was for Mr. Greig to interview the deputy chief of police who would take up with the union the question of his admission to the plant. Then the two company officials drove away.

Roy England, Local 200 president, said in a statement late last night that President M. H. Featherstone of Local 240, which has about 500 members among office employees, told Robert Allan of the company office staff Thursday that officers of Local 200 had assured co-operation in any arrangement to pay office workers.

Wallace H. Clark, personnel manager of the company, said that "I don't see how it is possible to arrange payment of salaries when we can't get into our offices." A company source said no offer had been received from Local 200 about arrangements to pay office workers.

Standard Time Will be Resumed On September 30

Ottawa, Sept. 15—(CP)—Canada will revert to standard time Sept. 30, State Secretary Martin announced Friday in the Commons.

The clocks will be moved back at 2 a.m., local time.

The decision to revert to "old time" coincides with similar action in the United States. Mr. Martin had told the Commons earlier this week that there was a great desire to synchronize Canadian time tables with those in the United States.

With the return to standard time, Canada is expected to revert to the prewar system of observing daylight time during summer months with standard time effective during the winter.

Introduced as a power-conservation measure, compulsory daylight time was first enforced in certain sections of Ontario and Quebec in 1941 and the following spring was extended to the whole country.

The Government promised to revert to standard time when war demands eased.

SOVIET DEMANDS INMEDITERRANEAN QUITE EXACTING

Considerably Beyond Anything the U.S. And Great Britain Had Anticipated

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 15 —(AP)— A reliable report that the Soviet Union has made territorial demands in the Mediterranean area considerably beyond anything the United States and Britain had anticipated was interpreted in diplomatic quarters here today as an indication of Russia's determination to become a Mediterranean power.

The Soviet proposals arose, authoritative sources said, during a discussion of Italy's colonies by the Big Five council of foreign ministers yesterday.

Diplomats speculated that the Russian demand referred to the strategic Dodecanese Islands strung across the entrance to the Aegean Sea and guarding the approaches to the Dardanelles.

The report of the surprising Russian move came shortly before the council issued a communique announcing that all nations which warred against Italy would be asked to submit in writing their peace treaty proposals.

Reshuffle Positions.

The establishment of Russian influence in the Mediterranean would reshuffle power positions in that area, already a source of Anglo-French manoeuvring.

Developments already confronting the foreign ministers on Russian Mediterranean aims include:

1 — The Russians are demanding increased control of the Dardanelles, which belongs to Turkey. It is reported that they are suggesting the internationalization of the straits by power on the Black Sea shores — Russia, Romania, Bulgaria and Turkey.

2 — The Russians asked and received full participation in the international administration of Tangier, strategic port at the western gateway to the Mediterranean opposite Gibraltar.

Iran Situation Difficult.

3 — The situation in the Russian occupied part of Iran is becoming increasingly difficult. The Iranians have sent notes reminding Britain, Russia, and the United States of their pledge to remove all troops from Iran six months after the war. So far neither Russia nor Britain have moved to withdraw although Britain professes they are eager to do so as soon as they are sure the Russians are getting out.

4 — The Russians are insisting on primary influence in the Balkans and a crisis which makes the Greek government's position tenuous is brewing in Athens.

The Big Five foreign ministers were scheduled to meet again this afternoon and may hold another session Sunday.

HARBOR OF BREMEN OPEN FOR FIRST TIME

Bremen, Germany, Sept. 15—(AP)—Bremen's harbor, one of the major Allied targets in the bombing of Germany, was officially opened to Allied traffic this week for the first time in six years, it was announced tonight.

Gen. Homma Accepts Responsibility For Acts of Cruelty on Death March

Tokyo, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, whose Japanese soldiers tortured and killed Americans and Filipinos during the 1942 "Bataan death march," appeared in police custody today and said he would give himself up to Gen. MacArthur.

He was high on Gen. MacArthur's list of 47 "wanted" men — a list being accounted for with dispatch.

The No. 1 man, Hideki Tojo, is in custody at an army evacuation camp, recovering from a bungled suicide attempt. Yesterday four more of his war-making cabinet, presented themselves at U. S. 8th Army headquarters in Yokohama.

They included two of Tojo's closest henchmen in enforcing his dictatorial reign — Lt.-Gen. Teiichi Suzuki, former minister without portfolio as well as president of the Influential Cabinet Planning Board, and Okinori Kaya, former finance minister.

The other former ministers surrendering were Michiyo Iwamura, justice, and Sekiya Ino, agriculture and forestry.

Another who appeared was Shozo Murata, one time Japanese ambassador to the puppet Philippine Republic.

It was understood Jose P. Laurel, puppet president of the Philippines, will be taken to Yokohama shortly by plane from an unspecified point.

Among men on the wanted list turned over by the Japanese were an army captain, Dr. Tokuda, suspected of conducting death-resulting experiments on Allied prisoners of war at Shingawa Camp. The camp commander also was surrendered.

Without explanation, one name was removed from the list. It was that of Koki Hirota, Japan's foreign minister who signed the anti-Comintern Pact, and has been suspected as a member of the Black Dragons, a terroristic society.

The once arrogant Homma had a brief explanation for the "death march."

Turkey Said Agreeable To Joint United Nations Bases, Not Joint Soviet-Turk Bases

By JON KIMCHE

London, Sept. 15 — (Reuters)— The Turkish government opposes the idea of joint Soviet-Turkish bases in the Dardanelles but it is prepared to agree to the setting up of joint United Nations bases, it was understood today.

The views of the Turkish government on subjects under discussion between it and the Soviet authorities have been laid before the council of Foreign Ministers.

Turkey was said to have made these points:

1. The Turkish government is not prepared to have joint Soviet-Turkish bases in the Dardanelles nor is it prepared to lease bases there to the Soviet Union. It is, however, prepared to agree to setting up joint United Nations bases in which the Soviet Union, Britain, the United States and France would participate equally.

2. The Turkish government is not prepared even to discuss the so-called rectification of the Soviet-Turkish frontier with a view to ceding the territory of Kars and Ardahan to the Soviet Union.

3. The view has been conveyed to London that the Turkish government considers this a matter of life and death and would not submit to any decision arrived at without its consent on the subject of Armenian frontier changes.

In this connection it is noted that the Turkish military authorities have so far made no move to demobilize the Turkish army, still at its wartime strength of about 1,100,000 men.

Another complication has arisen in the meantime through the reported Kurdish uprising in Northern Iraq, north of the Mosul oilfields and close to the Turkish frontier. A large part of the Turkish army has been concentrated near that region although so far there has been no sign of trouble on the Turkish side.

Considerable concern has however been caused by the sparse reports from Iraq about happenings there. Though there appears to be a severe censorship on all news, it seems that the Kurdish insurgents have scored some successes against Iraqi regular troops and that Iraq's reinforcements have been rushed north.

MAY RELAX RULES FORCOOKEDMEATS ILSLEY DECLARES

Adjustment of Coupon Values for Meat Used in Sausage, Bologna, Possibility

Ottawa, Sept. 15 (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley said yesterday in the Commons that there "may be some possibility of an adjustment of coupon values or something like that" for meat trimmings that are usually processed into sausage, bologna and cooked meats.

Replying to J. H. Harris (P.C.-Toronto Danforth), Mr. Ilsley said that meat rationing regulations provide for trimmings by making coupon values for them when sold by anyone at wholesale or retail.

"Trimmings are usually processed into sausage, bologna, cooked meat, and so on, and the consumer coupon values of these processed meats are more favorable than coupon values of fresh or processed meat cuts," Mr. Ilsley said.

"Apparently it is not working out satisfactorily, according to the questions which have been asked today and the items that have appeared in the press, and there may be some possibility of an adjustment of coupon values or something like that."

Mr. Ilsley said earlier no representations had been made to him with respect to the spoiling of some meats because of the reintroduction of meat rationing.

Replies to Member.

He was replying to Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) who said he had been informed that cooked meats were spoiling as a result of the reintroduction of rationing. Mr. MacInnis asked if consideration would be given to the removal of certain meats from the list of rationed commodities.

Mr. Ilsley said he would draw the question to the attention of rationing authorities.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons he had proposed that a radio appeal be made to farmers to spread cattle deliveries to the Toronto Stock Yards over a week, rather than glut the market each Monday. This would ease the strain on the weighing capacity of the market.

Want Cattle Spread.

"The suggestion," he said, "is to have the farmers spread their cattle over the week and we have asked the president (of the stock yard) to go on the radio along with our man and make an appeal to the farmers. We think that is the proper way to deal with the quetsion."

Mr. Gardiner was replying to questions from Mark Senn (P.C.-Haldimand) who asked that the stock yard carry overs be not allowed to accumulate as they resulted in depressed prices to the producers.

KINGSTON DEALERS PROTEST

Kingston, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Kingston and district retail dealers decided at a mass meeting here last night to send a telegram to Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, outlining their objections to meat rationing and their determination to close shop if other butchers and meat dealers throughout Canada should strike.

22 ARE KILLED WHEN ARMY PLANE CRASHESINFLAMES

Stops to Refuel at Kansas City and Crashes 14 Seconds After Take-Off

Kansas City, Sept. 15 — (AP)— Twenty-two persons were killed early today as an army transport plane crashed in flames 14 seconds after leaving Fairfaix airport.

Only three of the 24 military personnel aboard the plane were removed alive from the flaming wreckage and one of those, Sgt. Bernard C. Tucker, Etna, Calif., died at a Kansas City hospital. A survivor said all three members of the crew perished.

The plane was bound from Newark, N.J., to the west coast and had stopped to refuel.

Army officials at Fairfaix airport withheld names of the passengers and immediately placed the wreckage under a military police guard.

The plane had just crossed the Missouri River when it exploded and crashed, one witness said.

"It looked like the entire sky lit up," said William F. Maxwell, a tourist hotel operator, nearby, "but I only heard a small explosion."

Wreckage of the huge transport was scattered over a wide area but most of the fuselage fell on tracks of the Burlington Railroad about five miles north of Kansas City's business section.

British Exports Up in First Half Of Present Year

London, Sept. 15 (Reuters) — The British Board of Trade announced yesterday that Britain's exports for the first half of 1945, most of them going to liberated European countries, exceeded those for last year's corresponding period by £42,000,000 ($189,000,000) representing an increase of a third over last year's figures.

Bulk of the gain, the statement said, was embodied in the huge quantities of margarine, biscuits, textiles, tobacco and copper goods shipped to Europe.

But, it was pointed out, these figures represent only the increase in value, that the total listed volume of exports still represents only 2-5th. of the volume Britain exported in 1938.

A fifth of total exports from January until June this year went to the United States under reverse lend-lease and to Russia in special machinery and equipment consignments. France, Belgium, Spain, Czechoslovakia, Turkey and Greece figured among European recipients.

The British press displayed the figures prominently today, and while admitting the totals augured well for the future, emphasized the vast discrepancy between the country's imports and exports and the fact that 1945 figures still are far from pre-war levels.

CLAXTON CLAIMS GOVT. NOT CAUGHT "FLAT-FOOTED"

Says Canadians Have Less Cause to Worry Than Any Other People in the World

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 15. (CP)—Canadians have less cause to worry about a housing crisis and other peacetime transition problems than any other people in the world, Welfare Minister Claxton said yesterday in the Commons.

Intervening in the Throne Speech debate after a number of opposition members had criticized the government's reconversion plans, Mr. Claxton cited the proposals placed before the Dominion-Provincial conference last month by the Federal Government as evidence it was not "caught flat-footed" without a plan when hostilities ended.

From the opposition side and immediately after Mr. Claxton spoke the House heard youthful Maj. E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) say ministerial assurances that there were bound to be difficulties and that the government was acting were not good enough.

"We certainly know that the situation is not all that could be desired", he said. "But we feel more strongly than that and we want to know whether the government feels more strongly than that.

"I am pointing out to the ministers that up to this date their actions have not inspired in the minds of the people of the country the belief that the government feels more strongly than that".

Three Announcements.

The House listened sympathetically to Harry Leader (L—Portage La Prairie) veteran member and cancer sufferer repeat the appeal he has made in previous sessions for assistance to Dr. J. R. Davidson of Winnipeg in having his cancer treatment investigated and accepted.

Mr. Leader said he personally benefited from the treatment and challenged the soundness of decisions of medical committees which have reported adversely on the Davidson treatment.

SAYS POLAND WANTS ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE

Paris, Sept. 15 (AP)—Marian Nazkowski, chief of the Polish military mission in France, last night said Poland wanted to make a new military alliance with France against any aggressor which might threaten either nation. Poland had such an alliance at the start of the Second Great War.

Mass Escape Designed to Enable Certain "Key Men" to Reach England

Ottawa, Sept. 15 — (CP)—The incredible story of 15 months of painstaking effort which preceded the ill-fated escape of 76 Allied air officers from Stalag Luft 111 in March, 1944, was told to The Canadian Press today by Flt. Lt. A. Keith (Skeets) Ogilvie of Ottawa.

By "sheer luck" Ogilvie was one of 12 survivors to return to the camp after 50 others, "including eight Canadians," were shot "at random" after the recapture.

(At the time, London reports said six Canadians were among those shot in cold blood by the Nazis.)

Ogilvie, who went overseas to join the RAF in 1939, recently returned to Canada and yesterday celebrated his 30th birthday — his first at home in seven years.

The mass escape was designed as a screen to enable "certain key men" to reach England, he said. Of three who eventually got to Britain, he believed at least one was one of these key men.

Some 100 tunnels were started and discovered before success was achieved by the most elaborate of all, a 350-foot tube, three feet high, three feet wide and 30 feet below the surface, which had such refinements as a small wooden railway, electric lighting and a pressure ventilating system.

Co-ordinating the work, which involved at least 500 prisoners and the simultaneous construction of three tunnels more than 200 feet long, was an R.A.F. escape expert known even to all but a handful of his fellow prisoners only as "Big X."

While work was in progress an elaborate warning network of 200 prisoners kept watch above ground and served the dual purpose of disposing of sandy soil from the tunnellings. The others worked in relays of two or three at the "faces" and in passing back the excavated material for disposal.

The two greatest problems were avoiding detection by German seismographs and soil disposal, he said. The excavated sand, lighter in color than the top-soil, had to be disposed of a handful at a time during sports events, meal parades and "any other time whea the earth was being scuffed up."

The three major tunnel projects were nick-named "Tom, Dick and Harry."

"Tom" was nearly 300 feet long when discovered by a guard who accidentally dropped a hammer near the entrance and became suspicious of the hollow sound. "Dick", was uncovered by a Nazi spotter.

"Harry", escaped detection because of its depth—30 feet below the surface—and the clever entrance, contrived by hinging the concrete slab under a stove in one of the huts. This was closed while work was in progress.

After nine months of work and several heart-breaking cave-ins, "Harry" was completed March 23 and that night the "break" came off "like a military operations". Unfortunately, through a miscalculation, the exit came up in a cleared space and the 77th man to emerge was caught by a guard and the alarm given.

Ogilvie himself was among 32 caught and handed over to the Gestapo at Gorlitz in Silesia.

"They told us that some would be shot, but we thought it was the usual Nazi bluffing. For several days they picked out groups of six or eight at random. It was just luck that I wasn't among them".

Instructions came from the Air Ministry, by means still secret, to discontinue further mass escape attempts. But, "as a pastime" the prisoners had another tunnel, leading to the guards' quarters, nearly completed when they were moved to another camp to avoid the Russian steam-roller.

Hurricane to Hit Florida Coast This Afternoon

Residents Barricade Homes In Readiness for Storm

Miami, Fla., Sept. 15 (AP)— Grady Norton, chief forsecaster of the United States weather bureau here, said at 9:50 a.m. E.D.T. today that Miami is definitely going to miss the worst of it" as a great hurricane sparked by winds estimated at 150 M.P.H. screamed toward the south Florida coast.

"I believe we (Miami) are going to get out of it with slightly less than hurricane velocity, but we'll get a hard blow," he said.

"According to latest aerial reconnaissance reports, it looks like our forecasts hit it right on the nose—and that the core of the storm will swish over the keys somewhere between Key Largo and Key West."

"It should strike the keys between 2 and 3 p.m. with winds well over 100 M.P.H."

Hurricane warnings—ominous black and red flags—were hoisted along the Florida west coast from the Keys to Naples as the great wind whirled on after battering the Bahamas.

The Miami weather bureau in an advisory at 5.30 a.m. E.D.T. ordered extension of the hurricane warnings that have been flying along the peninsula's east coast southward from Fort Lauderdale along the Keys to Dry Tortugas since yesterday.

At that time the storm, paced by winds of more than 100 miles near the centre and winds of hurricane force over a considerable area, was located about 200 miles southeast of Miami, and was continuing its west-northwestward course.

Winds will continue to increase over Southern Florida as the core of the storm approaches, and will reach hurricane force from Fort Lauderdale and Naples southward this afternoon, the advisory said.

Before dawn most residents of the Keys, mindful of the 1935 blow that cost more than 500 lives, had sped northward by bus lines, army buses, or private car to homestead on the mainland, or south to shelter at Key West.

Nearing Nassau

Winds of full hurricane intensity were recorded shortly after midnight at Georgetown, the Bahamas, Nassau, capital of the British Crown Colony, reported 32-mile winds which were increasing.

Before daylight Miami, barricaded against perimeter winds of full hurricane force, got a foretaste of what the day would bring in rain squalls that whipped the city with 40-mile gusts.

Six Army hurricane observers who flew to the "eye" of the disturbance said its swirling winds were of such velocity that it offered the treat of a potential major disaster if it struck a city.

Disaster workers reported to their posts during the night throughout the southern half of Florida. Emergency transportation, ambulance and medical supplies were made ready. Hundreds of boats moved to safe havens in sheltered rivers and coves.

Thousands of persons were evacuated from danger spots on the ocean.

Airplanes and their crews were flown to areas outside the threatened zone and air transport schedules into Miami were cancelled today.

Youths Slug Grocery Clerk But Soon Caught

Peterborough, Sept. 15 (CP) — Two youths who police said slugged an 18-year-old grocery clerk and beat up a butcher in an attempted hold-up of a downtown grocery store were captured last night after a 25-mile chase by automobile and on foot.

Police said the youths were John McIntosh and James N. Woodstock, both 20. Woodstock's address was given as (155 Niagara St.) Toronto.

Officers said the men entered the store, said "this is a robbery" and slugged clerk Morley Geragthy, who fainted. Samuel Trude, a butcher working nearby, grappled with McIntosh while Woodstock fled to an automobile parked across the street.

Trude followed the men to the car after McIntosh joined Woodstock and was beaten about the head, officers said. The car then drove away and city and Royal Canadian Mounted Police took up the chase through district side roads.

The R.C.M.P. car lost the trail when the men ditched their automobile before a swamp. Later city police caught the men on the other side of the swamp as they sought to hitch a ride from a passing car.

One of the men carried a sawed-off shotgun, police said, adding charges will be laid today.

National Council Of Women Support Meat Rationing

Ottawa, Sept. 15. (CP)— The National Council of Women has sent a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King offering, in effect, support for the meat rationing program.

The telegram, signed by Mrs. Laura T. Hardy, read:

"In view of the recent publicity with regard to meat rationing the National Council of Women of Canada feel that it is their duty to assist Canada in implementing her pledge to the distressed people of Europe as long as it is necessary."

70 ARRESTED IN SPAIN

City and District News

45 LOCAL FARMERS MAKE TRIP WEST

Forty-five local farmers and farmers' sons made up the Belleville district complement of harvesters for Western Canada this year and all have now departed for their respective destinations to work in the wheat fields.

The men left Belleville in three groups of 15 harvesters, on the 7th, 8th and 11th of September, and were destined for Wilkie, Sask.; Yorkton, Sask., and Vermilion, Alberta. Ages ranged from 19 to 38 years, although it was reported by local Selective Service officials one application was received from a man 76 years old.

Under existing regulations, transportation warrants are issued the men for their trip to the West, while they pay $10 as their return fare. Return deadline is Nov. 15th.

Horseshoe Pitching Contest to Be Featured at Fair

Under the chairmanship and supervision of Will Leslie, a "barnyard golf" tournament has been arranged for next Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Leslie has donated several valuable prizes which will be offered with those presented by the Fair Board.

Several teams have already entered the contests and champion pitchers from all parts of the district will be seen in action. There is plenty of room for more entries and those desirous of entering the tournament should get in touch with Secretary Erle Denyes or Mr. Leslie.

The fair opens on Monday for its three-day presentation, and official ceremonies will take place in front of the grandstand at 8 p.m. with Warden J. Fred Wilson officiating.

Painting by Local Artist Will Be Auctioned at Concert

In an effort to raise funds for service work in the local YMCA the Belleville Y's Men's Club have undertaken to produce a high-class concert during the middle of October. A feature attraction at this concert will be the auctioning of a genuine oil painting done by Belleville's own artist Ken Sharpe.

The painting which was specially done for the Y's Men this summer depicts an autumn brook scene and is quite colorful. This painting as well as other works by Ken Sharpe will be on display in James Texts window all this week.

The auctioning of the picture in combination with a concert is something new and novel here for raising funds, and will be done during an intermission of the concert by Belleville's well-known auctioneer Norman Montgomery.

Harbor Survey By Govt. Engineer Is Completed

Governmental survey of the harbor has been completed and a brief will be placed before the Departments of Public Works and Reconstruction during the present session of the Dominion Parliament, Mayor Frank Follwell stated today.

A federal engineer has been in the city for the past three weeks working with the Harbor Commission here in conducting the survey of the harbor. It is expected that brief will contain recommendations for a complete dredging of the harbor; improvement of docking facilities and the possibility of constructing new docks.

Mayor Follwell and Alderman Fred Chamberlain, chairman of the Harbor Commission, accompanied by George H. Stokes, M.P., in Ottawa, will discuss the report of the survey and possible action with representatives of the government departments interested in the matter.

The survey of the harbor by a government engineer is the first to be conducted over a lengthy period of years.

Orchestra Fails To Appear Until A Late Hour

A large crowd of people were disappointed at the Hume Arena last night when the Great Lakes Military Band, a girls' organization failed to put in an appearance until a late hour. It was nearly eleven o'clock by the time the belated performers arrived and by this time a large number of people had their money refunded and had departed homewards.

Transportation difficulties had also prevented an advertised street parade by the Military Band part of the show, but officials stated the delay was unavoidable and could not be helped.

The members of the show rushed proceedings as soon as possible after arrival and pouring rain did not help matters. Two of the performers, clever girl artists kept the crowd in a dancing mood with selections on a marimba accompanied by piano until the other members of the cast had got into costume.

The stage orchestra of the organization proved to be a tuneful zippy aggregation of young girl musicians and they showed plenty of versatility both in solo and ensemble numbers. They play "sweet" as well as "swing" and many of the latest popular numbers as offered by named bands were aired by the orchestra.

The belated floor show was productive of some clever numbers with girls in cowboy and other costumes showing marked ability along musical and vocal lines. A chorus line did several routines while instrumentalists and vocalists along with comedy, rounded out the show.

Saturday Market

As result of heavier offerings, prices of tomatoes and green corn declined noticeably on the local produce market Saturday morning with the former being offered at prices from 20 to 30 cents the basket and corn at 25 to 40 cents the dozen ears.

The market was well attended both from the standpoint of vendors and by city housewives.

All manner of seasonal vegetables were offered in quantity with bunched vegetables fetching a dime the bunch. Cauliflower sold up to 35 cents, with peppers bringing 35 and 20 cents the doz. Potatoes sold at 55 cents the peck; squash up to 15 cents each, Spanish onions at 90 cents the peck and pickling onions at 20 cents a quart.

Blue Damson plums were offered quite freely at 95 cents the six-quart basket with Lombard plums fetching the same price. Elberta peaches were offered at $1.19. Only a few apples were displayed and brought the usual 40 cents the half peck.

On the inside market eggs held at previous prices of 48 cents for first, 45 cents for mediums, with pullets bringing 38 cents the dozen. Fowl was quickly picked up with prices ranging from around 35 cents for older fowl and up to 40c for friers. One farmer offered live Pecan ducks at $5 the pair.

Muskmelons sold up to 35 and 40 cents with watermelons bringing up to 75 cents each

Fifteen lots of young pigs were held at from $8.50 to $10 each.

Obituary

M. B. AUGER
(North Bay)

North Bay, Sept. 15—(CP)—M. B. (Mike) Auger, 47, immediate past president of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, died in hospital here Friday.

Mr. Auger, representative here of the Canadian Fairbanks Morse Company, was active in hockey circles for many years, serving as an executive member of the N.O.H.A. and Central Group convener.

Surviving are his wife and four children.

Born in Marmora, Ont., he attended the University of Ottawa. He married Miss Louise Gignac of Penetang, Ont.

REV. WILLIAM BROWN
(Madoc — Hamburg, N.Y.)

Madoc, Sept. 15 —(Special)— The Rev. William Brown, well known here, died at his home in Hamburg, N.Y., on Thursday, Sept. 13th., after an illness of three years' duration.

The late Mr. Brown, who was about fifty-three years of age was born in Ireland, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown. His mother died some years ago. He served in the First Great War and at its close he came to Canada and studied for the Presbyterian ministry at Queen's University, Kingston. Upon being ordained he served at Morrisburg and Jarvis. Later he was called to a church in Buffalo, N.Y., and remained there four years, when he went to a church at Hamburg, N.Y., where he served for fourteen years.

Mr. Brown married Miss Olive Allan of Madoc and he and his wife and family spent their holidays here and in the vicinity usually every year. While here he was of great assistance to the local ministers by taking their services while they took vacation.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Olive Allan of Madoc; two daughters, Mrs. Walter (Aileen) Polly of Bowmanville, and Miss Anna Jean Brown, at home; his father, John Brown, Hamburg, N.Y.; two brothers, Melville Brown, Oshawa, and Allan Brown of Hamilton.

Fraternally Mr. Brown was a member of the Masonic Order.

The funeral took place Saturday, Sept. 15., at Hamburg, N.Y. His brother-in-law, Mr. Field Allan of Madoc, is attending the funeral.

LOOMIS REEVES
(Madoc)

Madoc, Sept. 15 — (Special) — Loomis Reeves died at his home here on Friday evening, Sept. 14th. He was in failing health for some time.

Born in Madoc the late Mr. Reeves was in his 56th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Reeves. All his life was passed here and he followed the trade of a blacksmith.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Florence Spry; one son, FO. MacKenzie Reeves, reported killed over Germany in March of this year.

LATE MISS CATHERINE AIDE
(Carlow Township)

The body of Miss Catherine Aide, Carlow Township, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Friday morning, was forwarded from the Pinkston Funeral Home this morning to McArthur's Mills, near Bancroft, where the funeral will take place on Monday.

LATE MRS. L. G. (BARRAGAR) IRELAND

The funeral of Mrs. Theda A. Ireland, daughter of the late Lt.-Col. and Mrs. David Barragar of this city, and wife of Mr. Lyle G. Ireland, of New Orleans, Louisiana, took place from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church St., at Victoria Avenue, on Friday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

Mrs. Ireland died on February 28th. last at New Orleans.

LATE EDWARD FLUNDER

On Friday afternoon the funeral of Edward Flunder, late residence, 18 Donald Street, took place from the Grant Funeral Home, 68, North Front Street. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Rev. T. S. Russell, minister of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Walter Cowles, Milton McGhee, Arthur Miles, Edward Belnap, Walter Turner and Harvey Murray.

Many friends were present and the floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

Band Concert in Hume Arena To be Held Sunday Afternoon

Terminating the annual convention of the Canadian Bandmasters Association which is now in session at the Hotel Quinte, will be the grand band concert being presented at the Hume Arena on Sunday at 3.30 p.m. by the Belleville Municipal Band.

The band will be augmented by distinguished musicians from all parts of Canada and the U.S.A. and many outstanding conductors from both countries will wield the baton during the program.

The program is featured by original numbers composed by members of the C.B.A. who are at present in the city and who will conduct the first playing in public of their own compositions.

Outstanding Conductors.

Some of the outstanding conductors who will be seen during the concert are Captain J. J. Goulet, silver-haired artist who is now in his 76th year. Capt. Goulet formed and conducted the first symphony orchestra of Montreal. Then there is Lieut. Commander A. E. Zealley, former Belleville bandmaster who recently retired after a distinguished career in naval musical circles. He founded the Royal Naval School of Music in Canada. Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, New York, one of the United States outstanding conductors, will also wield the baton during the concert. He has just concluded a triumphal appearance in Toronto where he conducted the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in a series of brilliant concerts.

Among the original compositions which will be played here for the first time are: "Dauntless Heroes" by Laidlaw Addison; "Men of the North" by W. S. Shepherd, and "Les Tesserau de Montmorency" by Decelles, director of music of the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto.

The general public is cordially invited to attend the concert which will begin at 3.30 in the afternoon and not in the evening as formerly reported.

Three Students Of B.C.I. Win $400 Scholarships

Three of last year's students at Belleville Collegiate who graduated in their senior matriculation courses with high marks have been awarded the Dominion-Provincial Students' Aid Scholarship of $400 to apply to their university tuition, it has been announced by the Department of Education.

The three students to win the awards were Ronald Raymer, son of Mrs. B. M. Raymer, 28 Everett St.; Vincent Massey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Massey, 130 Bridge St., West, and Miss Jean Huntley of Sutton, Ont., a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Sweetman, Hillside St. The last two students are 18 years old, while Ronald Raymer is but 17.

Although it is the first scholarship or award ever won at the Collegiate by Ronald he rather humorously admitted to the Ontario Intelligencer that he "picked a good one." He expects to enter Toronto University in the near future where he will study chemical engineering.

The other two local award winners have made their applications for entry into Queen's University, where Vincent Massey expects to take his Arts course, while Miss Huntley has her mind set on Medicine although she is also interested in the Arts course.

Winning a scholarship is nothing new for Vincent as during his term at the Collegiate he missed only one year in drawing down an award. Miss Huntley has been living with her aunt and uncle in Belleville for the past several years, where she has been attending the Collegiate.

Ft. Frontenac Band Presents Fine Concert Here

A large crowd that filled all available seating capacity and a lot of standing room at the armouries Friday night, had no trouble in believing that the No. 3 District Depot, Fort Frontenac Military band is one of the outstanding soldier musical organizations in this part of the country.

The concert was part of the general program of the Canadian Bandmasters Association now in annual convention here at the Hotel Quinte. Another grand concert will be offered at the Hume Arena on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 by the Belleville Municipal Band augmented by outstanding musicians from all parts of the country. Distinguished guest conductors will also be present.

The Fort Frontenac band under the direction of Bandmaster W. Jesse, WO. 1 offered a program that sparkled with musical versatility, individual artistry and collective beauty.

A stirring march "Ceremonial" by Alford opened the concert which was fololwed by the overture "Morning, Noon and Night." The beautiful strains of the Valse "Espana" was next heard and the popular idyll "Glow Worm" followed.

Brahms Hungarian Dances, Nos. 1 and 2 brought out the versatility of the band while the popular "American Patrol" and the "Military Tattoo" found the soldier musicians perfectly at home.

The marches "Old Comrades" and the "British Grenadiers" rounded a musical treat that was enjoyed by all who heard it.

Members of the Canadian Bandmasters Association and their wives were present and voiced appreciation of not only the concert but of the ability of the military bandsmen and their conductor. A feature of the concert was the conducting of one of the numbers by Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, N.Y., one of the United States most prominent conductors.

Belleville Fair Program

Monday — Gates open at 9.00 o'clock, and placing of exhibits will take place. Judging of Dairy Products; Grains and Seeds; Roots and Vegetables; Fruit; Plants & Flowers; Ladies' Work; Fine Arts & Handicrafts; Domestic Science; and School Exhibits will be done on Monday.

Monday Evening—Fair will be officially opened by Mr. J. Fred Wilson, M.P.P., Warden of Hastings County, followed by band music, supplied by the Belleville Municipal Band, and Bill Garden's stage show, consisting of many new acts.

Legion Branch Holds Meeting

A very enthusiastic meeting was held, there being six new candidates initiated, these men recently returned from overseas.

The business part of the meeting was very interesting, as the reports of the different committees were very encouraging, especially the financial statement and the report of the recent Bingo held a few nights ago in the Hume Arena. Chairman Charlie Jeffs reports that a bigger and better Bingo is being arranged for October. The Chairman of the Sick Committee gave his report and made an appeal to all members to help a comrade who needs blood transfusions, to donate their blood type A-2. This comrade is a veteran of the last war and Veterans' guard during this war. At present he is a patient at the Belleville hospital. Anyone who would like to offer their blood, please phone the Secretary George Ellarby 1350-J.

Comrade E. H. Liddle was appointed Publicity Chairman and member of the executive committee for the Legion.

The President, Comrade Smith, turned the meeting over to the 2nd Vice President, Comrade J. W. Yanover, for general business. A general discussion on all Veterans' affairs took place during the next half hour, several comrades taking part.

Must Still Secure Permits From Selective Service

Contrary to a seemingly general impression amongst the public relative to the removal of the "freeze order" effective September 17, Selective Service will not be entirely eliminated on that date, it is pointed out by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the Belleville office.

Mr. Reed stated that according to regulations it will still be necessary for male and female help to secure permits from the Selective Service office and also to give and work out seven days' notice if they have been employed for more than thirty days with their employer. In the case of persons who have worked less than thirty days, they can be given, or give, notice of separation on regular forms and leave immediately.

Also it is still against regulations for male persons to apply for work without being in possession of a permint from the local Selective Service officer, and it is against regulations for an employer to talk to a male person with intent to hire unless the applicant is in possession of such a permit.

Until the regulations are completely abolished the above restrictions are still in effect and must be complied with after September 17.

Home and School Clubs to Hear Dr. S. R. Laycock

Members of the Home and School Association for Belleville are in for a rare treat on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, when Dr. S. R. Laycock, well known author of books dealing with mental hygiene and currently director of the division of education and mental health of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, is scheduled to speak in this city.

Dr. Laycock will speak on topics yet to be announced in the auditorium of the Belleville collegiate.

A native of Marmora, Dr. Laycock was educated in rural schools there, at Madoc high school and Albert College in Belleville. He graduated from the University of Toronto with his B.A. degree where he was awarded the Prince of Wales Gold Medal for general proficiency.

Throughout his life closely associated with the teaching profession, Dr. Laycock has shown as one of his major interests the field of parent-teacher co-operation. In this he has spoken far afield and has written widely on the topic. He was the first president of the Saskatchewan Provincial Federation of Home and School clubs and was recently elected president of the Canadian Federation of Home and School.

Child psychology and the psychology of adolescence is another of Dr. Laycock's main interests and on these topics he has written widely, while education of exceptional children, children who deviate markedly from the average, either mentally or physically, has also received his attention.

In addition to his present university duties, Dr. Laycock as director in mental health, recently toured the nine provinces of Canada giving nearly 100 addresses on various aspects of the effects of the war upon children and adolescents.

His talk in Belleville is certain to be of exceptionl interest the local association is expecting capacity audiences during his two-day appearance.

Motor Car Thefts Keep Police Busy In Eastern Ontario

A small epidemic of automobile thefts is keeping city and provincial police in the Eastern Ontario district busy these days with thefts being reported from Belleville, Napanee and Kingston.

Over the night two autos were reported stolen in Belleville, while yesterday two trucks were stolen in Napanee and Provincial Police here recovered another auto which had been stolen in Kingston.

The auto owned by A. H. Coe, 127 Foster Ave., was reported stolen from its parking place at Gilroy's service station on Dundas St., while a second auto owned by George Fitzgerald, 4A Bridge Street, East, disappeared from Holway's service station, at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets. The first car was recovered by city police this morning with ignition wires cut and the gas tank drained.

Local Provincial police recovered the Kingston auto with its gasoline tank dry a few miles west of Belleville on the Trenton highway, but the two Napanee vehicles had not been reported recovered.

Otherwise police circles were comparatively quiet. A Hydro pole on South Foster Ave. was reported broken off at the base by a driver who failed to remain at the scene, while two trucks were in a minor collision on Station St., near the Cannifton Road intersection.

FRANKFORD

Willet Moyle 87 Years Young

Frankford, Sept. 15—Mr. Willet Moyle, one of Frankford's oldest residents celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday on Saturday, Sept. 8. In spite of his advanced years Mr. Moyle and his brother Bert, who will celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday later this month keep house for themselves as well as always tending a small stock of hens, pigs and three or four cows.

Mr. Moyle is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moyle and has lived his entire life in this village. His wife, who was a Miss Smith, passed away fourteen years ago. He has one daughter Mrs. Geo. Flindall and one grand-daughter Rosemary Flindall, who live at Batawa.

Mr. Moyle began work at the age of fourteen as a cabinet maker in his father's shop. Later he spent twenty-six years working in the paper mill as pattern maker. Although he does not carry on active business he is still very active at his lifetime work of cabinet making, He has a dressing table and chest of drawers nearing completion in the new waterfall design, which would do credit to a much younger man. With over seventy years experience in the trade he says he is still learning.

GEN, HOMMA

Asked why the surrendered, bedraggled remnants were compelled to march for days and nights by foot to prison camps, during which they were denied food and water, were beaten and some killed, Homma said:

"The Japanese army lacked conveyances at that time."

He professed not to have seen any evidence of abuse, but the now retired officer said:

"I am ready to take responsibility for any act of my subordinates."

He faces the likelihood of trial as a war criminal as do Tojo, and his cabinet members, including Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, the navy minister who sent carriers to attack the United States fleet at Pearl Harbor, on December 7, 1941. Shimada is in custody.

More than 25 per cent of the "wanted" list already are detained.

Two committed suicide this week, along with a Japanese field marshal not on the list; another was listed as a suicide in 1943; and a fourth purportedly died in 1937.

Homma earlier had been reported in flight to his ancestral home on Sado Island off the west coast of Honshu opposite Niigita at the time the list was issued.

At Uno Station in northeast Tokyo, Homma told Al Dopking, Associated Press correspondent, he learned from "a friend' 'that he was wanted and headed for Tokyo—but four Niigita police had him in tow and four Japanese gendarmerie met him at the station.

DEATHS

REEVES — At his home in Madoc Village, on Friday, September 14, Loomis Reeves, in his 56th. year. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Sunday, September 16th. Service in the home at 2.30 p.m. Interment Lakeview Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

DAFOE — In loving memory of a dear dad, Ernest J. Dafoe, who passed away September 15, 1942.

We are thinking of you today, Dad.
As we've thought of you in the past.
Picturing you in our memory
Just as we saw you last.
If all the world was ours,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see that smiling face of yours
Come smiling through the door.

LEWIS — In proud and loving memory of my fiance, Flying Officer Duncan Lewis, who gave his life while engaged in operational tours overseas, September 15, 1943.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

Ruth Mitchell.

BLACKBURN — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. E. Blackburn, who passed away September 16, 1942.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There's not a day, dear mother,
I do not think of you.

—Ever remembered by son, David.

Canada Fairly Well off Despite Crop Shortages

By HAZEL DEAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Canada's horn of plenty wasn't up to its pre-war capacity this first peace-time harvest season since 1939 but an informal survey of Canadian centres by The Canadian Press indicated the country would escape an auterity thanksgiving.

Housewives might have to cherish coupons to fit family dinners into the new meat-rationing pattern but poultry was generally plentiful and in most centres, vegetable supplies were sufficient to fill the bill-of-fare on meatless days.

Local shortages cropped up from the Maritimes to the west coast. Family bakers and wholesale confectioners worried about the shortening shortage in the Maritimes and a similar situation prevailed in Manitoba. Ontario housewives put away empty fruit jars as the plum and pear harvest drew to a disappointing close. Cucumbers disappeared from Saskatchewan salads. Imported pears drew five cents each from fruit-hungry Montrealers.

Vancouver dealers offered such exotic pre-war attractions as Portuguese anchovies and tinned eastern Canadian lobster, promised sale of tapioca, cocoanuts and pineapple any day—but customers sought vainly for a good Canadian onion.

Signs of Normal.

Food supplies in the three Maritime provinces showed signs of returning to normal, wholesalers reporting adequate stocks of meat and vegetables in most districts.

Meat stocks in Quebec were average, although anticipation of the recently-announced meat ration resulted in heavy demands on retail stores early in the month. Potatoes were in fair supply despite a light crop and harvest of local tomato crops brought a decline in prices. Carrots, beets, onions and beans were plentiful. Fresh fruits were scarce and expensive on the Montreal market. Early varieties of peaches were available but there were no plums or pears. Imported pears retailed at five cents each in Montreal.

Ontario housewives found they could buy as much beef and lamb as their coupons allowed but pork products were scarce and veal out of season. There was an abundance of green vegetables in most sections of the province, carrots in heaviest supply and potatoes adequate. Fruits, however, were scarce, the peach crop only 60 per cent of last year's harvest. Home canners wrote plum jam and preserved pears off their recipe book for this year but were comforted by the promise of a good grape crop, estimated at 10 per cent better than last fall.

C. O. D. DERIVATION

The term "C.O.D.," meaning collect on delivery, originated in 1841 when a shipper asked an express company to collect payment for the goods from the consignee at the time of delivery.

WOLF PEACHES

Centuries ago the tomato was called the "wolf peach" because it was thought to be poisonous. The so-called "wolf peaches" were thrown to the wolves to destroy them.

Jap Premier Asks U.S. to Forget Pearl Harbor

Tokyo, Sept. 15 (AP)—Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni called upon the people of the United States to forget Pearl Harbor as Japan builds "a completely new, peaceful" nation, in an exclusive statement Friday to The Associated Press.

"American has won and Japan has lost," the premier wrote in answer to a letter from The Associated Press. "The war is ended. Let us now bury hate. This has been my policy since organization of the present cabinet.

"People of America—won't you forget Pearl Harbor? We Japanese people will forget the picture of devastation wrought by the atomic bomb and will start entirely anew as a peace-loving nation."

The premier, whose entire public life heretofore has been spent in the army, promised that "the Japanese people will for the first time enjoy freedom of oppression of the militarist clique" as the freedom of speech and of the press are gradually extended.

The prince recently publicly solicited a letter of criticism and suggestion from the people and promised an answer whenever possible. The Associated Press took him at his word and sent a letter containing 10 questions.

Husband's Statement Admitting Guilt Read at Inquest

Winnipeg, Sept. 15 —(CP)— A coroner's jury verdict returned Thursday night after an inquest into the death of Mrs. Eileen May McCallum said she died last Saturday night at her home in suburban Weston from "injuries received when asphyxiated . . . by a person or persons unknown."

Her husband, Cpl. Fred D. McCallum, 37, an R.C.A.F. service policeman home on leave from Angus, Ont., was charged with murder in police court.

In a statement police said he made shortly after midnight Sunday he admitted killing his attractive 30-year-old wife . . . a week after he arrived home on leave to discuss divorce proceedings so she could marry another air force man, Sgt. James D. Manby.

Read at the inquest by Sergeant of Detectives J. Reeves, the statement said:

"About two weeks ago a letter came in which she said she didn't care for me any more . . . She said she had cheated on me and she loved somebody else . . . If you love me, you will let me go, she said. I left camp and got home Saturday morning. I told her I wanted to do the right thing for the children. (Gordon, Kenneth and Donald, aged four, five and six, respectively.)

"I said I would give her grounds for the divorce to save her reputation and I would be quite satisfied if she married and settled down again . . . She told me she had spent a night with a sergeant of the air force . . . She said it happened quite frequently. She wanted a divorce right away.

"Monday night I slept with her and have done so all week . . . Although I knew she cheated on me all through the week and yesterday afternoon . . . when I came back about 10:30 (p.m. last Saturday night) I watched him kissing and mauling her.

"When I bawled her out she just laughed at me. 'You won't have me long,' she said. I jumped on her and shook her . . . I've nothing against Del (Sgt. Manby.")

'WE ARE SENDING A FEW FLOWERS'

Holland's Gift to Britain

(Overseas Daily Mail)

A letter and a bunch of flowers arrived at Buckingham Palace on Sunday. They were addressed to the King and Queen, and were from Dutchmen who had served in Britain through the war.

Here is the letter:

None of us has yet had an opportunity to thank the men and women of Britain who received us in their midst, not as refugees but as guests, and who have put up with us and our thousands of fellow-exiles year after year.

It is to these, our patient and generous hosts, that we now crave to say "Thank you and thank you again."

To the Ministers of State and the members of Parliament who threw beleaguered Britain's doors wide open to the highest and lowest of us, and thus enabled some of us to hoist again our country's flag and all of us to serve it.

To the ministers of God, in whose churches many of us have found that which can raise even the most sorely tried above the fears and sorrows of exile.

To the soldiers, sailors and air men who protected us.

To the farmers who fed us, the landlords who housed us, the miners who warmed us, the drapers who clothed us, the shopkeepers who served us, the doc-helped us to get there.

To the housewives who allowed us our place in the longest of queues and to the publicans who allowed us our share in the shortest of stocks.

To the Bobbies who told us the way, and to the Cabbies who helpel us to get there.

To the air raid wardens with whom we wardened, and the fire watchers with whom we fire watched.

To the telephone operators who never lost their patience at our most weird pronunciations.

Your Majesties, m leaving your people to go home, our hearts are so full that there is much else we would like to say.

But rather than speak we would do something, something that tells more convincingly of our feelings than mere words can do.

But what use is a commemorative plaque, or even a modest monument or gift to charity as our mere handful could provide to the housewives, the bus-conductors, or the farmers of Britain? None, indeed.

And so, forced to admit our inability to accompany this letter with 44,000,000 presents, we thought of something else.

We thought that if we wanted to give some small pleasure to all the people of Britain there was only one way to do it, and that was to send our gift to those two persons whose joys are shared by all Britons in like measure, as all Britons' joys are shared by them.

That, then, is why we decided to send these few flowers, picked from our own recovered fields, to Your Majesties asking that you will accept them not only as a token of our gratitude, but also as an earnest of the resolve which is engraved in all our hearts in these four words:

WE SHALL NOT FORGET.

Priority Issue May Arise In Lauzon Arrests

Montreal, Sept. 15 —(CP)— While an escort of Quebec Provincial Police approached Charlottetown Thursday to bring Ulysse Lauzon and his wife Eileen back to Montreal, a similar escort of Ontario Provincial Police were on their way to bring the couple back to Ontario, it was learned here last night.

The Lauzons were captured Wednesday with an alleged accomplice identified by police as Walter Koresky, of Windsor, Ont., by two officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at a race track 10 miles outside of Charlottetown.

A question of priority may arise in the case of the Lauzons. The couple are wanted by the Quebec Provincial Police for an automobile theft and possibly other minor charges.

In Ontario, the Lauzons have been sought in connection with several bank holdups which are reported to have netted them close to $400,000.

It is not known whether the Lauzons will be brought here first, as Ontario Provincial Police may claim priority because they face more serious charges in that province.

In Court at Charlottetown.

The three appeared in a Charlottetown court before Stipendiary Magistrate George J. Tweedie on holding charges. The two men were charged with carrying concealed weapons, while a vagrancy charge was lodged against 20-year-old Eileen. They were remanded until Sept. 20.

Lauzon entered the courtroom sporting a glowing black eye, a legacy from his scuffle with R.C.M.P. police constables.

Short, stocky and dark, Lauzon was perfectly self-possessed as he entered the courtroom with his blonde, attractive young wife. She was wearing a slack suit and didn't seem unduly worried, although all three ducked and hid their faces as flash bulbs popped and newspaper photographers tried to take their pictures.

Lauzon asked for counsel, but the Magistrate told him it was a holding charge only and he probably wouldn't be tried here.

The Magistrate asked Koresky whether he was related to the Lauzons, but the accused replied: "No, just a friend."

Mine Clearance Hazardous Work

Guernsey, Channel Islands, —(CP)— During a 90-day program to clear 76,000 German mines from the coastal regions of Guernsey, four British troops and nine German prisoners of war were killed, and five British and 15 German soldiers were injured.

Since May 11 large numbers of British troops, helped by war prisoners have been engaged in reconstruction, and 96 per cent of the underwater obstacles around the coast have been rendered harmless, and 84 per cent of the anti-landing fortifications, such as large wooden stakes which were set up in the fields, have been removed.

One thousand of the 3,000 damaged houses in Guernsey have been restored along with 11 of the island's hotels.

Duke of Windsor To Visit England Early Next Month

New York, Sept. 15 —(CP)— The Duke of Windsor revealed at a press conference Friday that he would visit England early next month, but that he would not be accompanied by the Duchess "on the first trip."

Speaking at a conference he called to keep his "promise" to newspapers that he would see reporters any time he had news to make public, the Duke said he and the Duchess were sailing aboard the troopship Argentina Plymouth, the Duke said, and The ship would not dock at Plylmouth, the Duke said, and after their arrival in France the Duke and Duchess would go to Paris and later to Antibes on the Riviera. Later he would go to England.

Someone asked the Duke if he would see Queen Mary while in England. He replied with feeling:

"Oh yes, indeed. I'm looking forward to seeing my mother. I haven't seen her for nearly nine years."

The couple will live in France until they learn when they will go to England. In reply to another question the Duke said "Yes, I should" when asked if he would like to make his home in England.

Plans for the future were not definite, the Duke said, though he had in mind "several jobs" he would like. "Though I've passed the half-century mark I still feel I have some years of usefulness left," he said, but he declined to elaborate on what he had in mind.

The visit to Paris and London involves "personal business" the Duke said, adding that he would visit bomb-damaged British centres and later some of those in European countries.

Britain Trains Police Cadets

London —(CP)— Boys who dream of becoming policemen may soon have their ambitions fulfilled for a scheme to train police cadets has been announced which, it is hoped, will solve the man-power shortage in the police force.

Under the scheme boys will be employed as clerks in the police administration in various cities and towns. They will be paid clerical rates and will not wear uniform, but they will receive special training in police work and at the age of 20 become policemen.

Only boys with suitable educational qualifications and physique will be accepted.

Part of War's Cost

The cost of war can be inferred by a cursory glance at the Associated Press story by Eddy Gilmore from Moscow telling of the economic losses the people of Russia suffered by the offensives and retreat of the German armies. They are set at 679 billion rubles, which is equivalent to one hundred and eight billion dollars. This total is not yet complete.

When Hitler threw Germany into war he started the most expensive destructive force at work that ever was set in motion.

For instance 1,700 towns were totally or partially destroyed, and more than 70,000 villages. 31.850 industrial enterprises and almost 100,000 collective farms and 1,876 state farms were destroyed, and twenty-five million Russians were deprived of homes. The buildings destroyed numbered as high as six million.

These are enough to show the tremendous amount of labor and energy that will have to be employed in the restoration of these industries and homes.

Telling the Jap People

Japanese people are to be told the story of the cruelties and atrocities which have been carried out so that they may know what their military have been up to in their aggression drive to create a new Asiatic Empire in the Pacific. General Fellers of General MacArthur's staff, says that this campaign is purely educational and that an initial survey will be given in the Japanese press, representatives of which have agreed to publish a story of the atrocity reports this decision being made by the Japanese at the suggestion of the Supreme Commander Gen. MacArthur. No formal order for publication was given by the General.

Gen. Fellers added that the Japanese people did not know about these atrocities and "we want to tell them."

A story yesterday stated that Japanese civilians were surprised and anxious about stories they had heard of Japanese cruelty.

Among the stories to be told to the people of Japan are those of the beheadings of American fliers, the terrible death march from Bataan, cannibalism and beatings and mistreatment of Allied prisoners of war.

U. K.'s Contribution

The following are some facts about the United Kingdom's contribution to victory in the Far East.

Firstly; in research and development leading to the production of the atomic bomb, British science played a leading and indispensable part.

Secondly; the United Kingdom forces in the Far East numbered over half a million at the time of the defeat of Japan. It was expected to double the number shortly.

Thirdly; the total strength of the British Pacific Fleet alone numbered four hundred vessels and two hundred thousand men, of whom the very great majority were from the United Kingdom. This represented sixty percent of the Royal Navy's total strength.

Fourthly; by a joint Allied decision, Britain has had the prime responsibility for Southeast Asian operations. Even in the autumn of 1944, her forces accounted for eighty-five percent of the Allied troops on the main fronts, while the Chinese and American forces accounted respectively for thirteen and two percent. In General Stilwell's northern combat area the proportions were; British, twenty-four per cent; American, four percent; Chinese seventy-two percent.

Sixthly; Britain's campaigns in Southeast Asia cost the Japanese, by unofficial estimate, 347,000 casualties by May, 1945. Before the end of the war, 128,000 Japanese dead had been counted in this theatre.

Seventhly; to supply the enemy fronts in Southeast Asia, the Japanese had to devote their scarce and vital ocean-going shipping. In one period of five days, sixty-nine vessels fell to submarines of the Royal Navy.

Eighthly; to support this huge effort, in addition to her commitments in Europe, Britain, in spite of casualties, had brought up her armed forces to a total (including the Women's Auxiliary Services) of five million, and the total was still rising at the very end of the war.

Ninthly; British industry was geared progressively to war against Japan before the defeat of Germany. Britain's whole resources in shipbuilding and engineering were sharing in this work.

Tenthly; the economic strains imposed by this immense effort are being felt now by the population of the United Kingdom.

There they enter on the first year of peace with a standard of life lower than that they cheerfully bore in the years of war.

The Princesses Joined Revellers

Among the thronging press around Buckingham Palace on V-J night was Mr. Aiden Thomson, BBC Director of Overseas Presentation, and his wife. After the crowd's excitement at seeing Their Majesties and the Princesses on the balcony was over, the two made their way down the Mall to make a tour of the floodlit buildings in Trafalgar Square and Whitehall. Later when they were walking by the Horse Guard's Arch they had an exciting experience. A couple of hours later they told listeners to the BBC's News Reel about it.

As they were turning in at the Arch they were held, in Thomson's words, by "a collection of cheerful, laughing officers and two pretty laughing girls. The girls were simply dressed, each wearing a gay bandana, gipsy fashion, to keep the rain off their curls." "Look," his wife said, "that's Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose."

"And I was right," Mrs. Thomson broke in, "Just as I said it, someone gripped my arm. 'Don't mention it out loud, please; they just want to enjoy themselves and be noticed as little as possible.'" Mrs. Thomson said the man who spoke to her was "a tall, dark, anxious-looking detective—presumably pretending hard to have nothing to do with the party but keeping a vigilant eye on them — and us." And keeping up a very quick pace too, she added. "A necessary measure if he wasn't to lose sight of the Princesses. She described them as bright and bonny, Princess Elizabeth wearing a plain navy coat with her dark yellow silk bandana, and Margaret Rose in a light blue coat with bandana of dark red. They both wore lisle stockings and low heeled brown walking shoes.

"And up to Whitehall they went," Aiden Thomson chipped in, "never breaking handgrips, no matter how large the crowd coming towards them. They merely cheerfully raised their arms in an arch and did a Lancers' step through to the other side—just eight revelling officers and two young women, hand in hand, enjoying the sights."

Cleaning Windshields

(The Financial Post, Toronto)

The other day, without any prompting except the obvious need, the gas station man cleaned our windshield. This little courtesy, reminiscent of the old pre-war days when the line-ups and wait-on-yourself were unheard of, is, we believe, significant.

It means two things. First, there is a little more help available now for service stations and other retail business. Second, the more forward operators are looking toward the time now rapidly approaching when the customer and his patronage will again be appreciated.

For many weeks yet and in some lines, months or perhaps a year or two there will be shortages of civilian goods and services. Selection, volume, delivery of goods and other normal service will continue almost as rigidly curbed as under a socialist state. There will be no trouble about selling, with plenty of patient customers, willing to stand in line and to put up with indifference, rudeness and even abuse.

But customers do not enjoy such treatment and they have long memories. Once the markets are again supplied one doesn't need to be a prophet to know who will get their business, the man who cleaned the windshield or the one who said: "Get out your handkerchief and do it yourself."

"WORMS FOR SALE!"

When along the road go I
Or some country trail,
Nowadays this sign I spy:
"Worms for sale!"

Letters turned the wrong way round
Like a rusty nail,
Telling in the shack are found:
"Worms for sale!"

Years ago when early I
Went for pan fish big
Ere I bade the shore good bye
Worms I had to dig.

Now the clan of rod and line
Fixed to wall or rail
Merely watches for the sign:
"Worms for sale!"

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing," is a common misquotation. It is from Alexander Pope's "Essay on Criticism," published in 1711, and the correct lines are:

A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring;
There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.

"Pierian," pronounced "py-EER-i-an," is an adjective formed from "Pierus," a mountain in Thessaly, Greece, sacred to the Muses. One of the earliest seats of the worship of the Muses was a region around Mount Pierus in Macedonia. A sacred fountain in Piera was believed to communicate poetic inspiration. Hence Pope's "Pierian spring."

"Kaleidoscope" is from Greek "kalos," beautiful, and "eidos," form. The name was originally given to an instrument invented by Sir David Brewster about 1816. This original kaleidoscope consisted of loose fragments of colored glass confined between two flat plates and two plane mirrors placed at an angle of 60 degrees, so that changes of position exhibited its contents in an endless variety of symmetrical vari-colored forms. Anything variegated is said to be "kaleidoscopic."

When General William Hull surrendered Detroit in 1812 the United States lost the largest territory it has ever lost by military capitulation.

Isaac Chauncey (1772-1840), U. S. naval commander on the Great Lakes during the War of 1812, went to sea as master of a ship when he was a kid of 19. During one of his voyages between Charlestown and New York everybody on board except himself was taken sick with yellow fever. Captain Chauncey brought the ship into port single-handed.

Plan Restoration of Noted Vienna Church

Vienna,—(CP)—Restoring the shattered beauty of Stefanskirche, which more than any other building breathed the religious spirt of Vienna, will take at least two years, says Bella Buchweiser-Kitchelt.

She is the architect in charge of building the noted old church ruined by shells and incendiary bombs loosed by vindictive SS men retreating as the Russians entered the city.

Her father, Bruno Buchweiser, is a construction engineer and the restoration of Stefanskirche is his biggest project. His daughter who studied here in England, with church architecture her hobby, directs a staff of designers and fights a daily battle to get material for the reconstruction.

"Our first job is to get a roof over the building and get the windows rebuilt to save what interior there is left before winis his beggest project. The Americans and British will help us. Perhaps they will haul material. If they do we might have Stefanskirche rebuilt in two years."

HONOR LIFE SAVERS

Dublin—(CP)—The Eire government has decided to award a gold medal for acts of bravery in efforts to save human life. It is expected the award will take the place of the Royal Humane Society's medal which has been the only reward available for such services.

CLAXTON CLAIMS

Revert to Standard Time.

State Secretary Martin said Canada will revert to Standard Time at 2 a.m., Local Time, Sept. 30.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the question of the trial of Japanese war criminals now is under consideration by the nations which participated in the Pacific war.

Finance Minister Ilsley said there "may be some possibility of an adjustment of coupon values or something like that" for meat trimmings that usually are processed into sausage, bologna and cooked meats.

After discussing social security legislation and federal proposals to the provinces Mr. Claxton said:-

Canada will Lead World

"All this is part of an effort to meet the real needs of the Canadian people. I believe that, with unemployment insurance already in force, and with unemployment assistance as suggested and with family allowances as they now are paid on a more generous scale than in any other place in the world and with health insurance, health grants and other health measures which have been suggested, together with old age pensions and pensions for the blind as they are put forth — all these together with the measures already in force in the provinces or proposed by the provinces, Canada will lead the world in matters of social security."

The minister had replied to members who have urged still larger old age pensions. He said the plan proposed was balanced and could not work if the balance was disturbed. It was the most generous the government's experts were able to devise but it had to be based on the work of the Canadian people.

To make it over-generous would restrict productivity, provide for the few at the expense of the many.

"These plans are liberal," he said. "They provide far greater security and greater opportunity for the individual than has ever been presented to the Canadian people or ever presented to the people of any other country.

"These proposals are comprehensive. They provide in their entirety for a rounded and comprehensive program for high employment, income and security. No other country has entered the post-war period with such physical advantages and the formulated objectives and completed plans for a better and more secure life than Canada."

Mr. Claxton's statement brought from Major Fulton a request that members, in accepting assurances or promises of legislation or action from the government, not forget the same government had declared last November there was no shortage of reinforcements when actually there was.

Major Fulton said that last November when Prime Minister King and Defence Minister McNaughton were claiming there were sufficient reinforcements, men overseas, particularly in Italy were being overworked to the point of exhaustion because of the shortage of reinforcements.

"I ask honorable members not to forget these facts when accepting assurances or listening to promises of legislation or action by the Prime minister and his government, when many members of the government today are the same men who sat there and made those statements in the House when men overseas were in desperate need of reinforcemnts," said Mr. Fulton.

Major Fulton said the government's demobilization method was not working properly because of the muddled manpower policies during wartime.

Former Rhodes Scholar.

The former Rhodes scholar, who delivered part of his speech in French, said there is a situation overseas in which there will be nothing but high point personnel, while there are back in Canada nothing but low point personnel with little or no overseas service.

"The proper course would have been to keep the reinforcement stream flowing, to keep men as they were called into the army or any of the armed forces in Canada proceeding overseas ready when necessary to replace casualties, and available as indicated to take the place of men with two or three years' front line service," said Major Fulton.

Proper Course.

"That, I submit, would have been the proper course, and then those old, long service veterans could have been brought back in the same stream and would be back in Canada, ready to accept their discharge."

The government was claiming it had repatriated 120,000 men, but some 40,000 of these were low point score men who had volunteered for the Pacific.

The Progressive Conservative party felt that the government had forfeited the confidence of the people with respect to reconversion.

BACK ON THE JOB

London—(CP)—Two of the fast express trains from London to Yorkshire and the north probably will be restored this fall. During the war thespeed of these trains has been limited to 60 m.p.h. over a considerable part of their route, but now tracks have been restored to top condition.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

NUTRITIONAL VALUE OF IODINE

A cubic mile of sea water contains a minimum of 90 tons of iodine and, in the neighborhood of beds of sea weeds (kelp and sponges, from ten to a hundred times as much, according to Taylor (Jour. of the Franklin Institute, Aug. '32). All of the iodine occurs in nature not as elemental iodine but as chemical compounds of iodine, both inorganic iodides and organic compounds. These iodine compounds are mostly so soluble in water that they are being leached from the soil by the water of rain, melted snow and glaciers, wells, springs, rivers and carried down to the sea. When the water is evaporated from the surface of the sea (about a one yard depth of it over the entire ocean a year — or 71,389 cubic miles of water, enough to provide an average of 22 inches of rainfall over the entire land surface of the globe if we assume 29.27% of the earth's surface is land — these are Mr. Taylor's figures and they may be right or they may be wrong, for all I know about it, but they're interesting, aren't they?) — when the water is evaporated from the sea it is as pure as the purest distilled water, leaving all mineral matter or organic matter in the ocean and the water vapor (invisible) in the air is again carried over the land by wind, to fall again as rain or snow and bring another load of mineral and organic material back to the ocean, and so on forever and ever.

Therefore the land, especially in mountainous regions and plateaus, tablelands or mesas, is likely to be poor in iodine as in the water in such regions, whether from springs, wells or streams, lakes or reservoirs of the watershed. Likewise the cereals, fruit and vegetables, the pasturage, forage and feed grown in such regions are poor in iodine. Finally the milk, eggs, beef, pork, mutton, fowl raised in such regions are deficient in iodine. Finally everybody, infant, child, youth and adult living in such a region is likely to suffer from shortage of iodine.

Nowhere in North America do the inhabitants of any particular region suffer so much from cretinism (dwarfed mental and physical development) or from myxedema (firm inelastic swelling of skin which does not pit on pressure, mental hebetude, subnormal temperature, dryness and loss of hair, etc.) as the inhabitants of certain regions in the Swiss Alps, in Austria, France, Sicily, India, Italy, do or have done. Prevailed so commonly in times past that the term "Derbyshire neck" was given to it. In times past, because today there is less isolation. Modern transportation brings foods from distant areas, even some sea food, to the remotest communities, and hence more iodine.

Nutrition authorities estimate that every one needs from 50 to 200 micrograms of iodine daily to maintain good nutrition and good health, or, say, one-four-hundredth of a grain.

The Iodin Ration I recommend for everybody, man, woman and child, is a tablet containing 150 micrograms of iodine — one should eat one Iodin Ration tablet every day for prevention, three tablets every day for correction of cretinism, myxedema, hypothyroidism or any of the manifestations (to be described later) of iodine deficiency.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Acne Rosacea

Can you give me a remedy for a red nose? Mine is always flaming. I am a teetotaler.

(A. M.)

Answer—So are most persons with red nose. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet on "Acne". That is the medical term for blackheads and pimples. Acne rosacea is "rum blossom". You must ask for this in writing—a clipping will not do. The reason why I object to clippins of my own column is simply this: It slows up service. I like to keep not more than ten or fifteen thousand letters behindhand.

Confidential

Please give me the name and address of the reader who made the statement about vegetarians never being drunkards, about ten days ago. (B. M. W.)

Answer—I couldn't if I would, for I do not keep names of correspondents on file. I wouldn't if I could, for I believe correspondents prefer that anything they say in letters to me shall be considered confidential.

On Abusing the Landlord

(Ottawa Journal Editorial)

The Ottawa Property Owners' Association has protested against what it calls the offensive and unfair references to landlords contained in speech carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The CBC speaker suggested that nobody cared much whether the landlord made a profit so long as the cost of living was kept down—said it was "entirely possible" that rents might "double" if control were removed.

It is probably true that rents might double—but that would be a factor dictated not alone by landlords but by home-hunters willing to pay more than the pegged rates. It would be simply supply and demand.

It may be popular in some quarters to represent the landlord as a gouging, scheming, unscruptulous fellow, but we doubt it. Most people realize that unless the Government is to take over the country's housing—and we have not moved that far—there must be housing space for rent; realize that if owners are not permitted to make a fair profit our housing problems will be intensified in this post-war emergency.

The whole-trend of the times, in this country, is to make up a generation of tenants, to discourage the old ambition of most families to own their homes, especially to discourage the person with surplus capital from investing it in houses and flats.

Real estate had come through lean times in the decade before the war, and rent control "froze" many a lease at a figure which had no relation to the rising costs of maintenance, which gave the owner only the most meagre of return. Housing was treated—and still is treated—as a public utility. If a man had put his money in stocks or in diamonds, or had turned it into cash and buried it in the garden, the Government left his property undisturbed. It was only when, a good citizen, he had invested it in housing that the Government tied him up with regulations, limited his profits sharply, often made it impossible for him to sell by suspending his right to recover possession of his own property. We do not dispute the necessity for this course; we do think the landlord, whose special contribution to the war effort has been far from negligible, should have some appreciation and understanding rather than scorn and suspicion.

The landlord is a human being. He pays taxes—and how! He may be a trust company or a financier, but more often the landlord is a man or woman whose life's saving have gone into a house as traditionally the safest investment for old age. Or, very often, the landlord is a widow whose life insurance has gone into rentable property. We should hate to think that the public are disinterested in the landlord's welfare; look upon landlords in the class as extortioners rather than as people doing a most important public service.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R. C. A. F. Overseas, Sept. 14 —(CP)— The three-man sports department on Group Capt. G. R. McGregor's R. C. A. F. Spitfire wing in Germany whipped up what it called "an athletic program to rival any community of 1,200 population anywhere."

Now operating on the wing are 16 softball teams, a 22-team volleyball league, and a seven-day-a-week schedule of swimming events. The wing's indoor pools—26 yards long, 14 feet at the deep end, with high and low boards, and water-polo nets—is one of the finest in Germany, said Flt. Lt. Harry Lewis of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., wing sports officer.

Harry was on the staff of Toronto Central "Y" for 14 years until he joined the air force in 1941. His right and left wingers in keeping the sports machine rolling are Sgt. S. M. (Cy) Kerman of (4327 Prud'homme Ave.) Montreal, and Sgt. Max Nesbitt of (8 Churchill Ave.) Toronto.

Thousands of Canadian airmen overseas are now applying for the new campaign stars and the Defence Medal ribbon, following an overseas headquarters authorization.

Headquarters said the regulations governing the granting of these medals are provisional so far as R. C. A. F. men are concerned, since consideration is being given in Whitehall to a Canadian application "for the inclusion of additional classes of R.C.A.F. personnel."

The Defence Medal is given to Canadians for 12 months' service overseas (up to May 8, 1945) from or outside the country of residence, which is defined as the continents of North and South America, Newfoundland, Bermuda and the West Indies. Men who served in Greenland, Iceland and the Aleutians may put up the Defence ribbon.

PO. J. H. Russell of Hamilton, Ont., and Flt. Lt. James Burt of the same town, are also both 25 years old. They joined the R. C. A. F. together in May 1941, after leaving Hamilton, where they were close friends.

They trained together at Malton, Ont. Then Russell became a navigator, Burt a pilot, and they separated. In England, however, when Burt was asked to choose a navigator he naturally picked Russell.

From a Ceylon base they shared many anti-submarine patrols over the Indian Ocean. Now, tour-expired, they probably will leave India on the same boat, eventual destination—Canada.

Back in Hamilton, they may find themselves still together. Their mothers, both widows, have been sharing a house for several months.

Flt. Lt. R. G. (Bob) Keefer, D. F. C., of (3637 University St.) Montreal, has joined volunteers who will fly for the R. A. F. Transport Command. Keefer had four years overseas service, nine months of which were spent as an internee in Eire. He flew eight types of aircraft and when the European war ended was piloting a Coastal Command Mosquito serving with a photographic reconnaissance unit operating from France. Before the war, Keefer was an outstanding football player at McGill University.

MARMORA

Spr. G. Osborne R.C.E., Spent 5 Years Overseas

Marmora, Sept. 15 — Sapper George R. Osborne who enlisted in the Royal Canadian Engineers on August 14th, 1940, to be later a member of its 3rd Assault Division returned to Marmora on Thursday evening for a homecoming that was joyous in every respect. He arrived back in Quebec on Sunday, having been a passenger on the Empress of Scotland and was welcomed in Peterborough on Monday by his wife who journeyed there for that purpose.

His mother welcomed him at her home in Marmora and remarked that he hadn't changed a bit. Sapper Osborne said they had a marvellous reception at Quebec City and were honored with a 21-gun salute from the Plains of Abraham. He produced a Jery leather belt which he had brought as a souvenir for his father and for his mother there was a bracelet connecting six farthings, which had been gold-dipped, purchased in London's noted Trafalgar Square. Sapper Osborne spent three years and nine months in England before crossing to France on D-Day. The fourteen months across the Channel were spent in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany in turn.

For his training in England he was in the counties of Surrey, Sussex, Hampshire and Kent. He took part in realistic manoeuvres in the west of England and South Wales. He said he got to know London very well and had a fine knowledge of the major cities of England, Scotland and Wales and also visited Belfast.

Sapper Osborne feels lucky that he came through without a scratch, after coming through three quarters of the Battle of Britain. He said he would always remember the blood donor service with pride, although he did not have to avail himself of it, it was a vital factor in saving thousands of Canadian lives. Of the countries he visited he liked England and Holland best.

Sapper Osborne also described a meeting with General Montgomery while he was attending a bridging demonstration with King George. The General shook hands with about every third man Sapper Osborne chanced to be one of the privileged ones. He is very happy to be home with his wife and two children, Donna and Beverley, and to meet his parents as were his brother, Sapper Ray Osborne, who arrived back a few months ago. He has thirty-eight days of leave before reporting to Kingston.

M.P. Declares Sugar Shortage Could be Solved

Ottawa, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Park Manross, Progressive Conservative member for London, said last night in the Commons that through proper government action Canada's sugar shortage could be solved.

Sugar beet factories in Western Ontario had been closed for as long as three years because of a shortage of beets brought about by shortage of labor.

If farmers knew ahead of time of what help would be available, what the price of beets would be they would be able to plan their production. The government had not announced any policy and production of beets fell off.

Three South American countries —he did not identify them — had large stocks of sugar but these countries did not wish to enter the Allied sugar pool and therefore the sugar was not available to Canada. However, the sugar could be obtained if Canada wished to make use of its good neighbor policy.

DISCHARGED PERSONNEL MAY RETURN TO OLD JOBS

Employer must Reinstate where Employee Follows Act

The Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, passed by Parliament in 1942, sets forth conditions under which employers must reinstate their former employees in their employment after discharge from the Armed Services.

This Act and its Regulations are administered by the Dominion Minister of Labour, through the National Employment Service. Reinstatement Officers are available in the National Employment Offices to answer all inquiries, and to assist in adjusting cases.

Veterans and employers are both co-operating most effectively, to carry out the intent of this legislation.

The general terms of the Act and Regulations are here set forth briefly. For details, contact the nearest National Employment Office.

WHO MUST BE REINSTATED? Any employee, either male or female, who left employment to join the Armed Services, the Merchant Marine, or the Fire Fighters Corps —providing that the employee was working for the employer for at least three months immediately before enlistment, and was not replacing some other employee who has been reinstated.

HOW AND WHEN DOES A DISCHARGED PERSON CLAIM REINSTATEMENT? Either verbally or in writing, usually within three months of discharge in Canada or four months if discharged overseas. There is provision for extension of this time when through a condition of health the employee cannot return to his employment this soon, but the employer must be notified in three or four months, and a Reinstatement Officer should be consulted.

UNDER WHAT WORKING CONDITIONS IS AN EMPLOYEE TO BE REINSTATED? Under conditions not less favourable than would have been enjoyed had he continued on in employment instead of joining the Forces. This means:

(a) that the period with the Services is to count for seniority rights, pension rights, vacations with pay and other benefits;
(b) returning employees are to be given promotions or pay increases they would have received had they remained in continuous employment;
(c) any skill acquired while in the Services, and useful to the employer, is to be taken into account in adjusting the wage rates;
(d) any period of mental or physical disability following discharge which warrants delay in reinstatement under the Act, is to be counted as a period of service in the Armed Forces, and as a period of service with the employer.

Reinstatement Officers are located in local offices of the National Employment Service.

Both employers and veterans are urged to consult these Officers on the application of the Act to any case where a doubt arises.

DOES THEATRE OF SERVICE AFFECT RIGHTS? No — where a veteran served does not alter reinstatement rights.

WHAT IF A DISCHARGED PERSON CANNOT PERFORM HIS FORMER DUTIES? The employer must reinstate him in the most suitable employment available, at which he is capable of working.

WHAT OF THE DISCHARGED PERSON WHO LEFT A JOB PREVIOUSLY VACATED BY ANOTHER WHO ENLISTED? The replacement is entitled to reinstatement only if no other person who enlisted out of the job has been reinstated.

MAY AN EMPLOYER DISMISS A PERSON ONCE REINSTATED? No — if the employer dismisses within six months, he must be able to prove in court that he had reasonable cause.

In every Office of the National Employment Service staff members have been given special training to equip them to better assist veterans in search of employment. All ex-servicemen and women are urged to use the facilities of the National Employment Service if looking for work.

The party closed with the guests singing "Auld Lang Syne".

WEDDINGS

KILPATRICK—DUDLEY

White gladioli in tall white standards formed an effective setting for a quiet but pretty wedding in Trinity United Church, Bowmanville, on September 12, when Marian Alberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dudley, Bowmanville, became the bride of John Benson Kilpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kilpatrick, Belleville. Rev. J. E. Griffith officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a street length frock of French blue wool jersey with black velvet hat and black accessories. Her corsage was Heaven pink rases. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Doris Dudley, who chose a fuchsia wool crepe dress with black hat and black accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. John Gardner, Belleville, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for members of the immediate families, at the home of the bride's parents. A buffet luncheon was served by friends of the bride.

For the wedding trip to points north and west, the bride donned a black topcoat. On their return the happy couple will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her wedding the bride was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower when Belleville friends gathered at the home of Miss Myrla Goodfellow, and presented the bride with many useful and beautiful gifts.

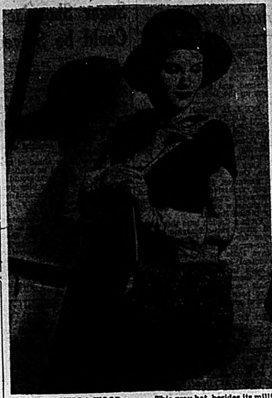
A 1946 Derby Choice



By PRUNELLA WOOD

YOUNGEST and most versatile of the new hat silhouettes is the derby pictured above, the so-called Little Willie, which sports a beehive crown above a definite brim. With a more oval crown and a curled back brim (regular Bowery shape) it is the Wee Willie, first cousin and just as amusing.

This gray hat, besides its millinery excellence, tots up another success for American design. Its crocheted wool yarn surface, stretched over felt, is a handsome domestic fabric, up in front with any of the famous pre-war imports. The huge shoulder-sling bag matches and adds to the military air.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Their First Stay in a Hotel

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—Next month my husband and I are going out of town to attend my niece's wedding. Since her home is not large enough to accommodate all her relatives, she has arranged for us to stay at a hotel. My husband and I have never stayed at a hotel, and we don't know just what to do. We have already informed the hotel that we will arrive there at 11.30 p.m. The rate is $7 a day, and we'd like to know how long we can stay for that amount. Since the wedding is to be at 9 a.m., and there is to be a reception afterward, we are wondering if we would have to vacate our room before 10 the following morning. Or does this rate refer to a 24-hour stay at the hotel?

2.—We're completely "at sea" about the tips we will be expected to give. And will you please tell us anything else we need to know aabout staying at a hotel?

B. W.

1.—Practically all hotels these days have a rule about when the room must be vacated. Not often, if ever, does the rate mean a 24-hour stay. Generally rule about vacating is posted in every room. If it isn't, inquire of the desk clerk. Usually the hour set is sometime in the late afternoon.

2.—When you arrive, a bellboy will come out to take your bag, carry it to the lobby, and wait while your husband registers (Mr. and Mrs. William Ward, Boston). Then the clerk hands the key to the bellboy, who takes your bag, goes to the elevator, you and your husband following. The usual tip to him is a quarter. The usual tip to the restaurant is 10 per cent of the bill, but not less than twenty-five cents. For your one night's stay, give the chambermaid (or leave it for her on the bureau) a tip of twenty-five or fifty cents. If you have ice-water or a newspaper sent to your room, give the bellboy ten cents. These are all the tips necessary for your one-night stay, unless you ask for special service When you are ready to leave, your husband goes to the cashier for his bill, pays it, leaves the room-key, either your husband or a bellboy carries your bag to a taxicab or to the doorway and you and he depart. Pleasant journey to you, and don't worry about hotel procedure, for it is simple.

What "P.P.C." Means,

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

What does "P.P.C." written on a visiting-card stand for? We live near a camp where a friend of my husband's an Army man of high rank, has been stationed. The other day, when I came home, I found under the door his card with those letters written on it.

W. C. A.

The officer was calling on you to say goodbye. The letters "P.P.C." are an abbreviation for the French expression "Pour prendre conge", meaning "To take leave".

Women's Activities

MARMORA W.I.

The September meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. T. Hannah, the chair being taken by the Vice President, Mrs. W. D. Lavender, and a good attendance on hand. The meeting opened in the customary manner. Included in correspondence was an appeal from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, which later on in the session was voted a contribution. A letter was received from W.I. headquarters, announcing the publication of a new song sheet. It was decided to send for a number for use in the meetings. Miss M. Brown reported for the Sick Committee. The branch hopes to hold a bingo during the current month to augment the funds as well as a dance in October. Some sewin gmaterial was handed out. A reading was then given by the President, Mrs. L. Green, which had been prepared by her mother, Mrs. Theodore Reid, and was entitled "Never too old to be young". The program convener, Miss M. Brown, then took charge. Mrs. L. R. Rundle sang "Sweet Genevieve", to her own accompaniment, followed by a duet, "Hawaiian Sunset", in which she was joined by Mrs. P. Gray. Miss M. Brown next gave a short humorous reading. Several games of bingo ensued after which th ecommittee in charge served refreshments.

The National Anthem was sung before the members dispersed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Grant.

HOLLOWAY STREET CHURCH W.M.S

The W.M.S. September meeting was held on Thursday 13, at 2.30 p.m., in the church.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Weese, the 1st vice president, opened the meeting with singing.

There is to be a joint meeting of the Circle and W.M.S. some evening to see the slides of the New Study Book on Africa. Mrs. Wm. Slavin is the new Mission Band Leader, with Mrs. Sinfield as her assistant.

There are sixty Mission Band members, Mrs. Denton reported. Thirty calls were made during the Summer.

Mrs. John gave a splendid paper on Temperance.

Mrs. Haight favored with a beautiful hymn.

It being Mrs. Weese's and Mrs. Denton's group, the latter gave a splendid paper on "The Post-War Woman in the Home", followed by a very earnest prayer for all the returned men and women. Mrs. Cordes read an address given at the Dominion Board, "Where do we go from Here?"

A beautiful memorial was held at this time for one of the deceased members, Mrs. Emma Mott.

The meeting closed by singing "I am Thine, O Lord".

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose of Belleville Chapter 435 held a meeting on Tuesday, in the SACO Club rooms, with Senior Regent, Lena Connell, in the chair. Notices and communications were read by Recorder, Marie Thrasher. Several acknowledgments were read for donations and appreciation from a Co-Workers for a card of sympathy.

One application for membership was balloted upon, and three new candidates were initiated into the Chapter, with one re-enrollment reported. Sunshine Prize donated by J. Grad. Regent G. Ritch, was won by Co-Worker E. Meeks. Co-Workers Mary Fralick and S. Newell were the birthday celebrants for the month. Gifts were presented and supper was served with the Home-Making Committee in charge. Later Bingo was in progress with a good attendance of players.

QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute met at the home of the President, Mrs. D. R. Atkins with an attendance of twenty-five members and friends. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Maguire, who in her opening address gave out the challenge, "Are we ready for Peace? Can we Drop all Prejudice and Live with People?"

Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Campbell each favored with delightful readings which were much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Haight sang the lovely hymn "Jesus Set the World to Singing When He Came".

A paper by Mrs. Greatrix gave suggestions on teaching life's lessons to the young. Mrs. Gummer, who has been travelling in the States gave a short sketch on her trip.

Mrs. Geddes asked each member to bring a handy or indispensable home gadget to the next meeting when prizes will be given for the most useful.

A loving tribute was paid to Mrs. P. Mott, who so often kindly entertained the W.I. with song and story.

After the National Anthem, a social half-hour was enjoyed.

ZION'S W.M.S.

The Sept. meeting of Zion W.M.S. was held in the church on Wednesday.

As the custom is each year in September, they entertain the two Mission Bands at noon, when thirty Mission Band members, five Baby Band members sat down to a delicious dinner, on the church lawn. The proceeds of the dinner go to Mission Band and amounted to $7.20.

The W.M.S. after dinner conducted their meeting in the church with the President, Mrs. Roy Sills in charge.

Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson came forward with a few well chosen words and presented their oldest member, Mrs. H. K. Denyes, with a lovely china cup and saucer from W.M.S., as a birthday remembrance. Mrs. Denyes replied in her usual fine manner.

Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson, group leader, introducing the 1945-46 Study program on Africa. Mrs. MacKenzie gave a reading on South Africa giving some ideas on life and customs of the people.

Mrs. D. Cranston dealt with the life of Dr. Currie of Chissamba .

Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson gave a questionnaire on Africa.

Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson gave a reading by the Moderator on "Doctors in Africa".

Mrs. H. K. Denyes chose "Character Building" as her part on Devotional.

RYLESTONE AND ALLAN MILLS W.I.

The members of Rylestone and Allan Mills of the W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Carl Reid with an attendance of 14.

The President, Mrs. Harold Henderson, call the meeting to order. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. The business part showed several letters received. It was decided to order song sheets and "The Everybody Sing Book".

The convener of Social Welfare, Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn, took charge of the program. The motto on "How to get the Best out of Life", was splendid, well prepared and well given by Mrs. Simpson. A reading "Advice to a Girl", was given by Mrs. Will Allan. The topic "If I were Twenty-One Again", showed plenty of thought and preparation by Mrs. Fred Barnum. A reading, "Convalescence", was given by Mrs. J. Loynes and was in keeping with the thought of the meeting.

A talk on "Meeting Emergencies in the Home and How to Treat Them", was given by Miss Isobel Irwin. This dealt with vein artery bleeding and the making of a tourniquet. A contest on "Health" was conducted and a very comic reading by Mrs. Maurice Brunton on "The Good Old Days".

A demonstration on three different breakfast trays for the sickroom was given.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The hostess served tea and cookies.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lillian Anderson.

Marie Nash, 10, Delights Crowd With Dancing

Little ten-year-old Marie Nash, clever girl Scottish dancer won the hearts of the Coe Hill Fair patrons with an outstanding exhibition of her art. Dancing to the lilt of the pipes played by Piper Jamie Clark, the winsome little miss displayed plenty of artistry in her various numbers and received prolonged acclaim from the large crowd present.

Also present was "Danny Boy" Smith, well-known local musician and entertainer who kept the crowd in holiday mood with his offerings of guitar and songs, witty patter and story telling.

The entertainers were taken to the fair by members of the Belleville District Shrine Club who presented ten lucky winners with cash prizes, the result of a draw held to raise funds for the Shrine Crippled Children Fund. The organization will give away fourteen handsome prizes valued at $1,000 on Wednesday night next at the Belleville Exhibition. Tickets are now on sale at leading merchants or members of the Shrine will accommodate potential purchasers.

FASHION FLASHES

NOT FOR SHORTIES, but grand for tallies, are those large felt hats edged with feathery ostrich. Beautiful in brown with pink ostrich or in black with royal blue or green.

Borrowing from the two-fabric technique of fall fashions, fur coats frequently use two furs. A broad shouldered coat of lustrous black Persian lamb has half-sleeves of wild mink,

Finesse marks the use of this year's glitter crop. Sequins and such are cleverly adapted, instead of being used in indiscriminate spatter. Black crepe, made with soft front fullness, is used for a frock made with deep-set, short, full sleeves of white crepe that are embroidered in multi-color sequins in a flower ando stem design.

It's easy to dress up a simple little black frock for gala wear with the aid of clever accessories—such as a coiled-snake necklet and belt in solid black or midnight blue sequins. The necklet also may be used to support the popular doughnut coiffure.

Detroit Squeezes Past Athletics While Senators Rally to Beat Indians in Games of Friday

St. Louis Cards Suffer Two Defeats and Practically Knocked Out of Race

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baseball's big series of 1945 is at hand as Detroit invades Washington for a vital five-game set that should determine the American League winner.

If either the Tigers or the Senators, who trail the leaders by only half-game, can sweep the series or take four of the contests, the race will be over for all practical purposes.

After the Bengals leave town Monday night, the Nats will have only five games to play and Steve O'Neill's gang, which has been on top since June 12, will have but eight more to go, four each with Cleveland and St. Louis.

Both contenders had tight squeaks yesterday, the Tigers downing Philadelphia, 1-0, in a game cut to five innings by rain and decided by one lucky run. Washington had to come up with three in the last of the ninth to trim Cleveland, 6-5.

Bob Maier scored the lone tally of the Tiger-A's tilt, twisting past Buddy Rosar to score just when it appeared an attempted squeeze play had been foiled by Dick Fowler's pitch out.

Just when the Senators' fans had given up on their club, trailing Cleveland, 5-3, with one out and nobody on in the ninth, the challengers started to rally. Joe Kuhel's triple, two singles, a walk and Al Cihocki's error tied the score. Then reliefer Pete Center walked George Case with the bases loaded to lose the game.

St. Louis swept a three-game set from Boston, 4-1, tightening their grip on third place via Jack Miller's five-hit chucking. A New York-Chicago series finale was washed off the books.

The two losses suffered by St. Louis Cardinals at the hands of Leo Durocher's Brooklyn Dodgers, 7-3 and 6-1, can doom the Red Birds' hopes for the National flag. Vic Lombardi and Hal Gregg did the chucking, dropping St. Louis 3½ games back of Chicago.

The Cubs had given the Birds an opening by splitting two with the Phillies, bowing to Hugh Mulcahy, 4-3, but evening matters 6-0, on Claude Passeau's 17th victory. St. Louis had a chance to gain a game but instead lost a full length.

Faced with the prospect of losing a seventh straight contest by one run, New York Giants rallied for three in the seventh inning to trim Cincinnati, 7-5.

ETERNAL CITY

Conn Gets Dizzy When Jacobs Starts To Give Figures

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15. (AP) Billy Conn, home from the war, admits he'll be glad to get another crack at Champion Joe Louis soon, but declares the figures Promoter Mike Jacobs tosses around leave him kind of dizzy.

While he was in New York, Conn said, he spent quite some time with Jacobs, who will handle the Conn-Louis return bout, if and when.

"I quit counting after Mike said something about the fight drawing $5,000,000 including television rights and everything", Billy said. "I didn't want to argue with him, though. I was willing to accept his figures, give or take $1,000,000."

Conn is figuring on doing a little better with Joe than the last time they met. Lots of folks thought Billy looked like a winner until, after the first 12 rounds, he decided he would not only win the championship, but also knock Joe out.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Joe Louis and Billy Conn, world heavyweight champion and the leading contender for his throne, will appear in the same ring next Tuesday, but not against one another.

Conn, recently returned from overseas, last night agreed to appear in a three-round exhibition bout at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, Tuesday night against an as yet unnamed opponent.

Louis had previously agreed to appear in a three-round exhibition on the same card. His sparring partner has not yet been announced.

FO. James Millar Prentice, 26, holder of the Canadian 100-yard breast stroke swimming title when he enlisted in the RCAF in 1940, has been presumed dead, it was learned yesterday. He was reported missing over Germany in December 1944.

Staff Sgt. Joe DiMaggio, former New York Yankees' outfield star, was discharged yesterday from the United States Army at St. Petersburgh, Fla., because of stomach ulcers. He indicated he would not rejoin the Yankees until next season.

The newly-formed United States Hockey League, successor to the American Hockey Association, will open its schedule Oct. 27, it was learned last night following a directors' meeting at Tulsa, Okla.

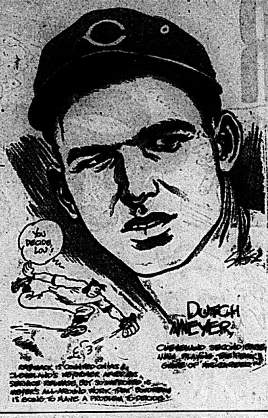
PEPPING TRIBE By Jack Sords



Canadian Sport Snapshot

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 15 — (CP)—The Canadian football campaign which opens in Ontario today has received as much advance publicity as a hustler with whooping cough. But (to mix metaphors) every time the static ceased and there was a slight pause for station identification, a thin, disquieting treble could be heard on all wave length.

This was the voice of Syracuse Lew Hayman, and it deserved an audience. At the moment one of the gridiron's great coaches has no official connection with the sport, but his long-standing plea for uniformity in football playing rules and leadership should not be ignored.

Hayman comes into the spotlight again this week with word from Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman that the former Toronto Argo coach was the man behind a move to have Winnipeg Blue Bombers join Eastern Canadian teams in a "big six". Coleman, who does some boosting himself for football uniformity, says the invitation was tendered to Winnipeg this season by T.H.C. (Tommy) Alison, Argo president and former close associate of Hayman.

Eastern interests still are hopeful of luring Winnipeg into a Canadian Big Six next year, says Coleman, adding it is possible football may follow the trend of professional hockey with big stars and fat payrolls concentrated in the east and middle west.

"As football swings slowly but surely toward some form of frank professionalism, it becomes increasingly obvious that western Canadian cities (except Winnipeg) will be in the same position as the old Western Canadian Professional League hockey clubs which attempted to support bigtime teams in areas of limited population."

In his shape-of-things-to-come analysis, Coleman notes Winnipeg has been the only prairie club to show a profit through the years. Transportation in a Big Six embracing Winnipeg wouldn't be too difficult, but a larger stadium would be needed to replace present stands and bleachers which accommodate about 7,000 compared with Varsity Stadium's 20,000 capacity.

Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan echoes Coleman's sentiments. Plans for an Argo-Winnipeg exhibition game may be the tip-off, he said, that Blue Bombers are gazing east, not west, for future competition.

"The Western Conference is a dead duck," says Allan. "Regina will carry on . . . But Calgary has virtually admitted that it has made its last attempt to compete with Winnipeg. The only alternative (for Winnipeg) is to hook up with Toronto, Montreal and other eastern cities."

TIGERS, SENATORS MEET IN CRUCIAL 5-GAME SERIES

Either Team Will Likely Settle for Three Wins Out of Five

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators laid their pennant chances on the line in a doubleheader opening a five-game three-day series today.

It looks like a cinch that if one or the other wins four games the American League race is over. But both Manager Steve O'Neill of the Tigers and Ossie Bluege of Washington probably are willing to settle for three out of five.

The Senators spotted Cleveland a 5-0 lead last night and then, with their world series prospects in hock, scored three times in the seventh and again in the ninth to pull out a 6-5 victory. Peter Center walked George Case to force home the winning run.

Detroit came to town with 82 victories and 59 defeats, a half-game better than Washington's 83 and 61. After this series the Tigers have four each to play with Cleveland and St. Louis. The Senators play New York twice and Philadelphia three times.

Newhouser to Pitch.

O'Neill's pitching choices for today were Hal Newhouser, "winningest" pitcher in either league with his 22-8 record, and Stubby Overmire, who has an even break in 18 decisions.

Bluege countered with Dutch Leonard, who has won 16 while losing 7, and Mickey Haefner, whose record is 16 and 12.

The teams play another doubleheader tomorrow and a single game Monday.

Of 17 games so far this season the Senators have won 10, Detroit 7.

If they can hold their own in this showdown series the Senators may wind up their season in second place and still back into the series. Their schedule was telescoped deliberately to finish by next Sunday, a week ahead of the rest of the league, so that the Washington Redskins could use the ball park for football.

Detroit, with a normal schedule plays right through to the end of September. Thus the Tigers may escape from here with a slim lead and then proceed to get themselves knocked out of first place while Senators are doing nothing more strenuous than watch the ticker.

SHERMAN LOLLAR BATTING CHAMP OF INT. LEAGUE

21-Year-Old Catcher of Baltimore Orioles Hits .367 for Season

New York, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Sherman Lollar, 21-year-old Baltimore catcher, is the batting king of the International League, with a mark of .367, unofficial league averages disclosed today.

Although Lollar fell off during the last two weeks of the season—at one time he was hitting .394—the sturdy receiver outdistanced runner-up Roland Gladu of Montreal by 20 points.

Lollar played in 139 of his team's 153 games and bashed 169 hits in 461 times at bat for 326 total bases. Among his extra-base swats were 27 doubles, four triples and 34 home runs. He drove in 111 runs.

Gladu's percentage was .341. He was followed by Mike Schemer, Jersey City first baseman who was promoted to New York Giants. Schemer's figure was .329, one point higher than Syracuse's Walt Cazen. Rochester's Bobby Rausch, with .324, was fifth.

Led in Three Depts

Gladu led in three departments and was second in another. He ranked first with 205 hits, 46 doubles and 15 triples. Frank Skaff of Baltimore topped him in runs scored, 128 to 127. Skaff also paced the loop in home runs, 38, and his 122 R.B.I. were 11 more than Lollar's second-place total. Cazen set a modern league stealing record by pilfering 74 bases, one more than the old mark held by George Stirnweiss with the 1942 Newark Bears.

Les Webber, who graduated to Brooklyn Dodgers from Montreal in August was the nominal pitching leader with a record of 11 wins and three defeats for a .786 percentage.

Jean Pierre Roy, also of Montreal, won the most games in the loop, 25, pitched the most innings, 293, struck out the most, 135, walked the most, 151, and hurled the most complete games, 29.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)

New York, Sept. 15 —(AP)— After watching the Tigers for a couple of days, Bucky Harris, former Washingtton manager, is convinced that his old club will win the American League pennant. The reason he gives is that the Senators are hustling . . . When the Fort Leavenworth, Kas., golf club acquired a flock of sheep to mow the fairways, the pro shop promptly was nicknamed the "Lambs Club." . . . With baseball attendance records falling on all sides, the Reds have played seven games to fewer than 1,000 fans each. The low was 281 Thursday.

Could Be . . .

Coach Art Fletcher of the Yankees is in a hospital recovering from a heart attack he suffered at the stadium the other day. . . . Wonder if someone told Art that Joe McCarthy was about to go off to Buffalo again?

One Up . . .

The Durham, N.C., club finished seventh in the Carolina league pennant race, but the season wasn't a total loss . . . At a post-season party for league officials and writers, the club's president, Charley Allen, won the circuit's golf championship.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York — Willie Joyce, 138, Gary, Ind., stopped Danny Bartfield, 137 3-4, New York, (6); Henry Majcher, 144, Pittsburgh, outpointed Al Seidman, 150, Scranton, Pa., (6).

Detroit — Bill Eddy, 131, Flint, Mich., outpointed Leroy Willis, 131 1-4, Detroit (8).

Worcester, Mass.—Spider Armstrong, 127, Toronto, and Paulie Jackson, 132, Reading, Pa., drew (10); Frankie Urban, 200, Paxton, knocked out Sam Shumway, 187, Webster (1).

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bob Maier, Tigers: Dodged past Buddy Roser with the only run of 1-0 abbreviated victory over A's.

George Binks, Senators: Doubled home run in seventh inning, singled and finally strolled home with winning tally in last of ninth when George Case walked with bases loaded to beat Tribe 6-5.

Jack Miller, Browns: Delivered five-hit, 4-1, triumph over Boston.

Augie Galan and Hal Gregg, Dodgers: Galan drove in four runs with three singles in opening 7-3 verdict over Cardinals; Gregg made it clean sweep with six-hit, 6-1 job in finale.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Off to Oshawa.

Harold Kurtz and his stable of boxers leave for Oshawa on Thursday, Sept. 20, where they will meet the leather-pushers of that city in an inter-city tournament. The Oshawans return here on Friday night, Sept. 21, where another of those popular Gardens Athletic boxing shows will be held. Up in Oshawa Jerry Downs, popular local lightweight, will be rematched with Joey McFee, hard-hitting lightweight. The boys making the trip include besides Downes, Arthur Duby, Tom Shore, Frank Mondeville, Ronny Mansfield, George Garrow, and George Graham. Downes' opponent in the headline bout here on Sept. 21 will be named within a day or so. Maestro Kurtz states that the card scheduled for the Hume Arena on Sept. 21 will be the classiest affair yet, with the cream of Oshawa boxers appearing here to cross gloves with the Gardens' best.

Splinters.

Peterborough Westclox nailed the St. Catharines Ladies' flag to the mast in the first game of the provincial semi-finals in the WPSU in Peterborough the other dusking by a 12-3 count. Tommy Bullock whiffed a dozen and let the St. Kitts down with six hits. . . . Seems a lot of umpires disdain to enforce the rule whereby the pitcher must have both feet on the slab when popping his fast balls. . . . Peterborough scribe opines "We distrust (and don't care who knows it) any umpire who doesn't know or enforce printed rules." . . . Concur. . . . Point Anne is all set for the all-important tilt in Oshawa this afternoon. The boys are talking of going on to Toronto to take in the Leafs-Newark playoff tussle.

. . . Dresden here Monday for the first game of the three-game series for the Ontario Baseball Junior Championship. . . . Game is at 3.30. . . . Return tussle at Dresden Saturday Sept. 22; Don't know much about this Dresden squad but they must have something on the ball to reach the Ontario finals. . . . Juniors are ready and rarin' to go, with Fitz and Bunton available for the mound chores. . . . Speedy St. Louis will likely start Bunton. . . . Suggestions are already going the rounds about the formation of a city hockey loop this winter. . . . A lot of the boys are back and would form the nuclei of several good squads with a lot of ambitious youngsters to round out the teams. . . . Softball Secretary Wally Harden has received information that the winners of the Columbian Squires-Toronto Mount Carmel series will meet Hamilton Juniors for the Ontario Junior Softball championship. . . . Dates to be announced later. . . . Don't forget the time of the Squires'-Toronto fray at the Alemite field this afternoon, 3.30. . . . Record price for a yearling colt, a nephew of this year's English Derby winner, was paid the other day in England by the Gekwar of Barod. The tag was $132,100. . . . This is a world record. . . . Previous highest price was 15,000 guineas, approximately $90,000, paid by Miss Dorothy Padget for Colonel Payne. . . . Esquire Mag. for Men polled the country asking for opinions as to what college gave the maximum instructions in various sports. . . . Notre Dame won the football nod by a mile; Illinois, basketball; Holy Cross, baseball by a nose over Michigan; Southern California, track and Yale, swimming. . . . Michigan finished in second place in four of them. . . .

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 782
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is one of the strongest advocates of try, try again. Long after you think an act is impossible of accomplishment, you may discover a successful solution from a different angle.

Keep plugging away at the problem in this deal remnant:

NORTH
♠8 3 2
♥6
♦Q
♣9 6

WEST	EAST
♠9 7 4	♠None
♥None	♥4 3 2
♦10 9	♦K 6 5 4
♣8 5	♣None

♠6
♥5
♦A J 8 7
♣7

You are in the south as declarer in a no-trump contract. After the first six tricks are gone, you need six of the seven last tricks.

It is your lead from the south hand. If you lead a heart or a spade or a club or a small diamond, opponents can block your aim. By one play or another, they can force you to give them two tricks.

So, you must try from a different and perhaps unusual start. In this case, the way to begin the seventh trick is to lead the diamond ace. True, you pick off your own dummy diamond queen that way.

So what? After winning that trick with your ace, lead your jack of diamonds. On that, sluff your dummy heart six to unblock that suit. Sooner or later, east is forced to win with his diamond king.

With nothing but red cards to return, if he leads back a heart, your south five wins; if he leads back a diamond, your south tops take. Then roll tricks until you are down to a red and two blacks.

By this time, west has prepared to protect both black suits. So, he has kept his two clubs and the nine of spades. Your north dummy has saved two clubs and the spade eightspot.

Right now lead your last red card and west is caught in a vise. He is squeezed to a gulp. In the nutcracker, whatever he does from now on is something you can take advantage of.

If he caught up a club, your dummy lets go of the spade. If west flings his spade, dummy gets rid of a club. North is then entered with a club for the rest.

West is squeezed until it hoits, Moitle.

Supply of Cars Will Not Equal Demand Till '51

Gananoque, Ont., Sept. 15 — (CP)—Some statisticians predict that the supply of passenger automobiles will not equal the demand until 1951, H. M. JeQuays, president of the Ontario Steel Products Company, said in his report to the 32nd annual meeting of shareholders at the head office here.

Mr. JeQuays said he believed there would be a decline in total business in Canada during the rest of this year, continuing possibly until spring.

"Then it is expected improvement will occur gradually," he said, "resulting in industrial activity which will prevail for at least four or five years."

Referring to prospects for a heavy demand for passenger automobiles, Mr. JeQuays said that during the three pre-war years which followed the depression average production of motor cars was 128,390 annually, but during the last five years the average has been 43,740.

In a review of the last year's activity, General Manager E. S. Byers emphasized the development of plastic operations and injection moulding.

Beer Increase Out of Question Says Chairman

Toronto, Sept. 15 —(CP)— W. G. Webster, chief liquor commissioner for Ontario, said Friday "an increase of the beer ration in Ontario is totally out of the question. We are giving beer drinkers every ounce we can give them.

"It is obvious we could not increase the ration to the home consumer, when beverage rooms are opening only for a couple of hours at a time and beer warehouses, on account of shortage, are not remaining open for their regular hours."

Atom Was Known For Many Centuries

(Chicago Tribune)

If you are finding it difficult to adjust your mind to the newness of the atom, you might note the fact that this little stranger was born about 400 B.C. It was the invention of a serious Greek thinker known as Democritius of Abdera, also called the Laughing Philosopher. Said this merry soul, "In reality there is nothing but atoms and space."

Of course, Democritius did nothing but talk about the atom, which was merely a creature of his imagination. He never dreamed that it could be taken apart with results that might alter his definition of the universe into "There is nothing . . . but space." Moreover, his atom was not like ours; it was something like a particle of dust.

Philosophic talk about the atom trickled down the ages, but the little stranger was hardly persona grata among laboratory scientists until 1803, when John Dalton, English chemist, introduced the useful theory of atomic weights. He even drew pictures of atoms, neatly arranged in various ways within their molecules.

The doorway into the secret heart of the atom was opened by Rontgen, a German physicist, in 1895. While shooting electricity through a vacuum tube he observed that a piece of equipment nearby gave off a curious light. This led to his discovery of X-rays. The next years a Frenchman, Becquerel, found that uranium emitted invisible rays similar to Rontgen's. Here, then, was an element that in a state of nature was giving off the energy locked within its atoms. Therefore atom-cracking was possible.

"The Rich" Are Soaked

(Brantford Expositor)

The familiar cry that has been heard for so many years, "soak the rich," will scarcely avail under the present circumstances. The income tax returns for 1944 reveal that individuals earning $5,000 and upwards paid taxes of $295,300,000 on incomes of $657,000,000. Thus forty-four percent of these incomes was collected in taxes. Then those earning incomes under $5,000 paid taxes of $470,000,000 on incomes of $4,100,000,000 or less than ten percent.

"The Ballad and the Source" will be produced as a motion picture by Walter Wanger, he having paid $200,000 for the film rights. Andy Devine's two sons, Ted and Denny, ten and six years old respectively, will appear with their father in "Canyon Passage". . . Alan Ladd, suspended by his studio, and his wife, the former Sue Carroll, are spending some time in Canada. . . Sabu is out of uniform and will be back on the screen soon. . . Hoagy Carmichael, the songwriter who played the piano, sang and acted with Bogart and Bacall in "To Have and Have Not," will make a singing record of his own composition, "Stardust," for the first time in the 13 years that went by since he wrote it. The song has been sung publicly or recorded by hundreds of artists.

The horses that used to stampede for the movies were actually wild, having roamed the range with the herds that grew when runaway horses managed to remain at freedom.

At one time these horses were magnificent animals with great wariness and fighting spirit. For the movie, "Smoky," real cowboys went after the herds and after several weeks of hunting managed to round up about 400 horses.

They captured many more but let them loose. Wild horses, due to inbreeding, have deteriorated in size and it is predicted that within a few generations the only horses on this continent will be beasts of burden.

In late years ranchers have been shooting wild horses because they used up feed needed for cattle.

If he gets the right to take over the amusement section, some of the dullness so often complained of by visitors will vanish from the Queen City.

4 More Members Of Tojo Cabinet Give Selves Up

Yokohama, Sept. 15 — (AP) — United States 8th Army Headquarters announced today four more members of the Tojo cabinet and the former Japanese Ambassador to the Philippines surrendered Friday and were being held in the Yokohama jail.

They included two of Tojo's closest henchmen, Lt.-Gen. Teiichi Suzuki, former minister without portfolio and president of the influential cabinet planning board and Okinori Kaya, former finance minister.

The others were Michiyo Iwamura, former justice minister; Sekiya Ino, former agricultural and forestry minister, and Shozo Murata, former ambassador to the puppet Philippine Republic.

At the same time Koki Hirota, foreign minister in 1936 who signed the anti-Comintern Pact was removed from Gen. MacArthur's list of Black Dragon Society members wanted for questioning, there was no explanation.

May Wash Up Japan Occupation Within a Year

Tokyo, Sept. 15 (AP)—The occupation of Japan "may be washed up" within a year, Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger predicted Friday.

He expressed his view at a press conference in his United States 8th Army headquarters, where he observed that "when an insular country loses its land, sea and air power and is without raw materials and has big countries sitting on its flanks, it can't be much of a threat."

"If the Japs continued acting as they are now," he said in answer to a question, "within a year this thing should be washed up."

He estimated the occupation would necessitate the use of about 400,000 troops, but disclosed that orders for some units, notably railroad troops and engineer shore parties, already had been cancelled when it was discovered that Japanese installations were in better shape than expected.

THE "WHIPPAH" IS MATCHED WITH McCREADY

Remember, a couple of weeks ago when Earl "Moose" McCready, the good-looking guy from Aurora had the British Empire wrestling crown held by champion Whipper Billy Watson, almost off the adonis-like head of the champ, and the timekeepers gong terminated hectic third fall that might have ended in disaster for Mrs. Watson's little boy?

Well, that bout was far from satisfactory from the points of view of both contestants. The "Moose" thinks that with a little more time he would have had the championship in his grasp, and the Whipper figures that by the same token he would have eventually tied the Moose in knots and sent him away in kinks to his Aurora hunting grounds.

So just to get things on a different basis and clear up any little misunderstanding that might exist between the two handsomest birds in rassledom, Promoter Tunney has instructed "The Voice" Phil Lawson to throw the playmates at each other in a no-limit fight-to-the-finish go. And that is what is going to happen at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night. Both Watson and McCready feel they can take the measure of each other and that fact itself guarantees one of the niftiest bouts to be seen here in some time. Each knows the other's style and —well, just wait and see.

Domei Agency Can Supply News To Home Islands

Tokyo, Sept. 15 (AP) — The semi-official Japanese news agency Domei, which was ordered suspended by Gen. MacArthur yesterday, prepared to resume operations at noon today after halting its service to 65 newspapers in Japan for a period of 20 1-2 hours.

After a conference at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters with Allied press division officers, officials of the Domei agency returned to their office and told key executives to prepare to resume operations at noon.

At the Domei plant the entire news staff had waited throughout the morning hoping that the situation would be clarified.

(Tokyo broadcasts said Domei has been told it can suply domestic news within the home islands under "100 per cent censorship" of the army but that its foreign service is terminated. There are 3,000 Domei employees overseas.

(The broadcasts said press copy of Domei recently appearing in Japanese papers conveyed the idea that Japan and her conqueror are "negotiating" and have not made clear that Japan is a defeated nation taking orders from the victor.)

Distribution of news by the single Japanese agency had come to an abrupt halt at 3:29 p.m. yesterday.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters gave no explanation of why the Japanese agency was suspended or why the suspensions had been lifted.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 15

Susan Talks of Eric.

Folly decided to call Susan to see if they could lunch together. Susan was friendly but regretful. There was a meeting of the motor corps to which she belonged and after that she was attending a nurse's aide class.

"By the way," Susan continued, "do you ever see Mama's friend, Eric Lindstrom?"

"I've seen him occasionally," Folly admitted cautiously.

"We haven't heard from him for weeks," Susan continued. "Mama left word for him to call as soon as he came back from Los Angeles but he didn't do it. She is furious but personally I never liked him anyway."

Folly replaced the telephone thoughtfully. If he wasn't seeing the Whitcombs any more why was Eric so anxious to conceal their plans until after the wedding?

It occurred to Marta on the way home that evening that she had seen very little of Folly lately. Hazel's engagement had been the subject of conversation whenever the three girls had been together.

The fact that Hazel and Charles planned to be married soon proved, Marta admitted, how right Jim had been. Folly was still supposed to be looking for work. Until she found it Hazel would contribute her part to the housekeeping fund but it had not entered Hazel's mind to postpone her marriage for such a reason.

Marta and Hilton.

Yet Marta had kept Jim waiting for years, pleading the excuse of her responsibilities. Her cheeks burned, remembering this, then she thought, "But if I had married Jim I should never have known Hilton."

The idea was illuminating. She had never really loved Jim Melvin. His marriage to Myra hurt her vanity, nothing more. Marta had missed him, of course. One couldn't spend all one's leisure time with anyone and not miss him but with a quickening heart Marta realized that she had not missed Jim at all after her first evening with "Grandpa."

They had been seeing a great deal of each other. They had their little jokes and double meanings. It was routine now for Marta to tell Chan they would not be dining at home on Saturday nights. Like all workers who had to rise early this was their night to play and Hilton thoughtfully made reservations at one after another of their favorite night clubs so that they might be sure of a table.

Folly Slips From Mind

The other three nights Marta was free had been gradually taken by him also. Sometimes at home talking before the drawing room fire. Often Marta was too tired even to go to a movie. They did not stay up late but she discovered in these aimless conversations that Hilton was revealing his personality and background.

The more she knew of him the more attractive he became. She liked the little boy he had been getting odd jobs to keep his widowed mother; the youth who washed windows and waited tables to pay for two precious years of college; the man dependable, balanced, intelligent he was now. But while she had been concentrating on these things Folly had slipped from her mind.

Usually conscious of every thing the younger girl was doing Marta reproached herself. Amused to think that Folly had probably deliberately made herself inconspicuous hoping to avoid any argument about her going to work. She would speak to her tonight, Marta decided. She would tell Hilton she intended to go to bed early and go to her room so that she and Folly might have a long talk.

Precautions.

Marta's plans were forestalled by Folly accepting a date with Bruce. Folly was feeling restless. Eric had not telephoned all day and he had asked her some time ago not to telephone him.

"I may have company," he explained. "People often drop in for a cocktail before dinner or later in the evening for a drink. It is embarrassing for me to be summoned to the telephone and I should not like to be abrupt with you. Better for me to do the telephoning."

"I've never called you but once," Folly reminded him, stung by what seemed like unecessary precautions. Yet certainly if he had not warned her she would have called him tonight. She wanted to tell him it had been silly for her to ask for time to make up her mind. She would marry him whenever he asked. No wonder Eric had been hurt when she insisted upon at least a week to think it over. Any number of Folly's friends would have jumped at the chance to become a countess.

But since he had never called her after dinner she knew there was no chance of his telephoning tonight. That was why when Bruce telephoned while she was still at the table she accepted.

Marta Waits Up.

"I haven't seen you for a thousand years," Bruce reminded her. "How's about it?"

His voice over the telephone always sounded more intriguing than Bruce himself. Folly said she would be ready when he called and left before Marta had a chance at her. Knowing she would not be home until late Marta decided to wait up and took her place before the drawing room fire with a book.

Hilton had looked inquiringly at her during dinner, signalling with the lifting of an eyebrow which in their code meant did she want to go to a movie? Marta had smiled and shaken her head so he had retired into grandpa's room. But she suspected that he would not stay there and presently after Bruce and Folly had gone the telephone rang. It was Hilton.

"Do you particularly want to be alone tonight?" he asked.

"If I did I'd have gone to my room," she assured him. "Come on in, grandpa, and make yourself at home."

Marta "a Habit."

He was coming down the hall before she had turned from the telephone.

"Why so shy?" Marta asked, seating herself on the davenport.

He sat down beside her saying "Funny isn't it, when I first came here I was determined to maintain my privacy and complete independence. Now if you are at home I can sit by my fire and enjoy it. But if you're not . . . Darn you, Marta, you're becoming a habit."

Marta nodded lazily.

"You, too. I have so few evenings at home you'd think I'd want to be alone myself. I did plan to go to bed early tonight because I hoped to have a chance to talk to Folly."

"What has the little darling done now?"

She glanced at him doubtfully, not sure whether or not he was being sarcastic.

"Nothing that I know of. It just occurred to me today that for the first time in my life I've forgotten to think about her."

Hilton Kisses Her.

Marta spoke naturally with no idea of being flirtatious but Hilton's big hand clasped hers.

"Do you actually admit that, Marta?"

"Why not?" she continued, then meeting his ardent, laughing eyes she began to blush.

"I suppose it is because of your pressing duties for the Fourth Interceptor Command?" he urged, without relinquishing his grasp.

"I suppose it is," she said.

"You lie," he assured her happily. "The only reason you have forgotten that delightful, delicious little exhibitionist is because of me. And I dare you to deny it."

She tried but the words died on her lips as Hilton competently drew her close and kissed her.

When Marta opened her eyes she saw that the room was still spinning about her, but caution born of her previous unfortunate romance made her determine not to show it. The kiss from Hilton was not so much of a surprise as her own reaction to it. She had not felt like this when she kissed Jim.

"I can never call him grandpa again," she thought crazily.

Forced to speak first Hilton said, "I've been waiting to do that for a long time."

"It didn't take you so long in Folly's case," she reminded him.

He had the grace to redden. How could he tell her that Folly had practically dared him to kiss her? A man couldn't be cad enough to say such a thing about a girl's own sister. She wouldn't understand. Marta, who understood perfectly but had no intention of admitting it, was recovering her composure.

"One kiss doesn't mean a thing," she told herself. That's why she flashed out at him. But did she want it to mean anything? Did she want to fall in love when it could have no satisfactory ending?

Even if Hazel felt free to marry her captain, Marta knew she herself would stand by until Folly was supporting herself. Of course Hilton's intentions were not serious. He'd been interested in all three of them at one time or another. Hazel was his first choice and it was probably only because Hazel was so obviously in love with some one else that that he had turned to Marta.

They Talk of Folly.

Several moments had gone by with neither of them speaking then Hilton remarked, "I did kiss Folly once. But I think of Folly as a child, Marta."

"Then you ought to be ashamed of yourself," she retorted. "Let's not argue about it, Hilton. I really wanted to ask your advice. Have you any idea what Folly has been doing lately?"

"The only times I've seen her are when she breezes out the front door looking very gorgeous. But always alone."

"That's what bothers me. Tonight is the first date she has had with Bruce for weeks yet she is never at home. I've been so busy. . . I mean you've taken up so much of my time," she admitted with a fleeting smile, "that I didn't realize until today how little I've seen of her."

"You don't think she is following the example of a lot of girls nowadays? Haunting the hotel bars in search of excitement?"

Marta's reply was prompt.

"No, I don't. Folly is too discriminating. It's something else. I'll probably find out when she comes home tonight. I'm going to stay awake until she comes."

"Still spoiling her," Hilton insisted. He tried to take Marta's hand again but the spell between them had been broken. "Why don't you let her learn things for herself, Marta? Put her on her own and if she makes a mistake let her suffer?"

"I can't do that. Folly is too young for her age. Maybe she has been too protected but I certainly can't turn her loose at this point. She is too sensitive. Too delicate."

"She's stronger and a lot less sensitive than you are," the man declared. "But those qualities haven't kept you from making your own way. Alone and unaided."

A Cloud Between Them.

Whenever they discussed Folly a cloud seemed to rise between them. She was the only topic upon which they completely disagreed and feeling dissatisfied and annoyed Marta said, "I think I'll go upstairs now. Naturally I can't expect you to feel as I do about her so there's no use talking about it."

"You said you were going to wait up."

"I'll go to bed and keep myself awake with a book," she replied. "I'm tired and you must be, too."

"Speak for yourself," Hilton retorted.

He felt baffled as always when Folly was mentioned. He wanted to seize Marta by the shoulders and shake her. He had come into the drawing room so confidently expecting one of their carefree joyous evenings. The kiss which was as unexpected to him as it had been to her, had stirred him deeply.

He did not want to leave her but she had dismissed him. If he insisted upon staying they would undoubtedly quarrel. Going to his room he put on an overcoat and stalked out into the cold, fragrant night.

Meantime Folly and Bruce were dancing. Knowing that it would be their last evening together made her sweeter than usual. No wonder Bruce misunderstood when Folly who was usually so indifferent said gently, "I do love to dance with you, Bruce. You're such a good dancer."

Boyishly Confident.

In his arms she could forget that he was just a freckled-faced sandy haired soldier. Close to him she sensed both his strength and tenderness. Also something of the blithe spirit of one who fears nothing. To Bruce life was a great adventure. His point of view about the war was so boyishly confident that Folly felt tears coming into her eyes.

"There's a lot more to this war than just licking the Japs or the Nazis," he confided. "This is everybody's war and there's going to be a place in it for every body. Just as when it's over the things we're fighting for will be the world's to share."

For a moment Folly felt as if she wanted to take her place beside him. For the first time in her life she had felt mature and womanly.

"I didn't mean to make a speech," he apologized. "I just wanted you to know how I feel about it because you know I love you, Folly. In spite of what you said some time ago. . ."

Folly closed her eyes and for once she was not acting.

"Don't say it, Bruce! Please don't say any more."

"It's still as it was? The way you feel about me?"

Should she confess that there were times when she felt herself turning toward him in spite of her determination to "use her head?" Times when she forgot his lack of glamour and saw him as a comrade by whose side she would be proud to stand?

Tells Her Plans.

"There's no use," she said, shaking her head. "Bruce, darling. Please don't be hurt, but I'm going to marry someone else. I've definitely made up my mind."

"You mean the count, I suppose?" he asked, his chin firm above her dark curls.

"Yes," she admitted.

"No," he said quickly, vehemently. "Not that man, Folly He's old enough to be your father. It will ruin your whole life."

"That's not true," Folly cried indignantly. "Eric is not more than 29 or 30 at the most."

FLAG LANDED AT DIEPPE

Citizens of Dieppe proudly displayed a Union Jack that had been brought ashore by Canadians in the Dieppe raid, on Aug. 1942. This flag was captured by the Germans and exhibited before the people of Dieppe. Shortly afterwards, it was taken from the Germans and hidden by M. Sondee. In the group around the flag at a march-past of Canadians and Allied troops are: M. Pierre Biaz, left, mayor of Dieppe; Maj.-Gen. G. P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador to France; the representative of General Charles De Gaulle; and M. Sondee, when the flag was returned to the Canadians.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Mme. Petain Loyal To Ageing Husband

Paris,—(CP)—Madame Petain, after four years as first lady of France, nine months of exile in Germany and three months in French custody for questioning, now is living obscurely in Paris, momentarily preoccupied with how to get warm clothing for her aged husband in a fortress cell in the Pyrenees.

Her main worry, friends say, is whether she can make practical arrangements for seeing the deposed Marshal as often as possible. Under regular prison rules the former Vichy chief of state, held in Portalet Fortress since commutation of his death sentence for intelligence with the enemy, is allowed visitors only 30 minutes each week and the nearest village is several miles away.

His wife, who is 22 years younger than he, is anxious to learn what quarters she might find near the fortress. There now is talk of moving the 89-year-old prisoner to a warmer climate. Portalet is often blocked by snow-drifts covering the zig-zag uphill road to the fortress for weeks on end.

If medical authorities find Petain unable to stand the rigors of the Pyrenees mountain climate, it is possible he may be moved.

Petain Pessimistic

Madame Petain received her first letter from her husband recently and he appeared pessimistic and discouraged, friends reported.

Rarely in evidence at Vichy during Petain's rule, Madame Petain, a tall, dignified former society woman, goes about the streets of Paris and rides the subway without ever being recognized.

One of the complications of her life now is the legal confiscation of her husband's property, which is almost inextricably bound with her own under French law. Lawyers are trying to straighten out the legal tangle.

Confiscated holdings include "L'Ermitage," a two-story house and farm on the French Riviera. Petain spent all of his holidays at "L'Ermitage," and planned to live there permanently in his retirement. With "L'Ermitage" lost, Madame Petain says she feels no attachment to any particular place and wants only to be near her husband if possible.

MADE BIG MISTAKE

London, Sept. 15 — (Reuters)— The Germans, by failing to deliver a knockout blow to Southern England airfields in 1940 made a mistake which cost them the war, the War Ministry said last night on the eve of the fifth anniversary of the RAF victory in the Battle of Britain.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP)—Canada's service bands whose pipers played men to Eicillian beaches and whose drummers dragged the wounded from shell-torn fields in Europe are nat specifically in the "key" category. But a bugler, who also turns in an office job at defence headquarters here, says he has become "an awful important guy around the army these days."

Recent orders said men in Canada who wanted to get out of the army to go back to their old jobs, to farms or to college could do so. The bugler applied for discharge and suddenly learned of his importance.

He was told to stick to filing for a while yet. But he figures it isn't his clerking job in which the army is most interested. More likely it's his enthusiastic tooting at Lansdowne Park when the repatriates are welcomed back from overseas.

Bandsmen are consodered No. 1 morale builders. At a time when there is a large number of idle men waiting repatriation overseas and other hundreds pouring off the troopships et east coast ports, the band are considered "musts."

One day soon, however, Defence Minister Abbott and Air Minister Gibson will have to decide on a scaling-down band strength to meet peacetime requirements.

The navy has 16 bands and these will be drastically cut within the next few months. Unlike the other services, the navy is considering the building of four new bands—which may be drawn from personnel now being discharged.

Canada's cruisers, Ontario rnd Uganda, already are forming abdnwshile the two new aircraft carriers also call for band establishments. The Canadian navy hasn't got any marines so the seagoing bands will have to be drawn from the sailors.

Ship bands are part of the navy tradition and are considered important on peacetime "flag-showing" voyages.

The army has hundreds of bands both at home and overseas —all doing an important entertainment and ceremonial job. The army used its smart ovtrseas bands as stretcher companies in action in at least one campaign— Sicily—Canadian pipers played the troops into battle.

The R.C.A.F. has lively band at each of the five home commands and four bands and two orchestras overseas. The crack Central Band at Rockcliffe is bound to become a permanent fixture but the distinctive Trenton pipe band with its special blue force plaid, likely will be disbanded.

Naphtha Blast Kills Eight And 44 Are Injured

Montreal, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Toll of yesterday's naphtha explosion in a hardware warehouse basement rose to eight today, with the deaths of four persons in hospital during the night.

Forty-four other persons remained in hospital under treatment for burns of varying intensity and four others died last night a few hours after the explosion on Northend Mentana Street shot a fan-like sheet of flame out of the basement to envelop and sear passersby on the street.

Four Died In Night

Those who died during the night were six-year-old Paul Andrew Millette, Alphonse Cournoyer, 21, whose mother and sister died earlier, Jeannine Fiset, 13, whose mother died a few hours before, and Jeannine Dominique, 16.

Earlier deaths were those of Mrs. Marcel Fiset, 38, Mrs. Emile Cournoyer, 46 and her 16-year-old daughter Denise, and Roger Gladu, 26.

The explosion was reported to have been caused by a fire in a small can of naphtha which spread to a 45-gallon drum of the same inflammable liquid. An employee, 54-year-old Phileas Roy, was said to have used a wrench on a jammed cap on the drum, making a spark which set fire to the small container of naphtha. He summoned the fire department, but the explosion followed as the first fire trucks arrived.

Burst of Flame

The burst of flame, 100 feet wide and 25 feet high, shot thru the basement door, enveloping District Chief T. Pageau, six firemen on the pumper and about 100 persons, mostly children on their way home from school, who had gathered to watch the fire.

Children and adults were thrown to the pavement with blackened faces and burned clothing. Within a few minutes scores of fire trucks, 25 police cars and patrol wagons and 15 ambulances rushed on the scene and the victims were taken to various hospitals.

There was no estimate of damage to the building. A heavy concrete floor confined the flames to the basement and there was little damage to other floors. The fire itself was extinguished in about half an hour.

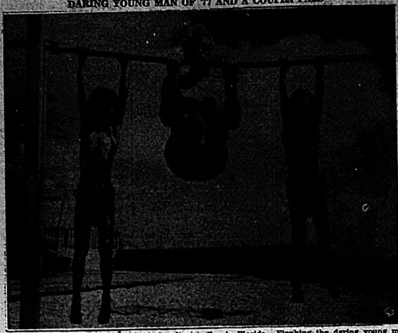
DARING YOUNG MAN OF 77 AND A COUPLA PALS



Bernarr McFadden, famed physical culturist, celebrated his 77th birthday by practicing what he has always preached in a demonstration of agility on the crossbar at his home in Miami Beach, Florida. Flanking the daring young man of 77 are Lane and John Knox, of College Park, Md. They are the children of Mrs. Howard Knox.

Hard Hit by War France Painfully Works for Future

Paris (CP) — France today, as Gen. De Gaulle has described it with painful accuracy, is "standing erect but greviously wounded."

Life for the average Frenchman has approached the thin edge of disaster. What the war did not destroy it paralyzed. There are not enough men for the factories and the fields, but there are too many for the scant supplies of food and clothing.

A city dweller is hungry during most of the day. His daily food ration equals a little over 1,500 calories—about half the minimum requirement for an adult engaged in physical labor.

His wife can not set their table with this alone, so she buys in the black marget; 40 cents for one egg, 50 cents for a quart of milk, $4 for a pound of beef or pork, $9 for a pound of coffee, $5 for a pound of butter and $20 for a quart of salad or cooking oil.

If the man needs a new suit he can buy one for perhaps $400. (His salary is $120 a month on the average.) Shoes would cost between $80 and $135 in Paris. Ordinary cotton shirts sell for around $40.

In the coming Winter food prices in the black market will treble and clothing prices will skyrocket still further. The coal ration will be some 200 pounds—pounds, not tons, — per home. Last winter in Paris the child mortality rate was double the normal.

Coal is almost a precious gem here. It will start the wheels of industry and transportation. It will bring in food from the country, where food is plentiful. But fuel won't solve all of France's problems.

Circle is Vicious.

Ruined railway bridges are being rapidly restored. But because of a vicious circle (lack of coal cutting down steel production, which reduces the output of machinery) it will be a long time before railways achieve pre-war performance again. Between September of 1939 and September of 1944, France lost (or herself destroyed) five-sixths of her locomotives, four-fifths of her passenger cars and two-thirds of her freight cars. Bombs, shells and the French underground knocked out over 2,000 miles of roadbeds.

Actual combat destroyed some factories and damaged others, but hundreds of miles away from the nearest battlefield there are wrecked factories. British and American bombers got them or they were blown up by resistance fighters. Still others are idle or working only partially because the Germans removed machinery or because there are no new parts available.

The French government originally gave machinery a higher priority than food in its request for help from the United States. But if the average Frenchman feels that Americans are indifferent to his needs he has not seen statistics for American assistance the first six months of this year.

These include 131,000 tons of wheat, 70,000 tons of cotton, 13,000 tons of cattle fodder, 30,000 tons of soya beans, 22,000 tons of legumes, 38,000 tons of minerals and metals, 122,000 tons of steel, 59,000 tons of building materials, 44,000 tons of sugar, 75,000 tons of sulphur, and 26,000 tons of wool.

With a general election coming in October, France's Socialists and Communists unquestionably have gained strength. This was shown in the municipal elections. The Leftists have directly challenged De Gaulle's proposal for a new government and a new constitution. If France rejects the proposals it will probably be accurate evidence that the French Communists and Socialists dominate the country.

NATURE COLUMN'S FLOWERY CHATTER TIMES TRADITION

"Rich, Beautiful Prose" of Feature Has Been Subject of Satires But Carries On

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Buried on an inside page of The Times, about once a week, is a short item always entitled "The Course of Nature" and always attributed to "a correspondent" who is never named.

Here, if the reader can wade through "fine writing," is the place to find out whether the season for butterflies is good or bad, whether the size of bird families is normal.

"The Course of Nature" has been satirized in many humorous books about reporters on Fleet Street—including Evelyn Waugh's "Scoop" — and overseas newspapermen clip the more flowery efforts as examples of how not to write a news story.

But the nature notes continue, as much a part of The Times tradition as the daily paragraph in which it "announces with regret" the death of prominent persons or its daily list of important "invalids."

"The turtle-dove still turrs, and in tall trees the chiff-chaff keeps up what Anthony Collett has described as its chiming cry, thought the chiff-chaff's twin, the willow-wren, is silent save for plaintive notes which suggest a keen anxiety."

So started one recent column, typical of them all. It ended with a north country saying supplied by "Mr. Herbert Sharples" about the cuckoo:

"In April she's coming;
"In May she's in her prime.
"In June she is going;
"And in July she's gone."

"Which," added The Times, "seems to accord better with the cuckoo's very early departure than the more widely accepted rendering, with its unnecessary final warning, 'In August go he must'."

"The garden is full of the sound of young birds," was the opening sentence of a late-July column. It told how a pair of goldcrests were feeding their young, "ranged neatly in a row along a fir bough and of an almost unbelievable smallness, tinier even than their parents, but with much louder or more penetrating voices."

"The goldcrest's song is the merest whisper, its call-note—a high-pitched 'see-see-see' — inaudible to many, but he must be deaf indeed who cannot hear young goldcrests," said the anonymous writer.

Not Foolproof, However.

The "Course of Nature" is not foolproof, however. One column reported that "it is a 'patchy' year for butterflies," with some species not seen again when "after each bright spell there followed an even longer period of wind and cloud and rain."

"Nature herself quickly corrected an erroneous impression," apologized The Times. William Baggaley had written that in Ruislip Woods, Middlesex he "saw, perhaps, 40 in an hour, including one specimen (of White Admiral) much darker than the others, almost coal-black."

Now and again there is a modern touch quite out of keeping with the usual presentation. There was the story from Roughton Rectory of a red-legged partridge which returned to an apparently-deserted nest to hatch successfully a clutch of eggs more than two months old. There must have been raised eyebrows when The Times introduced the story as a case of "delayed-action hatching."

Ambulance Wedding For Toronto Groom

Combe Down, England (CP)—An ambulance took paratrooper Frank N. Deluca of Toronto, to church in this Somersetshire village for his marriage to Joan Haywood of Portsmouth. Wounded in France while serving with the 1st. Canadian Parachute Battalion, Deluca has both his legs in casts, but he did not let this interfere with his wedding. His bride is in the Auxiliary Territorial Service.

"I met Joan down here just before D-Day," said Deluca when he returned to hospital. "I proposed to her about six months ago and had the two rings sent from Canada. She came to see me in hospital every chance she had.

"Fortunately, she works in a lab not far from here. I expect to get back home soon by hospital ship and I think Joan will be able to get priority. We plan to live in Toronto."

Deluca, aged 20, enlisted in 1943 and came overseas last July. He was wounded by shrapnel from an 88 mm. gun shell.

MERCHANT MARINE LOSSES.

London (CP)— One in every five Merchant Navy officers who went to sea during the war lost his life, Capt. W. H. Coombs told the annual meeting of the Mercantile Marine Officers' Federation.

Mobile Library Brings Reading To Entire Prairie

Train, Truck Boat and Plane Transport 200,000 Books Yearly in Saskatchewan

Regina (CP) — Every six months 100,000 travellers set out from here for homes and schools in inaccessible areas of Saskatchewan—they are the books which travel all over the province by train, truck, boat and airplane.

They are known as the provincial government's "travelling library," and have earned the title the hard way. They cover thousands of miles until finally, dog-eared and broken-backed, they are retired from active service to be replaced by brand new volumes.

Schools and settlers far from civilization in the northern areas of Saskatchewan welcome the books and have expressed their appreciation to the government library by letter for the hours of entertainment provided by the printed word.

The most popular books in the travelling library?—"Whodunits" and "westerns." Over the entire province from the Regina plains to the region of lakes and woods in the distant north, the demand is for detective stories and tales of the wild west.

In the winter, dogsleds cart boxes of books across the bleak frozen country. Formerly the 2,000 boxes went out once a year, but now the travelling library service has been made available for a six-month period.

Each box contains 50 books, and is packed with 10 biographies or popular books on current events in addition to the usual detective, western and romantic novels and other fiction.

For juveniles, 500 new books of high standard have been added to the travelling library, and are to be included in boxes sent to schools. In the past there have been three government libraries —the legislative library and two rural services, the travelling library and the open shelf library. The government libraries now have been placed under the administration of Mrs. Austin Bothwell, provincial librarian.

The open shelf library has been changed in name to Public Information and moved from the legislative building basement to the rear of the legislative library, where professional library books such as references and indexes are available.

At the last session of the legislature votes of $60,000 were passed for the libraries, the votes for the current fiscal year being an increase of $37,000 over previous years because of the need for building up new stocks in the travelling library.

THE LADY MAJOR COMES TO GRIPS WITH THE ENEMY

Pretty Ex-Politician Now With Counsel for Prosecution of Axis War Criminals

(By JEAN EADS)

Washington, (AP) — Major Catherine E. Falvey, of the United States Women's Army Corps, has her pretty blue eyes on a pair of high-heeled, toeless red sandals and a hat that's a diller.

She also wants to climb a mountain.

But Major Falvey will have to go on wearing those "sensible" brown oxfords and that khaki chapeau for some time. As to scaling an Alp, she doubts the army will let her go galavanting about that way.

She is the first WAC officer assigned to the office of counsel for the prosecution of Axis war criminals at Paris.

Despite her hankerings, Kay—as she is known to her associates—is full of zest for her new job.

She'll probably question some of the criminals, but her main assignment will be compiling evidence against them. This assignment is not entirely out of line with what she did for sixteen years before she enlisted in the WAC in August, 1942.

She practiced law in Boston and from 1941 to 1942 was a member of the Massachusetts state legislature. She is a member of the Massachusetts bar, Federal District Court bar and the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

She has always been interested in outlawing corruption from politics.

"What I have to do now is the same sort of thing, only on a broader scale," she says.

"It's going to be difficult when democracy is dealing with what's left over from a dictatorship.

"But by the fact that we have a fair trial instead of indiscriminately disposing of war criminals, we are proving that the ends of justice are best administered by democratic processes."

She says this doesn't prove that democracy is soft—"It proves that democracy is flexible, strong and enduring."

Born and reared in Somerville, Mass. where her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Falvey now lives, Major Falvey joined the WAC because she thought it was patriotic.

She was a Democratic member of the state legislature at the time and was up for re-election.

Chose Army Over Politics.

Her orders to go to Fort Des Moines, La., came in July, 1942, seven minutes before the city clerk's office closed on the last day she could apply for papers for withdrawal from nomination. In frantic haste she phoned the clerk to wait for her. He closed at 5 p.m. willy-nilly, and she didn't make it. The nomination went through.

She heard of her re-election while at the WAC officer candidate school. She went to England as a first lieutenant in the summer of 1942.

"My biggest scare of the war was caused by a mouse that skittered over the floor of my flat in London," she says.

SIDE-SHOW STAFF

Newcastle, New South Wales—(CP) — The Beach Hotel here has been staffed during the last few years by the world's fattest lady, a "skeleton" man, a snake-charmer and a pygmy. The hotel is owned by side-show promoter Arthur Greenhalgh, who had difficulty in placing his freaks in employment and bought the hotel to house them temporarily.

London (CP) — Women volunteers at the request of the ministry of supply are paddling south coast coves gathering red seaweed used in the production of penicillin.

Briefs From Britain

By the Canadian Press

Manchester, England—(CP)—Lieut. J. E. Davis, 28, was killed one hour after seeing his wife and child for the first time in four years when a mortar bomb he brought home as a souvenir exploded.

London—(CP)—Traders asked that price control of onions be lifted—and had their way. They thought they could hold the price. Then the price of onions in London rose from the controlled maximum of nine cents a pound to 16 and 20 cents. The food ministry promised control would be reimposed if there was profiteering.

Hull, England — (CP) — A bronze bust of Amy Johnson, the Hull-born aviator, has been unveiled in Ferens Art Gallery here.

London — (CP) — Plans to spend $4,500,000 on making Alexandra Palace the greatest entertainment centre in Britain are being considered by the post-war committees of the Palace trustees.

London—(CP)—Three masked burglars bound and gagged the Wanstead and Woodford food office watchman and then went through the building looking for food and clothing coupons. It is not yet known how many coupons were taken.

London, England—(CP)—London police have 30 new police cars equipped with two-way radios. One will be stationed in each district of the metropolitan force.

Wolverhampton, England — (CP)—Durban, South Africa is spending nearly $900,000 on the purchase of 52 trolley buses here.

Portsmouth, England—(CP)—Warships capable of withstanding atomic bomb pressure will be designed and tested by Admiralty experts here when the necessary data has been collected.

London — (CP) — Sir Ben Smith, food minister, warned members of his staff wishing to return to London that many would be disappointed as homes were hard to find in this bomb-damaged city.

Croydon, England—(Reuter)—Closing of a number of munitions factories here is easing the domestic servant problem. When Mrs. Winnifred Pape advertised for domestic help a dozen applicants were at her house within an hour of the advertisement appearing in a local paper.

Norbiton, England — (CP) — Ernest Saunders, bachelor registrar of births, deaths and marriages for Northeast Surrey, has married between 15,000 and 20,000 couples in his 44 years' service. He is retiring next month.

Yugoslavia Sets Forth Claims To Disputed Trieste

Presents Long Memorandum To Big 5 Foreign Ministers

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 17 —(AP)— The Yugoslav embassy published today a 9,000-word memorandum backing its claim to disputed Trieste, the province of Venezia Gullia and the Dalmation Islands, which it will present to the Big Five foreign ministers here this afternoon.

The Italians and the British Dominions also will put forward their views on the controversial Italian-Yugoslav frontier problem, which has been a constant source of dispute through two years.

The boundary sought by the Yugoslavs runs about 40 miles west of Trieste to the town of Monfalcone (Trzic in Slovene.)

The Yugoslav document, which will be backed by arguments from Vice Premier Edward Karelj, head of the Belgrade delegation declared that the "whole problem has been created by Italy's greed."

The Italians have prepared counter-claims although they are expected to concede the Yugoslavs the port of Fiume.

The question reflects a whole panorama of divergent big-power views and many delegates have expressed the opinion that the decision on the Italian-Yugoslav border is closely linked to the outcome of the tug-of-war for control of central Europe.

At this point there appears to be agreement among the Big Five foreign ministers on only one aspect of the boundary dispute — that the port of Trieste should be ruled so it can serve Czechoslovakia, Austria and Poland as well as Italy and Yugoslavia.

This would mean either a free-port arrangement or internationalization of the port itself.

On the administration of the city of Trieste, the Istrian Peninsula and the whole province of Venezia Giulia, however, there is a basic conflict.

The Yugoslavs claim all this territory. The Italians claim the same area which was theirs before the Second Great War, although apparently they are willing to concede small changes of the border, probably leaving Fiume to Yugoslavia.

The Russians are expected to support the Yugoslavs, while the American and British delegates are believed to lean toward the Italian view. The Americans are understood to favor the boundary suggested by President Wilson after the last war, which left Fiume to Yugoslavia and Trieste to Italy, with the major part of the intervening territory going to the Italians.

The vital question of who will rule the Italian colonies has been left for the time being to the Big Five deputies. The problem was referred to them by the foreign ministers with the charge to make fullest possible use of the American plan to let the United Nations appoint administrators of the colonies.

CHARLES F. LINN DIES AT STIRLING IN 74TH YEAR

Former Cheesemaker and Dairy Instructor for Madoc and Stirling Districts

Stirling, Sept. 17 — (Special) — After an illness of two years' duration Charles F. Linn died at his home here this morning.

Born in the United States, the late Mr. Linn was in his 74th year and was a son of the late William Linn and his wife the late Eliza Potts. For many years he lived in this district and was widely known and highly esteemed. To many friends, his death has brought much regret.

Mr. Linn was a cheesemaker and made cheese at Marmora, Sairling and Bonarlaw. In 1911 he was appointed dairy instructor for Madoc District and later for Stirling District. This position he held for twenty-seven years, retiring in 1938. From 1916 to 1934, in addition to his other duties he was a member of the Kingston Dairy School staff. For several years under his supervision the Stirling District won the Hon. John S. Martin trophy for the highest scoring district.

Mr. Linn was a prominent and active member of St. Paul's United Church and served as a steward and also as an elder of the church. He also took an active part in the town affairs, being a member of the Board of Education for several years and treasurer of the local bowling club.

On December 26th. last, Mr. Linn and his wife, who survives him, celebrated their Golden Wedding and many friends on the occasion extended to them congratulations and good wishes. Fraternally Mr. Linn was a member of Stirling Lodge No. 9 A.F.&A.M.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Margaret Webb of Springbrook; one daughter, Mrs. James (Florence(Hough of Havelock; one son, Mr. William Frank Linn, Montreal; two brothers, Mr. William Linn, Reeve of Marmora, and Mr. Frank Linn of Texas; two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Lott of Vancouver, and Mrs. Gertie Mason of Edmonton, Alberta; two grandsons, Douglas Hough and Gordon Linn.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Weather Forecast

Lake Superior—Fresh to strong southeast to south winds; partly cloudy and a little milder tonight and Tuesday with scattered showers.

Manitoba — Partly cloudy and cool today and Tuesday with scattered showers; strong southerly winds today, shifting to northwest on Tuesday.

John McCormack Dies in Dublin

Dublin, Sept. 17 — (AP)—John McCormack, whose great tenor voice won him world acclaim as the "Golden voice of Athlone," died late last night at his home at Booters-Town, County Dublin.

A week-old cold which last Friday developed into bronchial pneumonia caused his death at the age of 61.

By his bedside when he died were his son Cyril, a captain in Eire's army, and his wife, Lily Foley of Dublin, whom he married in 1906 — a year before his debut in Cavalleria Rusticana at London's Garden Opera House brought him overnight recognition Mr. McCormack's only daughter, Mrs. Edward Pyke, of Kirkham, Lancashire, did not reach her father before his death.

Funeral arrangements were not yet announced.

Mr. McCormack sang an official farewell to the people of London at Royal Albert Hall in 1938 and retired, but came back a year later to sing for the Red Cross. He was on a Red Cross concert tour when his health broke down and his physician ordered him to leave the concert stage and return to Eire for rest.

For more than a quarter-century Mr. McCormack's golden tenor had touched the hearts of millions with such simple Irish songs as "Mother Machree" and "I Hear You Calling Me." Reputedly a millionaire, he was once described as history's wealthiest singer.

Last of 1st Canadian Division Prepares for Trip Back to Canada

(By WILLIAyM BOSS
(CP War Correspondent.)

Hilversum, Holland, Sept. 17 — (CP Cable)—The veteran 1st Canadian Division passed into history during the weekend as the last clean-up drafts left the Hilversum area for the Nijmegen Repatriation camp.

Into history went the glorious record of the hard-hitting "Red Patch Devils" who stormed ashore in Sicily in July, 1943, later surged across to the Italian mainland where they fought the long, hard battle of Italy but missed final triumph because they were transferred to northwest Europe early this year to be in the crushing of Nazi Germany.

Getting the Division's 18,000 officers and men in Holland on the move took three weeks, beginning Aug. 25, and was completed without a hitch.

Divisional headquarters functioned until the last day and then wound itself up in a Canada draft for Britain when they split up into groups destined to appropriate military depots across Canada will be effected. Where possible personnel whose old units still are located in England awaiting embarkation will be helped to rejoin them.

Meanwhile the 2nd Division movement, suspended since the first units got under way last Wednesday, will resume Sept. 18 when the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto, the 14th., 26th and 5th Field batteries of the Royal Canadian artillery report at Nijmegen. The delay was attributed principally to insufficient rail left between Nijmegen and coastal points as well as shipping difficulties.

Once resumed, however, the Divisions' repatriation is not expected to strike any snags.

A further 7,000 with point total of 110 to 130', will be affected by the weekend announcement of Canadian military headquarters in London that the Canadian Netherlands forces will be scaled down to 110 points at the completion of the 2nd Division's move.

'BEAST OF BELSEN' AND 47 OTHERS ENTER COURT DOCK

Joseph Kramer Chained To One of Prisoners At Mass Trial Of Accused Criminals

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 17 —(Reuters) — Josef Kramer, "the beast of Belsen," entered the dock chained to one of his 47 fellow-accused when their trial on war crimes charges began here today before a British military court.

Under Kramer's orders some 26,000 persons were killed in concentration camps. Now he faces the death sentence for the horrors that burst on the world when Belsen camp was overrun by the British forces. Kramer was director of the notorious concentration camp.

Pale and grim, the six-foot 38-year-old Kramer, handcuffed to guard against a rumored plan for releasing him, faced a 20-minute ordeal from a battery of cameras before entering the dock.

The only accused capable of a faint smile was one of the 20 women accused who had to support Herta Ehlert when she fainted on entering the dock.

German Spectators

The courtroom was crowded with German spectators, witnessing the first war criminals trial in the country. Before being admitted every one of them was searched.

Three of the accused, Nikolas Jenner, Paul Steimetz and Walter Melcher, were unable to appear for medical reasons and their names were removed from the charges.

At first Kramer bore a hunted expression, as with set lips and averted eyes he sat in a corner of the dock. Later he relaxed and the glimmer of a smile appeared on his face.

The court adjourned at mid-day to consider an appeal submitted by the defence that it was unable to obtain experts in international law and required witnesses.

Most of the first day probably will be consumed in arrangements, with the trial expected to last about three weeks.

Kramer — popularly known as "the beast of Belsen" — is the most widely publicized defendant, but the spotlight also was focussed on blind 21-year-old Irma Greese who served for three years as a guard at the ill-famed women's camp at Ravensbruck, north of Berlin, and at Auschwitz in Poland before going to Belsen.

Horror Scenes to be Shown

Uncensored horror films of Belsen and Auschwitz are part of the prosecution's evidence. The courtroom is equipped with movie projectors to flash them on a screen.

The "Belsen gang" is charged jointly with violation of the laws and usages of war, "causing the death of a number of nations."

Kramer and 11 other S.S. members also are charged with "ill-treating and causing the death of Allied Nationals" — a charge growing out of their activities at the gas-chamber horror camp at Auschwitz before they were transferred to Belsen.

Kramer and 44 guards chose to be defended by British officers, selecting 12 who were barristers in private life. They had the alternative of choosing defenders of their own nationality.

The prosecution has called 36 witnesses about half of whom were prisoners in Belsen and about 140 affidavits will be filed.

Danish Meat Surplus, 3,000 to 4,000 Tons Weekly, Lacks Shipping

Copenhagen, Sept. 17 (AP) — While the rest of Europe starves for meat Denmark has 3,000 to 4,000 tons of surplus beef weekly which cannot be exported for lack of shipping space.

Hoegsbro Holm, permanent secretary of the Agricultural Council of Denmark, said Sunday that for the last six weeks farmers have had as many as 16,000 head of beef cattle ready for slaughter but Denmark has been able to use and exportr only 10,000.

"At the time of the liberation we told the Allied powers there would be a surplus of meat by the first of August," he said. "We have been trying to get transport for at least two months but to date nothing is ready to take the meat. It is impossible to get boats in France, Belgium or Great Britain."

In an effort to hold back fat cattle, farmers are not allowed to put more than a certain percentage of their beef on the market. This means the animals eat valuable food which might be used to increase the production of butter, eggs and bacon.

Since the liberation on May 5, Holm said, Denmark has exported roughly 31,000 tons of butter, 16,000 tons of bacon and 4,000 tons of eggs. Of this, he said, one-half has gone to the American army in Germany and the other half to the ministry of foods in England, one-third of which supposedly was for distribution in liberated areas and one-sixth for the British liberation army.

Denmark hopes to step up these exports since before the war she delivered about one-third of the world's butter, half of its bacon an a fourth of its eggs.

HON. N. McLARTY FORMER SEC. OF STATE, DIES

Collapses Early Sunday After Attending Wedding of Daughter on Saturday

Ottawa, Sept. 17. (CP)—Hon. Norman McLarty, 56-year-old former secretary of State who resigned from the government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King prior to the general election because of his health, died suddenly early Sunday a few hours after attending the wedding of his daughter.

He had appeared in excellent health at the wedding here Saturday of his daughter Sheila, to Lieut. John McCaughey, RCN, of Ottawa. He had attended the reception, replying to the toast to the bride proposed by Mr. King.

Early Sunday morning, however, he arose from bed and collapsed, dying almost immediately. His death caused a return to Ottawa of the bridal couple who had begun their honeymoon trip and with the family they will attend the funeral at St. Andrew's church tomorrow. The body will be taken to Toronto for cremation.

Death of the former minister, who served in the King Cabinet throughout the war and held at various times the posts of Postmaster-General and Labor Minister as well as State Secretary, brought from Mr. King a tribute that his death would be felt across the nation.

Entered Cabinet in 1939.

In his tribute, the Prime Minister noted Mr. McLarty had achieved a high place in the professional, social and civic life of his home city of Windsor prior to his election to Parliament in 1935 as Liberal member for Essex West.

He entered the Cabinet in 1939 and held successively the offices of Postmaster-General, Minister of Labor and Secretary of State.

A native of St. Thomas, Ont., Mr. McLarty had been busy with philanthropic work and literary organizations since his retirement and was particularly interested in assisting men and women returning from overseas.

Surviving are his widow, the former Dorothy McColl, of Toronto, and his two daughters, Barbara and Mrs. McCaughey.

Trent River Soldier Would Like to Have Charge of Jap Guards

Vancouver, Sept. 17 —(CP)— Rfmn. R. D. Alley, Trent River, Ont., was a member of the second group of repatriated servicemen to reach this city yesterday after being released from Japanese prison camps.

The experiences of the 15 soldiers, captured at Hong Kong, paralleled those of the first group who reached here Friday.

Many of the prisoners at Sendia camp near Yokohama had to work in shipyards at Yokohama.

"If I could go back and watch over the guards at Sendia, said Rfmn. Alley, "I would volunteer again tomorrow."

London, Sept. 17. (CP)—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong arrived b yplane yesterday from the United States. He is scheduled to spend several days in London and Paris before returning to Chungking.

BATTLESHIP RIPPED

Clydebank, Scotland, Sept. 17—(CP)—A blinding explosion ripped Britain's largest battleship, the 40,000-ton H.M.S. Vanguard, in a fitting-out basin here last night, killing two workers and injuring six others.

QUIETLY STRIP NIPPON OF HER MILITARY ARMOR

Vital Tokyo-Yokohama Area Completely Occupied by American Soldiers

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

Tokyo, Sept. 17 — (AP)—While the leaders of Japan are busy telling the world of their peaceful plans for the future, occupation forces are quietly but thoroughly stripping Nippon of her military armor.

Nothing that Japan has said during these last two weeks—how she wants to co-operate with the United Nations and trade with them and how she is determined to build a democracy out of the ashes of her totalitarianism — has affected the Allied job of seeing to it that Japan first of all lives up to the terms of the Potsdam declaration.

Nobody knew for certain when the United States and British forces came in Aug. 30 that a conquered people, with a 2,000,000-man homeland army intact, would be as obedient as it has.

Japan was dazed but calm. It accepted completely the Emperor's edict. From the first day Allied personnel has been able to go anywhere unmolested — with Japanese bows and salutes and seeming friendliness at every turn.

Not a single man was killed in taking over a country whose wartime fighting reached fanatical heights.

More than half Nippon's military forces on four home islands have been already demobilized. Big coastal and anti-aircraft guns in occupied zones have been breeched or dismantled. Hundreds of suicide boats, midget submarines and other anti-invasion small craft have been destroyed.

The potent gendarmerie has been abolished. The Imperial division—the Emperor's own troops—has been demobilized.

The Black Dragon Society — secret terrorist organization which nurtured Japanese Fascism — has been ordered out of existence.

One by one high Japanese on the "war criminal" list are being rounded up.

The vital Tokyo-Yokohama area is completely occupied by American soldiers.

Wartime Efforts Of Railways Called 'Miracle'

Toronto, Sept. 17 (CP)—Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative members of parliament for Peel and one of the Canadian delegates to the San Francisco conference, told the transportation club here today that "what our railways have done in war our railways can do in peace.... Let us end all talk of railway amalgamation in this Dominion once and for all."

Mr. Graydon termed the wartime efforts of Canada's two railway systems a "miracle," sayiug that "in 1938 the railways carried 78,000,000 tons of freight while in 1944 the freight tonnage was 152,000,000 tons. In 1938 the railways carried 17,500,000 passengers; in 1944 they carried 54,,500,000 passengers."

$200,000 FIRE LOSS

Toronto, Sept. 17 —(CP)— Damage estimated at $200,000 was caused to part of the plant of Northern Pigment Co. Ltd., in Etobicoke Township Saturday when fire gutted one building. Plant officials said an overheated dryer in the oil furnaces start- e dthe blaze.

LORD HAW HAW ARRAIGNED ON TREASON CHARGE

Existence of Secret Indictment Given When William Joyce Appears for Trial

London, Sept. 17 (Reuters) — The existence of a secret indictment against William Joyce, "Lord Haw Haw," who allegedly broadcast for the Germans, became known shortly after his trial on a charge of high treason opened at London's Old Bailey before Mr. Justice Tucker today.

When Joyce had entered the dock, the clerk read the charge, which contained three counts of high treason, two for broadcasting propaganda on various dates during the war, and the third for purporting to become a naturalized German subject.

He pleaded innocent in a loud voice, and the clerk then said "there is another indictment against you," but after consultation with the court he gave no details of it.

Opening the case for the prosecution, the attorney general, Sir Hartley Shawcross, said: "Today is exactly six years since Joyce first entered into the employment of the German broadcasting corporation. He comes before you on gravest crimes known to our law, an indictment for treason."

Joyce has three counsel, G. O. Slade, Derek Curtis Bennett and James Burge.

Joyce did not smile or show any reaction when Sir Hartley declared: "Whether the prisoner's activities did more harm than good is a matter about which it will be unnecessary for us to speculate."

Decorated by Hitler.

He said that on September 1st., 1944, Joyce received from Hitler himself the award of a cross of war merit for services to Germany during the war, and Sir Hartley commented: "When you have heard the evidence in this case you will not be left with the slightest shadow of doubt but that from first to last throughout the war this prisoner was assisting the Germans and adhering to the King's enemies."

The crown's case was, Sir Hartley said, that whatever Joyce's nationality, whether British or not British, Joyce claimed and asserted the rights of British citizenship and had received protection accorded by the crown to British citizens. He had "clothed himself in the full status of a British subject and in consequence owed a duty of allegiance to the crown."

Birth Certificate Found.

The attorney general said that after Joyce was apprehended there was found among his property a birth certificate purporting to show he had been born in the United States of an Irish father. Later, in a statement, Joyce said he had been born in the United States in 1906, his father had been born in Ireland and his mother in England.

Three Canadians Arrive to Tell Of Hardships of Jap Imprisonment

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C. P. War Correspondent)

Manila, Sept. 17 (CP Cable) — Three Canadians have arrived in Manila after a day's flight and a three-day train ride from a prison camp near Kawasaki, on Japan's Kyushu Island where, with some 160 other Canadians captured at Hong Kong Christmas Day, 1941, they have been working on coal mines since 1943.

The three, including L. Cpl. John MacPherson, of Wolfville, N.S., and two riflemen whose names may not be released until next-of-kin have been notified, arrived as more than 300 liberated Canadians were expected to leave here tomorrow on their homeward journey by sea.

This group excludes 80 hospital cases who will remain under medical care until a Canadian hospital ship arrives to pick them up and 32 other Canadians, among the first to reach here from Japanese camps, awaiting air passage to the United States and Canada.

MacPherson and his companions made their way from the mine camp on passenger trains which they boarded without tickets.

The three are members of a draft of Canadian prisoners which left Hong Kong in January, 1943 and promptly were put to work by the Japanese enlarging shafts of the mine which went down at least two miles and from which poor quality soft coal was extracted for gasoline manufacture. During their two years at the mine at least 12 Canadians died of illness and two more while working in the sagging mine where there were so many accidents the shift groups of 60 men were gradually reduced to about 35. Injuries such as smashed hands and feet and cases of exhaustion were frequent.

Rations of Japanese workers, who started to criticize the length of the war early this year, were more liberal than the prisoners. The men in prison got a third of a pint of dry rice and flour soup for a meal.

Beatings for slackness during the eight-hour shifts on which the mine operated day and night brought beatings so frequent that they were part of the daily prison life.

At first the prisoners were permitted to clothe themselves as heavily as necessary to keep warm but last year they were allowed to wear nothing but a drill shirt, trousers and rubber shoes. They were allowed one cigarette a day and beaten if extra smokes were found in their possession.

At the camp in a two-storey building they slept on mattresses on the floor. When raiding Allied planes started to fly over the camp the Japanese forced the prisoners to stay in the mine for the duration of the alert.

The prisoners suspected the war was over when raids ceased suddenly.

Prisoners attracted the attention of food-carrying American planes by signalling with a mirror and within a few days a party of fliers drove into the camp. One liberated Canadian said there were about 140 Canadians at the mine when he left.

May Cut Holding Forces to 200,000 Within Six Months

Probably No Greater Gamble Taken in History—M'Arthur

Tokyo, Sept. 17 (AP)—History's greatest military gamble—the American landing in armed Japan—has paid off so handsomely that occupation forces probably will be cut to not more than 200,000 within six months, Gen. MacArthur said today.

As a result of the successful penetration of this conquered country, he added in a statement, troops will be returned home as rapidly as ships are made available. Regular army forces, he said probably will be able to maintain unaided the 200,000-man force —"which will permit complete demobilization of our citizen (draftee) Pacific forces."

"There was probably no greater gamble taken in history," his statement said, "than the initial landings" where ground forces were outnumbered 1,000 to one by armed Japanese. But, he added, "the stakes were worth it."

Gen. MacArthur's estimate of 200,000 occupation troops is just half the number which Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the United States 8th Army, recently said would be necessary—and Gen. Eichelberger's figures were at that time considered low. At the start, some 800,000 men—including air forces—were scheduled to participate.

Only Saturday, however, Gen. Eichelberger forecast that the entire occupation might be "washed up" within a year if it continued as smoothly as it had started.

Gen. MacArthur's statement said the uhkngwn quantity at the outset of the occupation was whether a military government would have to be established. This would have involved several million troops, he said; but by working with the existing Japanese government, purposes of the surrender terms can be accomplished with only a small fraction of the men, time and money originally projected.

Grave Initial Risks.

"This situation involves grave initial risk but successful penetration and subsequent progress of the operation now assures success of the venture," he said.

Once Japan is disarmed, he emphasized, a force of 200,000 troops "will be sufficiently strong to insure our will."

Questions involved in the strength of occupation forces, the supreme commander explained, are entirely independent of the future Japanese politico-governmental structure. This problem, he explained, is waiting completion of the military phase of the surrender—and is one that unquestionably will be determined "upon the highest diplomatic level of the United Nations."

(Shanghai dispatches today said the swift, quiet expansion of American naval occupation along Shanghai's waterfront was expected by Wednesday. Minesweepers already are at work clearing the Whangpoo River there.)

United States 8th. Army headquarters reported that roundup of the 46 war-rimes suspects wanted by Gen. MacArthur was proceeding with equal smoothness—with the Japanese governments making the arrests. Twenty-seven already were in custody; only 17 remained at liberty, and two others were dead by their own hands.

Gen. MacArthur summoned Japanese Premier Higashi-Kuni to his new headquarters facing Japan's imperial palace, where he is believed to have informed the prince bluntly that Japan is not an equal and has not yet proved her right to be treated as one—the same strong statement that was given to the Allied-censored Japanese press Saturday.

United States naval forces meanwhile speeded Japanese disarmament by smashing 25 big coastal defence guns fringing Tokyo Bay, and scuttling 51 midget submarines, 103 suicide boats and 103 man-guided torpedoes.

With an estimated half of Japan's 3,000,000 homeland soldiers now disarmed, the second great Allied task—evacuation of prisoners of war — proceeded while fresh atrocity reports rolled in hourly.

Wainwright Frequently Beaten.

In Darwin, Australia, an American private related that captured American generals were forced to snap to attention, to honor each passing Jap private, and that Gen. Jonathan Wainwright captured at Corregidor, frequently was beaten with a bamboo cane. In Melbourne, Australian Army Intelligence reports said that only six of 3,550 British and Australian prisoners survived imprisonment in Borneo. From Hong Kong came stories of the beheading of American fliers.

Twenty-seventh of the war-crimes suspects to be taken into Allied custody was Vice Admiral Ken Terachima, minister of communications and railways in former Premier Tojo's wartime cabinet. Japanese officials surrendered him today. Now 63, Terashima retired from active naval service in 1934.

Nobuske Kishi, commerce and industry minister in the cabinet in office at the outbreak of the Pacific war, also was taken into custody today.

Warlord Tojo himself, who tried suicide with a pistol last week, "is getting along fine" in hospital in Yokohama and is expected to recover in a month, attending medical officers said today.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, controlling economic as well as political affairs, ordered the Japanese to impound the assets of former enemy countries.

U.S. to Try Out Atomic Bomb On Jap Battleship

New York, Sept. 17 (CP) — The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Tokyo that the United States navy plans to tow the surrendered Japanese battleship Nagato 500 miles to sea and drop an atomic bomb upon it. The newspaper said the experiment "may determine the form of navies in the future world order."

The 35,000-ton Nagato was surrendered at the Yokosuka naval base. Though badly damaged, the vessel had survived attacks by 500 United States naval planes.

The Times said newspapermen will be invited to witness the atomic bombing experiment thru' which it said the navy wants to learn these facts: Whether the atomic bomb can cause the destruction of a single ship; what it will do to a naval force; what effect it will have on the water.

City and District News

WALTER HARDEN TAKES NEW POSITION

Walter Harden, secretary of the Belleville Softball Association and employed at the Stephens-Adamson Company since his discharge from the armed service some months ago, has accepted a position with [illegible] Goodman, Gents Furnishing.

On Saturday the office and plant staff made a presentation of a Parker pen and pencil set to Walter and wishing for him continued success in his new employment. Mr. Harden graciously replied thanking all for their kindness to him during employment with as he described "a fine staff."

DISTRICT MOTORISTS FACE NUISANCE CHARGES

Two Belleville district motorists have been charged with causing a nuisance through excessive blowing of their horns while driving on Front Street. One, a Holloway resident, was charged with excessive blowing of his musical horn, while another motorist from Carrying Place, will answer charges of driving at a reckless rate of speed and also of blowing his horn unnecessarily. Both incidents occurred over the weekend.

All in all it was a rather quiet weekend in local police circles. Peterborough Provincial Police reported the theft of a car, while a local motorist residing on James Street complained to police that boys throwing stones had broken his windshield. Parents of those responsible will be interviewed in an effort to secure payment for damages.

Brig. H. Graham To Attend Reunion At Picton Fair

Brigadier Howard D. Graham, D.S.O. and Bar, former commanding officer of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, and now Deputy Chief of the General Staff, N.D.H.Q. Ottawa, will take the salute at a march-past of Prince Edward County service men and women at a grand reunion scheduled for Picton on Sept. 28th, it was learned here today.

Veterans and members of the 1st Battalion, H. and P. E. and county members of other units will assemble at the Picton Armouries at one o'clock in the afternoon and parade to the cenotaph and from there to the fair ground where a general reception and welcome will be held.

It is expected that Lieut. Col. Kennedy, D.S.O., another former commanding officer of the unit, and Lieut. Col. O'Connor Fenton, as well as high-ranking military dignitaries of the district will be present.

Later in the day entertainment will be available for the veterans and at night a dance is being held in their honor.

Efforts are being made to have officers of training camps and centres arrange for transportation for members of the H. and P. E. and other county veterans to be present at the reunion.

Battle or service dress will be worn.

Jehovah Witnesses Pelted With Rocks, Tomatoes, Rotten Eggs and Several Arrested

Minor Injuries Suffered by Several Attempting to Pass Literature

Montreal, Sept. 17. (CP)—A group of Witnesses of Jehovah—about 125 strong—attempted to hold a Bible meeting yesterday at Chateauguay, some 30 miles southwest of here, but they were no more successful than the previous Sunday.

Seventeen witnesses were arrested for distributing circulars without a permit. Then in the early afternoon, as meeting time approached, a crowd of approximately 1,500 men, women and children gathered to halt the assembly. The Witnesses were pelted with tomatoes, cucumbers, rotten eggs and rocks, and several suffered minor injuries. A week before the reaction was much the same.

At Lachine, a western suburb of Montreal, other members of the sect managed to hold a brief meeting yesterday in a private house in the outskirts, but only after a day-long disturbance Saturday which began in the early afternoon and took on the proportions of a near-riot for some five hours during the evening, with almost 2,000 persons taking part. Here five Witnesses escaped unscathed after taking refuge in a small locksmith shop, which was smeared and damaged by flying vegetables and rocks. Police said three juveniles were arrested for throwing stones.

17 Arrested.

At Chateauguay, the 17 persons arrested, most of them women and youths, were freed on $10 bail. They had spent part of the forenoon in a door-to-door canvass, distributing printed sermons and invitations to attend the afternoon meeting at the home of Mrs. R. W. Weaner, where a similar gathering was broken up a week previous.

When Paul Couture, the first speaker, began his address over the loudspeaker system installed in Mrs. Weaner's yard, the crowd booed and some began to throw vegetables and rocks. The eight local and provincial police were unable to maintain order, and the meeting finally was abandoned.

Fistfights broke out when a group of Witnesses attempted to walk to nearby Woodlands to take a regular bus back to Montreal, and were overtaken by some youths. Several of the Witnesses suffered minor injuries and their literature was seized and burned in a field.

Molested by Youths.

The trouble at Lachine occurred mostly on Saturday. Several Witnesses were molested by gangs of youths while passing circulars during the afternoon. About six o'clock a crowd of about 500 gathered about the locksmith shop of Joseph Letellier, which was declared to be the storage place of "piles and piles" of the sect's literature.

Tomatoes and rocks were hurled at the store, and Mr. and Mrs. Letellier, a middle-aged couple, locked themselves in and closed all windows and shutters. The mob grew to almost 2,000 persons and considerable exterior damage was done to the building, including the smashing of a neon sign. Chief Pitre, of Lachine and a squad of ten constables were unable to disperse the crowd and a call for reinforcements was sent to the Provincial police.

When a distraction was caused by a fresh squad of police, the Letelliers and three other Witnesses who had joined them managed to escape through a rear door and were driven away by friends. Then the crowd gradually thinned out.

Sunday afternoon, a meeting was held in the home of Mrs. M. Blockstead in the outskirts of the town, when a hall in the centre of Lachine was denied the Witness for fear of violence. With police protection, the meeting was held peaceably.

Everything in Readiness For Formal Opening of Fair

Belleville's 1945 Exhibition was unofficially opened shortly after nine o'clock today in an atmosphere of typical Autumn weather.

The morning was an exceptionally busy one with exhibitors placing entries and judges going all out in their efforts to get a lot of work done on opening day.

Officially, the exhibition will get under way tonight when Warden J. Fred Wilson, M.L.A., will officiate at the formal opening ceremonies in front of the grandstand. But that did not deter a large opening afternoon crowd from taking a preview of what is going to happen tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday.

The exhibition will be in full swing this afternoon and tonight and one of the largest opening night crowds in years is anticipated by the Board of Directors.

Billy Garden's entertainment de luxe is scheduled for the grandstand immediately following the opening ceremonies. The Belleville Municipal Band fresh from Canadian Bandmasters Association convention conquest will be on hand to dispense their usual sparkling rhythms.

The Midway, one of the most colorful affairs seen here, will be in action in all its whirling, brilliantly illuminated glory with a galaxy of rides, games, wheels, shows, educational features and all the color and noise that is typical of Autumn exhibition shows.

Entries in all livestock phases are ready for the various parades and the judges' critical eyes. Harness horse aristocracy, some of whom are here already will be at full strength by night and will await the starter's "go" on Tuesday afternoon. The card is an attractive one and the best horses in the district are champing their bits, anxious to get away.

In short, the Fair is ready and potential patrons will not regret their attendance at what is rightly termed by officials, Belleville's "Victory Exhibition."

Brilliant Performance Given By Municipal Band Under Baton Of Guest Conductors of C.B.A.

Belleville Municipal Band, playing at the grand concert in the Hume Arena on Sunday afternoon, marking the close of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association annual convention here, and directed by guest conductors gave one of the greatest performances of its career. As guests there were the members of the C.B.A. and their wives, noted band conductors from all parts of the Dominion and composers whose places are well known in the musical world.

The audience of citizens of Belleville was not as large as might have been expected, but those who were present heard one of the finest programs in the city's history.

The band which holds a prominent place among band organizations had the unique inspiration on Sunday of playing under the baton of the leading conductors of band organizations in the Dominion and also of playing compositions written by leading band music composers. It is only at a convention of such an association as the C.B.A. when such a unique and impressive combination of elements making for a program of such appeal and quality is possible. The bandsmen proved that they could achieve the highest success under the inspiration of so many conductors. To hear the music as played under the direction of the different conductors, to observe the style of direction of the band by each of the leaders, to hear numbers directed by the composers themselves and to hear in one instance the music directed by the composer of the piece were some of the features of the program. These went to make an event unequalled in the history of the city of Belleville and this fine musical organization. The Municipal Band received the highest commendation on its achievement.

Among other features was the euphonium solo to band accompaniment, the artist being Bob Stebbings. The young musician received the praise of the guest conductor who presented him to the gathering at the lose of the number and commented, "This is the type of young men we like. He is sincere and a good Canadian". His performance reflected credit on his musical gifts and his training.

Two Hinchey Numbers

To the honor of Mr. E. Reginald Hinchey who was playing with the band, two of his compositions, "Argyll Light Infantry" and the arrangement of "Dark Eyes" were presented to the audience.

Charles Thiele of Waterloo was the chairman of the afternoon and filled this office with rare interest and apt commentary.

During the afternoon the outgoing president's badge was presented to Laidlaw F. Addison by W. Baxter, the incoming president. The retiring president said that he would cherish the gift as long as he lived and that he would endeavor to carry on and assist his successor as much as possible.

Bandmaster's Remarks.

Bandmaster Fred Jobson of the Belleville Municipal Band commented before the opening of the concert on the success of the convention and voiced regret that a larger crowd was not present to hear the unique and excellent program which was to be heard.

Mayor Frank Follwell forecast that before the next meeting of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association here the band would have a proper shell from which to play. Belleville's place in the band world was noted by Mayor Follwell, who pointed to the worldwide success of the Belleville Kilties' Band with which the late Thomas P. J. Power was associated, he having done so much for band music and for the city through the fame which the Belleville Kilties' Band brought. The Mayor was pleased to note in the audience the daughter of Mr. Power, Mrs. Zita Ryan, and other relatives of the late Mr. Power.

Mr. Jobson referred to the new "Waterloo Music Camp for Boys" and expressed belief that Belleville would lend support to this project for the sake of the boys. "Our local band will do something for this project," he was sure.

At the close of the grand concert thanks were expressed to the city council and the citizens of Belleville, to Mr. S. Burrows who loaned the arena for the grand band concert, to Pipe Major J. Clarke and the Pipe Band for their services in the parade to the cenotaph and to each and every member of the Belleville Municipal Band "who has worked so splendidly today." Highest praise was given the Belleville Municipal Band. It takes, it was pointed out, plenty of practice individually and collectively to arrive at such a splendid performance as had just been heard.

As the convention will meet next year in Sherbrooke, Quebec, it was announced by Mr. Thiele that he would offer a prize of $100 to the bandmaster in the Province of Quebec who would write the march chosen for the Sherbrooke convention.

The Program.

March — "Army of the Nile" by Alford, guest conductor Wm. Clancy, Brantford.

Overture — "Sir Galahad" by Hildreth, guest conductor Dr. O'Naill, Potsdam, N.Y.

March — "Argyll Light Infantry" by E. R. Hinchey, guest conductor William Brush, Sarnia.

Paraphrase — "Dark Eyes" arrangement by Hinchey, guest conductor Maurice DeCelles, Quebec.

March — "Les Tisserands de Montmorency" by DeCelles, guest conductor Charles DeViennes, Sherbrooke.

Euphonium Solo — "Willow Echoes" by Simons, soloist Bob Stebbing, guest conductor Lt. Walter Murdoch, Toronto.

Selection — "Land of the Shamrock" by Thiele, guest conductor Capt. W. Perrier, Peterborough.

March — "Dauntless Hero" by Addison, guest conductor Laidlaw Addison, Toronto.

March Moderne — "My Hero" by Alford, guest conductor WO1 Percy Belyea of St. John, N.B.

March — "Call of the Elk" by Alford, guest conductor W. Baxter, the new president of the Canadian Bandmen's Association.

Finale — "Military Tattoo" by Rogan, guest conductor Capt. T. Jackson, Montreal.

"God Save the King."

Obituary

JAMES RANKIN

(Hopetown)

Visiting with his daughter, Mrs. T. D. Ferguson of Belleville, Mr. James Rankin, Hopetown, Lanark County, died suddenly Saturday afternoon as result of a cerebral hemorrhage. Mr. Rankin was staying with his daughter, Mrs. T. D. Ferguson, 11 Evans Street.

Born 88 years ago in Lanark County, Mr. Rankin was a lifetime resident of that district where until a few years ago he was actively engaged in farming. He was a member of the Baptist Church and also of the Orange Lodge. His wife died last May.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. T. D. Ferguson, Evans Street, Mrs. W. Warren, Grove Street, both of Belleville, Mrs. M. Wilkins, Sask., Mrs. W. Sheets, Rochester, Mrs. D. J. Stewart, Perth, and four sons, Mervin of Lanark, William of Carleton Place and Erle and Jack, both of Hopetown.

Interment will be made in Hopetown.

W.I. Baxter, Fort Erie, Elected President Bandmasters' Assoc. At Convention Held in City

Delegates Hosts at Civic Banquet, While Splendid Concert Given in Hume Arena

Said by officials to be one of the most successful conclaves since the establishment of the organization in 1931, the 14th annual convention of the Canadian Bandmasters Association closed in a blaze of musical glory on Sunday with a grand concert held in the Hume Arena. Prominent bandmasters and their wives from the Dominion and the U.S.A. were present.

Convening on Friday afternoon, the convention opened with meetings of the Association Composers' Guild under Lieut. E. R. Hinchey, and the board of directors. That evening an excellent concert was given in the Armouries by the M.D. 3 District Depot, Fort Frontenac Band under Bandmaster W. Jesse WO. 1.

General Meeting Held.

Saturday, the general meeting of the association was held in the Hotel Quinte, headquarters for the convention which was featured by addresses by Dr. Charles O'Neill, Crane Music School, State Teachers College, Potsdam, N.Y., a paper written by Dr. J. J. Gagnier, Director of Music, H.M. Grenadier Guards, Montreal, read by Capt. T. E. Jackson, Royal Montreal Regiment entitled "Program Building" and a general discussion on "Building a Bandshell in Small Communities," led by Secretary A. L. Robertson, Toronto. Another outstanding address was that given by Prof. C. F. Thiele, Waterloo and founder of the New Waterloo Music Camp.

Concluding the business session was the election of officers for the ensuing year. On Saturday afternoon the ladies of the delegates were taken on a scenic drive and afterwards entertained at tea at the home of Mrs. Fred Jobson, East Bridge Street.

On Saturday night a civic banquet was tendered to the visiting bandmasters and their wives by Mayor Frank Follwell and members of the City Council. On Sunday the convention concluded with a parade to the Memorial Cenotaph headed by the Argyll Light Infantry Band under Pipe Major Jamie Clark and the band concert held in the Hume Arena.

Election of Officers.

Mr. W. I. Baxter, Fort Erie, was elected president of the Association for the ensuing year, succeeding Past President Addison Laidlaw of Toronto. Other officers elected are: 1st. Vice, John Lougheed, Leamington, Ont.; 2nd. Vice, E. Reg Hinchey, Belleville; Secretary-Treasurer, A. L. Robertson, Toronto; Directors, W. S. Shepherd, Waterloo; Lieut. P. C. Allan, Windsor; W. E. Clancy, Brantford; Capt. W. H. Peryer, Peterborough; Maurice De Celles, Quebec, and Lieut. W. L. Manning, Woodstock. Assistant Secretary, M. B. Chenhall, Mus. Bac., Toronto; Legal Counsel, Leo. F. Whitney, Waterloo, and Norman S. Ireland, C.P.A., Belleville. Honorary President is Captain John Slatter, M.B.E., Toronto.

The social highlight of the convention was the civic banquet held in the Hotel Quinte on Saturday night where the visiting bandmasters and their ladies were guests of the city. An outstanding feature of the affair was the singing of Miss Evelyn Gould, Toronto, winner of the coloratura section of the radio program "Singing Stars of the Future." Miss Gould will shortly be auditioned by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City.

Three Numbers Given.

Her splendid voice was heard in "Kiss Me Again" by Herbert; "Gianini Mio," Friml; "My Hero" from Strauss' "Chocalate Soldier"; and "Mother Lullaby" written by Mrs. Eva Reid, wife of one of the visiting bandmasters. Miss Gould received a fine ovation from her audience; also in excellent voice was Mr. Jack Deacon, Belleville. whose offering of the aria "Che Gelida Manina" from Puccini's opera "La Boheme." brought thunderous acclaim. Mr. Mr. Deacon also sang "At the Postern Gate" by Gena Branscombe, Picton's gift to the world of music composers; Handel's "Where'er You Walk" and "Whistle While You Whittle" written and composed by Mary Deacon, who played the piano accompaniment for both artists.

In lighter vein, Bandmaster Jack Lougheed, Leamington, a member of the former famous "Dumbells" gave an excellent performance as an entertainer. A whistling expert, Mr. Lougheed was heard in "The Mocking Bird," bird immitations and "The World is waiting for the Sunrise."

Mayor Gives Toast

During the banquet presided over by Lieut. Fred Jobson, the toast to the City of Belleville was given by Mayor Frank Follwell and Mr. J. O. Herity; Prof. C. F. Thiele proposed the toast to the Canadian Bandmasters Association, which was responded to by the new 1945 president, Mr. W. I Baxter, of Fort Erie. The toast to the Ladies was given by Mr. Maurice DeCelles, Quebec City, with Mrs. W. Lougheed, and Mrs. Eva Reid, responding. Messrs. Harry Moorman and Everett Smith toasted the Belleville Municipal Band, while E. Reg. Hinchey voiced the appreciation of the artists who contributed so much to the success of the function. Mr. Harry Moorman led in community singing.

Secretary A. L. Robertson, introduced several of the guests, especially those travelling long distances. To Mr. P. F. Belyea of St. John, N.B., he presented a gold pin in honor of his having travelled the longest distance to the convention. He presented Prof. Charles Del. Venne, Sherbrooke, Que.; Maurice DeCelles, head of the Conservatoire de Musique, Quebec; Captain J. J. Goulet, 76-year-old director of music of the Fusiliers of Montreal; Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, N.Y.; Lieut. W. Murdock, Toronto and other distinguished visitors, including the 1945 president, Mr. Baxter and his officials.

A Grand Concert

An enthusiastic crowd of music lovers paid tribute to the Belleville Municipal Band, augmented by several distinguished musicians from all parts of Canada at the grand concert given in the Hume Arena on Sunday, at which several guest conductors wielded the baton.

One of the most interesting features brought out during the convention was the description, aims and purposes of the "New Waterloo Music Camp for Boys" located at Bandburg, Ont. Appropriately enough the same of the village has been changed from "Bamburg" to "Bandburg."

Professor C. F. Thiele, dean of Waterloo musicians and promoter of the Camp has purchased 600 acres upon which it is proposed to erect 80 huts each of which will house 8 boys and a prefect.

The camp is being promoted for the instruction of boys who show marked ability with their chosen instruments and qualities of band leadership besides personal ability. They will be uniformed, fed, and trained by the finest music faculty obtainable headed by Dr. Charles O'Neill, Potsdam, N. Y., who is leaving the Teachers State College of that city to become dean of the Music Camp.

The project is backed by the Canadian Bandmasters Association and service clubs all over the Dominion.

The boys will be auditioned and if found acceptable will be given courses on their own instruments in theory, reading, arranging, harmony, counterpoint, conducting, etc.

To Grant Degrees

Secretary A. L. Robertson stated that he had made application to the Secretary of State to secure the authority to grant degrees in music. It is hoped in the future, he said, to set up a school for bandsmen returning from overseas which will enable and qualify them for bandmasters, through federal rehabilitation schemes. Several letters from bandsmen who have served several years overseas with the armed forces have been received by the C.B.A. secretary asking what can be done for them along band and music lines.

The camp will not actually get under way until 1946, but work has already been started on several of its phases. Ten cabins will comprise the first group to be constructed. A main dining room and auditorium will be 55 by 85 feet. A 50-foot stage will be attached to the building which will accommodate any kind of performance. A lake will cover an area of six or seven acres. An athletic field will absorb another five acres.

Faculty huts will be set apart from the camp and may be used at some future time for girl students.

Official host to the convention was Past President Fred Jobson, and his committees of the Belleville Municipal Band. On the publicity committee were Lieut. Johnson, W. McCoy, W. Aselstine. E. Smith; Reception Committee, M. Duff, Harry Moorman, Fred Chamberlain, E. R. Hinchey; Entertainment, E. R. Hinchey, R. Wardle, Harry Moorman, Fred Jobson; Property, Billy Grant, H. Overand and H. Rose.

Straw Stack Is Destroyed

Mr. David Hollinger, Oak Hills farmer, is figuring out whether he is further ahead by attending Shannonville Fair on Saturday to show his livestock. While he was at the fair a stack of wheat straw on his farm caught afire and is a complete loss.

Approximately 40 loads of wheat straw were in the stack which was threshed in the field some distance from his barn. He intended to sell it to a district paper-making company. A heavy rain the evening previous prevented spread of the fire into an adjoining woods. Origin of the fire is unknown.

3 Houses Moved To Allow For Plant Expansion

Making way for contemplated factory expansion by the Corbin Lock Manufacturing Company, the first of three houses to be moved from the required site was taken by truck the length of Coleman Street this morning.

Preparations for moving of the houses to their new foundations at the north end of Coleman Street in what is known as Coleman Flats, has been going on for several days. The houses were purchased by W. R. McCreary, local cheese buyer, and are being moved by the owner to their new foundations.

Measuring approximately 28 feet in width, the first of the houses to be moved took up practically the entire width of the roadway as it was moved up the street aboard a "float" owned by H. J. McFarland Construction Company. Curbside shade trees were trimmed and hydro wires were shifted to permit the passage. Main framework of the house was left intact with only the roof removed. Workers claimed the house as it was moved weighed approximately 30 tons.

Stout iron railroad rails were placed under the structure, the house then being jacked up sufficiently to permit the highway "float" being backed underneath.

BIRTHS

MEENS — At the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday, September 16, 1945, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meens (nee Ethel Weese), 309 Bleecker Avenue, a son, Arthur Lloyd.

IN MEMORIAM

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. John Reynolds, who passed away September 17, 1943.

We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream.
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

—Always remembered by daughter Flossie and family.

BLACKBURN — In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Blackburn, who passed away September 18th., 1942.

Quickly and suddenly came the call,
Her sudden death surprised us all;
Dearer to memory than words can tell,
The loss of a mother we loved so well.

—Sadly missed by Sandy and Annie.

MARMORA

LAC G. Rice Saw Many Interesting Sights Overseas

Marmora. (Special.) —LAC. George Rice returned to his home here last Wednesday, after two and a half years absence overseas. He returned on the Nieuw Amsterdam. During his absence he has visited Algiers, Italy, Greece, Egypt and Palestine, besides England and has had good health throughout his military career. He has grown a little taller and has put on weight. The Summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rice, "The Cedars", Crowe Lake, was gaily decorated with flags and "Welcome Home" signs when he arrived on Wednesday evening.

LAC. Rice enlisted on May 2, 1942. He was stationed at the outset at No. 4 Wireless School, Guelph, and later at 31 Radio School, Clinton. He crossed to England on the Queen Elizabeth and was stationed at Bournemouth for a while. On June 17, 1943, his unit went to Algiers by the U.S.S. Christobal. He flew to Italy in July of the following year, spending some time at Taranto and Aniona. Three months later he arrived in Greece by HMS Worcester. The next move was to Egypt, April 1945, the voyage being made on S.S. Cap Tourane. A month in Egypt was followed by two weeks at Tel Aviv, Palestine, and then he sailed from Port Said for England by the S.S. Brittanic. Back in Bournemouth again, the airman found the hills a little harder to climb, following the flat lands of Egypt and Palestine. The ELAS disturbance occurred while he was in Greece. He found the climate of that country the most pleasing of the countries he has visited. He took a great interest in viewing the historical buildings and sites at and around Athens. He saw Winston Churchill twice while in Greece on second occasion, the Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church, a tall imposing personage with a long white beard was present. The gathering took place shortly after the quelling of the ELAS disturbance. Much as he would have liked to have visited Jerusalem, when only thirty miles away, the opportunity was not granted. He caught a glimpse of the Pyramids looking out of the window of the truck in which he was travelling but did not see the Sphinx. LAC. Rice is very glad to be back in Canada again.

Malton, Yorkshire, England — (CP) — Robert Dent was severely injured when he trod on a bomb while walking through some sheaves on his farm.

London — (CP) —German submarines which have been touring British ports have so far netted £5,609 (about $25,240) for charities.

Where the Latchstring Is Always Out

By John Gould, Christian Science Monitor.

Not long ago it was suggested by a reader in a letter of only two words that I cease talking so much about the plentiful abundance of good things to eat out here on the farm. Now comes the belated realization that it wasn't such a smart thing to do. Good copy, you know (as the editors, I hope say), but improvident. It seems that we are being ganged up on by a famished horde of constant readers, loyal folks who have been waiting for pumpkins and the waning days of September. Hungry folks, too, I might add.

The past two weeks have been interesting, I suppose, in a way that had escaped me until I reflected. Some friends of ours telephoned from a near-by town said they were just passing through, and wanted to say hello. I said hello, all right and then allowed my inbred Yankee enthusiasm to sweep me off my feet.

"Coming up?" I asked.

Oh, no, they said, they were just passing through and wanted to say hello. So they drove in after about 20 minutes, the man and his wife and three children and a sister of the wife and a friend of hers who was having a vacation, and old Uncle Charles who had been wanting to meet me. It was a jolly time. My cook, who had been cleaning up the late peas and was hoping to freeze another dozen packages, came hurrying up from the field and said she was glad they came.

And she was. So was I. We like these people. In times past we have all, except the friend on vacation and Uncle Charles, been together often and have enjoyed all manner of fun. About twice a summer they would drive through, usually with someone like the friend on vacation and Uncle Charles in the back seat with two of the children, and we would feed them and compare notes. Sometimes we'd go on a clambake, sometimes we'd go fishing, sometimes we'd have a picnic. And sometimes they'd help put in hay, pick apples, or maybe we'd all just sit on the lawn and look off. Hearing them again on the 'phone was like old times, and seeing them drive into the yard was some sort of tangible proof that the war was at last over.

My cook touched off the range, and shortly the smell of fried ham struck out across the fields and biscuits were going into the oven, and the cracking of pullet eggs was heard in the land, and the friend who was having a vacation was setting the table, and the children were bringing out the little table so they could eat by themselves.

We are simple people, and we didn't tumble to the moment that was being celebrated. Next day we couldn't have a cake until the hens laid, and the cream jug was empty at breakfast, and we didn't have another dozen packages of peas in the freezer.

On Friday we had a card in the mail, so I picked a couple of old hens who had sassed me, and we had them all fixed up with dumplings and ready to pass around when another automobile drove into the yard. But the familiarity peculiar to old college chums still holds, and just as our Sunday guests (whom we were also glad to see) were getting up from the table an old classmate drove in unannounced with his appetite hanging out a yard. He had his wife with him, and she introduced us to the three girls in the back seat. We fried some more ham then, and thawed out some strawberries, and fixed them up. It was a jolly Sunday afternoon, all around, and nobody went away hungry.

Since then all the people who haven't been able to visit us for the past few years have been making up for lost time. Some stay overnight so they can have breakfast, too. Some explain that they will stop in again on the way back, and they go touring away on a full stomach.

My cook says, "You asked for it!" I can't say that I did, really, but for a long, long, time now our farm has taken a little pride in the fact that nobody comes without being asked to eat. We are keeping up the tradition, all right, and intend to keep trying. But if you people think you had a food shortage, and menu problems, and diet scarcities, you ought to see what we've got after two weeks of gasoline.

COLORED RABBITS ATTRACT ATTENTION

Curiosity of passing pedestrians has been aroused during the past two days with the appearance of pink, green and white rabbits as a window display in a cage at Hickey's Feed Store on Front St.

And it wasn't merely some optical illusion. The rabbits were actually the colors they seemed to be. But it wasn't their natural color. It was merely a smart bit of advertising on the part of a local rabbit fancier who wished to draw some attention to her rabbits. They were owned by Mrs. J. E. Jackson of Purdy Street, who has approximately 150 rabbits, including about 50 purebred Angora rabbits.

The rabbits on display were colored by a special dye which stays in the fur until they lose their hair at moulting time.

Picturesque Canadian Wanderer Appointed Self Greek Minister for a Day

London (CP) — Bearded, one-eyed James Herbert Moore, 81, who came to the United Kingdom from Ontario to fight in the First Great War, breezed into a Fleet Street newspaper office the other day, told how he took Germans calmly in occupied Europe and breezed out again on his way—he hoped—to South Africa.

He never explained about his home in Canada or where it was, for, he said, life began when he was 71, living on the island of Jersey. In 1935 his wife died, and he packed up, got out his bicycle and headed for Gibraltar from the nearest port. By 1939 he had reached Port Tewfik on the Red Sea and he wandered back to Crete, where he took charge of a small yacht for a British naval officer away on duty.

In April, 1941, a British warship came into the harbor and commandeered the yacht's mast for a signal station. The navy offered to take Moore away, but he stayed with the yacht. Then the Germans came and demanded explanations.

"I'm an American," said Moore, promptly, and the Germans let him stay on the yacht until two Nazi officers took a liking to him and made him accompany them to Athens where he had to sing at their parties—but only one song, "Tipperary."

The United States came into the war in December, 1941, and Moore ceased to be a guest and became a prisoner. He spent 8 months in an internment camp until the Swiss Red Cross secured his release on condition he live at the Swiss Legation.

Moore found that the Swiss occupied the former British legation, and, unabashed, he removed a cover from the British coat-of-arms on the building when the Nazis left Athens in October, 1944. He was left alone in the Legation and appointed himself minister until a proper official arrived.

"I sat in the minister's chair and for 24 hours waited, prepared to carry on any business—but there wasn't any," he explained.

He borrowed money, made his slow way through battered lands and arrived at Naples, where he "jumped" a transport and got to Glasgow.

"I'm going back to Jersey," he said before he left the newspaper office with no forwarding address.

"But not to stay. I'm only 81. I'm going to live to be 100. I'm off to South Africa as soon as I can get a boat."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, (CP) — French history, culture and the language and origin of French Canada have been among the subjects studied by more than 1,000 soldiers and airmen who attended weekly educational courses in Paris, sponsored by the Canadian Legion Educational Society.

"They told us more about ourselves than we knew," said Flt. Lt. Roger Dunne of (114 Grande Allee) Quebec, who added that "the only trouble was the course was too short—you don't learn everything in a week."

About 100 Canadians took the course each week, attending lectures during the morning and touring the city, meeting French businessmen and other new acquaintances during the afternoon and evening.

Armament men of the Canadian Bomber Group stations in Britain are completing their biggest disposal job of the war—getting rid of the thousands of tons of bombs which might have been dropped on Germany, or Japan, had the war not ended.

When VE-Day came, bomb dumps of seven Canadian operational stations were stacked to capacity with approximately 20,000 tons of high explosives and incendiary bombs. To return the stations to peacetime conditions, the Group had to dispose of 14,000 tons of bombs.

"We had a big stock because, although the operations slowed down at the end for lack of targets, the Lancasters could get rid of the bombs twice as fast as we could haul them in, and we had to be ready in case large amounts were needed," said Flt. Lt. Alan Brooks, Montreal, group armament officer.

"On the bomb dumps were 2,500 tons of incendiaries which had been opened ready to be loaded into aircraft. These were not worth the effort of the slow and complicated process of repacking because newer and more powerful types were available. Instead they have been jettisoned in the North Sea."

Aircraft of the Lion, Bison, Tiger and Porcupine squadrons got rid of the bombs, flying 80 sorties a day. Aircrews were briefed as under operational conditions.

Brooks said the incendiaries don't float and many deteriorate so quickly in water they are useless in a few hours.

The bulk of the high explosive bombs were prepared for shipment to the Far East, although whether they reached that theatre before the war ended or not is impossible to say.

"We moved out a shipment of bombs one day and the next they were trans-shipped to the Pacific," said Brooks. "The armorers left behind to do the job were hardened veterans from the bombing offensive days, when they often worked 24 hours at a stretch. On this disposal assignment they worked 10 hours a day and deserve a lot of credit."

"Some day we'll own a General Motors car*"

THAT WILL BE THE DAY! The day when cumbersome bundle-carrying will be a thing of the past. The day when all the inconvenience and discomfort occasioned by transportation shortages will be just something to remember—and laugh about.

The day when every ounce of General Motors' energy, skill, and long experience, directed toward your peacetime well-being, will bring you the opportunity to own that General Motors car of your dreams.

Such a car it will be! Newer, smarter, more distinctive, and as always, thrifty, powerful, and dependable in the General Motors tradition . . . a car easy to handle, easy to drive; built for convenient, carefree living.

All Roads Lead to Fair

Belleville Fair is now under way for the first half of this week and the outlook on Monday on the chances of the exhibition getting new records appears very bright.

This year it should be the aim of everyone in the city and the surrounding country to attend as often as possible, to see every program and every phase of the fair for there is something new to be seen at every visit and tour of the grounds and buildings.

The exhibits are first class and of wide range, the entertainment is calculated to appeal to all.

Let everyone lend his and her support to make this fair the largest in attendance. Exhibitors have done their best, putting in high class entries in large numbers. The officers and directors have worked hard to make the three-day program of the widest appeal.

There is no finer effort that can be put forth in the district and community than to bring together people of the countryside and the villages, towns and city to meet and view the exhibits and enjoy the entertainment of program with crowds that a fall fair brings.

Then and Now

Five years ago, Sunday, Sept. 15, 1940, the Royal Air Force destroyed 185 German planes over Britain. There was seen the fact that Hitler could never overcome because Britain was dominant in the skies. From that day never did Hitler's star again seem as bright as it had seemed to him from the time of the overrunning of France to the time when Nazi Germany saw the hard fact that he could not dominate the air over Britain.

On August 20th., 1940, less than four weeks before that day when German planes were sent tumbling to earth out of the British skies, Prime Minister Churchill spoke these dauntless words, "The gratitude of every home in our Island, in our Empire and indeed throughout the world, except in the abodes of the guilty, goes out to British airmen, who, undaunted by odds, unwearied in their constant challenge and mortal danger, are turning the tide of world war by their prowess and by their devotion. Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few." Then on September 17th of the same year, two days after the record bag of the enemy planes, he said, "Sunday's action was the most brilliant of any fought upon a large scale by fighters of the Royal Air Force up to the present."

How great the change from that time to today! Then Britain had to go on fighting for about a year alone but her dauntless courage was maintained and sustained by the glory of her arms. The road in June, 1940, had looked dark, but the spirit remained as Mr. Churchill said on June 4th, 1940, in these words, "We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our Island, whatever the cost may be; we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight in the fields, and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender."

But the Hun never could land in Britain. The air battle of September 15th, 1940, showed that Hitler in the air had failed to dominate British skies and without that power he could not land.

In the next three years and in less than four years the Germans had collapsed, her ringleaders dead or captive, and in four years Japan, the third of the Axis powers, which did not raise its head in war until December, 1941, was also smashed and peace has returned to earth.

Londoners particularly and the men who flew and survived on that September 15th when the Luftwaffe was foiled can honor the memory of that time which gave the clear promise to the world that German tyranny and aggression could not win against a people inspired by the highest motives and instincts because these British people could fight on and on and in the end triumph.

Jap Imperial Headquarters

General MacArthur's decision to abolish Japanese Imperial Headquarters and to impose a censorship on the Japanese press and home and overseas broadcasts is warmly welcomed in Britain as not only right but indeed inevitable. They will doubtless cause equal satisfaction throughout the British Commonwealth and Empire.

Imperial Headquarters has been in Japan what the German General Staff was in Germany, only more so. Whatever difference may have existed between the German General Staff and the Nazi Government—and they can easily be exaggerated—Japanese Imperial Headquarters had no rival. It stood alone and supreme as the kernel of Japanese militarism and the canker of the Japanese Nation.

Abolition of Japanese Imperial Headquarters, as of its German counterpart, is a fundamental condition of Allied policy as proclaimed at Potsdam, which is to apply surgery to the diseased organs of the two chief enemies and curative treatment to the remainder of the body politic.

The imposition of censorship is again a measure which circumstances emphatically command. Its application to broadcasting is particularly important, as the Japanese are inveterate radio fans, even in the remotest hamlets. Since their surrender, the Japanese have been using their home broadcasts to propagate the myth that Japan, especially the Japanese Army, has not been defeated. No opportunity has been missed of attributing the Japanese surrender solely to the use of the atomic bomb, whereas the use of the atomic bomb was only a touch on the accelerator in a downfall which was already headlong, and served to save countless thousands of Japanese as well as Allied lives. Japanese broadcasts for overseas consumption have tended to attempt to throw dust in Allied eyes by posturing obsequious compliance with Allied orders. This was inspired by the double hope of blinding the Allies to the true state of Japanese mentality and, by a softening process, of counteracting the indignation which is constantly rising with fresh revelations of Japanese brutality and ill-treatment of Allied prisoners.

Good Earth Shrinks

(New York Times)

Because everybody and everything must now be retested and revaluated in atomic terms there will be new questions about the Sahara Desert. The head of the Soil Conservation Service has just said that there is no available surplus of good farm land in the world as a whole, and if we let erosion have its way there will soon be a shortage of arable land. From other quarters we have been frequently warned against exaggerated notions about the "vast" reserves of crop land in the thinly populated countries — Australia, Siberia, Brazil, Canada.

But does it matter now, when a couple of hogsheads of split atoms may be enough to irrigate all the Sahara? The water will come from wells hundreds of miles deep if there is water at that level. If not, there is the salt water in the seven seas. The problem of distillation becomes a trifle when the energy from a cupful of mercury may pull 125 loaded freight cars forty-five times across the United States at 200 miles an hour. This leave out of account the whole question of directly producing food by transmutation from the earth and the air.

The Nuisance of the "Hold the Line Please"

(Niagara Falls Review)

Many people will agree absolutely with the following on telephone manners in the Windsor Star, under the caption "Hold the Line Please." "Telephone manners are always a fruitful subject for conversation, but there are some pests who are worse than others. Probably the most irritating are those who have their secretaries call you, and then apparently leave for parts unknown. Nothing infuriates us quite so much as to be called to the telephone and hear a feminine voice saying, 'Just a moment, please, Mr. Whoozis wants to speak with you.' It would not be so bad if Mr. W. was there and ready to talk, but he seldom is. He has wandered off to some obscure hiding place, and his staff makes a frenzied search for him, while we sit and fume, with a receiver glued to our ear. It is one of the refined incivilities in which modern business too often indulges." And so say we all.

ATOMIC BOMB

God must have known man's probing mind
The atom's source of power would find,
And when its secret once was known
To rubbish could the world be blown.

The power to blow all things to dust
Was kept for people God could trust,
And granted unto them alone
That evil might be overthrown.

Now that its bitter work is done
And back to peace the world is won
God grant that we may never choose
The atom's secret to mis-use.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 17TH., 1925.

Mr. and Mrs. George Connors have returned to the city.

Mr. McCoy Murphy of Tweed is spending a few days in town.

Mr. Reginald Turvey of Detroit, Mich., formerly of Belleville, accompanied by his wife, are visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. F. Allore and Mrs. W. Green have returned from a trip to Toronto, Buffalo and Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. William Dewey of St. Catharines, formerly of the Bank of Montreal staff here, spent the weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hurley, Queen Street.

Mr. R. J. Graham went to Kingston today.

Miss Maud Fleming is home on a visit from Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. H. R. Dunning has left for the Province of Saskatchewan.

30 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 17TH., 1915.

Dr. Harper, Reeve of Madoc Village, was in town today.

Mr. Robert McPherson of Sidney Township, threshed this week 758 bushels of barley the product of fifty acres.

Mr. Roy Gould, Great North Western telegraph operator at Orillia, has been transferred to the office in this city.

The Rev. A. R. Sanderson of Campbellford, formerly of Belleville, was renewing acquaintances in town today.

Miss Alice Sinclair of Boston, Mass., is visiting her brother, Mr. D. V. Sinclair in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mitz and son, Ross, have returned to Ottawa after visiting friends in Stirling, Ivanhoe and Foxboro.

40 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 17TH., 1905.

Last evening the members of the executive committee in connection with the late Old Boys' Reunion, presented to Mr. William Johnson, the president of the reunion, a handsome cut glass and silver fruit set as a slight recognition of his constant and efficient work throughout the undertaking. In the absence of Mayor Sulman, Col. Ponton, Col. Lazier, Mr. Arthur McGinnis and Mr. J. W. Johnson called at the home of Mr. Johnson and made the presentation.

Mr. John Rosevear and wife of Vassar, Mich., formerly of Tweed, are visiting Mr. Rosevear's sister, Mrs. G. W. Palmer, Cannifton, after an absence of twenty-seven years.

50 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 17TH., 1895.

Unless we have heavy rains in a short time the residents of this city will be suffering a water famine. In West Belleville nearly all the wells are dry and such hurrying and scurrying for "a drop to drink" has never been seen here before. Those who have any water in their wells are dividing it with those who have none.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hamilton have returned home from Revelstoke, B.C., where they visited their daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Campbell.

The great comedy "The Circus Girl" will be the attraction at the opera house this evening.

The fall millinery at the store of A. Dulmage will be held on the 18th. inst.

A heavy frost visited the city Saturday night and did considerable damage.

How did "catsup" originate?

"Catsup" has nothing to do with "cat" in the ordinary sense. There is really no "cat" or "soup" in "catsup." It appears to be the anglicization of an Oriental word that cannot be identified for certain. Some authorities derive it from Malay "Kechap," taste, while others derive it from Chinese "ke-tsiap," literally brine of pickled fish and figuratively a spice or condiment. "Catsup," also spelled "catchup" and "ketchup," has been applied since the 17th century to a savory table sauce made of the juice of mushrooms, walnuts, tomatoes or the like, which has been reduced by boiling and then seasoned with vinegar, wine or some condiment or spice. It is eaten chiefly on meats. Most cats don't like catsup.

Meat Rationing In Canada

Christian Science Monitor

On the surface, the meat situation continues to be a paradox. Canada after nearly a year and a half of ration-free meat, resumes rationing, with tightened slaughtering and marketing controls. At the same time, the United States relaxes its wartime slaughtering controls and considers ending meat rationing on or about October 1.

In Canada, the story is not that meat supplies have lessened, but that problems of limited shipping and storage facilities have so eased that meat, designed for abroad, no longer spoils on the wharfs, and increased shipments can be undertaken. By cutting home consumption 12 per cent, Canadians aim to aid further Great Britain and the liberated countries.

In the United States, the supply of beef is exceeding the red points available in some areas, and retailers who were begging for meat a few short weeks ago are now forced to refuse deliveries. This swift transition from scarcity cannot be entirely due to the Army cut of 20 per cent in its food requirements and set-aside orders but to the market run of grass-fed cattle from overstocked ranges.

Americans will find their joy over prospective ration removal tempered by the reminder Canada has given of the need for assistance abroad. In addition to Europe, destitute people in the Pacific have been liberated. If continued rationing is required to meet that obligation, Americans surely can be counted on.

Buggy Whips

New York Times

The praises of stylish fringed-top surreys and humble democrats have been sung. But sparse is the literature regarding one of the essential accoutrements. Time was a generation and more ago, when a farmer or villager was discriminately particular about the whip, says the New York Times. Not that it was used very much. Mr. Webster's definition—an instrument consisting usually of a lash attached to a handle used in whipping—should not be taken too seriously. The country man who felt some degree of pride in his turnout wanted a whip as a sort of finishing touch to his equipment. A man with a spanking lively roader and a vehicle well polished and painted desired a whip in keeping with his outfit.

The General Store always kept a good supply and it was an important decision when the time came to get a new one. A whip could be purchased for 50 cents, but experience had proved that a larger capital investment paid dividends in satisfaction and wearing qualities. The colors of the handles and the colors of the tufts at the tops of the whips constituted the chief problem. A deep blue handle with narrow bands of red plus a red tuft at the end of the lash was a satisfying color scheme. There were combinations of yellow, blue and black that made an appeal. Black and red was a standard that kept in fashion. The whip had to have character, color and feel right in a man's hand.

Then when a lad was sent to town on an errand and was allowed to take the Morgan mare and the buggy, he knew he could hold his own. Not that a boy believed in horse racing, but if it should so happen that another lad turned into Main Street with a good horse at the same time, there was a deep psychological satisfaction in holding the whip in one's hand and pulling up in front of the store with a big flourish—a few yards ahead of one's rival. It was simply coincidental that a lad picked the whip from its socket as he turned into Main Street. The fact that the mare always lit out at top speed if the whip were left in had nothing to do with the situation. A buggy whip was simply part of the equipment.

Friends Fallen Out?

(Ottawa Journal Editorial.)

We regret to have to mention it, but did anybody notice that many of the leaders of that trades union delegation which called on the Government were Labor-Progressives (Communists)—gentlemen who were allies and ardent supporters of Mr. King and his party in the last election?

There was Mr. Robert Haddow, an active Labor-Progressive supporter. There was Mr. Malcolm Murdoch, listed, by the C.C.F. at any rate, as a Labor-Progressive. There was Mr. George Harris, the deputation's secretary, and Mr. Fred Collins, both Labor-Progressive candidates in the last election.

All of these gentlemen, plus others led by Mr. Tim Buck, urged a Communist-Labor alliance in the last election. A number of them—with Mr. Buck's benediction—supported General McNaughton in the Grey North bye-election. It is not on record that Mr. King or any of his ministers discouraged the courtship.

What has happened since? Has there been a sort of lovers' quarrel, burnt letters (or advertisements), hard words? Or has the Communist "party line" merely changed again?

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

UNDULANT FEVER

Undulant fever, Malta fever, Mediterranean fever, goat fever, contagious abortion of cattle, Brucellosis, Bang's disease, Texas fevers are different names for what is probably the same infection, with a germ called Brucella melitensis.

Undulant means the fever occurs in a succession of feverish relapse with intervals of what appears to be convalescence, and so the course of the illness is months or even years.

No reliable diagnostic test has been developed, although cultures from blood and other fluids, skin tests and agglutination tests similar to the Widal test for typhoid, may give some help in diagnosis. In many cases of what eventually proves to be undulant fever, the best of physicians may be strongly of the opinion that the illness is bacterial endocarditis, rheumatic fever, malaria, chronic bronchitis, pyelitis, even tuberculosis.

Workers in meat packing plants, particularly those handling hogs or pork products; persons handling hides of cattle, sheep, hogs, goats; persons caring for such animals contract undulant fever in many instances. The possibility of such infection, as well as infection by the agency of flies carrying the germs of the disease on their feet, must be kept constantly in mind. It would be foolish to assume that the universal cooking, boiling, scalding, sterilization or pasteurization of milk can protect the public from the risk of contracting undulant fever. Certainly any nondescript milk or milk you buy casually without previous knowledge or experience of its purity, should be so sterilized or rendered safe for consumption. That is, boil it for five minutes, or scald it (bring to boil for one minute) or pasteurize it (heat it to 150 degrees F. for half an hour.) This will make any milk safe for infant, invalid, or any one.

Children, who are the main milk drinkers, seldom have undulant fever. Most of the cases of undulant fever occur in the West-North-Central states, especially Iowa, where hogs are raised on the largest scale and the porcine strain of the Brucella is most prevalent. Adult males have a high incidence of undulant fever — and they are the handlers of animals and carcasses.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Good Dentists Wanted

Expect to have several teeth extracted and would like to have a plate made ready to wear immediately. Please give me the names of a few dentists in this city who can do such work.

(C. J. R.)

Answer — Any good dentist will do so. Sorry but I cannot keep data on dentists.

Fear of Insanity

How can one overcome fear of insanity. Mental excitement and fears picked up in psychology class caused this idea to come into my head and I cannot seem to shake it.

(C. R. A.)

Answer — Sit down and write out your whole story in your own words, if you can confide in me, and send it to me with stamped envelope bearing your address. I'll be happy to advise you to the best of my ability.

Dry Skin and Night Blindness

Have been taking 75,000 units of natural vitamin A (three capsules) a day for about a month. They have brought great benefit for my dry, irritated skin and night blindness. Would it be safe to continue this much longer?

(F. R.)

Answer — One capsule (25,000 units) daily should be enough to maintain the improvement for the next month or two, and after that one such capsule every alternate day or say three a week may be enough. But no matter how much you take it can scarcely do any harm, in my judgment. Gen. Hideke Tojo Much Improved

Yokohama, Sept. 17 — (AP) — Gen. Hideki Tojo, Japan's premier at the outbreak of the Pacific war, who tried suicide last week, "is getting along fine" but it probably will be a month before he recovers completely from his gunshot wound, Lt.-Col. James M. Peery said today.

Col. Peery, United States army doctor charged with restoring Tojo to health to answer Gen. MacArthur's questions regarding responsibility for the war, said the former premier is eating well.

Karsh Started Something New

By Wilf Bennett, In the Vancouver News-Herald

When Yousuf Karsh of Ottawa grabbed Churchill's cigar out of his hand and then photographed him while the Prime Minister—er, ex-Prime Minister—was still glaring at him, he did something more than merely skyrocket himself to fame as the world's outstanding portrait photographer.

The famous Churchill portrait supported by the long series of Karsh portraits of the world's outstanding personalities, seems to have instilled new ambition into every newspaper photographer in North America.

It used to be that the visiting dignitary knew exactly what to do for the newspaper photographer. He invariably sat in the middle of an overstuffed chesterfield in his hotel suite, flanked by a home-town dignitary on either side. Then the whole three, if they were not too nervous, grinned proudly and a little self-consciously into the camera. The underlines for the picture made all three of them feel good. . . and this happy glow recurred every time they pored over it again in their scrapbooks.

If there were more than two local hot shots to be snapped with the great man they stood behind the chesterfield, also smiling directly into the camera, quietly happy in the reflected glow from "the chief."

But it's different now. This man Karsh has changed all that. If you look at any newspaper today you'll see what I mean.

Now every picture has to be a personalized portrait study of the subject.

The visiting sales manager or politician no longer merely sits on a sofa and smiles. He has to play with his eversharp while the photographer arranges his lights so as to depict his sensitive hands. Or he has to be adjusting his tie, or feeding some goldfish, or gazing significantly at a globe of the world.

The visiting boys have to work at it now, they can't just sit at ease with the local district managers following a friendly drink at the company's expense.

It's all Yousuf's fault.

EXERCISE CARE IN ASSISTING DISABLED VETS

66 Casualty Rehabilitation Officers Undertake Big Job in Aiding Men to Return to Places in Civilian Life

By DOUG HOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, —(CP)—The fate of thousands of Canadians disabled in war action or accidents is going to rest to a considerable degree on the work and the understanding of 66 men in the next few years.

They are the casualty rehabilitation officers of the department of veterans affairs. Some 70 per cent of them have been disabled as servicemen themselves. Their duties are lengthy and complex.

Briefly, they are these:—

Broadly, under direction, supervision of the rehabilitation of cases assigned to them, particularly in making possible the restoration of earning power.

To obtain and collate information about each case. This includes information about education, former employment, military experience, vocational training and physical capacity.

The C.R.O. asks the veteran his hobbies, interests, personality traits and attitudes. He finds out about his financial status, social background, family or personal responsibilities.

If necessary, he arranges for aptitude, interest, personality, trade and scholastic achievement tests. He gets medical reports. He visits places of employment, asks about present and future employment possibilities. He visits agencies doing community services, keeps abreast of occupational, educational and industrial trends.

With these facts, he helps the veteran evaluate his potentialities, assists him in laying vocational opportunities. He ensures that the veteran's ultimate objective is feasible and commensurate with his abilities and aptitude.

Tabs Veteran's Progress

He helps the veteran plan either for immediate employment, for training of for long-range objectives. He sees that maximum use is made of services provided by the veterans affairs, labor and other government departments and by public-private agencies and persons. He follows the progress of the veteran during the training program and in his placement and assists him in meeting any adjustment problems.

He keeps records of the cases. He contacts employers to interest them in the men, arranges placement of specific cases, assists employers in the adjustment or solution of any problems in employment.

Once a man is places he keeps an eye on him, assists him if he needs assistance, arranges something else if it becomes obvious that a mistake has been made.

The casualty section registers for such help disabled veterans who are unable to return to their former jobs, who must be given a job that will not aggravate their disability or who may encounter employer or employee opposition to their employment. Also registered are those who have been treated for a mental disability and those psychiatrists requests assistance in attaining a specific objective.

The C.R.O's work in districts. At present there are about 50. Some of them have as many as 225 cases to handle but eventually it is hoped to have them average about 70.

BELGIANPROGRESS IS BEING HELD UP BY ROYALTY ISSUE

Recovery Made in Many Spheres But Coal and Food Situation Still Serious in Little Country

Brussels,—(CP)—Belgium, although known for its capacity to work whatever the circumstances, will need months if not years to recover economically.

Recovery efforts are being made in all spheres and optimistic views are expressed that industry and commerce will soon enjoy more normal conditions. But the question of royalty which has troubled the country since the war ended has considerably hampered government action and has caused considerable delay in the solution of many national problems.

Several industries, such as clothmaking, have made a start, but full production will be impossible until there is an adequate supply of coal. Belgian coal production has risen from 30,000 tons a month to over 50,000 but even that is not sufficient for domestic and industrial needs. A level of 80,000 tons a month must be reached if Belgium is to face next winter confidently.

The food situation has improved. Most Belgians now are well fed, although enjoying none or few of the pre-war luxuries. Bread is plentiful and fats available at lower prices, but meat remains very scarce. The tinned meat provided by the Allies is not to everybody's liking. Still with improving transport and continued Allied help, it is apparent that there will be more food.

Want Early Aid

Before VE-Day some bitterness was expressed that Belgium, starved during five years of German occupation, was not getting aid quickly and extensively enough. But many understood that priority had to be given military transport. Now these people ask only that a big effort be made to feed them properly before the Allies feed the people in occupied enemy territory.

Politically Belgium remains adverse to big and troublesome experiments. The present royal crisis, which in other countries might have brought about big upheavals, has left the average calm.

The traditional Catholic, Liberal and Socialist parties retain the upper hand. A swing leftward may develop in the next election but as the Socialists are wary in their dealings with the Communists, it seems that the right wing will be powerful enough to maintain the balance. The resistance movements have proved very divided and it appears that they will not carry the weight such forces did in France.

During the German occupation, resistance movements were supported morally and financially by the exiled government. Most groups now are aligned with some political party..

Pruritis—Intense Itching
Relieved quickly by this Medicinal Ointment

There are two forms of itching which are especially distressing. First pruritis vulvae—from which only women suffer and second pruritis ani—itching at the rectum from piles, pin worms or varicose veins.

The causes of both these forms of intense itching are often difficult to locate but what you do want, at once, is relief from the severe and depressing itching.

Then let Dr. Chase's OINTMENT help you for it brings relief almost as quickly as applied. Once used it will always be kept at hand for quick use when the need arises. 60 cts. a box. Economy size jar $2.00.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

He weighed Atoms

Born to a Quaker family in a little thatched cottage in England in 1766, John Dalton acquired enough education, at twelve years of age to start a school of his own. He began to take regular weather readings and was noted for his ability to predict the weather. He studied flowers and insects, optics and color-blindness, and finally decided to make chemistry his life work. He noted the constant proportions in which different elements combine with one another, and finally established the atomic theory in chemistry.

JUST as Dalton's research paved the way for the development of many new and improved materials and products, so research carried out by the Canadian Nickel industry has played its part in developing better materials and products.

Sixty years ago there were practically no uses for Nickel except for Nickel plating, for coinage and for Nickel silver. Today Nickel is required in nearly every industry for making top quality products or for keeping production costs down. The research that has helped to bring this about will be continued in the years to come.

The information collected from the field of metal research by International Nickel scientists is available to Canadian engineers, designers and metallurgists seeking better materials for any product or process.

Research reveals new uses for Nickel. Increased use of Nickel from Canadian mines and plants means employment for Canadians and brings many benefits to Canada.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Greatrix wish to announce the marriage of their youngest daughter, Anna Bernice, to F/O. Patrick Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foley, Toronto. The marriage took place quietly in Trenton, July 31. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Smith.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred T. Muir announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Lorraine, to Gerald Hugh Clarke, son of Dr. and Mrs. Clarke, Brighton, Ont. Marriage is to take place on October 6, in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Haggar wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Geraldine Helen, to Raymond Oscar Lundberg, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lundberg, the marriage to take place the latter part of October.

Miss Phyllis Arbuckle spent the weekend at her home in Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sword and son, William, of Toronto, spent the week-end in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Adams, Coleman Street, received word today from their son, Cpt. R. H. Adams, serving in Holland, that he has received his sergeant's stripes.

Miss Margaret Kilpatrick has returned to the city, after spending her vacation with Capt. and Mrs. J. F. Whittle and Doris, at Lake Bernard, Que.

Mrs. J. W. Fox and Miss Rachel Fox, Donald Street, are visiting in Detroit and Chatham.

Lieut. Lionel Blaker, Vimy, is spending a short leave at his home on Victoria Avenue.

Mrs. Annie Caldwell, Mrs. Earl Gilbert and Mrs. Sarah Hough, spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Fergueson, whose father Charles Fergueson, is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Buckley, of Detroit, Michigan, spent the past two weeks with friends and relatives in Brantford, Toronto, Belleville, Kingston, Roslin and Tweed.

Mr. A. E. Bales, formerly on the staff of The Intelligencer, and his mother, Mrs. I. M. Savage, now living in Los Angeles, Cal., are visiting in this city.

Miss Shirley Terry, 78 Gordon Street, entertained several of her schoolmates on Thursday afternoon in honor of her tenth birthday. Several games were enjoyed by the young guests. A delicious supper was served, the table centred with the birthday cake decorated in pink and white and topped with ten pink candles which were lighted while the girls sang "Happy Birthday". Shirley received many gifts for which she expressed her thanks. The girls all wished the young hostess many more happy birthdays and thanked her for the enjoyable time.

A delightful surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Downey, Corbyville, when about thirty-five Belleville friends called to bid them farewell on their departure for Valleyfield. The couple were presented with a beautiful coffee table and Beverly and Dick, with bedroom pictures. Cards and games were played during the evening and delightful refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Downey thanked their friends for their thoughtfulness and were wished the best of luck in their new home.

WEDDINGS

COX—JACKSON

Trenton.—Tall standards of pink and white gladioli formed the setting for a quiet but pretty wedding in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, on Friday, September 14, at 12.30 noon, when Elsie May Jackson, Reg.N., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson, and granddaughter of Mr. James D. Walker, became the bride of Flight Sergeant Raymond Sydney Cox, RCAF, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Cox, New Westminster, B.C. Rev. Ross C. MacLean officiated and wedding music was played by Mrs. C. V. Wilkins.

The bride wore an afternoon frock of powder blue, with lace inserts, and carried a muff of pale pink gladioli tips and stephanotis. A tiny matching blue feather calot with shoulder-length veil completed her costume. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Barker, who wore a pastel mauve frock with matching feather calot, and carried a muff of yellow gladioli tips and stephanotis. Flying Officer Bob Jackson, twin brother of the bride, was groomsman.

DONER—MULLETT

Trenton. —Lorne Avenue Gospel Hall, Trenton, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, Sept. 15, at 2.30 p.m., when Mr. F. Taylor, of Peterboro, officiated at the marriage of Elizabeth Florence Mullett, daughter of the late Mr. Windsor Mullett and Mrs. Mullett, of Trenton, to LAC. John Albert Doner, RCAF, son of Mr. J. Doner and the late Mrs. Doner, of Kindersley, Sask. Pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church and the wedding music was played by Mrs. R. Brown, of Toronto, while during the signing of the register, Mr R. Brown sang "The Wedding Hymn".

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Charles Brownson, the bride was lovely in her gown of ivory satin, made on torso lines with full skirt, lace yoke and long pointed sleeves. Her bracelet length veil fell from a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and bouvardia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Mullett, who wore a full length pink sheer, with flower headdress and shoulder-length veil. She carried a shower of deep pink roses with pale blue streamers.

Mr. Reg. Brown, of Toronto, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Ray Fox and Mr. James Brooker, of Trenton.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Brownson, 229 Dundas Street East, the bride's mother wearing a mauve figured dress with corsage of white gladioli tips.

For a motor trip to points east the bride chose a rose wool frock with powder blue top-coat with fox collar, brown accessories and corsage of pink gladioli petals.

Holbeton, Devon, England — (CP) — Three generations of students she taught attended a farewell ceremony for Miss Eva Chadder, Holbeton school-mistress for 45 years.

Anne Jeffreys' waves are soft and flattering.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THIS sudden fancy for straight hair may have the bosses of the beauty shop worried. The permanent wave has been their best financial baby ever since it arrived to make straight girls curly. We are no fortune teller, but it is our belief that the rush for undulations and ringlets will keep right on going.

Curls are a softening, flattering influence. Only the lady of fashion with perfect features and plenty of hair looks her best with hair sleeked back, as smooth as if the cat had licked it.

New Fancy

There's a reason for this new fancy. The girls put their minds on hair growing. When they found themselves blessed with an abundance of pig tail material they had to do something with it besides letting it fly around their shoulders. So they upped it into coils or a big roll extending over the crown of the head from ear to ear.

To wave long tresses, the old spiral wind must be used. That method gives a wave close to the head, but the ends are never as ringlety as when the croquinole method is used. So the long-haired cuties just decided to dispense with the permanent altogether. Well, we'll see.

Style Evolution

Coiffure styles don't change radically. They are ever in a state of evolution, one style suggesting the next arrangement.

At this time of year when the search goes on for the wardrobe for the coming season, there is a desire within many a feminine bosom to try out a new hair-do. Some women haven't enough patience to see the new arrangement through. The stylist does this, does that, and the customer decides that she had betted stay as is. Until something decidedly different is the rage she hesitates.

We're speaking of the older girls. The kids in their teens can not get into line fast enough. Nothing is too new for them to try, the cuties.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wife Worries About Girl Her Husband Drives Back and Forth to Work.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young married woman with two darling children and a husband whom I love and respect. However, I'm one of those possessive wives.

There's a very attractive girl in my husband's office whom he insists on driving to and from work. I can't help but feel this girl has some kind of attraction for him and it's beyond me. I've even told him to date the girl if it will get her out of his system. Of course he denies everything, but a "woman's intuition" is a phrase not coined for nothing.

Scold me if you like, call me jealous, but just give me a solution or some rule I can follow to get this girl out of my mind. I'm 28, and attractive enough, aid also 28, and attractive enough, and alband's presence.

M. A.

Has there ever been a marriage in which some such cloud has not appeared? Wifely wisdom counsels real or assumed faith. Nagging is a relief to worn wifely nerves, but a luxury not to be considered. Husbands often have what is known as "lucid intervals", and the question presents itself to the most foolishly-in-love married man, i.e., Is this charming young creature worth the sacrifice of wife, home and children?

And don't imagine that girls aren't practical and speculate on the size of the pay envelope when there are wto children to be considered. Any man with a spark of decency will recognize the claim of young children. Here's hoping this wife and mother will face the situation sensibly. Personally, I think this lady is unduly worried.

Veteran Can't Understand Her Preference.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After I received an honorable discharge from the service, I had several dates with the only girl I really love. On our last date I asked her to marry me, but she refused because she's been going with a 4F-er in the three and a half year I was in the service.

I've tried to forget her by going out on gay parties but other girls don't interest me. I want to try again, but seem to lack the courage, not because I think she doesn't care but somehow to propose to a girl a second time requires more courage than a stand-up fight with the Japs, which I've gone through successfully.

Ex-Serviceman.

You've probably heard the old maxim—"Faint heart ne'er won fair lady". And if men did not try, try again after the first turndown, the world would have a scantier population than it has at present, in spite of war. Best of luck to you.

A Definite Engagement Might Keep Him From Drifting

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl 20 years of age, and have been going with a boy about a year older, for the past five months. He asked me to marry him when I first met him, but I told him I wanted to go around for a while to become better acquainted. Later we decided we'd get married next spring and I now think it is too long to wait. We love each other very much.

Even though we aren't engaged, do you think this boy will marry me next spring, or would it be better to marry in a month or so? He says he will make more money for the future if we wait until spring. He goes around with a number of boys and seems to be enjoying himself.

P. C.

When a young man begins to find excuses, even such a valid one as you mention, for putting off the happy day, it's time for a girl to stop and consider.

The boy friend is having a good time going around with a group of boys and you tell me you're not really engaged. All things being equal, it would seem better to have a regular engagement and be married than go in for one of those informal agreements.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Foot-Loose and Fancy-Free

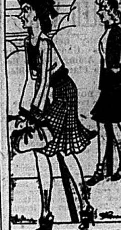
Be good to your feet, my paper friend, and they'll be good to you. Pack them into ill-fitting shoes and they'll torment the life out of you. Not only that, they'll turn you into a grouch. You will wonder why your disposition is undergoing such a curdled change. A twinge in a toe can give you a pain in the head and the heart. When feet hurt, you hurt all over. Women fuss over their complexions, fling money away for elegant hair-dos, put lovely clothes upon their lovely backs, make themselves attractive in every possible way. They pay attention to all manner of personal details, except foot care. A corn is a horror that one just endures. Get rid of the shoe pressure that causes this growth and it will disappear. Chiropodists say that feminine feet are so neglected and abused it is a wonder that some women can keep in circulation.

When selecting shoes, remember that they should provide support. The strap should be snug. There should be plenty of space between the big toe and the end of the shoe. The sole of the shoe should be as wide as the sole of the foot.

Unless the leather casing is strapped or laced properly the foot will slide forward; ingrowing nails will result.

Foot ills should have professional attention. Home treatment is not always safe. To cause a wound in the flesh is to invite infection. Wounds of this character are especially susceptible to pus formations because the shoe keeps the air away from the abrasion. Neither is it safe to apply some home remedy to a wound.

Unskilled fingers do much damage when they play with sharp knives and the little pink toes. If a calloused spot appears, massage it with mineral oil after a soapy soaking. Later on, you can apply friction with a pumice stone. But don't cut. If a change of shoes does not bring relief, seek professional services.



There's no need to tell you about the harm done by spike heels.

The shoe with the narrow toe is a menace because it pushes the large toe inward. In time a bunion may form, and inflammation of the joint may be set up. Such a condition may call for surgical treatment, although sometimes a properly-designed pad worn between the big toe and its next door neighbor may correct the condition.

No need of telling the beauty clientele about the harm done by spike heels that throw the body out of balance, have a bad effect upon the spinal column, make good posture difficult. Why women keep on wearing them, we can not even guess. Teen-age girls have more sense. They wear comfortable shoes, make no effort to make large feet look smaller. Smart kids!

The Marry Go Round

SNIPING AT LOVE

Lipsticks are to come in all flavors this coming Autumn. My goodness! In these days of cocktails, cigarettes and highly seasoned lip rouge, a really old-fashioned man is one who can recall the delight of a kiss that was flavored with nothing but girl.

When a man is too lazy to endure the high-pressure emotions of real love, he merely plays around with a lot of little imitation romances—and calls it "living his own life".

There are some men to whom getting married is like taking the mule trail down Grand Canyon. They may be glad that they did it once, but they could never be tempted to try it again.

The average man never can understand why a woman, who is an angel about forgiving, is such an elephant about never forgetting.

Lots of beauticians are living in luxury and planning to buy ermine coats because women in general are never satisfied with the faces or the shade of hair the Lord gave them.

Dreams that come in a bottle, says Cynical Sybil, are like complexions that come in a box, colored with artificial roses which look a little foolish and sickly, next morning.

It's all right to let your heart steer you in choosing a husband or wife—but, for Heaven's sake use your brains as a brake!

Don't worry if you don't know all the answers and are not the wittiest girl in the crowd, if you have a come-hither smile. A man never demands cleverness or intelligence from a girl's lips so long as they are kissable.

Sometimes a bride is prepared to go through everything for the man she promised to love and honor; and sometimes she is merely preparing to go through everything he's got.

Bandmasters' Wives Entertained at Tea At Home of Mrs. Jobson

Saturday, September 15, following a scenic drive about the district, Mrs. Fred Jobson entertained the wives of the members of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association at a lovely tea held at her home. Wives of the members of the members of the City Council and of the local band also attended.

Miss Audrey Jobson opened the door to the guests, who were received by Mrs. Jobson and Mrs. Moorman, wife of Mr. Harry Moorman, manager of the Belleville Municipal Band. The guests were served dainty refreshments by Mrs. Garn Dobbs, Mrs. Everett Smith and Mrs. Reg. Wardle, while Miss Edna Jobson replenished the tea table.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Robertson, Toronto, wife of Mr. L. R. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Bandmasters' Association, and Mrs. Hinchey, wife of Mr. Reg. Hinchey, former bandmaster of the local band and popular composer.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with colorful Autumn flowers and the tea table, covered with an ivory lace cloth, held a gay bowl of golden marigolds and purple flowers, and slender ivory tapers in crystal candelabra.

FASHION FLASHES

Smart women are giving the ubiquitous silver fox jacket and the twin-stole fashion the go-by in favor of cape-stoles of silver fox with deep cape silhouette in back and long stole ends that can be used as a muff.

A twin fashion is that of the long, black gloves and the bracelet. Lots of girls are wearing rows of bracelets of gold-plated materials over long gloves of black suede or rayon jersey.

Wife Preservers

When you start on a picnic with children, take a bottle of soapy water with you and some squares of old cloth for towels. The soapy water takes care of grubby little hands and the cloths save wear and tear on good towels.

Repatriation May Be Slowed Down During Oct., Nov.

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 15 (C.P. Cable) —New shipping problems, affecting the North Atlantic run, have arisen as a result of demands for shipping in the Far East and they may result in a temporary slowdown of Canadian repatriation, it was learned today.

Because of the unexpected changes in shipping allotments, it was anticipated that there may be a tieup in repatriation which would delay some troops who expected to be home in October or November.

The new situation, which arose suddenly in the past few days, alters a forecast made by officials here early this week that both September and October would probably be the biggest months yet in the repatriation program. It was not believed that the flow scheduled for the remainder of this month would be affected materially, but the pinch is expected to be felt first in October.

The Far East demands resulted chiefly from the urgent necessity to move liberated prisoners of war from that theatre and also from the need to speed up British demobilization which depends to a large extent on bringing the troops back from Burma, sources here said.

The powerful Trade Union Congress, in session at Blackpool this week, put heavy pressure on the British Labor government to step up the demobilization of British troops and this may be an important factor in the new decision to deflect more shipping from the North Atlantic to the Pacific.

AFRICAN ENGINEERS

Accra, Gold Coast, West Africa (CP) — Soldiers from the Gold Coast are undertaking the job of bringing Rangoon back to normal. Engineers of a West African Company were also specially commended for their good work in clearing up the Bombay dock area due to explosions there.

LANDMARK RESTORED

Offham, Kent, England (CP) — The ancient quintain—tilting post —at Offham, only one left in England, has been restored to its place on the village green after being stored away during the war.

FOOD MINISTRY'S DR. SUMMERSKILL AN ACTIVE WOMAN

Most Attractive Member of Britain's Labor Government is Physician, Mother of Two

London(CP)—Dr. Edith Summerskill, parliamentary undersecretary to the ministry of food in the new Labor government, will not be able to work on all her pet subjects while she is in the office.

Her interests range form wages for housewives to venereal disease and birth controls. Currently she is pushing an 'anti-queue campaign.

"You have your wings clipped a bit when you take office, you know," she said a little wistfully, as she sat in her room in the ministry gazing out at the trees on Portman Square. "Some of the things I've been working on I'll have to leave for a while. But queueing, which as a doctor I consider very damaging to women's health, is something which is definitely concerned with us here."

To help expectant mothers escape the shopping queues she suggested that special ration books could entitle them to preferred service, saying:

"It's dreadful to see these poor women with their heavy baskets, standing for hours to get their rations."

Ardent feminist, brilliant gynaecologist, pioneer in birth control and a tilter at almost every social evil, Edith Summerskill still manages to combine a happy family life with a most active career, and look extremely charming while she does it.

Very tall and slim, with short dark hair carefully waved and a well-cut beige suit decorated with an old-fashioned clip, she looked what she is renowned to be—the most attractive woman member of parliament.

Dr. Summerskill is 44 years old. She is the only woman in the last parliament who gave her age in "Who's Who." The new undersecretary for food brings a physician's knowledge to her work, knowledge which the ministry made use of when she was a member of one of Lord Woolton's advisory committees early in the war.

Medical Family

"I've got medicine in my blood," she said. "My father was a doctor and I am a doctor and my daughter, who is 13 now, is going to be a doctor. The health of the country has been wonderful during the war, but there are signs of increasing anaemia, especially among married women, who give the best part of their rations to the children. You can't stop them; they always have—it's maternal instinct, but it's not good."

Although the new government has taken over at a pretty difficult time, she says, with the whole of Europe to be fed, Dr. Summerskill is not pessimistic about the coming winter.

"We can't stand by and let Europe starve," she said emphatically, "and the women of England wouldn't want it. We've got it easier. Think of all the fish which have been lying in the ocean for five years. And fish is full of protein."

Married to another doctor—Jeffrey Samuel, who has come back from five years' military service, mostly as a psychiatrist at Aldershot—Dr. Summerskill has a boy of 17 and a girl of 13.

Besides her parliamentary work, Dr. Summerskill has a thriving medical practice and is regular adviser at a birth control clinic. She is keeping her practice, but says she will have to have somebody to help her do the routine work now that she is in office.

Surplus Undies To Be Released

London (CP) — Negotiations are being conducted between the board of trade and women's services in the forces to release surplus stocks of underclothes to meet a drastic shortage of women's underwear this Winter.

At present, it is almost impossible to buy a pair of women's pyjamas in the United Kingdom, but the release of services' supplies would put thousands of pairs of warm pyjamas on the market for the Winter. Also available will be white wool and cotton service vests with pants to match.

Corsets—only a bright memory for most civilian women—also will be made available by the services, with garters and brassieres to match.

Keep Lines Slim By Bellringing

London (CP) — Hundreds of Britons now are enrolling as bellringers, an official of the Central Council of Bellringers reports, and soon there may not be enough bells to give all the new enthusiasts practise.

"Young girls and older women especially are enrolling," the official said. "The public missed the bells during wartime and ringing masters everywhere now report a boom."

G. A. Lunn, Lea, Lincolnshire, who has travelled thousands of miles through England, Scotland and Ireland to ring bells, says women ringers think it good for keeping the figure slim.

Food Still Problem For British Women

London (CP) — Britain's most impatient queues form at pushcarts for purchases of ice cream, cherries and strawberries, munching which men and women forget the disappointment of less food after victory in Europe.

As in most of Europe the British people looked forward to the day of peace as the turning point from scarcity to plenty. It was felt that carefully hoarded war stocks could be released and a better flow of supplies maintained.

There was undisguised disappointment when rations were reduced rather than increased after VE-Day. Europe had to be fed.

But Britons are an uncomplaining breed. They took the cut, voiced their disappointment, and queued up for the luxury of ice cream and native-grown fruits. They felt better then.

Britons still eat the same tasteless sausages, heavily breaded hamburgers, dried beans and cabbage or brussels sprouts that formed their diet in the days of blackouts and air alerts.

Fish More Plentiful

Fresh fish has become more plentiful because trawlers are back on the fishing grounds instead of on patrol. The apple crop in the extensive Kent orchards is coming along fine, and pears promise to flow plentifully to market despite a late snow that reduced the prospective yield.

But in the shops the people receive smaller rations of meats, margarine and other "coupon" foods. Under the British rationing system, however, everyone receives his due.

A shopper must register with the store of her choice and do all her food buying there. The store is allotted supplies to meet the needs of all registered customers, however, so each is assured of her full ration.

Luxuries are lacking in Britain. There are no fruit juices, nothing like bottled olives. Coffee and cocoa are unrationed, but tea is frequently scarce and always tightly rationed. There is enough sugar.

British mothers are sometimes heard to describe to their offspring how a banana looks and tastes, and why the skin can't be eaten.

Pushcart vendors sometimes offer peaches for sale.

The peaches are placed one to a large, flat box. The box is filled with cotton, and the peach is placed in the centre, like a jewel. They sell for five shillings each—one dollar.

London — (CP) — The death of Martin Henry Connolly, 71, Labor member of Parliament for Newcastle east between 1924 and 1929, has been announced.

Columbian Squires Even Series When Boyle Chucks 2-Hitter To Defeat Mt. Carmel Nine 6-0

Third and Deciding Game in Junior O.A.S.A. Playdowns in Peterborough on Wednesday

Playing airtight ball behind the two-hit pitching effort of Don Boyle, the local Squires Juniors hopped right back into the OASA playdowns at the Alemite field Saturday afternoon, when they downed the Toronto Mt. Carmel nine and scored a tidy 6-0 victory.

With their series now tied at one game each, the teams will meet in the third game of the best-in-three series at Peterborough on Wednesday evening, the game to be called at five o'clock. The winner will meet Hamilton on Saturday.

It was definitely a pitchers' battle on Saturday with Boyle for the locals and Gorman for the Toronto nine setting the opposition down in order until the fourth, when the local bats rang out for a trio of runs. Again in the eighth they found their batting eye for four safeties and three runs to salt the game away.

Slow Ball Working.

Boyle had his slow ball working perfectly and teaming up with Dick Fitzpatrick on the receiving end, had the Toronto boys eating out of his hand throughout the piece. He was afforded perfect support by his teammates, however with Goyer and Wardhaugh coming up with what looked like sure hits to toss the runners out at first. Goyer and Bunton combined for the only double play of the game, when the shortstop snared a line drive to double Hort off first.

Fitzpatrick's throwing arm was in top form and the visitors gave it every respect as they took but few liberties while on the basepaths. Only seven Toronto runners got to first, three on walks, two on errors afield and two by safe hits. Boyle whiffed eight of the opposition, while Gorman turned but six back at the plate and walked three.

Walk Started Scoring.

A walk to Bunton starting the fourth started the fireworks and resulted in the locals going ahead. Goyer flew to centre, but Fitzpatrick was safe on a wild throw by the shortstop. Boyle then came through with a sharp single to score Bunton, sending Fitzpatrick to third. Fitz then scored on an infield out and Boyle counted as the third sacker tossed wide to first on H. Wardhaugh's hit.

Boyle again singled sharply in the eighth to start the inning. The next two batters were retired but Harry Wardhaugh came through with a single. J. Wardhaugh hit scoring Boyle, Rollins was safe as the second sacker muffed his roller and Bunton hit over the infield to score two.

The visitors had their big chance in the seventh as Choma walked to be followed by a hit from Gorman's bat. Both moved up as the locals threw the ball around the infield. With two on and none out the next three batters flew out with Donovan in left making two nice running catches.

Chicago Cubs Moving Steadily Toward Pennant

By JIMMY JORDAN

Chicago, Sept. 17 —(AP)— Chicago Cubs, who rocketed out of fifth place to take over the top rung of the National League ladder last July 8 and have been there since, aren't hanging a pennant on the centre field flag pole at Wrigley Field just yet.

They're four games ahead of St. Louis Cardinals, after setting Brooklyn down three straight, and have only 12 games left to play. But they'll save their celebrations until the won-and-lost columns show that they're "in."

"We still have to beat those Cardinals," Manager Charley Grimm said Sunday after the Cubs turned back Brooklyn 3-2 and 4-2 to set a Major League record with their 18th sweep of a doubleheader this season.

"They are laying for us, and you know they've been tough all season. There's no pennant talk here yet."

Grimm was thinking about five games to come with the Cards, three in a row at St. Louis starting tomorrow. And he was thinking about the four victories the Cubs have won in 17 meetings with St. Louis this year. The Cubs fattened their average principally at the expense of Cincinnati and Philadelphia all season, while they've played "cousin" to St. Louis.

"When we beat them, then we'll have something to talk about. Not until," he said.

Montreal Canadiens Down Cornwall 26-13

Lachine, Que., Sept. 17 —(CP). —In a one-sided lacrosse game here last night Montreal Canadiens downed Cornwall Nationals 26-13 in the first game of their best-of-five series for the Cattarnich Trophy. Vincent Reddy, Canadiens starry centre, scored 11 goals.

Canadiens held the game throughout and were never in danger of losing the lead. They held a 20-6 edge going into the final period.

Early in the fourth period goalie Cote of Canadiens had his glasses smashed when hit by the ball and he played without them for the remainder of the game and Nationals garnered seven goals.

Both teams suffered injuries early in the second period. Montreal's Joey Wilkinson went off and didn't return when hit with a stick and Nationals Gauthier was carried off after being hit over the left eye with the ball.

Referees Mullins and Carter handed out only three penalties during the game, two to Cornwall and one to Canadiens.

NO TIME LIMIT — TO A FINISH!

What should be the master tidbit of wrestling in these yere parts takes places at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night when the dashing "Whippah" Billy Watson, once more clashes with the good-looking Earl "Moose" McCready, Pride of Aurora. The lads met a couple of weeks ago and the Moose gave Phil Lawson's pride and joy one of the hardest tussles of his ring career. This time, the champ states it will be different. McCready agrees, but he adds "it will be this different. No referee's gong will save Watson this time. I'll stay in there if I have to knock off at six a.m. to get my cereal and cream."

McCready has fully recovered from his injuries of a month ago and right now is in excellent condition. The "Whippah" is ditto, and brothers and sisters, that just about calls for the bout of the century. There is no time limit and the bout will go to a finish.

On the same card, California's Dr. Len Hall, who is not averse to tearing the opposition apart, despite meat rationing, hooks up with another tough customer, Jim Kilonis. As a curtain raiser, "Bunny" Dunlop will cavort with Whitey Hewitt, and that means some one's fur will be flying. Advance sale at Cook's Tobacco Shop. Doors open 8.15 p.m. First bout 8.45.

Toronto Oakwood Indians, Hamilton Wildcats Win First Of Games of O.R.F.U. on Sat.

By ALAN HARVEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

A resounding premiere for football's "experiment perilous" and a typical powerhouse performance by Hamilton Wildcats convinced gridiron gossips today that balance of power may be an empty phrase in the Ontario Rugby Football Union this season.

An estimated 9,000 fans who watched Canada's oldest Rugby league inaugurate the 1945 season with games in Ottawa and Windsor conceived that impression Saturday as Toronto Oakwood Indians mauled Ottawa Trojans 19-1 and Wildcats walloped Windsor Rockets 21-6.

Toronto Balmy Beach drew an opening-day bye but showed enough potential power in dropping a 3-0 exhibition decision against Toronto Argonauts to indicate the ORFU race won't be merely a two-way fight between Indians and Wildcats. The tune-up test at Varsity Stadium marked Argos' return to competition after a three-year absence.

All the old names, with just a few new ones here and there, were sprinkled through the scoring summaries after football's first weekend of peacetime competition since 1939. At Ottawa the Stukus family compact of Annis, Bill and Frank teamed with rapid-running Ross McKelvey to count all points for the gridiron's only bigtime co-operative club enterprise.

Score Early and Late.

The club which is governed "by the players for the players" scored early and late, Frank Stukus pulling down one of brother Bill's forwards for a major score in the first three minutes. McKelvey converted and followed up with another touchdown which Bill Stukus duplicated in the fourth quarter. Ottawa's lone point came in the third quarter on Jim Cumming's kick.

Nearly everyone at Lansdowne Park thought Trojans scored a second point on a punt run into touch, but it was later disclosed the score had been disallowed because of spectator interference which led to a minor melee among players, spectators and officials before order was restored.

At Windsor 2,500 fans in Kennedy Stadium, attending the city's first ORFU competition in more than a decade, saw Rockets swish into a 5-3 first-half lead, then fizzle out as Wildcats seized command with 18 points in a furious third quarter. George (Scotty) Wright, a Hamilton favorite before he joined the Navy, dominated scoring with nine points.

Copeland Leads Argos.

Rugged Royal Copeland, though he failed to score a point, was outstanding in the exhibition game at Toronto as he led Argos to victory in their first contest under Coach Ted Morris, who replaces Lew Hayman as field impresario of the team which won three Canadian titles starting in 1933.

Left-footed Art Skidmore, former airman, kicked two singles and Billy Bell contributed a third in the loosely-played contest which served as a preview for the respective debuts of the two clubs next Saturday. Beaches had as many scoring opportunities as the Interprovincial Union entry, but couldn't capitalize.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 17. (AP)— Watch for some "sleepers" in the next baseball draft. . . according to the rules, a player can't be selected until he has served a certain time in the minors, ranging from one to four years according to his league's classification. . . but players returning from the armed forces are credited with years in the service in determining their draft status, so it may be possible to pick up a bargain in some promising kid who actually has put in only a year or so in minor league ball.

Nonchalance Note.

Before the Packers-All Stars football game in Chicago a couple of weeks ago, the Green Bay players were discussing the "heavy" and "light" passes thrown by various flingers . . . So when Don Hutson came puffing back to the bench after intercepting one of Perry Moss' pitches and running it back 80-odd yards, he remarked to a teammate: "You were right; that boy Moss throws a nice, light pass".

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Sept. 17 — (CP) — The way temperatures have been climbing to summer levels in the Maritimes this month, Gus Phan hasn't been thinking too much of skiing and winter sports. Nevertheless, enthusiasts of the streamlined barrel staves are going full steam ahead with their plans to put these provinces on the ski map.

The Maritimes haven't produced any outstanding skiers and jumpers, because facilities for competition and practice weren't readily available. Of course, there were good ski runs in the hilly northern section of New Brunswick and Cape Breton provides plenty of rugged terrain for skiers, mountain climbers or antelopes, but there never were any big-time centres like those of the Laurentians and the winter-paradise Rockies.

Every youngster in the seasonable areas is out testing the snow trails with his skis and his bottom at a tender age, but it's tough to develop into a top-notcher without frequent and fast competition.

The new sport centre and ski lodge in the rolling mountains of the Wentworth Valley, near the New Brunswick border, should provide the answer for that facilities and competition angle. It's almost equi-distant from the major Maritime cities, and in that part of the country there's plenty of snow for everyone.

The Maritime Ski Club has established itself in the valley and while nothing definite is planned yet, prospects are that another year or so should see the sport booming. Travel restrictions probably will prevent any major meets this winter, but that won't last for ever.

Skiing, always popular, has received a great impetus in the last few years and since the services gave it a boost by prescribing it as occupational therapy for convalescing wounded, there will be more enthusiasts than ever when those veterans recover and come home.

MAYFAIR LANES BEAT POINT ANNE TO TIE UP SERIES

Wretched Fielding Displayed by the Ox Pointers Allowed Oshawa to win 7-4

Oshawa, Sept. 17 — Oshawa Mayfair Lanes defeated Point Anne Cementmen 7-4 here Saturday evening to tie up the Eastern Ontario Intermediate OASA "A" zone finals at one game apiece. The third and deciding sudden-death game of the series will be played on Tuesday evening either at Cobourg or Port Hope.

Timely hitting combined with Point Anne's wretched fielding display made victory an easy thing for ayfair Lanes. The visitors committed eight errors in the first five innings and these bobbles seriously affected four of Oshawa's first five runs. On the mound, neither pitcher proved any mystery. "Pat" Maracle for Point Anne, struck out three batters and walked a couple. Stan Locke for the homesters fanned only one batter and gave up four walks.

Oshawa outhit Point Anne by a small margin but they goth their hits at good times, to put them to best use.

Point Anne lost a chance to take command of the game when Whitehead, very first batter of the game, smacked the first ball pitched down the left field foul line for a triple and then got himself thrown out at the plate on a nice relay effort, when he tried to stretch it into a home run.

Point Anne had their first batter reach first base in four of the first five innings but still didn't score in fact, only Whitehead reached 3rd base. Whalen singled in the first after Whitehead had been put out at the plate and Green walked with two out but nothing happened. Bennett singled to open the second, but was thrown out trying to go to second on a wild pitch that bounced back off the screen right into the catcher's hand. In the fourth, Green opened with a single and reached second. In the fifth, Horwood was safe at the start on Lock's error and Loft singled with two out but Whalen popped out. A walk to Horwood and an error by Reigle on an infield throw, put Horwood on third base in the 7th but he died there.

Score Four in 8th

Point Anne's only scoring spree was in the 8th inning, after the score stood at 7-0. Whalen and Green each drew walks and then Genereaux singled to centre, scoring Whalen. Bennett then singled to centre, scoring Green. The throw to the plate stopped Genereaux from scoring and Bennett was caught half way to second. Then Mayfairs bungled it up in their throw to first and home, with the result that Genereaux scored safely and Bennett went to second and when nobody was there to take the catcher's throw right over the bag, Bennett went right on around to score the 4th run of the innings.

After that, Point Anne went out in one, two, three order and they didn't do much in the ninth inning.

Point Anne errors helped Oshawa materially in the early stages. In the first frame, Adair opened for Oshawa by going to second on Horwood's error. Then with 1 on Howood's error. Then with one out, Reigle bunted and Maracle threw high to first and Green missed the return throw to let Adair score.

In the fourth inning, Oshawa got two more unearned runs when Drummond singled and went to second on Whitehead's bad throw to first.

Throw-in Wild

Price singled to centre, scoring Drummond. Genereaux's throw in was wild to the plate and Price went around to third, scoring from there when Locke flied out to Genereaux on the next pitch. After that Genereaux muffed Adair's drive to centre and Whalen dropped the ball after tagging out Adair at second but Adair did not score as it turned out. In the fifth, Oshawa got two more runs on Reigle's opening bunt, a walk to Janetos with one out and Hodgson's bunt which was fielded too slowly for the force out at third. Drummond then singled, with the bases loaded, scoring Reigle and Janetos came on home when Bennett's throw got through Green at the plate. That made it 5-0.

In sixth, Oshawa loaded the bases on two singles by Adair and Branton and a perfect bunt by Reigle. With none out Gilbert popped up to Huck and then Janetos grounded to Maracle, who threw to first rather than to the plate and Adair scored on the choice. Drummond got Oshawa's last run, in the 7th. A home run blow to right centre that got away from both Loft and Genereaux. Drummond, and Reigle each had three hits for Mayfair Lanes. Loft and Bennett had two safeties apiece for Point Anne.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

'Tis reported from the scene of hostilities at the Alemite Field on Saturday when the Columbian Squires neatly handcuffed the prides of Toronto's Mount Carmel 6-0 to even up the series at one apiece in the Ontario Junior softball semi-finals, that the Squires master-minds looked askance at the suggestion of the Mount Carmel management to play a double header there on the spot and finish the series....The Squires apparently did not like the idea and refused....Which may or may not be good strategy. As matters stood the Squires were hotter than a day in July and the Toronto gang did not appear to be overheated with fielding ability....Jack Boyle had Adams available and could have thrown Don Boyle back in there if necessary. And no transportation to worry about in the third game.....All Squires had to lose was the game, and the way they were hitting their stride would have cleaned the series there and then..Looked like they passed up a golden opportunity to ease right into the finals.

Operator No. 777 who was a spectator at the Oshawa-Point Anne game in the Motor City when the Ox Pointers, so 'tis said, threw away the chance to take the series in two straight wins on several occasions, states the Point Anners celebrated a bobbling day besides commiting several errors of comon sense. The comedy of miscues started in the very first inning when the first Point Anner to step to the plate cocked the first pitched ball for a towering triple and went out like a light trying to stretch it into a homer.. Then the reliable Genereaux started a juggler's act out in centre field with a fly ball and finally dropped it to show he was out of juggling practice....Big Murney Green fiddled around behind the plate with a pill and was guilty of some not so hot softball ....The Pointers scored all their runs in one inning, so 'tis reported and had they attended to their fielding hitting might have pulled out with their second straight win....The third game is scheduled for Cobourg or Port Hope on Tuesday. Cobourg will likely get the nod....Had the Pointers won the game on Saturday they were scheduled for Toronto on Tuesday, Sept. 18 with the second game here on Thursday, Sept. 20....All subject to probable revision....As it stands now the master minds will announce other dates....Next Saturday either Mount Carmel or Columbian Squires will meet Hamilton in Hamilton for the first game of the Ontario Junior Softball championship....Second game to be played in Toronto or Belleville on Sept. 29 and the third game if necessary on Oct 6 place to be announced....Dresden will be here this afternoon to tangle with the Belleville juniors squad in the first game of the Ontario Junior Baseball championship. Game at Alemite Field at 3.30 and back to Dresden on Saturday....Dresden by the way is located somewhere between London and Chatham.... Tidy little hop for the kids, it seems, but its just as far from Dresden here....The youngsters will need plenty of the ole dinero to finance this trip so it behooves the fans to turn out this afternoon and give the kids a break....Better leave right now, there will be plenty left to see....When the Roanoke, Va., Piedmont League club played a double header against Newport News early this month, the fans must have thought they were seeing double....Roanoke turned in two-one-run victories with Manager Eddie Popewski knocking in the winning run each time ....Bennet Flowers was the winning pitcher in both games and Bob Austin, the loser—they came back for relief jobs....And in the opener each team got just four hits..Barnyard golfers will have their day at the Belleville Fair on Wednesday afternoon.... Will Leslie has arranged a good tournament with plenty of cash prizes....Several teams from the district have entered and the horseshoe pitching contest will bring out the best of 'em...Any desiring to enter should contact Will, or Secretary Erle Denyes... Eleven years ago tonight Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver regained his world's welterweight championship boxing crown after 15 hectic rounds with Barney Ross in New York. Beaten four months previously by Ross, McLarnin, gained the nod on a split decision. In a third meeting in 1935, Ross again won on points. McLarnin is now retired and lives in Los Angeles....Just heard Columbian Squires and Mount Carmels play the payoff tussle in Peterborough on Wednesday at five of the clock....Squires should be getting accustomed to the Pete diamond by this time... Incidentally, baggage should include the players certificates, lest ye forget....Argument to the contrary we got it on excellent authority that such is the case.. Dave Castilloux, the Canadian leather-pusher, will retire from the ring in December and open the Castilloux Club....Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson says that Dave will act as his own bouncer to keep down the overhead..The Gaekwar of Baraoda, Indian prince, 8th richest man in the world who draws a measly 8 million bucks income every year, has spent $316,945 for six promising offspring of English blueblood horsedom....And that, brother ain't hay....Rumors re the organization of a City Hockey League persist....Perch were nibblin a bit down the bay yesterafternoon, but the bass went high-hat and flipped their skirts at juicy minnows....A lot of the boys were out in the canoes and fishboats and there was plenty of movement to and from the various alleged bass haunts.... Denoting that the black boys weren't in the mood....It may have been Fred 'Art's reminiscing; Jack Hinchey's screaming red shirt, or Don Osborne's lid that kept 'em away but suffice it to say all this corner's party bag was two....Not counting the near-raising on several occasions of a submerged wreck once a proud fishing schooner, off the rocky shoals of Point Anne.... Fishing's O.K. but this playing of a 50-pound "musky" for 45 minutes which later proved to be the offspring of an oak tree, and an Indian's axe, born 1812, just "ain't" our idea of piscatorial pleasure.

LESSON NO. 783

The Kibitzer

No wonder we often refer to a bridge player as "that egg." Like a chicken, he always seems to be trying to get over to the other side. And some never know why.

Scramble into the south seat as declarer in this deal:

The correct contract should be three clubs. But you and your partner in the north have tottered into a contract of three no-trump.

West starts with an opening lead of the diamond pack. Take that with your dummy king. Now, what are your chances for making this bid?

Check off three top cinch tricks in the red suites. If you can bring home six of your dummy clubs, your nine tricks are in the bag. So, give that club suit a bit of study.

If west has the jack and the queen of clubs, two finesses will help you take seven tricks. Right there is where some eggs would make a mistake. They would try to get over to the other side to finesse.

You and dummy have a total of nine clubs. Opponents have four. Their usual division is three and one. If three are in east, you will lose a finesse to that hand. Would that be bad?

To reach your south hand, a red suit is unguarded. If the club finesse fails, opponents will wreck you. They can do it with their spade ace and three tricks in the unprotected red suit.

You can afford to lose one club trick. So, while you have the control of all dangerous suits, control yourself. Lead a club from dummy right now. A little one. Kiss it goodbye.

After that you will take a trick before they make you a dead pidgeon. Then take your two top clubs and run the rest of the clubs. As figured earlier, these and three top reds are all you need.

Don't lose control for a wasted trip across. If necessary, give up something you can afford. Consider it expendable.

Toronto teams featured Sunday's play in the United States National Softball Tournament at Cleveland with Tip Tops grabbing two shutout victories in the men's division and Croftons blanking Stamford, Conn., Nutmegs 2-0 in the women's series. Cam Ecclestone pitched the Toppers to a 3-0 triumph over Cranston, R.I., in 16 innings, allowing only three hits and fanning 26 opponents. In a second encounter Tip Tops whitewashed Pittsburgh 4-0. In the Crofton win, Miss Alma Wilson held the New Englanders to one hit in the seven-inning contest and struck out 11. In a later game last night Crofton also defeated Cleveland Erin Brews 2-1 in 7 innings.

Manager Art Chapman of Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League Saturday announced the purchase of right-winger Fritz Hunt from the Montreal N. H. L. Canadiens. Hunt performed for New York Rangers last season.

Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L., yesterday announced his team had already started workouts at the Detroit Olympia, five weeks before the opening of the season. The club will be strengthened by the return of Jack Stewart, Eddie Wares and Pat McReavy. Seven exhibition games are arranged.

Montreal Canadiens downed Cornwall Nationals 26-13 at Lachine, Que., last night in the first game of a best-of-five lacrosse series for Cattarnich Trophy. Canadiens held the game throughout, leading 20-6 going into the final period.

Although Russ Johnson, ace hurler of the Hamilton defending champions, fanned 22 opponents, Windsor gained a one-game lead in the best-of-three series of the O.A.S.A. senior "A" playdowns with a 3-2 victory at Windsor Saturday, the tilt going to 11 innings. Windsor committed seven errors. The second game is scheduled for Hamilton next Saturday.

Suffering a leg injury Aug. 14 in a game with Boston Red Sox, Jim Bagby, veteran Cleveland hurler, yesterday retired from baseball for the balance of the season, it was announced by Roger Peckinpaugh of the Indians.

In a two-hour walking race at Stockholm yesterday, Olle Andersson of Sweden covered 25,531 metres, or about 15 miles, to break the eight-year-old record held by Edgar Bruuns of Norway by 268 metres.

Discharged from the army last Friday, Joe Di Maggio, former outfield star of New York Yankees, was advised yesterday by president Larry Macphail to remain out of baseball until next spring. Di Maggio has been afflicted with stomach ulcers.

Louis B. Mayer's Busher, top money-winner filly, lost her 3rd race of the season when she was beaten by Quick Reward in the $25,000 Will Rogers mile at Hollywood Park Saturday. The winner collected $19,570 but her place money of $6000 sent Busher's total earnings to $276,120.

NESS SUSPENDED BY I.C.R.A. BUT NO REASON GIVEN

Leading Canadian Trainer on Basis of Winners Saddled Will Dispose of String

Toronto, Sept. 17 —(CP)— In a ruling which rocked Ontario racing circles, the Incorporated Racing Associations Saturday announced suspension of Douglas Ness, leading Canadian trainer on the basis of winners saddled, "for practices detrimental to the best interests of racing."

Ross Cochrane, former jockey and trainer who acts as foreman for Ness, also was suspended.

No reason was given for the ruling, taken at a special I.C.R.A. meeting at Woodbine Park.

Ness, who deserted the show ring several years ago to become an owner and trainer of thoroughbred race horses, became known as the Hirsch Jacobs of the Canadian turf for his phenomenal success in improving horses which won few races for other trainers.

Slogans such as "Lose less with Ness" and "Double up on Doug" became familiar jingles around Ontario tracks where Ness raced and trained a small stable.

Ness, well known as a horseman around Buffalo, N.Y., and Pittsburgh, Pa., stood eighth on the list of leading trainers in America for winners saddled last year. He was leading trainer in New Orleans this winter and was far ahead of other trainers in Canada this year at the time of his suspension.

One of his outstanding developments this season was Back Number, former cheap router which won 10 of 15 starts for Ness in better company.

His wizardry became so marked that at Fort Erie, Ont., someone removed the sparkplug from the trainer's car and left a note inside the hood saying: "Try and make this go, wise guy!"

After the ruling was announced Ness obtained permission to dispose of horses campaigned in his name. Other owners whose horses have been handled by Ness will be permitted to turn their horses over to other trainers.

Peterborough Westclox Defeat St. Catharines

St. Catharines, Sept. 17 (CP)— Peterborough lost the first game of a doubleheader to St. Catharines Stars Saturday, but salvaged the second game 4-0 to advance into their fourth provincial Women's Softball Union final.

The 4-0 nightcap victory, coupled with a first-round triumph, gave Peterborough the series over St. Catharines.

Westclox started Watson in the first game, but she was shelled from the mound after 1 2-3 innings. St. Catharines pushed across five runs in the first two innings before Withers, who relieved Watson, settled down to restrict Stars to two runs and six scattered hits for the final seven innings.

In the second game, Isobel Bullock's rise ball was good for 15 strikeouts as Stars failed to make six hits good for a single run. Meanwhile Whetung batted in three of Peterborough's four runs with two doubles in four trips to the plate. Patterson had two for five for the winners.

Peterborough: Patterson 2b; Morrow ss; Hawthorn c; Whetung 1b; Bullock cf-p; Rome lf; McLean 3b; Watson p; Withers p-rf.

St. Catharines: Laveck c; Cosgrove 3b; Norris ss; Peacock 2b; Riches cf; Dell rf; McDermott lf; Kirk p.

ORIOLES SWAMP ROYALS 19-4 TO EVEN THE SERIES

Toronto Beaten on Saturday by Newark Bears, Which Also Ties-Up Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Only four pennant winners have won the Governors' Cup since the Shaughnessy play-off system came into effect in the International League 12 years ago, and Baltimore Orioles are out to make the jinx work on the 1945 champions, Montreal Royals.

The fourth-place Orioles paraded around the basepaths Sunday as though engaged in a relay-race program, to thrash the Royals by a 19-4 margin before 19,242 bellowing Baltimore rooters.

The slaughter enabled the Birds to deadlock their best-of-seven semi-final set at 2-2 as Newark and Toronto sat out the day in the latter city, where a no-baseball rule prevails Sunday. Their series also remained snarled at 2-2.

The Orioles, who knocked over 25-game winner Jean Pierre Roy in the series opener, came back to jump on the Montreal ace again, staging a riotous second inning in which 12 homesters crossed the plate. Five walks and seven hits were climaxed by Freddy Pfeifer's four-ply swat.

The heavy artillery continued against Roy's successors on the mound, and the Orioles altogether battered out 14 base blows, including a double by Ab Wright, triples by Joe McHendick and Bob Latshaw and homers by Pfeifer and Sherm Lollar.

Roy, Jack Banta and Harold Kelleher made the way extra easy for Baltimore's Johnny Podgajny by contributing 16 free tickets to first. The Oriole hurler, coasting to his second play-off victory after 20 regular-season triumphs, gave up 11 hits but was tough with men on base.

Roger Wolff, Senators and Dizzy Trout, Tigers— Wolff outpitched the Tigers' Hal Newhouser, giving up only five hits to defeat Detroit 3-2 in the opener; Trout, summoned from the bull pen to halt a Senator uprising in the 9th, forced pinch-hitter Mike Kreevich to bounce out with the tying and winning runs on the bases, to end the second game 5-4 in Detroit's favor.

Peanuts Lowrey and Hank Wyse, Cubs — Lowrey's single scored Stan Hack with the winning run in the 3-2 opener against Brooklyn; Wyse registered his 20th victory, 4-2, in the nightcap.

Detroit-Chicago World Series Now Seems Likely as Leaders Enjoy Good Leads in Both Loops

Tigers Take Three Out of Four From Senators With Another to Play

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

It looks as if Detroit and Chicago, after a 16-year wait, will meet again in the October world series.

Time is running out on their rivals. With but two weeks of the current campaign remaining, it appeared today that only a spectacular spurt by either of the two runner-ups, Washington Senators or St. Louis Cardinals, together with a complete collapse on the part of the leaders, could eradicate the almost insumountable leads of the front-running Tigers and Cubs.

Including yesterday's double triumph over Brooklyn, 3-2 and 4-2, which incidentally erased the Dodgers' last mathematical chance for the National League pennant, the Bruins boasted a four-game lead over the champion Redbirds, with each having a dozen games left on the calendar. The Tigers own a 2½-game edge over the Senators in the American League with only nine games left to play to six for the Nats.

Cubs Break Record

Chicago's twin victory marked the Cubs' 18th sweep of a double-header this season to better the old major league record of 17 held by the Cards. Neither triumph was an easy one. In each the Cubs were forced to break a 2-2 deadlock to win. Ray Prim and Hank Wyse were the winning hurlers.

With a throng of 29,590 cheering them on, Washington downed Detroit's southpaw ace Hal Newhouser in the opener 3-2, but the Bengals barged back to squeeze out a 5-4 decision.

Roger Wolff knuckle-balled the Tigers with five hits in the first game to gain his 19th triumph, but Johnny Niggeling failed to follow suit. At that, the Nats rallied from a 5-0 deficit to count four times in the last two frames and had the tying and winning runs on the basepaths in the ninth when Paul (Dizzy) Trout was summoned from the bullpen to retire pinch-hitter Mike Kreevich for the final out.

Browns Still Third

St. Louis' Browns retained their one-game lead over the Yankees in their battle for third place by splitting their two games with New York. The Sewellmen won the first 6-2 behind Bob Muncrief, who notched his 13th victory against three defeats, but the Yanks bounced back to take the second 5-4.

The Philadelphia Phillies came from behind to edge out the Cards 4-3 in the opener when manager Ben Chapman singled in two runs in the role of a pinch hitter. The Cards gobbled up the nightcap 10-3, lubbing five Philly hurlers for 15 hits.

After Steve Gromek had won his 17th game for Cleveland, shutting out the Philadelphia Athletics 3-0 in the first game, the Mackmen came back to win the second 7-5 with a five-run 5th inning.

Giants, Pirates Tied

New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates' battle for fourth place remained undecided as the teams split their two games. Jack Barrett's 15th homer won the first for the Pirates 3-2, but Jack Brewer's elegant four-hitter gave the Giants a 9-2 nightcap win.

Dave Ferriss failed to win his 22nd as Chicago White Sox hung a double defeat upon Boston Red Sox, 5-3 and 6-1. The Braves and the Reds halved their pair. Boston rallied for three runs to grab the first game 4-3, while the Reds copped the second clash 5-4 in 11 innings after scoring four times to deadlock the game in the ninth.

AMATEUR BALL IN PROVINCE

(By The Canadian Press.)

Stratford Nationals collected 18 hits at Stratford Saturday to defeat Windsor Local 195, 13-2 in the third and deciding game of the Ontario Baseball Association Senior 'B' playdowns. Behind tight support, Andy Broder held the visitors scoreless until the eighth inning when an outfield error gave Local 195 its first run. Broder retired seven men on strikes in the eight-hit performance.

In the OBA Junior 'A' semi-final series, Lefty Burgess proved a triple threat man for London Majors, who conquered St. Catharines Lincolns 8-3 Saturday at the Garden City. The win gave the London team the series in two straight games. They now meet Toronto McCormicks for the series championship.

Burgess' steady nine-hit pitching kept Lincolns always in check and his big bat powered three long hits, including a double and triple. Afield he had nine assists.

In the north, Art Hillman's steady pitching enabled Kirkland Lake all-stars to defeat Porcupine Combines 2-0 Sunday at Timmins in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Temiskaming Baseball League championship. Hillman allowed only two hits.

Kitchener hit the offerings of Pte. Riggin hard and often to outscore London Midgets 8-5 in the first game of the OBA Midget semi-finals at London Saturday.

Sarnia St. Andrews advanced another step in the Juvenile OBA race at Windsor Saturday when they defeated Windsor Cardinals 1-0 to win the best-of-three series 2-0.

Rochester Red Wings of the International League scored two exhibition victories in a barnstorming tour, defeating Hamilton Cardinals of the OBA 7-4 at Hamilton Saturday and London Majors 4-2 at London Saturday night.

Brantford Qualifies To Meet Peterborough

Brantford, Sept. 17 —(CP)— Brantford Cockshutt Cardinals qualified Saturday to meet Peterborough in the Provincial Women's Softball Union intermediate finals by defeating Niagara Falls 7-3.

Brantford, who won the first game 6-0 at Niagara Falls, opened with a five-run assault and added two in the eighth.

Doris Pamplin, Brantford starting pitcher, allowed only one run until the fifth when Niagara Falls solved her offerings for five straight hits and two runs. Nellie Jordbro took over the mound duties and held the visitors hitless the rest of the way.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 16.

"He's over 35," Bruce insisted. "But even if he weren't he's too experienced and sophisticated for a girl like you. And it isn't just because I'm in love with you myself that I say that."

Forbidden Ground.

"His sophistication and experience happen to be what appeal to me," she informed him. No sympathy softened her statement this time. Bruce was treading on forbidden ground. Just because he wanted to marry her himself he was finding fault with Eric.

Unable to dance harmoniously with their minds in such conflict they sat down. The evening which had begun so happily was ruined. Bruce who usually came up smiling after any blow was grim. When she suggested that they leave before their usual time he did not object. It was only when they said goodnight that he showed any sign of weakening.

"Good night, dear! And if this proves goodby remember I loved you very much. I am probably the only man in your life who understands all your faults and still loves you."

"If you really loved me you wouldn't think I had any faults," she said, wounded as she always was by the slightest hint of criticism.

"We all have them," Bruce admitted. "And some of yours are pretty darned glaring. But it just happens that I can see beyond them to the person you could be underneath."

Because he was angry and baffled by her refusal he was insulting her. But she would rise above such pettiness.

A Selfish Girl?

"Goodnight," she said holding out her hand. "Thank you, Bruce, for a pleasant evening. And I shan't remember any of the unpleasant part because I know you don't really mean it."

The only way she could restore her own self esteem was to profess unbelief in his statements. Too many people had had something to say on the subject lately. Folly, who had grown up in an atmosphere of perpetual adoration could not bear not being admired. Yet Jim Melvin, then her sisters and Hilton, even Chan had begun to insinuate that she was selfish. Now Bruce who appeared to love her with single hearted devotion dared to say she had "glaring faults." Eric was the only one who considered her the artistic, superior person she really was. To Eric she was as glamorous as a star. "Beautiful, shining, untouched." Although she was often conscious of the vast differences between them he made her feel that even her inexperience was desirable.

No Mood to Talk

She had locked the front door and was on her way upstairs when she saw a crack of light beneath Marta's door. In no mood for conversation Folly sighed as Marta called "I'm still awake. Come in, dear! Did you have a good time? Sit down, Folly. It's been ages since I've had a chance to really talk to you."

Folly stood impatiently refusing to accept the invitation.

"I'm too tired to talk, Marta I'm going to bed."

"You can sleep late in the morning," her sister reminded her. "Did you have a good time tonight? Where did you go?"

"I went to the Forbidden City with Bruce."

"You haven't been seeing so much of him lately. What HAVE you been doing Folly?"

"Do I have to check in every time I leave the house?" Folly demanded. "You don't tell me everywhere you go."

"I didn't mean to pry," Marta smiled, trying not to lose her temper. "I've been going to movies and dancing sometimes with Hilton. But you seem so busy, darling, and you always go out alone. I just wondered where you were spending so much time."

This was Folly's chance to tell Marta about Eric but at the moment she was unwilling. Time enough to confide after their plans were definitely made. Marta, like Bruce, might not approve. Hurt and angry with Bruce she took out her resentment on her sister.

"You know that I'm supposed to go to Hospitality house several nights a week," Folly said sulkily. "I'm tired, Marta! Goodnight."

After all, Marta thought, switching off her light she couldn't force a girl almost 20 years old to confide in her even if she was her financial responsibility. Maybe it was her own fault for not approaching the subject more diplomatically.

Folly probably thought she was being reproached for not hunting a position. Well that too would have to be gone into soon. Marta decided grimly. No one else seemed to be having any difficulty. The papers full of situations for even inexperienced girls. If Folly really wanted to work she could have found something. No matter how distasteful the subject was to them both Marta must really have a serious talk with Folly.

Better To Wait.

..Not tomorrow, she thought weakly. It would be better to wait until the unpleasant memory of tonight had faded. Anyway nothing could be done tomorrow. Folly wouldn't be up when she left and it was Marta's night to work. Life was timed to such an increasing speed these days that there seemed no leisure for solving one's personal problems.

Folly wakened the next morning to wind and fog. The recollections of the night before were all unpleasant. First she had quarreled with Bruce then Marta had tried to cross-examine her. The big sister attitude was one Folly particularly disliked. "I'll be off her hands soon," she told herself. "She won't need to worry about me when I'm a countess."

How she wished she had not told Eric she must have time to think about it. A week without him was much too long. If he didn't call her this morning she was going to telephone his apartment in spite of what he had said. After all it was different now that he had asked her to marry him.

Folly Phones Count.

Her breakfast was cold but she carried the pot of coffee to the kitchen and reheated it. Chan had gone to the market and suddenly because she felt she could not bear the silence any longer Folly found herself at the telephone dialing Eric's number. She had to wait a long time until a voice, probably that of Egholm, his servant, replied.

"This is Miss Wainwright," Folly announced. "May I speak with Count Lindstrom?"

The voice replied unimpressed, "Count Lindstom is out of the city. He will not return for several days."

Folly gasped; "Thank you," and replaced the receiver feeling as if the bottom had dropped out of her world. Never before had he gone away without telling her. No doubt this was his reason for not calling her, but why hadn't he explained?

Sipping the hot coffee she stared out the kitchen windows at the bravely blowing daffodils. Drenched with rain, buffeted by wind nothing could quench their gay spirits. Chan had tended them carefully and here they were blossoming in riotous beauty in the fence enclosed back yard. Feeling herself vaguely allied to them as if she too were a storm tossed blossom in an unappreciative world Folly decided to go down town.

Sees Eric Leave Apartment

But not a single friend she called was at home. What was the matter with everyone? she thought crossly. Everyone seemed to have gone mad just because there was a war going on. Surely all these girls weren't needed in defense or Red Cross activities.

Nevertheless a feeling of guilt sent her to the Hospitality house to see if she could do anything. It was not her day but her pass admitted her and the older women who were serving coffee and cake pressed her into service.

Folly carried dishes back and forth to the kitchen for several hours then when the line of boys began to slacken she decided to go to a movie.

It was on her way down town from the Civic centre where Hospitality house is located that she saw Eric Lindstrom coming out of an apartment house entrance, carefully closing the door behind him.

Delighted to see him, Folly cried, "Oh, Eric, I thought you were out of town." His glance of consternation changed to one of cautious welcome.

"What are you doing down here?"

Folly laughed merrily.

"I'm coming from Hospitality house but I ought to ask you that."

"I returned to the city sooner than I expected and came to find Egholm. He lives here."

"But he is at your apartment," Folly said. "I talked to him this morning."

The count said cheerfully. "How stupid of me not to call there first. I had told him he might have the week off since I was not to be home."

Suspicion flashed through Folly's mind. Eric was lying to her. He was just pretending that this apartment house he had just left was where Egholm lived. Maybe he was pretending about having been out of town too.

Once before he had deceived her when he had invited her to his apartment for dinner. Was he going to try it again? On the verge of promising to marry him, Folly hesitated. This should be the test she told herself.

Folly Checks Up.

She would return to the apartment house Eric had just left and see if Egholm's name was there. Absorbed in her plan she did not notice that Eric was as anxious to escape as she was. They said goodbye at the movie she had said she wanted to see.

"I'll telephone you later," Eric promised.

Folly waited until he was out of sight, then darting from the line waiting in front of the box office she walked swiftly in the opposite direction.

Folly peered at that shabby list not really expecting to find the name she sought. But it was there. Shame to think she had doubted Eric filled her heart. "Carl Egholm" was printed in small neat letters standing out from the careless scrawl of the other names.

Renewed Trust.

Soberly she retraced her steps. She had suspected Eric unjustly. Of what she did not know but now unwittingly he had fulfilled her test. The reason she did not always feel comfortable with him was because he was so foreign. But once they were married all this would adjust itself.

She found his name waiting for her when she returned home. Chan more lucid than usual on the subject said. "That count called and will call again at six o'clock."

Folly was thrilled. While she had been checking on him he had been trying to reach her. She sat by the telephone so that no one else could answer it and when he called promptly at six her voice was singing with renewed trust and happiness.

"I was so very rushed this afternoon," Eric apologized. "I didn't have time to talk to you, darling! But I must see you tonight."

"You may call for me here if you like," Folly said shyly, deciding to announce their engagement to her sisters without waiting.

"There is a dinner I must attend," he explained. "It will be better if you can meet me downtown. Say at the St. Francis at nine o'clock."

Folly promised. It would be simple tonight as no one but "Grandpa" would be home. Hilton, strangely subdued, watched Marta wistfully as she dashed off to do her patriotic duty. A little later Folly heard his car leave the garage. So there was no one to whom she needed to explain as she closed the front door behind her and walked to the car line.

Her Mind Made Up.

A sense of fulfilling her destiny was strong upon her as she lifted her lovely, flower-like face to the soft kiss of the fog. She had broken with Bruce now. Had made up her mind. Tonight they would complete their plans and in a week or two after Eric had been introduced to her sisters they would be married and fly to New York.

Not the wedding she had dreamed of in white and flowing tulle because Eric did not want the fuss of congratulations and publicity. His idea was for them to be married in Reno. Such a dreary place for a wedding, Folly thought, full of divorces and gamblers.

But what would that matter after they were married? All the rest of her life would make up to her for the loss of her wedding. It was a small sacrifice to make for being allowed to marry a man like Eric.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 17 —(CP)— Index losses were posted for all groups this afternoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Sales were 506,000.

Golds were almost unchanged from earlier readings of a featureless board.

Aubelle was better at a three-cent gain and Bear, another fairly active trader, was off five. Aumaque and Donalda were firm, up three. East Sullivan and Giant Yellowknife were down 15.

Few changes were recorded in the faltering industrials. Massey Harris was a firm spot, up ½ but Abitibi was down one.

International Uranium was strong in the base metals, up 17. Steep Rock was active but lost five and Nickel was down one.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 17 — (AP) — Bearishness over the nation's labor picture continued to depress the stock market today and leaders extended their decline by one to three points at the worst. Dealings slowed appreciably near the fourth hour after a fairly active opening. Motors, rubbers, steels and assorted "blue chips" led the retreat.

Conspicuous on the offside were Packard, which started on a block of 10,000 shares, down ⅛; Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Caterpillar Tractor, Allied Chemical and Du Pont.

downward trend, displayed fractional losses at midday. Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines each dropped ¼. Distillers Seagrams and Lake Shore slipped 3/8 and 1/8 respectively.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 17. (CP)—Due to the Jewish holiday and absence of buyers for the Kosher butcher trade sales were light today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 1598; calves 2030; sheep 4854; hogs 1573.

Early sales in the Cattle Division were made at about steady prices. One carload of top steers was not sold. Few good steers offered $11.25 to $11.75; medium kinds $10 to $11 and very common light thin steers as low as $7. Heifers $6 to a top of $10.50. Good butcher cows $8.50 to $9, medium $7.50 to $8.25 and common butchers $6.25 up. Good butcher bulls $8 to $9 and bolognas $6 to 7.75.

Prices for calves were unchanged. Good veals were $13.50 to $14.50, just medium $12 to $13 and common down to $10. Drinkers moved from $8 to $9.50 and grassers were $6 to $9.

There were no early sales on sheep and lambs and hogs.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 17 —(CP)— Grade A, dressed, were $17.75, delivered, unchanged, at the only bacon-hog market reporting an established quotation early today.

Cars Collide, Child is Hurt

Trenton, Sept. 17—Two cars collided Saturday night on Marmora Street just north of the Presbyterian Church, when a sedan driven by Cecil Belnap of Trenton allegededly being driven on the wrong side of the street struck a sedan driven by Charles H. Kent, R. R. No. 3, Consecon. Mr. Kent was driving south on Marmora Street and the Belnap car was proceeding north when according to eye-witnesses, the Belnap car pulled over to the west directly in the path of the Kent car.

Mr. Kent, observing the car being driven by Belnap zigzagging and on the wrong side of the street, made a sharp turn to his left to avoid him but unfortunately his car was hit and right rear fender considerably damaged. His young daughter, Marie, age 13, was considerably bruised about the forehead.

The Belnap car continued, jumped the curb, and only stopped when it hit a tree.

Trenton police investigated and Belnap was arrested and will likely be charged.

Navy's Blimp Base, Richmond, Worst Sufferer of Storm

366 Planes and 25 Patrol Blimps Destroyed by Fire

Miami, Fla., Sept. 17—(AP)—Damage from wind and flame in Saturday night's hurricane was estimated at $50,000,000 today, with the greatest loss at the United States Navy's Richmond blimp base, where three great hangars collapsed, burned and destroyed 366 airplanes and 25 patrol blimps.

The loss at the blimp base alone was between $30,000 and $40,000,000, a navy spokesman said. An exact figure will be determined by a board of inquiry now investigating the accident in which one man died.

Fifty sailors were injured, only a few of them sufficiently to be sent to hospital. Harry M. Schultz of Miami, civilian chief at the best, was killed.

The 190-foot-high roofs of the three hangars—largest single-span wooden structures in the world— collapsed as hurricane winds of 120 miles an hour howled across the station.

Planes sheltered within their 1,100-foot length and 320-foot width burst into flame as wreckage fell upon them and the three structures went up in flames. The men were injured as they fought the flames in the roaring storm.

A fire within Miami that destroyed a furniture factory and tile manufacturing plant, while 99-mile winds blew, caused $150,000 damage.

Destruction of flimsy buildings, landscaping and crops accounted for the remainder of the loss. Fruit trees in South Florida and early vegetable crops in the Lake Okeechobee region were badly damaged.

The death toll stood at two tonight as the storm whipped near Daytonia Beach, headed back toward the sea. The other death was a Honduran seaman who drowned whiel attempting to rescue his dog aboard the storm-foundering two-masted schooner Icaros.

A late-afternoon weather advisory reported the storm still blowing at 75 miles an hour over a small area.

Georgia Standing By.

"Northeast storm warnings have been ordered north of Jacksonville (Florida) to Cape Hatteras," the advisory said.

"The centre of the storm will probably emerge into the Atlantic between Daytona Beach and Jacksonville tonight."

Residents of the Carolina and Georgia coasts were warned to take preliminary precautions and stand by for further advices.

The heart of the storm had spent its main fury, however, as it battered across the Keys with a vicious sideswipe at Miami and rampaged across the Everglades.

Hundreds left homeless by the phenomenal winds — the highest since the disastrous 1926 hurricane—were being fed today by Red Cross nurses in the areas hardest hit by the storm, chiefly at Goulds, Perrine and Homestead south of Miami.

Meanwhile, the greatest traffic jam since prewar days clogged the South Florida highways, already littered with tree stumps, broken telephone poles, palm fronds, twisted sheets of corrugated tip ripped from rooftops, and other debris.

20 Injured in Fire.

Thousands of motorists, forgetting their own slightly damaged homes in the Miami area, took the roads in a mass sightseeing procession to witness the heavy destruction wrought in the heart of the storm zone. Aside from severe damage to telephone wires, the storm took its biggest toll from ramshackle negro quarters and flimsily constructed fruit and vegetable warehouses which were blasted to splinters.

First navy reports that 200 personnel were injured in the fire at the Richmond blimp base dwindled to 50 and finally to an officially announced 20 late today, with only three cases sufficiently serious to warrant them remaining in hospital.

Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables, once trim winter vacation meccas, were littered with broken palm fronds and smashed trees. But Miamians grinned cheerfully at having escaped so lightly from the severest storm in nearly 20 years. The task of cleaning up started today.

Library Circulates 21,257 Books in 3-Month Period

Indicative that reading continues to be a popular pastime even throughout the summer months, a total of 21,257 books were circulated during the months of June, July and August, it was reported by Librarian Miss Olive Delaney at a recent meeting of the Library Board.

The above number of books meant an average daily circulation of 285, with 168 new members being added during the three-month period, it was stated.

One of the most attractive departments of the library was the Penguin Club formed to encourage summer reading among the younger library members. Approximately 412 books were read by Penguin Club reading contest entrants, the winners being Yvonne Paquin, Donna McNish and Jeannette Fink.

Re-organization of the three local township school libraries into one unit with over 1,000 books in their combined collection has recently been accomplished with the move expected to give a wider range of reading materials for the rural members. Township school libraries in the new unit are Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Sidney. Local library officials assisted in the re-organization of the rural school libraries.

The Camera Club organized through the local library last May has also met with encouraging success during the summer months with members holding regular twice a month meetings at the library. One of the club members, Clarke Popham, has won recognition through exhibition of two pictures at the International Photography Salon at Toronto. One of Mr. Popham's pictures was recently published in Saturday Night.

Miss Alice Vandervoort has been appointed as temporary library assistant, succeeding Miss Shirley Jackson who will leave the local staff to attend the Ontario Library School.

Detroit Appears To Have American Loop Title Cinched

Washington, Sept. 17. (CP)—Detroit may as well prepare to entertain part of the 1945 World Series.

For the Tigers settled the American League race to all but final mathematical purposes when they split Sunday's twin bill with Washington Senators. The Senators win the first game 3-2 but lost the second 5-4.

The finale of this five-game showdown series will be played tonight, but the Tigers already have won the set—and the championship, too, unless they flop completely the rest of the way.

The Senators could reduce the Tigers' lead to 1 1-2 games by winning tonight but even that result would leave this situation:

The Senators, to end in a tie, would have to win all five of their remaining games while the Tigers were winning only five of eight.

New York in two games and Philadelphia in three are Washington's last opponents. The Tigers wind up their campaign against Cleveland and St. Louis.

Walter Masterson, the big former sailor who beat Bob Feller in a two-hit, 4-0 debut last Thursday, will attempt to duplicate that performance tonight. Prinne that performance tonight. Prince ing rival.

John W. Hanes, former U. S. under-secretary of the treasury, who criticized U. S. policy of turning over the plates from which the Russians now are printing millions of occupation marks in Germany. Mr. Hanes has just returned from Europe. He said the new army order forbidding U. S. troops to swap the Soviet-issued marks for U. S. dollars, is no cure, saying the American taxpayer will ultimately have to foot the bill.

A New Lease of Life

[redacted]

Pictured above are two smiling youngsters who now have a new lease on life thanks to the efforts of the Crippled Children's Fund of the Belleville and District Shrine Club. The smiling youngsters are now on the way to a brighter outlook on life as can be seen in their smiling faces. There are hundreds of other kiddies who will need similar assistance and for this reason the Shrine is giving away prizes valued at $1,000 at the Belleville Fair on Wednesday night in front of the grandstand. Tickets are now on sale at leading merchants and during the fair will be obtainable at the Shrine Booth. Your quarter or dollar will go a long way towards assisting a deserving child back to health and happiness, and at the same time may bring you a handsome prize.

Shannonville "World's Fair" Attracts Huge Attendance With Horse Racing Being Featured

Exhibits in All Classes Much Larger Than in Previous Years

The "World's Fair" at Shannonville lived up to its reputation on Saturday as being one of the biggest "little" fairs in this part of the district. Upwards of five thousand fair enthusiasts from all parts of Hastings and Prince Edward counties and other districts came away satisfied that the Board of Directors had earned another feather in their exhibition cap.

It was a typical Shannonville show, with all the color, noise, entertainment, livestock and amusements as well as an outstanding array of exhibits, that combine annually to make the "World's Fair" the attraction it is.

One of the outstanding features of the fair were the trials of speed which attracted fast stepping horses from all parts of the district. According to the veteran starter George Tice, of Belleville the events were some of the best carded at Shannonville in some years and were productive of some keen racing. The large crowd milled around the track as the races got away and interest was maintained at a high pitch throughout the running of the card. In addition there were special running races and a pony race.

Many Interesting Attractions.

Other attractions featured the catching of the now famous greasy pig; a tug-of-war between husky stalwarts of Read and a composite team of other districts. Read pulled valiantly but went down to defeat at the hands of their heavier opponents. Then there was a buck-sawing contest, results of which are published elsewhere and other contests for men, women and kiddies.

A grostesque clown playing an accordeon was the centre of attraction from the kiddies and grown-ups alike. Playing over a public address system the Pierrot had the youngsters singing lustily with him during the afternoon.

Kiltie Band Enjoyed.

Adding to the general entertainment especially from a musical point of view were the kilted members of the band of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) under the leadership of Piper Jamie Clark. The band played several pipe selections in addition to leading a parade.

On the Midway were all the wellknown attractions dear to the heart of the fair-goer. There were weight - guessing contraptions; Binga games with baskets of luscious peaches for prizes; for three balls for a dime you could take a crack at Hirohito; fortune telling and various games of chances that offered attractive prizes—if you won.

Vendors offered peaches and canteloupe besides water melon at easy prices. The inevitable hot dog and hamburg stands did a rousing business as did a ladies' organization booth that offered lunches to the public.

Many Exhibits.

In the Exhition Building were many exhibits of farm and domestic production as well as ladies' work and that of school children. All kinds of vegetables and grains as well as floral displays were on hand while the district ladies culinary ability was seen in rows of bread, buns, cakes,pies, and other homemade kitchen edibles.

Entries in the livestocq classes compared favorably with those of other years especially in the poultry divisions. Holsteins, Jerseys and other famous breeds were well represented as were sheep and horses.

Dancing featured the evening entertainment on both Friday and Saturday nights with a special variety show offered on the latter evening at the Fair grounds.

Directors Satisfied.

Directors stated that they were well satisfied with the response by the general public to this year's edition of their fair, while on the other hand many commendatory remarks were heard regarding the general attractiveness of the annual exhibition as a whole.

Ben Chapman, Phillies and Emil Verban, Cardinals — Chapman drove in the tying and winning runs in the ninth with a pinch single for a 4-3 win; Verban made four hits and drove in 3 runs in the Cards' 10-3 nightcap win.

LABOR ORDER ENDS

Ottawa, Sept. 17 — (CP)—Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of labor, said last night that the labor control order by which a man wishing to leave a designated industry had to have the sanction of Selective Service, will end automatically today as previously announced.

Mr. MacNamara said, however, that men seeking employment still required to secure a job-seeking permit from Selective Service.

The designated industries in which the "freeze" now being lifted applied, included former war industries and essential civilian industry.

Eighth Franchise To be Given Soon

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 17—(AP)—The eighth franchise in the Canadian-American Baseball League probably will be granted before the annual meeting in Quebec City in November, says Albert E. Houghton, league president and secretary.

Houghton made his statement at a meeting of league directors here Sunday. Four cities, Ottawa, Sherbrooke, Que., and Schenectady and Kingston, N.Y., have made application for the vacant franchise.

Ottawa, former member of the league which was suspended during the war, and Sherbrooke having ball parks available, Houghton said. Houghton, Harold Ward, Gloversville, and Wallace McQuatters, Amsterdam, will investigate playing facilities in Schenectady and Kingston.

No date was set for the annual meeting. The directors adopted a club player limit of 15 and voted a 126-game season for 1946.

London — (CP) — David Paterson Malcolm, 64, in charge of building the Wembley Empire Exhibition of 1924, died in hospital here.

Doctor Who Exposed Horror Of Belsen Camp Testifies

By WILLIAM F. FRYE

Lueneberg, Germany, Sept. 18 (AP)—The soft-spoken British army doctor who first told the world of the ghastly horror of Belsen concentration camp was called today as the initial witness by a British military court trying Joseph Kramer, "the Beast of Belsen," and 44 S.S. cohorts with conspiracy to commit mass murder.

As the first great trial of Nazi war criminals entered its second day, the prosecution summoned Brig. Glyn Hughes, formerly chief medical officer of the British 2nd army.

Brig. Hughes entered the grim mill of death at Belsen when it was liberated by British troops April 15. Two days later in a press conference he gave the world the almost incredible account of Belsen's nameless thousands of dead, of the degraded and despairing living, some of them driven in the torture of starvation to cannibalism.

The prosecution announced Brig. Hughes would be the first of a parade of witnesses who would give evidence that Kramer and his 44 aides were guilty of inhuman and cruel practices at Belsen, and that Kramer and 11 of the 44 were guilty of equal if not greater crimes of extermination at the concentration camp at Auschwitz.

As the trial opened yesterday in the converted gymnasium which serves as a courtroom, the prosecution capped a two-hour recital of horrors charged to the 45 with a promise to produce a witness who had seen records of 4,000,000 deaths at the Auschwitz camp.

Among those charged with committing abominations at Auschwitz is stony-faced Irma Grese, said by the prosecution to have been the worst of the S. S. women guards. Kramer was in charge of the notorious Birkenau compound at Auschwitz, known as the biggest Nazi mass murder factory, where the prosecution claims millions were exterminated.

Defence Counsel Capt. J. R. Philips entered a plea that trial of the 45 before the same court prejudiced the Belsen defendants who never were at Auschwitz. But Maj.-Gen. H. P. M. Berney-Fickin, heading the 5-man court trying the defendants on a Royal Warrant on behalf of all countries whose Nationals suffered, refused to order separate trials.

The prosecution will claim the Belsen gang committed deliberate acts of wilful cruelty and murder. Col. Backhouse recalled to the court that parliamentary investigators arriving at Belsen soon after its capture found 13,000 corpses there among the 12,000 living men and 28,000 living women. He recalled that 13,000 more died in the succeeding six weeks from the effects of the internment.

R. P. Patterson Will Succeed Henry L. Stimson

Washington, Sept. 18 —(AP)— President Truman has chosen Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson to succeed Henry L. Stimson as United States Secretary of War, it was learned today.

President Truman called a news conference for 4 p. m. E.D.T. when he is expected to make the official announcement.

Mr. Stimson will be 78 Friday.

Mr. Stimson's retirement may be followed by several other War Department changes.

John J. McCloy, assistant secretary of war, also is expected to return to private life soon. Lt.-Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of the army service forces, may soon take a job in private industry. General Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces, is another who wants to retire.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, is expected to follow Mr. Stimson into retirement within weeks, possibly to be succeeded by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mr. Patterson's selection to replace Mr. Stimson would come as somewhat of a surprise. Capitol Hill guessing has been that the Undersecretary was in line for appointment to the Supreme Court vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Owen J. Roberts.

Lawmakers generally had discounted Mr. Patterson for the cabinet post because of sharp differences between him and the Senate War Investigating Committee which Mr. Truman headed as a senator.

These differences grew out of the committee's sharply-worded criticism of the army's Canol oil development project in northwest Canada and Mr. Patterson's staunch support of the multi-million dollar undertaking.

Bayoneting of Soldiers and Civilians At Hong Kong Witnessed by Canadian

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C.P. War Correspondent)

Manila, Sept. 18 (C.P. Cable) —Rifleman William Robert Campbell of Novar, Ont., today described the bayonetings and shootings of bound and helpless civilians and soldiers, including Canadians, which he witnessed during the week he roamed the hills of Hong Kong after the surrender of the garrison there to the Japanese in December, 1941.

Campbell, who has his right hand scarred by a severe grenade wound untended while he was in hiding, was a member of a company commanded by Major C. A. Young, of Quebec, which was cut off and ambushed shortly before the surrender on Christmas Day.

He tried to reach Stanley Peninsula where the main body of the Royal Rifles of Canada—one of the defending units—was forced to withdraw but the night of December 26 he saw the lights come on over a wide area and knew the battle was over.

On the morning of December 27 from his hiding place overlooking a road, he watched three Japanese officers and eight or nine guards bring six soldiers and a dozen civilian men, tied together with wire and rope, along the road and drive them off onto the grass, where they were shot and bayoneted to death.

Campbell met two British soldiers who took him up a hill to a dugout where there were three wounded Canadians and one unwounded member of the Winnipeg Grenadier. The group decided to surrender but Campbell, frightened by what he had seen, remained hidden as, arm in arm, they helped one another down to the Japanese road.

The rifleman heard them shout as they neared a Japanese outpost and about 20 guards, two with swords, ran up. The Japanese separated the wounded men by pushing them with rifles, then slaughtered all of them on the spot.

Campbell remained frozen where he was and left only after dark with a soldier from the Middlesex Regiment, who also had remained behind. While trying, again without success, to reach Stanley Peninsula, he came across the body of a British officer tied to a tree. All around the hills there were Japanese, British and Canadian dead and a little abandoned equipment.

In area of Stone Hill, Campbell watched the shooting of seven more civilians from a distance and parades towards Stanley Peninsula of hundreds of whites and Chinese bound together and walking "like a chain gang," with Japanese guards prodding them along.

Campbell saw groups of bodies of other atrocity victims on December 29 and while he crept about in his stockinged feet at night the Japanese started bonfires which apparently burned the bodies of those they had killed.

The Canadian lay near Stanley prison for two days while the Japanese marched prisoners along the road and on New Year's Day he spotted a Japanese truck with a Canadian burial party. He hailed it and was taken to North Point prison camp, then to hospital where he was kept until September, 1942.

NO SURPLUS WAR MATERIALS BEING DESTROYED—HOWE

Minister Tells House Plenty of Peace-Time Jobs in Sight, Controls Being Removed

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Assurances that no saleable surplus war materials are being destroyed in Canada, that there are plenty of peace-time jobs in sight, and that controls are being removed as rapidly as possible were given in the Commons last night by Reconstruction Minister Howe.

Participating in continued Throne Speech debate a few hours after delivering an address on reconversion to a Toronto audience, Mr. Howe said that inventories have been kept of surplus materials destroyed and sold and these will be available to any parliamentary committee which wishes to explore the transactions of the War Assets Corporation.

His remarks on war materials were prompted by statements of F. D. Shaw (SC — Red Deer) who asked that a Royal Commission be set up to study the distribution and disposal of war materials. Mr. Shaw said the people of Western Canada were not satisfied with the explanations given for the destruction of equipment along the Alaska highway and at the RCAF station at Penhold, Alberta.

Has No Value

Mr. Howe said that when the Dominion was in the disposal business it should clean up everything that was obviously useless for the future.

EGYPTIAN LAWYER HANGED

Cairo, Sept. 18 (AP) — Mahmud Issaway, 28 year old lawyer, was hanged this morning for the slaying of Egyptian Prime Minister Ahmed Pasha last February 28 just after the government leader had announced his cabinet's decision to declare war on the Axis.

Issaway, pale and haggard, was led into the death chamber by six guards at 8 a.m. and was pronounced dead three minutes and 50 seconds later.

COL. PARKINSON ILL

Ottawa, Sept. 18 (CP) — The condition of Col. R. F. Parkinson, managing director of the Journal Publishing Company, was described as "dangerous" tonight by authorities of the Ottawa Civic Hospital where he is a patient. Col. Parkinson underwent an emergency abdominal operation in the hospital ten days ago.

U.S. Senator Demands Arrest of Hirohito As a War Criminal

Washington, Sept. 18 — (AP)— Smouldering Congressional dissatisfaction with peace terms imposed upon Japan flamed today with a demand by Senator Richard Russell for the arrest of Emperor Hirohito as a war criminal.

The Georgia Democrat decried, in an address prepared for Senate delivery, what he described as a "soft peace" developing for Japan. He said if present policies are continued "we are headed for complete failure and another war" in the Orient.

Senator Russell was the first to bring before the Senate complaints about the arrangements under which Japan surrendered. Several of his colleagues have voiced similar dissatisfaction privately since the peace terms were signed.

Under those terms Hirohito remains on his throne but takes orders from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied Supreme commander. No promise was made that he would not be tried for war crimes. The Japanese people are to decide what form of government they want.

Some senators who previously had called for Hirohito's trial as a war criminal said they had not renewed these demands publicly because of the delicacy of occupation operations. This factor caused Senator Russell to delay his speech a week.

"Hirohito is the head and heart of Japanese Imperialism," Senator Russell declared. "He is one of the greatest aggressors of history . . ."

Senator Russell said trial of the Emperor "will strip him of the false divinity with which he has been cloaked and the Japanese people can see how they have been duped in having sacrificed themselves for a power-seeking tyrant posing as a god."

TRUMAN CAUTIONS END OF RATIONING DEPENDS ON NEEDS

May be Necessary to Return Some Items Freed Since Japan Surrendered

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP) — The days of food shortages and rationing in the United States may not be as near an end as many—including some in government—had expected.

President Truman so cautioned Americans in a White House statement late yesterday. In it the President reiterated a pledge made after his return from the Potsdam conference that the United States would help feed the hungry in war-torn areas to the "limits of our strength."

He added that in meeting minimum foreign food needs, it might be necessary to return to rationing some items freed of government controls since Japan surrendered.

In pursuing such a policy, the United States would be following the action taken by Canada earlier this month when meat rationing was resumed to permit increased exports to Britain and other war-devastated countries.

Fulfill Requests.

Mr. Truman disclosed that arrangements have been made for fulfilling main food requests of Europe between now and January 1, but shipments after that date—and hence, the charter of the domestic food supply will be determined, he said, on arrangements made in the meantime for financing them.

Great Britain and some other European countries now are attempting to negotiate credits, grants or other financial aid. Likewise, future activities of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration will depend largely upon whether it obtains additional funds.

Mr. Truman has recommended that Congress appropriate $1,900,000,000 for U.N.R.R.A. Congress has made no move yet to act upon the recommendation.

Legless Veteran To Wed Nurse Whom He Saved

Toronto, Sept. 18. (CP)—Cliff Wills, 22, of Niagara Falls, Ont., a legless veteran of the war just ended, and Army Nursing Sister Hazel Wall, whose life he saved in a near-drowning tragedy in the Wabagoon River near Dryden last Summer, will be married at Niagara Falls on October 17. Wills is a patient at Christie Street Military hospital here, where Nurse Wall has been his "favorite nurse" since his admittance last Spring, on return from action in Holland where he lost both legs after stepping on a land mine.

In the spectacular rescue in Northwestern Ontario some weeks ago Wills saved both Nurse Wall and her close friend, Mrs. Iris Brown, Toronto, while all three were vacationing. Mrs. Brown expects to act as bridesmaid at the wedding.

Wills, who expects to get his discharge in a few weeks, is getting accustomed to his new artificial limbs. His bride-to-be will go to Manitoba in a couple of weeks to get her discharge too.

"You might say that my rescuing her may have given momentum to our fondness for each other", he said in hospital yesterday. "She has always been my favorite nurse—and of course more so now".

FORESEES MILLION MORE JOBS IN '46 THAN BEFORE WAR

Hon. C. D. Howe Says Results Reconstruction Plans "Fairly Satisfactory"

Ottawa, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Reconstruction Minister Howe said last night in the Commons the government's plans for the reconstruction period now were in operation and the results so far were "reasonably satisfactory."

It was only a few weeks since Japan surrendered and in that period war orders having a value of $150,000,000 a month had been cancelled. It was not surprising that there was some dislocation and some concern among workers laid off.

Mr. Howe said it was not unnatural that the inevitable dislocation resulting from these cancellations was causing some uneasiness among workers "at this time when we are re-absorbing workers laid off from industry we are also called upon to absorb men who are being mustered out of the armed services at a rate of approximately 50,000 per month."

His department was compelled to refuse permits for buildings representing a great deal of work because of shortages of building workers. Permits for small houses and most industrial construction were being granted, but permits were being refused for large houses, churches, theatres and such industries as breweries.

High Peace-time Employment

By VJ-Day many of Canada's war plants had already converted to peacetime production. And this conversion had only meant limited or temporary lay-offs. In the motor car industry, for instance, the lay-offs amounted to 15 per cent and that for a period of only three months.

Practically all war plants would provide high peace-time employment. Canadian General Electric Company, for instance, planned to double its pre-war employment figure. Other companies would have near or higher employment figures than before the war.

There was no lack of applicants for saleable Crown-owned plants or for space in plants that the government was renting on a multiple occupancy basis.

A great expansion in industry could be expected during the next year. There would be 1,000,000 additional jobs to what there were before the war.

Seasonable unemployment later this year would be coupled with a heavier flow of discharges from the forces. This might bring about pockets of unemployment in some areas. However, in other areas there still would be shortages of labor.

It was hoped that labor would gradually settle into its peacetime pursuits.

Scythia Docks At Wolfe's Cove

Quebec, Sept. 18 (CP) — The 19,761-ton troopship Scythia, bringing 1,989 servicemen home, slid past the ramparts of old Quebec this morning, and moved into her berth at Wolfe's Cove, a few miles up the St. Lawrence River above Quebec.

Troops will begin disembarking off the Cunard-White Star liner into waiting trains later in the day. On her first trip to Quebec as a trooper, the Scythia and her passengers received a typical Quebec welcome of booming guns, blasts from ships' whistles, and ringing church bells.

RUSSIA REQUESTS SOLE TRUSTEESHIP OF TRIPOLITANIA

Molotov Makes Clear That Russia Anxious To Obtain Foothold In Mediterranean

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 18 (AP) — Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov said today that Russia is interested in Italian colonies and that there is "a grain of truth" in the report that Russia wants sole trusteeship over the North African colony of Tripolitania.

Speaking at a press conference, M. Molotov declined to give specific Russian demands on Italy, but made it clear that Russia is anxious to obtain a foothold on the Mediterranean.

The foreign commissar also declined to be specific on Moscow's views on the Italian-Yugoslav boundary, saying only that the question was "under discussion."

Earlier, the Yugoslavs made formal claims to Venetia Giulia before the foreign ministers of the five leading Allied powers.

M. Molotov made a long statement supporting the governments established in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary which Britain and the United States have refused to recognize.

Marshal Tito's emissary, vice-premier Edward Karelj, asked that the boundary be moved westward to a line north of Monfalcone, depriving the defeated Italian kingdom of Trieste, Fiume, Zara and the naval base of Pola. Touchy debate is expected.

Want $600,000,000

The Russians were reported to have demanded $600,000,000 reparations from Italy in a move opposed to the ideas of Britain and the United States.

The United States and Britain have adopted a policy of helping Italy reconstruct her battered economy. The question of reparations is particularly ticklish for the Americans in view of recent action by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in authorizing international aid for Italy, expected to amount to $450,000,000.

U.S. Opposes.

Since the United States contributes about 75 per cent of U.N. R.R.A. funds, it was pointed out in diplomatic quarters that the Americans in effect would be footing a considerable portion of the reparations bill should Russia succeed in stripping Italy through large payments in material.

One authoritative source here said Soviet Russia was the only member of the big five to ask payment from Italy.

The size of the Russian demand brought objections from some quarters because it was twice as much as Hungary and Romania were asked to pay.

Youth is Not Sure If He Staged Holdup

Windsor, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Raymond Lamont, 19, no fixed abode, wasn't sure whether he actually had committed a holdup, but in any case he surrendered himself to police here last night.

He told officers he had pointed a toy gun at a pedestrian and ordered him to "put 'em up." When the man complied, Lamont became frightened and ran away. In support of his story, he turned the toy gun over to the police.

Police said they have had no reports of an attempted holdup.

Lamont was charged with vagrancy.

Modification of Rationing Plan May Result From Meeting in Ottawa

(By The Canadian Press.)

Prices Board officials today watched closely public opinion on the meat rationing question as they prepared for Wednesday's meeting with representatives of the meat trade in Ottawa, backed by wires of commendation from some women's organizations.

The Price Board said wires of support had been received from the Red Cross, church organizations and the Women's Regional Advisory committee.

It was expected that out of the meeting would come some modifications of the rationing plan, especially in regard to the coupon value of cooked meats.

Latest to join the protesting butchers was the Prince Edward Island Wholesale and Retail Meat Vendors Association. They passed a resolution asking the "withdrawal of the present meat rationing system."

Other protests meetings were held in Toronto, where between 400 and 500 butchers, small-scale meat packers and housewives called for "drastic action" if the government does not do something to relieve rationing, Montreal, where butchers in the suburb of Montreal North threatened to strike Sept. 24 and at Vancouver, where the British Columbia divisions of the retail merchants Association of Canada said "the present method of meat rationing is wasteful and uneconomic."

The Alberta's Farmers' Union issued a statement at Edmonton saying "the threatened meat shortage, which has brought about the necessity of rationing, is a direct result of the short-sighted policy of the Federal government towards hog production." The statement called for a "bold policy for increased production of both pork and beef".

Work Stoppages In Oil Industry Threaten in Texas

Union Proceeds with Plans For Vote in Big 3 Plants

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP) — Fresh fuel was poured on the burning labor issues in the United States today as the wave of postwar work stoppages, already keeping idle some 200,000 workers, spread to the oil industry.

As President Truman prepared to step into the turbulent labor strife in the motor industry, hardest hit by the work stoppages with some 80,000 idle in the Detroit area alone, dissension along the rest of the country's labor front became more pronounced.

C.I.O. oil workers left their jobs in East Chicago, Ind., and in the Detroit area yesterday and strikes threatened all Gulf Oil and Texas Company refineries in Texas. Union officials said some 30,000 workers in six States had been put on the alert for a possible industry-wide strike to enforce union demands for reduction in work-week hours from 52 to 40 with no cut in pay.

They were in Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky.

In Detroit, leaders of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) proceeded with their plans for strike votes in Ford, General Motors and Chrysler Corporation plants in their fight to obtain a 30 per cent wage increase.

There was a similar demand in Chicago by the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers Union (C.I.O.) as it served notice on four major tractor companies employing 90,000 members. A local union of the U.F.E. called a strike at a division of the Borg Warner Corporation as notice to the company that it wants a 30 per cent wage increase for its members.

The disputes hit many of the bigger cities—New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, St. Louis, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Memphis.

Might Accept Temporary Adjustments.

Detroit —(AP)— Officers of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) indicated today they would be willing to accept temporary adjustments of their 30-per cent wage increase demand on the United States automobile industry.

President R. J. Thomas and Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes said at Flint, however, that the Union would not be satisfied in an ultimate settlement with any less than 30 per cent.

Mr. Addes said there would be no compromise.

"Labor doesn't do business in the old-fashioned way any more," Mr. Addes said.

It was pointed out by another Union source that negotiations for a 30-per cent increase possibly might extend over a period of months.

As yet, the U.A.W.-C.I.O. International Executive Board, meeting at Flint, has set no deadline for managements to agree to the wage demand or face strikes at their plants.

LORD BEAVERBROOK GIVES DENIAL

Chard, Somerset, England, Sept. 18 (CP)—The Chard rural council claimed yesterday that while labor was unavailable for essential work Lord Beaverbrook could get men to build cow stalls on his estate at nearby Ilminster. The charge brought an immediate denial from the Canadian-born publisher who said no cow stalls were constructed.

Vancouver Child Slain; Police Intensify Search

Vancouver, Sept. 18 (CP) — The most intensive search in the history of Vancouver ended last night with the finding of the battered body of pretty four-year-old Dianne Blunt buried under three inches of dirt in an unused garage 25 yards from her East Hastings home. She had been missing since last Tuesday.

Police acting on a tip received by Walter Mulligan, superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the city police force, said the child's face was badly battered and the back of her head crushed in.

Officers said a widespread search is being made for "a murder suspect." An autopsy will be held today followed by an inquest.

Discovery of the body was made while hundreds of citizens were engaged in a search of all bushland surrounding the child's home. Police dug up the body, took photographs and carried out investigations without the knowledge of immediate relatives.

Superintendent Mulligan said the discovery was "partly due to police work and partly due to a civilian."

Dianne was last seen alive shortly after 4 p.m. last Tuesday playing in a sawdust pile. Her disappearance was reported to the police who started an intensive search, climaxed Sunday when thousands of men and women, servicemen, Boy Scouts and A.R.P. members combed the city.

Relatives and friends of the girl's parents maintained a six-day vigil at the home helping the little girl's parents. Rewards totalling $775 were offered by citizens for information leading to the finding of the child.

Windsor Strike In Seventh Day

Windsor, Sept. 18 — (CP)—The strike of 10,000 employees of the giant Ford Motor Company of Canada here today entered its 7th day with no sign whatever of any break in the deadlock between the company and Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

The picket lines swelled to their strongest number yesterday with approximately 1,000 of the unionists marching back and forth before the gates of the huge plant. Executives and company engineers again were turned back.

It is believed that discussions between Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey and union officers towards an agreement permitting access to executives have not produced any results. On the question of picketing as a whole the Windsor Police Commission met yesterday but simply re-affirmed its previous stand that police duties will be confined to the prosecution of any individual committing any action contrary to criminal law.

The union is seeking negotiation of a new collective bargaining agreement including a union shop and the check-off. The affiliated Local 195, representing 8,000 workers in 30 other plants, has set up strike committees in event sympathetic strikes are sanctioned by the U.A.W. policy committee and International Executive Board.

BOB DAVIS TO OPEN PUBLICATIONS AGENCY

Opening of a new publications agency in the Belleville district is announced by Robert Davis of this city, discharged veteran of the past European conflict. The new business will be known as the Davis Agency and will carry English, American and Canadian publications. District will be Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Deseronto.

Born in the city Mr. Davis is the son of Mrs. Jean Davis, Church Street, and the late Vernon Davis. He went to school at Queen Alexandra School and the B.C.I., enlisting in the R.C.E. in January of 1942. He saw service in England, France, Holland, Belgium and Germany, being wounded in Holland last February. He arrived back in Canada last May.

With a natural yen for athletics "Bob" as he is known to his close friends, played hockey, softball and rugby and while overseas was a member of the champion Canadian hockey team.

He is married to a Peterborough girl.

MISS MARION DANIELS ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

For many years interested in young people's work but previously only undertaking this in her spare time, Miss Marion Daniels of Foxboro, past president of the Belleville Presbytery, has accepted the position of secretary to Rev. H. A. Cooper, B.S.A., B.D., Director of Religious Education for the United Church in Toronto. Miss Daniels will assume her new responsibilities as of Sept. 24th.

Currently leadership training convener for the Bay of Quinte Conference, Miss Daniels has taken close interest in the work of training young people, an interest which will be continued in her new work. Mr. Cooper is in charge of young people's work in the Dominion for the United Church. Miss Daniels has been a member of the office staff at Corbin's for the past four years.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT MARSH HILL

Capacity congregations attended anniversary services at Marsh Hill United Church Sunday with Rev. A. L. Shorten conducting the morning servgice and Rev. D. C. Amos of Bridge Street United Church, conducting the evening service. In an exchange of ministers for the occasion, Mr. Shorten had charge of the Sunday evening service at Bridge Street.

Guest soloist for the morning service was Miss Ethel Smith, well-known Belleville vocalist, who sang "Beside Still Waters," while the junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater rendered special numbers. The senior choir assisted at the evening service.

HEAVY RAIN FLOODS CITY HALL CELLAR

Storm sewers were extended to their fullest capacity to take away surface water which fell during Tuesday morning's heavy rainfall. Streets curbsides were turned into rivers and with sewers in some instances unable to carry away the volume of water, basements along Front Street began to be inundated.

This was particularly true at the city hall where during the height of the rainfall water rose in the basement to a depth of nearly 10 inches before employees of the public works department got pumps operating to keep the rise in check.

Obituary

MISS DELIA JANE MURPHY
(Formerly of Marmora)

Miss Delia Jane Murphy, 79 South John Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital, late Monday afternoon after a brief illness.

Born at Malone, Ontario, the late Miss Murphy was in her 82nd. year, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Murphy. For many years she lived at Marmora and for the past ten months she made her home in this city. She was a member of the United Church at Marmora.

Surviving her are one brother J. J. Murphy, Edmonton, Alberta, and one sister, Mrs. James Arthurs, Fort William, Ontario.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Friday morning; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

MRS. SARAH PHILLIPS

Mrs. Sarah Phillips, widow of William Phillips, died at her home 63 Burton Street, Monday evening after a lengthy illness.

Born at Newington, Ontario, the late Mrs. Phillips was in her 82nd. year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brownell. For a considerable time she lived in the 4th. concession of Sidney Township and for the past twenty years she made her home in this city. In religion she was a member of Holloway Street United Church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Miss Maud Phillips, at home; two brothers, George Brownell of Chesterville, Ontario, and James Brownell of Newington, Ontario.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

MISS ANNIE ROSE WILLS

Miss Annie Rose Wills died at her residence, St. Agnes Manor, 137 Bridge Street East, early this morning. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Miss Wills was born in Belleville and was a member of one of this city's oldest families. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wills and her father was treasurer of Hastings County for many years. All her life was passed here with the exception of the time from 1924 to 1934 during which she resided in England.

During her active years Miss Wills took an active part in the social and church life of the city. She was a life member of St. Thomas' Church and when health permitted she assisted in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the parish.

In the regard of many friends Miss Wills held a high place and to them her death has brought much regret.

Miss Wills was the last of her family and is survived by one niece, Mrs. S. McNairn, Hamilton; two nephews, Lieut. Col. P. H. Wills, and Lieut. Col. Thomas Y. Wills, both of this city.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street, at Victoria Avenue; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

EMMA LOUISA PRINDLE
(5th Concession Thurlow)

In failing health for the past five months, Mrs. Emma Louisa Prindle, wife of the late Herbert W. Prindle, 5th concession Thurlow, died in Belleville General Hospital early Tuesday morning.

Born in Yarker, Ontario, 73 years ago, Mrs. Prindle was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee. She had lived in the 5th of Thurlow for the past 25 years and prior to that time at Moira. Member of Carmel United Church, she was an active worker in the W.M.S.

Surviving are one daughter, Leita Irene Prindle at home, and three sons, Frederick Prindle of Plainfield; Everett Prindle, Carrying Place, and Vernal Prindle, at home; also two brothers, Frederick Lee of Toronto and Stanley Lee of Tweed. One brother Damon Lee, died six years ago. There are five grandchildren.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Grandstand Entertainment For Belleville Fair Patrons Best Ever Produced in City

Variety of Acts Ranges From Comedy to Thrilling Trapeze Work; Horse Act Delightful; Splendid Singing

Billy Garden, well-known producer of high class stage entertainment who has been catering to the grandstand appetites of Belleville and district fair goers for the past decade, earned another feather for his already well-decorated hat on Monday night when he offered his 1945 edition of variety acts to the large grandstand first-nighter audience.

The atmosphere was anything but conducive to sitting still and watching a show, but a silent tribute to the current edition of Mr. Garden's production was evidenced in the fact that the crowd increased as the show unfolded and remained until the National Anthem was played.

Mr. Garden has long been conversant with the entertainment tastes of the people of this district, and the fact that he has always given his best to satisfy and has been successful in so doing is the reason that his popular shows play "repeats" every year.

This year, however, he went all out to please a "Victory Fair" crowd. The variety of the offerings leaves no one dissatisfied. Each act is a treat in itself, and the consensus on Monday night was that the grandstand show of 1945 is the best seen in years.

Plenty of Comedy.

There is comedy; beautiful chorus girls colorfully gowned and each an accomplished dancer. There is a lady vocalist who is lovely to look at and delightful to hear. There is plenty of comedy; daring trapeze artists; a horse that is human and Ken Good's versatile orchestra which is another old time favorite in these parts.

Curtain raising the show is the troupe of Variety Girls, smart dancers whose routines are clockwork in execution and rhythmic in style. They are seen in several numbers, beautifully costumed. A feature is an "Esquire Number" which must be seen to be appreciated.

A comedy scream is "Nellie the County Mare." Nellie is comprised of two acrobatic dancers with a ring master and her antics in obeying orders brought down the house.

Clifford, a slack wire artist and a versatile chap, his offering is clever to say the least. His difficult stunts atop the wire are different from the usual routine, although his climax, that of procuring a handkerchief from between his knees with his teeth while kneeling on the wire, was unable to be done on account of the brisk breeze that blew across the stage.

A Charming Singer.

One of Billy Garden's "finds" is one of the outstanding attractions of the show. She is Mademoiselle Pierrette Doray, a beautiful Belgian singer, whom Mr. Garden "discovered" while touring Quebec with one of his shows. Mlle. Doray is an attractive blonde whose personality enters into her offerings. Although suffering with a slight cold, Mlle. Doray immediately won the hearts of the audience with a splendid stage appearance, her beauty and a lovely voice. She sang "You Belong to My Heart," in English, then in French, and as an encore offered, "Meet Me in St. Louis." Called back she sang a French comedy song that brought her further rounds of applause. She will be a popular favorite with grandstand audiences during her brief stay here.

The Shuberts, an acrobatic comedy duo, have a lively act that is something different. A man and girl team, they go through a difficult routine that is clever and is climaxed with a dislocation whirl on a trapeze on the part of the man, that drew unstinted applause.

Another different yet popular act was that of the "Silver Mask" and his horse "Pinto." "The Mask" is a cowboy whose skill with a lariat is uncanny but "Pinto" actually stole the show with his almost human intellect.

Horse Almost Human.

The horse imitated a camel, dropping on its forefeet to allow its master to mount it. It walked on its knees and nodded its approval of the pretty girls and disapproval of the men in the audience by vigorous negative and affirmative shakes of the head. It lay spread-eagled on its back while "The Mask" twirled a rope overhead. It pranced on its hind legs and played "dead horse." And "Pinto" climaxed a grand performance by showing how he took his master home after a night with the boys. The clever animal pushed "The Mask" across the track with his nose, as he staggered home in a fine imitation of an inebriate. Another feature was the posing of the man and horse of the famous cowboy painting "The End of the Trail."

Fine Acrobatic Team.

The Three Merts are a hilariously funny comedy acrobatic trio. They imitate three drunks and their antics mixed with clever acrobatic ability, earn them a place high on the program. It is a clever act, well executed and rightfully deserving of its large quota of applause.

Perhaps the highlight of the entire show is the act of the Melzores, a quartette of trapeze artists. Reminiscent of the trapeze artists under the "Big Top" the clever four stage a performance that is thrilling—and funny. There is a clown mixed up in the affair and his hilarious antics and seemingly narrow escapes from falls won the heart of the audience. Another acrobat and a girl do clever swinging through the air "with the greatest of ease" while the fourth member of the troupe some fifty feet away dangles in midair by her feet and catches the flying artists as they whirl through space, and back again to their platform high in the air.

The highlight of the comedy comes when the clown acrobat suddenly turns his left foot right about face. He climaxes this act after spinning through the air by sitting down and turning his foot in a complete circle several times.

Mother Over 60.

But the audience didn't know two things. The lady who catches the acrobats in midair is the mother of the two men and is over sixty years of age. A third son, who was a member of the troupe, joined the army and the mother came back to the act. The second thing, is that the clown member of the troupe has an artificial leg, hence the turning of the member during the act.

The stage performance will be repeated with additional numbers tonight and on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Fair goers should not miss this highly entertaining phase of the Belleville Exhibition.

Ted Schwab Purchases Laurie Lewis Business

Ted E. Schwab, manager of the Lipson Departmental Store here for the past six years has purchased the business of Mr. Laurie Lewis, 40 East Bridge Street, it was announced here today.

Mr. Schwab has severed his connections with the Lipson firm and has assumed his new business duties. His new store, however, will be closed until October 1 to permit complete renovation and to instal new stocks of stationery, gifts and office supplies.

Expressions of regret were voiced by Mr. Schwab today at the severance of years of happy business associations with the Lipson store personnel. "The staff was marvelous during my tenure with them," he said, "and they have been greatly responsible for the success I enjoyed as manager for the past six years through their loyalty, devotion and interest in their work."

Born in Dublin.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, Mr. Schwab came to Toronto when a child. He arrived in Belleville in August, 1939, and almost at once took a keen interest in things of a community nature. He has been intensely active in all kinds of public work, such as community welfare as was evidenced in his supervision and production of the Kiwanis Club Revue last Spring in aid of the children's camp.

He was the first president of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League and is still a member of the executive of that organization. Interested in hockey, Mr. Schwab was elected president of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey League some years ago.

So deeply are the roots of Mr. Schwab's friendships, and activities established in Belleville that he chose to remain in the city of his adoption rather than move to Western Ontario where he was offered a lucrative position with a large departmental store.

Presto Music Club

The first meeting of the Presto Music Club for the 1945-46 season was held at the home of Mrs. W. S. Northcott on Monday evening. After the election of officers the evening was devoted to a musical program, as follows:

Piano solo by Mr. C. W. Casement, Schubert's "Impromptu in A flat;" Vocal sol by Miss Helen Cook, "Bless This House," by Brahe; Piano duet by Mrs. E. M. Hubbs and Mr. William Connor, the 2nd movement of Tschaikowsky's "6th Symphony;" Two vocal solos by Mrs. Burgoyne, "Homing," by Del Riego and "Sundown," by Carlisle; Piano solo by Mr. William Connor, selection from "The Bat" by Strauss ;Violin Solo by Dr. Locke, "Chanson Triste" by Tschaikowsky; Vocal solo by Mrs. K. M. Bird, "Deep River" by Burleigh; Piano solo by Mr. Alec Gordon "C Sharp Waltz" by Chopin.

41-POUND MASKINONGE

North Bay, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Believed to be the biggest muskie ever landed in Lake Nipissing, a 41-pound beauty was landed near Callander Bay by R. B. Peck of Geneva, Ohio. He battled the fish for 35 minutes.

Fred Wilson, Warden of County And Legislature Member For West Hastings, 'Opens' Fair

Despite typical autumn weather with cool breezes that swept across the spacious grounds of the Exhibition Park, one of the largest "first night" crowds in some time heard Warden J. Fred Wilson M.L.A., officially open the 1945 "Victory" edition of the annual fall agricultural classic at nine o'clock last night.

Associated with the Warden were Mayor Frank Follwell of Belleville, President Elmer Sandercock of the Belleville Agricultural Society, Treasurer Ben Bleecker, 1st Vice President Glen Thompson, 2nd Vice President William Reid and a number of directors.

Warden Wilson officially declared the Exhibition "open" following a brief address in which he emphasized the fact that rural-urban co-operation as clearly emphasized in this district had been one of the chief factors in winning the war, and would continue to be in winning the "peace."

Complimented Fair Board.

He complimented the Belleville Agricultural Society on its record of achievement over a long period of years which has proven of inestimable benefit to agriculture in this district. "The Belleville Fair," he said "has survived the lean period, when government grants were not available and by concerted effort on the part of its directors and officials has now reached the proud position of being one of the outstanding exhibitions in the province."

"It is solid financially; has excellent buildings, and has carefully supervised all phases of its activities such as field crop competitions, during the war."

The Warden paid tribute to the efforts expended by the Board in its junior farmers activities. A good lesson has been taught the young people of the district and the result is seen this year in one of the largest junior entries in the history of the fair.

Impressed With Exhibits.

He was impressed, he said with the quality of the exhibits in all classes of entries. The reappearance each year of exhibitors with improved exhibits is commendatory in itself.

The Warden pointed out that world markets are, and will be hungry for Canadian produce, and fair boards are to be commended for their efforts in increasing the quality of the Dominion's produce by offering prizes each year. The Belleville Fair, he said, was good away back in 1855 when it boasted a membership of 150. Today there is no better exhibition in Ontario.

The speaker was introduced by Mayor Frank Follwell who extended an official welcome to the city of outside guests. "I am glad to see our rural friends come to the city," he said, "and I want them to feel at home. Rural-urban co-operation is necessary to make for progress in both spheres of life."

He complimented the Board of Directors on the fine exhibition this year. "It is not through the efforts of one man," he said, "but the co-operation of the entire Board working together."

President Heard.

President Sandercock outlined the various phases of the Fair emphasizing the many fine entries of horses and livestock. A parade of carriage, heavy draft and other types of horses took place before the grandstand and each driver was introduced by Mr. William Reid.

Previous to the official ceremonies the crowd was entertained by the amusing antics of "Fifi" well-known clown, who was no small factor in helping them forget the chilly breezes. "Fifi" finally took over the conducting of the Belleville Municipal band to the merriment of not only the crowd but the band itself. Well-rehearsed after its bandmaster convention performances, the band played sprightly music in a brief pre-ceremony program.

The Midway.

With its brilliantly illuminated panorama of whirling rides, tented shows, educational and entertainment features; its shrill cacophony of barkers, voices and all the color and glitter that go to make the time-honored "sawdust trail" of the fall fair, the Wallace Brothers Midway lives up to all advance notices. A tented canyon of games, rides, prize-winning devices, mysterious dancing girls, wild west cowboys, dark gypsy fortune tellers, the ubiquitous hot dog and hamburg stands with appetizing odors rising to tempt the palates of belated fair-goers and a dozen and one other open air attractions, it proved the mecca for the large entertainment-hungry crowd on the opening night.

Plenty of Rides.

There are plenty of aerial rides for those who like their fun spinning dizzily high in the air in all form of whirling devices. There is the "Spitfire" a circular group of miniature aircraft that gives those who ride the thrill of their lives in a giddy breath-taking whirl through the air. Another thrill is the Rocket a long device with two cylindrical compartments attached to each end. That, they say tests the heart of the most avid thrill-seeker. Several other high-in-the-air mechanical devices are designed to give the utmost in this form of entertainment.

There is the ever-popular merry-go-round for the kiddies while actual ponies and donkeys, afford extra thrills for youngsters who like their fun learning to be equestrians. A Monkey Show will all kinds of "monks" is there for the seeing. Beautiful dancing girls afford the tired business man a rest, not to mention exuberant youth, who weren't being shoved aside by any oldsters when the show opened.

Plenty of Games.

There are games and wheels in all kinds and shapes. A shooting gallery is available while one can win prizes by the simple expedient of knocking things down with baseballs. Fortune tellers will read your palm, and you can have your weight guessed at no cost if the teller is wrong.

Other attractions too numerous to mention are on the Midway, the whole being a fine attraction in itself with its fantasy, mystery and thrills.

But the large crowd last night did not confine itself to the Midway alone. Human nature with its ever-present curiosity was evident as the throng crowded livestock and horse sheds, where the cream of county and district horse and cattledom is evident.

The spacious brilliantly decorated buildings received their share of attention with the crowd, especially those from the rural parts eyeing with pride the many agricultural exhibits. Outstanding urban merchandise is on display in another building, while yet another houses war auxiliary services which are catering to the inner man, woman and child.

The Belleville District Shrine Club has its now famous $1,000 "draw" prizes on display, and Shriners are in evidence with tickets for sale the proceeds of which will benefit crippled children of the district.

Judging to Start.

Judging of livestock and horses got under way today and many splendid specimens were exhibited. This afternoon the Trials of Speed which will continue on Wednesday will get under way if track is fit.

Billy Garden, well-known entertainment impresario who has catered to Belleville fair goers for years with his famous stage production has provided a grandstand performance that shades all previous efforts. Chilled spectators last night forgot their slight discomfort and enjoyed a spectacle of variety acts that is first class entertainment and easily one of the best offerings Mr. Garden has brought here for some time. The performance is staged both afternoon and night. A detailed account appears elsewhere in this edition.

IN MEMORIAM

CLARKE — In loving memory of our dear son, Pte Earl K. Clarke, of the Loyal 49th. Edmonton Regiment, who was killed in action in Italy, September 18, 1944.

We little thought when you left us
You would no more return,
That you in death so soon would sleep
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know the pain you bore,
We did not see you die,
We only know you passed away
And never said goodbye.
The blow was great, the shock sever,
We little knew the end was near.
It is only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without saying farewell.

—Ever remembered by Mother and Dad.

CLARKE — In loving memory of a dear brother, Pte. Earl K. Clarke, of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, who gave his life in Italy, September 18th., 1944.

Two dear hands are resting,
A loving heart is still,
A brother we loved is waiting
For us just over the hill.
Take up thy cross and follow Him
Nor think till death to lay it down,
For only he who bears the cross
May hope to wear the glorious crown.

—Lovingly remembered by sister Hazel and family.

LEWIS — In memory of Duncan, dearly loved son of Laurie and Edith Lewis, and brother of Donald, Laureen and Rod, killed in action over Chievres, Belgium.

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old, age shall not weary them nor the years condemn, at the going down of the sun, and in the morning we shall remember them.

LIGHT, HEAVY, CARRIAGE HORSES ON EXHIBITION

Competition in All Classes of Livestock Will be Keenest in Years at Belleville Fair

Where are we going to put the livestock that is being exhibited at the fair is the question that is puzzling the directors and those men in charge of each exhibit. Practically every stall is filled and more accommodation is being arranged and the visitors to this year's exhibition will see one of the finest showing of horses that the Belleville Fair has even seen. "This is certainly victory year," said one official. "People are fair conscious and they just want a chance to show people what advancement has been made since the war started. More and more people have gone into the purebred lines than ever before and the livestock industry in this area will get better and better as the years go by."

It is a pleasure to walk down the long lane where horses both carriage, heavy draft and agricultural are lined up for inspection. They are expertly groomed, harnessed in the height of fashion and in perfect show condition. There are some wonderful teams to be shown and T. A. Wilson of Cannifton and Denbeigh, M. Ferguson of Picton, Arthur Wright of Picton and the Sawyer-Stoll Lumber Company will be right in the thick of contention. The Hastings County Home is exhibiting their fine team, that made such an impression last year, while Henry Clement and M. Shetler of Napanee will exhibit in the heavy draft class. Horses from more than 200 miles distant from Belleville will be on parade. Ralph Sadler and Ivan Cochrane of Nestleton, new exhibitors to the fair will present light horses both roadsters and carriage. Robert Jamieson of Picton also has horses in this class.

Companies to Show Horses.

The dairy and bread companies of the city, not to be outdone by their country cousins are putting on a show to let people see the horses that deliver the products to the homes every day in this city. Valuable prizes have been offered and the drivers are vieing with each other to have their outfits spick and span for the big day. Don Shorey of Sidney is exhibiting heavy draft while Morley Sills is showing registered Belgians and Peter Milligan is showing carriage horses. John Aylesworth of Cataraqui is here with carriage horses while Robert Thompson of Picton is showing in the heavy class. George Jarrell will show percherons and Earl Bush heavy draft Eugene Rabbie will show Clydes and drafts with Bert and Keith Ferguson exhibiting Clydes. Those who like a good horse can spend a profitable afternoon around the show ring.

The same conditions hold good with the swine and sheep exhibits. The stalls are completely filled and fine strains of animals are being shown in every class and the competition will be exceptionally keen. Cotswolds, Dorsets, Shropshires, and other breeds are prominently displayed, while the swine exhibit exceeds all exceptations. Some of the most noted breeders of swine in this district have sent their swine to the show and the judges will find no easy task in separating the entries. The poultry building is opened for the first time in years and Jack Holley, who is in charge will be pleased to offer any information on these animals, who did so much to help win this war. In all it is a grand show and well worth a visit.

STATUS OF HONG KONG

New York, Sept. 18 (CP) — The New York Times said editorially today "it was necessary and proper" that Japanese surrender of Hong Kong should have been made to British authorities Sunday but added that the crown colony "will remain one of the prime problems of post-war adjustment between east and west."

NO SIGN OF NYLONS

If there's a new baby in your house, next door or at a friend's house up the street, you'll be busy these days thinking of baby clothes.

But there will not be enough textiles in Canada for many months to come. You may find it difficult at times to buy just the right thing.

What could be better than a home-made and truly personal gift? You can make scores of warm, comfortable and attractive babies' garments and accessories from discarded underwear and other woollen clothing lying in your cupboards.

To give you a hint of the tremendous possibilities within call of your sewing materials, here are just a few practical suggestions. Patterns are available at the stores.

Unique Band Music Festival

Belleville has had bands from almost its earliest years and today it possesses a number of fine organizations, all serving the noble purpose of expressing musically the spirit of the people, the school population and the service of worship and religion. They are appreciated by the people for their contribution to the life of the community and their training in one of the great arts which they provide to so many.

There has just closed here a convention whose deliberations during the weekend and whose presence were of great moment to the people of Canada for the Canadian Bandsmen's Association is the voice and the expression of the interest in bands in Canada. This organization touches every part of the Dominion closely and in its membership are men whose names are household words, conductors of great musical organizations having much to do moulding and educating the people, conductors who are themselves composers of highest rank and all artists of the highest gifts. The influence of these leaders in music upon one another and upon the Canadian public is of great value.

This convention will leave a deep influence upon the city of Belleville for it has been privileged to welcome so many of these outstanding figures in the world of band music, the greatest number in the city's history at one time from all Canada. Through the concert which was directed by guest conductors leading the Belleville Municipal Band, they found entry to the heart of the people. Their visit to this city was an event of achievement as well as of promise for the future here and everywhere else in Canada.

The influence of music in this centre will grow as the result of the grand concert with widely known conductors leading the local municipal organization of bandsmen in a program which had been chosen with a rare sense of judgment.

The members of the Belleville Municipal Band responded to the direction of the well-known conductors who are known across the length and breadth of the Dominion of Canada and gave an outstanding performance. To the individual members and to Lieut. Fred Jobson, the Municipal Band conductor, who has had the training of the local organization must go the high praise which they merit and achieved by their brilliant playing under the direction of so many leaders. They have every reason to be proud of their attainments and they deserve the thanks and gratitude of the city for bringing to Belleville the Canadian Bandmaster's Association. They were accorded high praise by those of the conductors and other members who referred to the success of the performance.

Everyone knows the importance of band music in war time and the importance of this in the days of peace is also to be highly regarded because of the inspiration which music of this kind arouses in every citizen at all times. Music should have a high place in the life of every community and nation for it speaks a universal language. This was evident on Sunday at the grand concert when conductors from Quebec as well as conductors from other parts of Canada directed the musicians. In this could be seen the great power of such an organization in moulding the spirit of the people and promoting the sense of unity. Just as the program of music was enriched by the interpretation of the conductors, by their personality and their attainments, so the life of Canadians can be enriched by rich musical heritage of the people of the two main racial streams which flow through Canada. Music is harmony and spells harmony. The influence upon the city in the convention and in the bringing together of these bandmasters who represent Canadian music must long remain.

The Battle in the Channel

The naval war in the English Channel was fought out by the "little ships" of the Royal Navy and German Navy for five continuous years. It is now disclosed by the Admiralty that 500 enemy ships were sunk by the Royal Navy's coastal forces for the loss of 170 of their own vessels.

Naval actions in the Channel in these "little ships" were fast and furious. They were high speed actions fought often at 40 knots (nearly 50 m.p.h.) and at night. It was a war of stealth and sudden action. Officers and men had to be highly trained and able to make instant decisions.

The E. boat was the German equivalent of the British M.T.B. (motor torpedo boat) or American P.T. boat. They carried two torpedoes and a light armament, and their prey was the coastal shipping moving up and down the Channel. The E boat held the initiative in the early stages around 1940 but very soon was on the defensive and seldom looked for an engagement with the British M.T.B.'s. Forty-eight E boats were sunk during the five years and many others were severely damaged.

M.T.B.'s formed the protection for the large convoys converging on the Normandy beaches on D-Day. Many times E boats endeavored to break through this cordon to attack Allied shipping but seldom succeeded.

Beginning with only two flotillas they increased a hundredfold and finally employed 25,000 officers and men. They bottled up the E boats in their own harbors and in co-operation with the R.A.F. Coastal Command virtually brought German coastal shipping to a standstill.

Up With Which I Will Not Put

(Montreal Gazette)

Among the many worthy examples which Mr. Churchill set in matters of government was his insistance that vivid and colorful words should brighten and humanize government's drab impersonality.

In all such matters Mr. Churchill was not merely exerting an unconscious influence, for he sought, by precept no less than by example, to induce others to do likewise. During the brief period in 1926, when he occupied the chief editorial chair of the Morning Post, he sent out to his staff an editorial motto. He wanted "no fusty blue-book stuff, but bright journalism." He wanted to have people read, and they did.

A similar injunction to brightness was one of his last acts before relinquishing the office of Prime Minister. He had been presented with a ponderous legal report, in which the plain meaning shone obscurely through many whereas, whereof and wherefore. Mr. Churchill did his duty and read the report. But he returned it to those who had prepared it with this notation: "Whereas this report must be written. Wherefore such stuff up with with which I will not put."

It is to be hoped that this human directness in public statements will be among the many ways in which Mr. Churchill's influence in public affairs may survive his passing from the highest of Britain's public offices.

Invent Thunderstorm Locator

(Collier's Magazine)

No longer a war secret is a British invention, the thunderstorm locator, which proved indispensable to victory in Europe. Three of these instruments, installed at strategic points in England, registered simultaneously every near and far flash of lightning; and by plotting their records, it was possible to determine the location, direction and rate of travel of all thunderstorms within 1,500 miles of the British Isles and to predict when and where they would affect the Allied forces.

How Old is Insurance?

(Monetary Times, Toronto)

One of the earliest records of the use of insurance is that of the Sea Law, developed on the Island of Rhodes about 900 B.C. This law set up a co-operative plan whereby the loss of a valuable shop would not be borne by one man, but distributed over a large group of people. However, it was not until the 18th century—almost three thousand years later, that a similar plan was devised for insuring human life.

Today, though life insurance is less than 200 years old, there are 70 million policy-owners in Canada and U. S.

It is certain my belief gains quite infinitely the very moment I can convince another mind thereof.—Novalis.

Prudence is the necessary ingredient of all the virtues without which they degenerate into folly and excess.—Jeremy Collier.

DONE WITH WAR

Done with daily standing guard.
Back to roses in the yard.

Done with bombs and bullets grim.
Back a patch of lawn to trim.

Done with fearing cruel foes.
Back once more to move the hose.

Done with war and all its gear.
Back to: "Let's have tulips here!"

Done with shameful things of strife.
Back to clean and decent life.

Back to children that are ours,
Singing birds and garden flowers.

Miss Leslie, nurse, New York City, is visiting her sister, Miss Dunning, Cannifton.

Mrs. R. Orne and daughter, Miss Isabel, are spending a few weeks at Portland, Maine.

Mrs. Harry Gorham is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas and children, College Street, have returned home after spending the summer at Crystal Beach.

Miss Anna M. Hurley, Queen Street, is spending a few days in Kingston.

Mr. Leo Quinn of Tweed was in town today.

Miss M. E. Griffin has returned home from New York City.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 18th., 1915.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening and the following members were present: Col. W. N. Ponton, Chairman; Fred S. Deacon, A. E. Bailey, S. T. Harris, T. E. Ketcheson, B. Mallory, Arthur McGie, S. S. Moore, L. C. Pascoe, W. C. Reid, F. C. Sharpe, L. R. Terwilligar, P. J. Wims, Geo. T. Woodley and John Elliott. Principal MacLaurin reported that the attendance at the high school is now 303. Inspector H. J. Clarke reported that there are 1395 pupils enrolled in the city public schools as follows: Queen Victoria 466; Queen Alexandra 336; Queen Mary 397; Grier Street 196. The Board made a grant of $25.00 to the High School Athletic Association.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 18th., 1905.

About thirty young men interested in hockey met at Hotel Quinte last evening. Sanford Burrows presided and he strongly advised the forming of a hockey club. After some discussion it was decided to organize a club and the following officers were elected. Hon. President, H. Corby, ex. M. P.; Hon. Vice Presidents, Thomas Ritchie and J. V. Jenkins; President, Harvie Beattie; First Vice Pres., Mayor Chas. N. Sulman; Second Vice President, Albert Vandervoort; Third Vice President, B. Carre; Secretary, A. P. Allen; Treasurer, F. G. Williamson. The matter of securing a suitable manager, as A. P. Allen stated he was unable to take on the job, was left in the hands of the president, secretary and treasurer. The treasurer, F. G. Williamson, and Capt. Conger were appointed to solicit subscriptions and there are indications that the necessary funds will be obtained to start the club off in a good financial position.

50 YEARS AGO

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty?"

This is one of the most widely quoted of all sayings on the subject of liberty.

It is variously attributed to Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Thomas Paine, Voltaire, Wendell Phillips, and John Philpot Curran.

It is most generally attributed to Jefferson or Henry, but it does not occur in any of the known speeches, letters or other writings of either of these two great lovers of liberty, and there is no evidence that either of them was the author of it.

The available evidence points to the conclusion that Curran, the Irish statesman and orator, was author of the general idea, and that Phillips, the American orator and reformer, was author of the exact phraseology.

On July 10, 1790, Curran delivered a "Speech upon the Right of Elections" in which he said among other things:

"It is the common fate of the indolent to see their rights become a prey to the active. The condition upon which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance; which condition if he break, servitude is at once the consequence of the crime and the punishment of his guilt."

This speech, along with others by Curran, was published at Dublin in 1808, a fact that probably accounts for an oft-repeated statement that Curran said "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" in a speech at Dublin in 1808.

The earliest known occurrence of "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" in that exact form is in an address delivered by Phillips before the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society January 28, 1852.

Phillips did not enclose the now famous sentiment in quotation marks, and in 1878, when the authorship was disputed, he wrote a letter in which he expressed the opinion that it was original with him.

IRISH TENOR DEAD

Famous Irish tenor, John McCormack, died at his County Dublin home, at the age of 61 of bronchial pneumonia. He made several concert tours in Canada a quarter century ago.

AUSSIE SHEEP SLAUGHTER

About 19,000,000 sheep and lambs are slaughtered for meat each year in Australia.

NO SURPLUS WAR

"As far as the equipment referred to tonight is concerned this is classed by the air force as class E, that is, as material damaged to the point where it is not worth repairing," said Mr. Howe. "This happened to be radio equipment, but it is not radio equipment that any citizen could find any use for because it is only good at altitudes. We have many times the amount of useable and valuable radio equipment of exactly the same type that could possibly be disposed of in this country.

"It is of no value as radio equipment but it has some value as scrap material and is saleable as such. It is not saleable in any other form. Therefore, by agreement between the air force and the War Assets Corporation, after the material had been examined, approval was given to remove every valuable part from the radio equipment, such as tubes and other parts worth saving, and render the balance into scrap to make it saleable."

There was no agreement with manufacturers of radio equipment to destroy such equipment once the RCAF had finished using it.

There was an arrangement whereby any school in the Dominion could obtain for educational purposes any unsaleable surplus of obsolete equipment.

Art Smith (PC — Calgary East) interrupted the minister to ask "What about the report that wrist watches were destroyed by a torch?"

Did Not See Report

"Did you see any watches destroyed by a torch?" asked Mr. Howe.

Mr. Smith said he had not, but he had seen the report and the minister also had seen it.

"I did not see the report and unless you have actual knowledge you shouldn't get up and spread that kind of a report," said Mr. Howe.

Mr. Howe said that controls were being lifted as quickly as possible, and there was a reason for every control that now was in force.

Some people believed the controls should come off lumber, but if this was done there would not be any lumber left in Canada or else buyers would have to pay an increase of more than $20 per 1,000 feet. The demand and the price in the United States would bring about such conditions.

Mr. Howe and Mr. Shaw were two of 10 speakers heard during the day when the theme of the speeches varied from what Canada should do about immigration to the difference in the sizes of the peaches grown in Ontario and British Columbia.

Many Speakers Heard

Among the speakers were R. R. Knight (CCF — Saskatoon), Russell Boucher (PC — Carleton), Maj. Leslie Mutch (L — Winnipeg South), George Cruickshank (L — Fraser Valley), G. S. White (PC— Hastings-Peterboro), Clare Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South), L. O. Breithaupt (L — Waterloo North) and J. W. Murphy (PC — Lampton West).

Mr. White said the rights and privileges should be restored to parliament. Government by order-in-council should cease.

"No longer should the people of Canada be controlled by boards and commissions not responsible to parliament," said Mr. White.

"The Prime Minister, who has always paid such lip service to the supremacy of parliament and really believes in that supremacy, should return that supremacy to parliament."

Mr. White said the government's rental regulations were an example of bureaucratic administration.

He put in a word for that "forgotten man — the Canadian landlord."

Speaks for Landlord

In the rental regulations the traditional rights of landlords were ignored. The landlords had lost control over their properties.

The landlords could not raise their rents because they were frozen. They had to keep their houses in a high state of repair and material costs were high.

A man buying a house now could not obtain it for his own use if it was occupied. This regulation might be necessary in some large cities but not in many small towns.

He urged that the regulations be amended so that in places of 10,000 population and less a man might be able to obtain any house he buys within a reasonable length of time.

He expressed belief that instead of making a war memorial out of Ottawa, the government should establish a fund for scholarships, available to any boy or girl in Canada.

Favors Veterans' Charter.

Out of the education provided by such scholarships might arise a discoverer of a cure for cancer, a great artist, a great musician, or a great writer.

He said he favored the establishment of a veterans' charter, but he wanted a charter that meant something. The first clause of the charter should guarantee veterans a decent job at a decent salary. The second clause should provide for housing within the means of veterans. Pensions should be increased and other improvements made in the Pensions Act.

A clothing allowance of $100 should be paid to all veterans no matter the date of their discharge.

He called for an increase to $1,200 in the Income Tax exemptions to single men and $2,000 to married men, with increased exemptions for dependents.

Mr. Boucher, representing the rural area adjoining Ottawa, said he supported the idea of development the national capital and surrounding district as a war memorial but suggested the people of the area should not be deprived of the franchise and the differing laws and property rights.

Wants Parliamentary Committee.

Mr. Gillis urged immediate establishment of parliamentary committees to study veterans affairs, merchant shipping and reconversion. He expressed the belief Canada should have a post-war navy of at least 300 ships.

Mr. Breithaupt criticized the reintroduction of meat rationing and urged the government to repeal the order. The cattle population was greater than domestic or export requirements and if processing plants now could not meet requirements some vacant war factories should be used for processing purposes temporarily.

Mr. Murphy said he resented charges that the Progressive Conservative party had attempted to stir up disunity. He was replying to Bona Arsenault (Ind.-Bonaventure) who said last Wednesday that he had left the party because a certain element had resumed the policy of playing one part of the country against the other.

There was no foundation for such charges although there were other parties attempting to stir up class hatred, said Mr. Murphy.

Major Mutch expressed belief that Canada would not reach her goal of full employment and high income unless she embarked now on a scale of selective immigration. Canada now had the opportunity to double her population within the next 25 years.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

MANIFESTATIONS OF IODINE DEFICIENCY

Simple goitre in school children, myxedema (dryness and firm inelastic swelling of the skin), hypothyroidism and, in some parts of the world, cretinism are the most outspoken manifestations of iodine deficiency, or, as some physicians prefer to think, functional inactivity of the thyroid gland. I (Brady) believe iodine deficiency and thyroid inadequacy are one and the same thing—but, remember, I'm just a one-horse-and-buggy doctor.

If you have or imagine you have any of these conditions it is idle to ask me what to do about it. Only your physician can tell you what to do about it. Nor can I interpret what your symptoms or complaints signify, not with any regard for your own safety and well being. That, too, is strictly your own doctor's province. All I can or shall try to do is to give my belief or opinion as to the cause or nature of some mild or even unrecognized manifestations of iodine deficiency and the way to prevent the deficiency.

Typical of iodine deficiency in children in their early 'teens is a mother's letter about her daughter:

"My 16-year-old daughter had been under the doctor's care for more than a year for anemia. That was overcome by the doctor's treatment but she still suffered from a kind of chronic fatigue which seemed impossible to overcome. She had been ready for junior college since February but unable to go because of this great lassitude. I gave her the Iodin Ration according to your instructions. The result has been simply unbelievable. The doctor told me to keep right on with it. She is very happy and I am so grateful . . . She was so tired she couldn't enjoy life as other young people do. Now she is bubbling over most of the time".

Now, parents, don't draw a wrong inference wrom this — notice particularly that this mother gave her daughter the benefit of medical care—she says the doctor approved of giving the girl the Iodin Ration. I certainly do not mean to suggest that "chronic fatigue" or even moping and disinclination to join in the doings of normal youngsters necessarily signifies iodine deficiency. In any such case it is only fair that the child or adolescent be carefully and perhaps repeatedly examined and observed by the family physician to rule out incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, whether the youngster gets the Iodin Ration or not.

Just as a good many youngsters (though perhaps more girls than boys) begin to mope in their 'teens for want of this food element, so do mature adults have a chronic tired feeling, lack of former "pep" or ambition, tendency to drop off in a doze at any time although they sleep long hours every night, and to acquire flabby slacker flesh, dryness and sallowness of the skin, lusterless, dry, falling, prematurely graying hair, and in many instances a melancholic or pensive mood which, to their friends, is so different from their former cheerful disposition.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Boy in Danger

I am 13 years old and terribly short winded. I want to play football on the highschool team but my shortness of wind . . .
(Jack)

Answer — In my judgment, Jack, it is dangerous for any boy of highschool age to play football. I hope your parents will consider your own well being more important than any silly loyalty to the school. You should e carefbully examined by your family physician and follow his advice as to your physical training or athletic activity.

Blackheads and Pimples

Every night I scrub my face with warm soapy water and apply cleansing cream, but I still have blackheads and pimples.
(E. D.)

Answer—I assume you are a young woman, and if so you should avoid the "cleansing" cream and all other greasy or oil or cream. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet "Blackheads and Pimples". For general information on care of the skin and complexion send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope, for booklet "Save Your Skin".

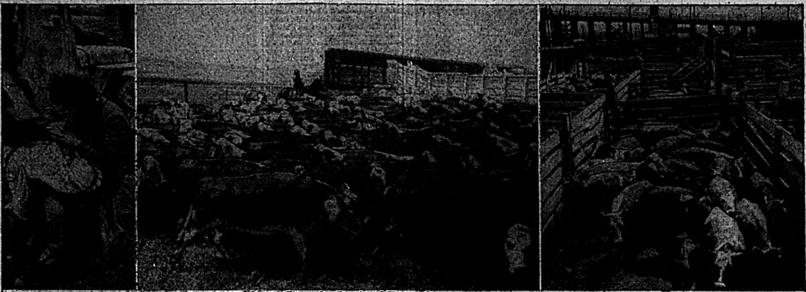
Hunger Ridden Europe Needs Canadian Beef; Ranchers Packers Face Heavy Task



Starvation-threatened Europe desperately needs vast amounts of Canada's beef. Cattle (above) are being loaded for shipment by rail to stockyards (right).

Livestock slaughter control is as important as rationing to equitable distribution of domestic beef supplies. This packing plant worker uses a power saw to halve a carcass.

Canada plans to export 114 million pounds of canned meat to Europe this year.

Canadian Meat Board shipped 80 million pounds beef in first six months of 1945.

Repair Work On County Roads Now Underway

With needed labor available through completion of late harvesting operations, a considerable amount of maintenance and repair work on the county road system which could not be carried out earlier in the year, is now underway, according to County Engineer Larry Langlois.

Recent work has comprised repairs to bridge flooring at Wilson's Island bridge, six miles west of Stirling; Sucker Creek bridge, north of Deseronto and at the Glenn Miller bridge. Brushing is being carried out on the north 4 miles of the Lonsdale sideroad, while a small grading job to improve conditions at a bad turn at the cheese factory near Anson on the Stirling-Campbellford road has been completed. New metal pipe culverts have been installed to replace numerous broken stone and wooden culverts.

Current construction work being carried out includes resurfacing of the eight miles on the Flinton-Actinolite road with a coat of pit run gravel. On the Madoc road fences are being set back, culverts extended, and shoulders cut off on one mile between Ivanhoe and the Crookston turn in preparation for the construction of one mile of pavement.

County road improvements in the Marlbank district include the grading, widening and gravelling of two-and-one-third miles of the abandoned C.N.R. right of way west from Marlbank village. When completed this will be opened as new county road to replace the present road which has many turns as well as uneven in grade. The abandoned railway being graded is the one running between Marlbank and Stoco.

Union Lays Plans For Strike Vote

Detroit, Sept. 18 (AP)—More than 80,000 workers were idle in the Detroit area Monday as the huge automotive industry and the powerful United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) Union headed for a showdown on the union's demands for a general 30 per cent increase for the industry.

Strikes and layoffs made idle 70,000 in Detroit and 10,000 in the Ford Motor Company plant in nearby Windsor, Ont., while U.A.W.-C.I.O. leaders went ahead with plans for possible strike votes affecting 500,000 throughout auto plants in the United States.

This was the situation as far as the "big three" of the auto world was concerned:

Ford—representatives of Ford workers throughout the United States were summoned to a Sept. 29-30 meeting here to decide whether to seek a strike vote.

General Motors—U.A.W. officials awaited company reaction to official notification that the union would ask National Labor Relations Board to conduct a strike vote at the firm's 135 plants if the corporation does not accept the wage-increase demand for its 300,000 employees.

General Motors also was faced with a possibility that its production might be interrupted because of a strike at Warren, O., plant which produces wiring system for its cars.

Chrysler—Union officials set Sept. 23 for balloting by the 80,000 to 100,000 employees as to whether they will petition the International U.A.W.-C.I.O. for a strike vote.

Ford was the hardest hit by the work stoppage, as its automobile and truck production lines were halted because of a shortage of parts supplied by the striking Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company of Detroit.

ONE OF THOUSANDS

eager to telephone home

Every returning troopship is packed with sons and husbands yearning for the first opportunity to telephone the glad news "I'm nearly home"—and to hear again familiar voices: Meanwhile, all across Canada, thousands are waiting for these calls as they never waited before. The veteran may have only a few minutes to call between trains. Help us to avoid disappointing him.

So, Mr. Civilian—

PLEASE use Long Distance for essential calls only.... and keep even those as brief as you possibly can...

Calls from returning veterans deserve speedy completion. They are just an additional reason why Long Distance telephoning to-day is heavier than ever before . . . and why calls are being delayed in spite of all that we can do.

WEDDINGS

McBRIDE—ARBUCKLE

An interesting event of Sept. 1, at St. John's Anglican Church, Bridgeport, Ont., at four o'clock in the afternoon was the wedding of Miss Beverley June Arbuckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arbuckle, Bridgeport, and Mr. Stewart Morrison McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McBride, Sr., of Belleville. Rev. J. N. H. Mills officiated. White gladioli were placed about the altar.

Mr. Albert Hainsworth was organist and Miss Audrey Megliarini, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a satin gown styled with a fitted bodice, a round neckline having yoke and cape sleeves of lace. The skirt terminated in a slight train. Her long satin mitts were trimmed with pleated ruffles around the hand and at the top. She wore a full-length veil caught to her head with a satin half hat trimmed with shirring. Her cascade bouquet was of American Beauty roses and bouvardia.

Matron of honor was Mrs. W. C. Goman, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Mrs. C. Bush, of Belleville, and Miss Muriel Holle, of Waterloo.

Mrs. Goman wore a silk jersey dress in French grey, designed with a fitted bodice, round yoke, edged with pleating, and a full skirt. With it she wore matching shoes, mitts and a shirred half hat finished with a bow. Her flowers were a nosegay of Briarcliffe roses and orchid asters.

Mrs. Bush wore chartreuse and Miss Holle pink. The former carried a nosegay of Johanna roses and blue cornflowers and the latter, a nosegay of Briarcliffe roses and blue cornflowers.

Mr. Robert Boyce, of Belleville, was best man. Ushers were Ian McKay, of Toronto and Jack Howe, of Belleville.

A reception was held at Rockway Golf and Country Club with dinner at 5.30 p.m. Guests numbered 65. The bride's mother received in a French grey crepe frock with black accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother chose blue crepe accentuated with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride left on a wedding trip to Toronto and the Muskoka district, the bride travelled in a dusty pink crepe dress with black accessories and a black coat. Her corsage was of white gardenias. They will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Howe, Miss Betty and Mr. Jack McBride, Mr. and Mrs. R. Boyce, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Boyce, all of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Mc Kay and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Goman, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Grandy and Miss Ruth Grandy, of Galt; Mr. and Mrs. Al Lotz and Misses Pat and Marion Lotz, of Toronto; Mrs. G. Morton and Mrs. G. Milliken and Gail, of St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. Mel Soper, of St. Catharines and Mr. and Mrs. R. Williams and family of Woodbridge, Ontario.

Honoring Mrs. Stewart Morrison McBride, (nee Beverley June Arbuckle), whose wedding was an event of Saturday, a number of parties have been arranged in recent weeks.

The first of these was held on Monday, August 20, at the home of Miss Joyce Hill in the form of a surprise for Mrs. McBride. A blue and white mirrored whatnot was presented to the guest of honor.

The Misses Doris Wolfenberg and Lorraine Dutka were joint hostesses at a surprise miscellaneous shower arranged at the latter's home on Kent Avenue on August 24.

Miss Muriel Holle and a number of friends of Mrs. McBride, surprised her at her home in Bridgeport, with a miscellaneous shower on Wednesday, August 29. A bride's book was compiled during the evening.

The Wawokeye Club, of which Mrs. McBride is a member, presented her with a blue Kenwood blanket.

HORN—PRINGLE

Decorated with Summer flowers Cooper United Church was the setting of a pretty wedding on August the twenty-ninth at eleven o'clock, when Rev. Mr. Patton, of Queensboro, united in marriage Hazel Mae Pringle, to George Clare Horn, son of Mrs. Horn and the late Mr. Alfred Horn, of Cannifton.

Given in marriage by Mr. Albert Bird of Cooper, the bride entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. Stanley Rollins.

The bride was radiant in a gown of white satin with lace insertions and full length veil of silk net with coronet headdress. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Geneva Holmes, of Belleville, was bridesmaid in a gown of heavenly blue with a bandeau of white carnations in her hair. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mr. Elmer Shorey, of Cannifton, was best man.

Usherettes for the occasion were Misses Barbara Fox, Fay Rollins and Edeline McCoy, of Cooper.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Fred Holmes sang "O Perfect Love".

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bird. Mrs. Bird received in a dress of hunter's green with black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing grey with black and white accessories. Both wore corsages of cream roses.

For travelling the bride donned a dressmaker suit of mauve wool with small feather hat to match and black accessories, and corsage of cream roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Cannifton, Stirling and Madoc.

VANDERVOORT — KETCHESON

White's United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding which took place on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 15, when Helen Isabelle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson, of Sidney Township, became the bride of Alex Siddon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandervoort, also of Sidney Township. The Rev. A. C. McCallum, of Bayside pastoral charge, officiated.

The bride looked charming as she entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Loreen May, of Belleville. The bride was gowned in white sheer with lace inserts and fitted bodice with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves pointed over the wrists and a floor-length veil. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Bailey, of Stirling, and cousin of the bride, was attired in a floor-length gown of canary yellow taffeta, with sweetheart neckline, and matching hat trimmed with mauve flowers and shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and ferns.

Flying Officer "Bill" Ketcheson, of Camp Borden, cousin of the bride, was groomsman. The ushers were Karl Reid and Arnold Ketcheson, both of Trenton.

The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and gladioli, snapdragons and asters. Ronald Elmy, soprano soloist, of Belleville, rendered two solos, "Through the Years" and "Because", during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Walter Vandervoort received the guests. The bride's mother wore a gold crepe dress with black accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a beautiful flowered silk jersey dress and matching accessories. A dainty buffet lunch was served from a nicely decorated table of streamers and wedding bells, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake. The serviteurs were the Misses Laura and N. Harry, D. Meyers and Shirley Jones.

Rev. A. C. McCallum proposed the toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom. The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes, for a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in a teal blue suit with matching accessories.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Miller, of Montclair, New Jersey, U.S.A., Mr. Cecil Laslett, Windsor, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Karl Denyes, of Kingston, Mrs. Alex Siddons, Toronto, the Misses Eliza and Tillie Donnan, Stirling, Ont.

There Always Will be God

(Written by Evangelist H. C. Ede, 13 Munster Residences, Filmer Road, Fulham, London.)

They cannot shell His temple
  Nor dynamite His throne;
They cannot bomb His city,
  Nor rob Him of His own.

They cannot take Him captive,
  Nor strike Him dead or blind,
Nor starve Him to surrender,
  Nor make Him change His mind.

They cannot cause Him panic,
  Nor cut off His supplies;
They cannot take His kingdom,
  Nor hurt Him with their lies.

Though all the world be shattered,
  His truth remains the same;
His righteous laws still potent,
  And Father still His name.

Though we face war and struggle,
  And feel their goad and rod,
We know above confusion,
  There always will be God.

Onward and Upward

BACK to school in pursuit of higher education. . .with a bright eye on vacations in between. . .there go the little girls and boys once more. The school-day frock shown above is made of raylaine flannel (rayon and wool) and comes in such becoming but sturdy colors as dark green, chocolate and red.

The white collar is detachable for quick laundering. Pleats and a snug, narrow belt do their best for chubby figures.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Charm Can Be Cultivated

Time was when girls were either pretty or plain. Plain ones did not have the opportunities they now have to make themselves pleasing to the eye. The pretties were surrounded by suitors, got married early, were envied by those not blessed with pulchritude. The plain ones thought themselves lucky to catch a husband; if they were wholly without charm, they settled down to the job of being maiden aunts.

Nowadays we realize that being born with beauty is a grand advantage, but, if the fairy godmother happened to walk right by your crib without bestowing a kiss or even winking an eyelash, it doesn't really make much difference in your life. Plain features don't mean anything today. One can create an illusion of beauty by developing charm. If a woman is amiable, if she strives to make herself interesting, if she is sympathetic and kindly, she makes the grade.

A plain woman who has poise, who carries herself beautifully, wears her clothes with splendor, is more attractive to the eye than the fluffy little dolly who wears the wrong kind of clothes and doesn't know what to do with her hands. So we must come to the conclusion that beauty isn't just an inheritance; you build it within yourself.

Any really intelligent woman can cultivate charm. All she has to do is to use the old head.

Today it is taken for granted that a woman shall be pleasing to the eye. There are standards of neatness, grooming, smart appearance.

The modern woman has all manner of advantages over her grandmother, who, in her youthful days, was up against a puritanical prejudice against cosmetics and other beauty aids. Cosmetics have contributed to the improvement of the sisterhood. We take rouge and lipstick for granted, refuse to believe that what was once called "face paint" makes a woman look like sin.

The "sheltered" type disappeared.

Athletics have played a part, an important one. Also, we have reason to give thanks to the medical profession that has preached to us about the need of fresh air, restful sleep, the balanced diet, the daily bath.

Getting out and hustling for a living has given women confidence, which is a prime factor in poise and charm. When women took jobs, all the crying and fainting and silly nonsense practiced by the clinging vine vanished into thin air. The "sheltered" type disappeared. We don't want to be sheltered. We want to fight our own fights. We do, and we are all the better for it.

The Experts Say

(By HELEN BANNERMAN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—(CP)—With every woman giving thought to meat extenders, bread crumbs gain a new importance. As dressings for roasts, chops and steaks they add flavor and increase the number of servings. In meat loaves and meat patties they double the size and improve the texture. . . in fact, they're pretty nearly indispensable.

Soft, stale bread crumbs should be used for these purposes, but making them is a chore many women dislike. Here is a method suggested by the Agriculture Department Consumer Section that takes the work out of preparing the crumbs.

Cut the crusts from one thick or several thin slices of soft, stale bread. Place the crust-free bread in a clean tea towel. Gather edges of towel tightly together enclosing the bread, as in a bag. Holding this "bag" firmly in the right hand, rotate it against the left hand, working the bread into coarse or fine bread crumbs as desired. . . no muss, no fuss and perfect crumbs in a jiffy.

Cereals and vegetables are usually recommended for magnifying a little meat into a big meal. Most popular cereal in this respect is bread in the form of crumbs, but here is an entirely new recipe using uncooked barley as well as vegetables to make a substantial main dish, which takes only three tokens worth of meat.

Stuffed Pepper Squash: Wash three large pepper squash and cut in halves. (Allow half a squash to a serving.) Remove seeds and pithy portion, and sprinkle with salt. Mix thoroughly 1 1-2 cups or 3-4 pound ground raw lamb or beef, 1-2 cup uncooked barley, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, and one cup sieved raw tomatoes. Fill pepper halves with this mixture. Blend two tablespoons fat, two tablespoons flour and a dash of salt and spread over the exposed cut surface of the squash. Place in a greased baking dish, cover and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, for 45 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking 15 or 20 minutes longer until surface is browned and squash is tender.

The sweet flavor and bright yellow color of sweet potato can lend variety to meals. This vegetable, a treat to most people, has a high nutritional rating, says the Nutrition Division. One serving alone will supply a full day's needs of vitamin A.

Sweet potatoes contribute a third more vitamin C than Irish potatoes thought the white potato is a good source of vitamin C. Both varieties are an excellent source of iron.

To make egg dishes the mainstay of a delicious and easily-prepared meal keep these tips in mind: to avoid cracking, when cooking eggs in their shells, place eggs in cold water and bring to a boil. At this point the eggs will be soft-cooked. Egg whites are quickly beaten if the whites and utensils are cold. To make the finest cakes use recipes which require a generous supply of eggs.

If you've been putting off pickling onions for the winter because of the work involved, here is a simple recipe for them which requires little trouble. Take six quarts of tender small onions, peel and mix with three pounds of coarse salt. Let them stand for two days, then pour off the juice and let stand for two days in fresh water. Drain, rinse and bottle in red wine vinegar.

Endearing Young Charm

By ALICE ALDEN

YOUNG juniors now have some of the season's most enchanting clothes, so that it is a case of mother envying daughter, instead of the other way around! Anyway, this is so when it comes to an Emily Wilkens design as typified by this delightful bolero suit fashioned of electric blue corduroy. The bolero sports such touches as a shirtwaist cuff, while the skirt goes in for a shaped, built-up waistband and is slightly peg-top in cut. With it is worn a light blue raylaine blouse.

Pupils Hear Address On Alaska Highway

On Friday afternoon last, senior pupils of the Prince of Wales School, Thurlow, listened to an address by Rev. Donald C. Amos on the Alaska Highway.

Taking his listeners on an descriptive tour, the speaker showed why the Highway was built and the necessity of its present location.

By means of maps, charts and pictures the pupils were taken down the 1,500-mile stretch from Waterways, Alberta to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The difficulties of construction, the task of bringing in supplies by road and air, and the battle against cold in winter and mud in spring were most forcibly brought out by Rev. Mr. Amos.

The speaker then told of his work among the men in the huge construction camps. Many incidents were related of various characters met during his sojourn there and the contribution which these same men made to the building of this now historic highway.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by the school principal K. M. Bird.

75 GERMAN AIRFIELDS TO BE PLOUGHED FOR GARDENS

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 16—(AP) — The United States Army has ordered 75 German airfields, more than half of all those in the American occupation zone, plowed up for gardens as part of a program designed to demilitarize the country and step up food production. The fields average 250 acres.

Rotarians Hear Travelogue On Porto Rico

Porto Rico, United States island "gem of the ocean" was the subject of a highly interesting verbal travelogue given to the Rotary Club on Monday by Rotarian Felix Garffer of San Juan, capital city of the West Indian island.

Mr. Garffer who has spent 38 years in Porto Rico and who has spent his summers in Belleville for a number of years gave the clubmen an educational insight into the geography, economy and other features of the former Spanish bastion in the Caribbean.

Historical features include a huge fort situated near the harbor of San Juan which has walls sixty feet thick and is honeycombed with secret passages and dungeons. It was built by the Spanish conquerors 400 years ago who employed Chinese labor. A Spanish road of the same age was built by political prisoners of rock that was crushed by hand, a "marvellous engineering feat."

3,000 Square Miles.

Porto Rico which is comprised of approximately 3,000 square miles has a population of 125,000 and has a year round temperature of from 78-82 degrees. Its principal industry is agriculture which raises sugar cane, citrus fruits, pineapples, tobacco, coffee, coconuts and fibre plants. Most of the green vegetables which feed the people are imported from the United States.

There are 45 sugar factories on the island the largest of which has a cane-grinding capacity of 6,000 tons daily. Others average from one to three thousand tons every 24 hours. Industries manufacture cigars, cigarettes, needlework, straw hats., etc. A large number of distilleries produce molasses, a by-product of sugar cane.

Miles of Good Roads.

The island has 1,565 miles of asphalted roads. Its scenery is magnificent with waving palms, lilies and other floral effects giving it a Paradise-like effect.

It has 5,000 elementary schools; 22 high schools, the University of Porto Rico and a School of Tropical Medicine to which doctors come from all parts of the world. This school is one of three now in operation in the world. Tropical diseases in northern countries are increasing due to rapid modern transportation from southern climates.

Porto Rico became a huge armed camp in 1941, Mr. Garffer said, due to its strategical location. The U.S.A. built air ports, naval bases and posted large numbers of troops on the island. This was due to the fact that a large number of Germans were operating in South American countries and Porto Rico would be an ideal spot for them to seize if and when the time came. The United States drafted 60,000 Porto Ricans to the army, but nine were sent overseas.

The Governor of the island and other high officials are appointed by the President of the United States. The speaker—felt that the insular government in taking control of main industries, utilities, transportation, is working against capital and preventing the building up of business on the island.

Mixed Races.

The native population is the product of mixed races. The Spanish invaded the island in 1509 and later the French attempted to take it. There were some 150,000 natives there and the three races have intermingled. There are few professional people on the island who are natives. Others were more of the simple type until United States labor officials invaded the island. "That is a great pity," Mr. Garffer said.

The speaker's business there is sugar machinery. He is a father-in-law of Dr. Jack Marshall of this city. Introduced by Harry Ackerman the speaker was thanked by Harry Croll.

At the conclusion of the meeting Past President Pinkston, who presided in the absence of President Mac McLean, requested 20 volunteers to work in the Community Services Campaign which starts a drive for funds in the near future. The fund will assist the V.O.N., the Children's Aid Society, the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army.

Sciatic Pain Hasn't Bothered Me For Four Years"

As he is getting on toward middle age, this man is especially grateful for the way in which Kruschen helped him with his sciatic pain. Here's what he says:

"At one time I suffered for months with sciatic and rheumatic pains and had to use a cane when I walked. But after taking Kruschen for awhile, I could manage without the cane. That was four years ago and since then I have had no return of the complaint nor have I lost a day's work. I shall never be without Kruschen and can honestly recommend it to anyone who suffers as I did."—Mr. C. F.

Kruschen . . . the saline treatment . . . offers relief in many cases of sciatic pain, because its action is to help remove underlying causes. And one of the underlying causes of pain and ill-health is the accumulation of harmful waste matter in your system. Kruschen aids your organs of elimination and thereby brings about improvement. Thousands of persons bothered with sciatic and rheumatic pains have benefited by taking Kruschen: and that is a very good reason why you should try Kruschen yourself. Your nearest drug store has Kruschen Salts in two sizes: 25c. and 75c.

YOUR NURSING SOW IS LIKE A COW!

Yes sir—a nursing sow is a lot like a cow. To make either of them milk heavily you have to feed her a milk-making ration. And it's really important to your pocketbook to make your sow milk well.

When a sow has plenty of good rich milk for her sucking pigs, they come right along. When she hasn't, they don't. Government survey figures show over 20% of all pigs dying before weaning . . . 1 in every 5, a total loss . . . mostly caused by lack of milk.

Feed your sow for milk. Feed her MacKenzie's Chow-Mix Sow Ration. Let the little fellows help themselves to it, too. That will get them used to solid feed, and lift them over weaning without a setback.

Horticulture Bldg. At Fair Grounds A Riot of Color

The Belleville Fair horticultural exhibit this year is one of the most beautiful yet to be presented. The flowers, fruits, vegetables, and handicrafts filled the hall with brilliant colors.

In the flower exhibit, gladioli predominated, the lovely blooms effective against a background of cedar and ferns. Particularly beautiful were the exhibits of single blooms, one of salmon pink being voted the most outstanding bloom in the show. Magnificent bouquets of dahlias held their place beside the other flowers. A lovely entry in the dinner table entries was a dainty bouquet of sweetpeas, pinks, fern, michaelmas daisies, and baby breath.

The fruits and vegetables furnished an added blaze of color as they stood in attractive displays about the hall. The most remarkable exhibit in this section was that grown and supplied by Mr. R. E. Wallbridge, R.R. 7, and arranged by Mr. Farrell. This exhibit won first prize last year and was repeated again this year by special request. Great banks of fruits and vegetables were arranged in colorful display against a background of cedar boughs.

Fruits of all kinds were shown and in the cookery section they appeared behind glass, preserved for winter use. Also in this section were cakes and pastries of every description.

An interesting display was witnessed in the Holland honey exhibit, complete with bees. Mr. Holland was present describing the exhibit.

Beautiful Ladies' Work.

Much beautiful and intricate work was displayed in the Fine Arts section where beading, weaving, matwork, china and oil painting, and leatherwork were shown. A particularly lovely piece of hand looming bore the name of Mrs. Consul, Wooler. A great deal of local talent was shown in the many beautiful paintings. The pupils of the public schools provided interesting displays of printing, drawing, and mapwork, as well as collections of weeds and insects.

In the Ladies' Department many artistic as well as useful garments were displayed. Exquisite sewing and knitting were shown as well as beautiful quilts and rugs.

In all, the horticultural building was a beautiful sight, and showed the very successful results of many hours of hard and exacting work.

MUCH LESS JAM FOR BRITAIN

Toronto, Sept. 18 — (CP) — The Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross in a statement last night said that due to shortages in fruit crops and honey this year shipments of jam and honey to Britain will be greatly reduced in comparison with last year, when 287,000 pounds of these items were shipped.

Reaction Varied To Estimate On Occupation

Washington, Sept. 18 — (AP)—Gen. MacArthur's estimate that as few as 200,000 men would be sufficient to occupy Japan provoked both cheers and consternation in Washington today.

It also raised the possibility that President Truman might have to step into an apparent controversy to decide exactly what the occupation policy of the United States is to be.

The cheers for Gen. MacArthur's optimistic projection of troop needs six months hence came from demobilization-conscious Capitol Hill. There the House of Representatives — apparently determined to do nothing immediately about ending the draft or speeding discharges by law — drove toward passage of a bill intended to spur army and navy enlistments.

The consternation was evident at the State Department, where the Supreme Allied Commander's observation caught officials completely by surprise.

So surprised were State Department officials in fact that Acting Secretary Dean Acheson let it be known yesterday that he was attempting to find out more about the general's statement.

The Department's chagrin stemmed from official concern lest Gen. MacArthur's assertion might lead to an impression abroad that the United States was planning an early withdrawal from the Pacific, thus leaving Japanese affairs largely in their own hands.

This would be counter to the generally-held belief here that the United States intended a long-range occupation of Japan with little if any assistance from the major Allies.

'Squint', Pet Monkey Of Sullivan Shows In Dire Straits

"Squint" is a three-year-old monkey, possessing almost human intelligence — and is the darling of the Sullivan Shows now playing at the Belleville Fair.

Yesterday "Squint" was taken ill. The little monk has never been tied up during his three years of life.

Two veterinaries from the city and a medical doctor went to "Squint's" assistance and opined that the hundreds of kids with whom the monkey played with during the afternoon may have given him something to eat that does not agree with monkey digestion.

In any event the little fellow was in dire straits. Two "shots" of whisky gave him a bit of a "hoist" but did not remove the pathetic look on his intelligent face. He was a very sick monkey, and later the vets opined that he had a touch of "flu" with his indigestion, aided and abetted by cool weather.

He weakly raised his head when his mistress spoke to him and smiled a wan monkey smile. Another internal injection of 'Scotch' helped the little fellow, but he subsided into his former picture of sick dejection.

The monkey is a prime favorite with the show people. He wanders at will and everybody loves him. At mealtime without fail he sprints for a hamburg stand and gets his "chow". By way of diversion, he nips the heels of the show ponies then lightly leaps to their backs and looks the crowd over.

The entire cast of the "Monkey Show" at the Fair Grounds, forgot their activities last night and crowded around the box bedside of their favorite pet. Vets stated that unless there was a marked change today in "Squint's" condition, he may not survive.

POLICE COURT

Eleven cases of intoxication and one of having illegal possession of liquor were slated for Tuesday morning's city police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills as breaches of the L.C.A. acts comprised a large percentage of cases heard during the session.

Ten cases, including six of intoxication were settled out of court, with accused persons pleading guilty and paying fines and costs.

Gordon R. Fralick was arraigned on three counts of passing cheques with not sufficient funds in the bank to cover the amount. He pleaded guilty on all three counts and was remanded for one week for sentence. In defence Fralick pleaded he was waiting for his gratuity cheque to come through and passed the cheques as a manner of financing during the waiting interval.

Charges of false pretences against a local upholsterer were dropped when the court was informed the defendant was waiting for ordered materials and would still carry out his contract. A vagrancy count was also dismissed against Nellie Brant.

John Moon, of Trenton, considered he was within his rights when apprehended in an intoxicated condition in a car on Front St. Court informed him, however, that being in an auto parked on Front St. was a public place and he agreed to pay the conventional $13. The same fine was evied against William Cox, Thomas Claus and Robert Wright, also on drunk charges, while Francis Donahue will serve three months in lieu of payment of his fine on a third offence intoxication count.

Joyce Indictment Is Reduced To Single Count

London, Sept. 18. (CP) A British Court today reduced the treason indictment against William Joyce today to a single count, that he broadcast German propaganda as Lord Haw Haw for 9 1-2 months while holding a British passport.

Mr. Justice Tucker, presiding in Old Bailey, threw out two counts based on the prosecution's assertion that Joyce is a British subject. The defence, which rested without calling Joyce to the stand, held that he is a citizen of the United States, born in Brooklyn.

"I think that everybody must agree that the evidence which has been brought by the defence is really overwhelming", Mr. Justice Tucker said. "That leaves us with count three only effective."

The period of broadcasting cited in this count was from Sept. 18, 1939, to July 2, 1940.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, attorney general and chief prosecutor, said yesterday that, even if the jurors were not satisfied that Joyce was of British nationality, the third count would apply if they concluded that he was under the protection of the British Crown until his passport expired July 2, 1940.

Brother On Stand.

Joyce's brother, Edwin Quentin Joyce, testified for the defence that their father had told him several times that he was an American. The brother is a British government worker in London.

H. E. Stebbings, first secretary of the United States Embassy in London, testified that Michael Joyce, the father, had been granted American citizenship and that, according to American law, a son born in the United States would be an American citizen at birth.

The presentation of the defence lasted less than three hours. None of the witnesses was cross-examined.

G. O. Slade, one of three defence lawyers, announced in court that he was not calling Joyce as a witness because "he can't possibly give you any evidence of when or where he was born."

"Still less," Mr. Slade told the court, "can he give you any evidence of when his father was naturalized."

Joyce, whose trial opened yesterday, pleaded innocent to three counts.

Mr. Slade produced certified and sealed copies of what he said was an American naturalization record of Joyce's father, Michael Joyce, recorded in Hudson County, New Jersey, in 1892 and 1894.

"At least one and if necessary a second American lawyer will prove to you that the moment an oath in petition was sworn in open court by Michael Joyce, he thereupon became, according to American law as it then stood, a citizen of the United States," Mr. Slade said.

Mr. Slade then produced what he said was Joyce's birth registration, purporting to show the defendant was born at 1377 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The defence decision indicated Joyce would not attempt to justify any of his activities in Germany during the war, but would try to escape punishment under a 600-year-old British treason law by attempting to show through documents and other witnesses that he was a United States citizen and owed no allegiance to the Crown.

The prosecution contends, however, that Joyce owed allegiance to the Crown in any event, since he had claimed privileges and protection of British citizenship.

New Bridge at Plainfield Will Be Built 300 Feet South of Old Structure

With the contract awarded and work already commenced, the provincial highways department expects before winter sets in to have completed a new highway bridge across the Moira River on Highway No. 37 it was stated today by Mr. Noonan, division Highway Engineer at Kingston.

The new bridge will be constructed to replace the original O'Brien's bridge, part of which tumbled into the Moira River last Spring when the girders were buckled by a large truck. Although the bridge was temporarily repaired necessity of a new bridge was realized and tenders called for the work.

Contractor for the construction of the new bridge and also for the grading and approach which extends for a quarter of a mile each way, is the Therrien Construction Company of Toronto.

Plans call for the construction of the new bridge at a point approximately 300 feet south of the present bridge. It will be of steel and concrete girder construction with only the railing showing above the bridge flooring. Cost of the structure was not stated by the Highways engineer, but it will be approximately 300 feet in length with a driving width of 30 feet.

Work of grading the approaches to the bridge has already commenced with necessary clearing being made and a cut now being taken out eliminating the grade on the north side of the river.

1,537 V.O.N. Visits Made In Three Months

The September meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening with the President Mr. Norman Edwards in the chair. Routine business was discussed.

Miss Vivian Adair who has just been recently appointed a nurse-in-charge to replace Miss Ethel Gordon who has been appointed as Asst. District Supt. in Ottawa, was welcomed by the president and members of the committee.

In the nurses' report Miss Adair stated that the V.O.N. had made 585 visits in June, 536 in July and 416 in August.

The attendance at the Well Baby Conferences has been most gratifying during the summer months with an average attendance each week of 26 babies. Miss Adair also announced that the first toxoid clinic under Dr. Cronk's direction would be held on the first floor of the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday, September 20 at 3.30 and that any parents who wish their children immunized are very welcome to attend.

The local Order has been successful also in obtaining the services of a third full-time nurse with public health training in the person of Miss Marian Wherry. Miss Wherry joined the staff in July.

The community services campaign of which the Victorian Order of Nurses is a part and which is starting Sept. 24th was also discussed.

Kin Appreciation Night is Held

It was Kinsmen appreciation night for three returned members of the Canadian armed forces who sat in at the regular bi-monthly Kinsmen dinner meeting and expressed their appreciation to club members for the cigarettes received during the time they had spent overseas.

Guests of the club included Captain Bert Wells, Captain George Laughlin, and Chief Petty Officer Len Hall, who recently returned home after service on the Canadian cruiser Uganda. All three personally expressed their thanks to the club for their service in providing smokes for the boys overseas.

Quest speaker for the evening was Squadron Leader Dr. Reg. Anderson, of Trenton Air Station, who outlined the program the RCAF had adopted to combat venereal disease in the air force.

Mr. J. Shortt, secretary for the Y.M.C.A., appeared before the club asking for canvassing volunteers for the community service chest campaign, which will get underway in Belleville next week. The Victorian Order of Nurses, the Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army and the Children's Aid Society are then coming to the citizens of Belleville and district in their annual appeal for funds to assist in carrying on their work. Mr. Shortt asked for twenty volunteers from the club to act as canvassers during the campaign.

President Harry Rollins was in the chair for the meeting with Frank Lang acting as song leader and Don Ridley as fine collector The guest speaker was introduced by Gardiner Duff with Kinsmen appreciation expressed by Newton Wilbur.

St. Louis Cards Have Better Chance Than the Washington Senatorsto Upset Pennant Dope

Cubs Have Five Clashes Wit hCards, While Senators All Through With the Tigers

By JACK HAND

(AP Sport Writer)

St. Louis and Washington make a last-ditch stand today against the overwhelming odds dictating a Chicago-Detroit world series.

The Cards are stacked against either the underdog Red Birds or Senators making the pennant grade but, of the two Billy Southworth's opportunists have much the better chance.

While the Nats have to depend on somebody else to knock off the league-leading Tigers after their final clash today, the Cardinals have five personal engagements with the Cubs in their last 11 scheduled tilts.

Three games back of the Bruins after yesterday's 7-3 conquest of the Phillies, the defending champions have a chance to catch the front-runners in the vital 3-game set opening under the Sportsman's Park Arcs tonight.

Southworth got a well-pitched game from Blix Donnelly last night as the star of the 1944 world series won his first game since July 27 with an eight-hit job on the Phils. The Cards backed up the young curver with a 16-hit attack, including four singles by Augie Bergamo.

NEWARK BEARS HOLD GAME EDGE OVER THE LEAFS

Toronto Defeated 8-3 and Series Moves to Newark for the Clean Up

(By The Canadian Press.)

Newark Bears today held a 3-2 edge over Toronto Maple Leafs in their International League semi-final play-off as the two teams travelled to Newark for the cleanup of the series.

The Bears scored their all-important third victory last night by defeating the Leafs 8-3 in Toronto. The Clubs will spend today travelling and the best-of-seven-game series will pick up in the Bears' home field tomorrow when Newark will seek to wind it up and advance to the finals against the winner of the Montreal-Baltimore set.

That series, between the 1945 League Champions and the fourth-place Orioles, was held up by rain which postponed the fifth game in Baltimore yesterday. The teams are tied 2-2 in games and are scheduled to meet at 8.30 p.m. E.D.T. tonight.

The Bears belted three Leaf hurlers for 13 hits last night and never were headed after scoring three runs in the first inning. Lanky Karl Drews and F. Makosky divided the pitching chore for Newark and limited the Toronto hitters to eight hits.

The best Toronto could do were two runs in the Leafs' half of the opening frame, on two walks, two singles and a double, and another run in the fourth. The Bears, meanwhile, found the pitching to their liking and added another run in the fourth inning, three in the seventh and their eighth in the eighth frame.

Little Art Herring of the Brooklyns helped St. Louis clip a full game off the Chicago lead with a three-hit, 4-0, shutout of Charley Grimm's gang. He allowed only one single up to the ninth when he just did escape with his shutout.

Elmer Singleton, a former Yankee farmhand, earned his first big league victory for Boston with a 4-2 job against Cincinnati's Bucky Walters who lasted only one inning. Pittsburgh and New York were not scheduled.

The American League race marked time with rain washing out the Detroit-Washington single game and both the St. Louis-at-New York single and Cleveland-at-Philadelphia doubleheader.

Only American games played yesterday were in Boston where Chicago White Sox split two with the Red Sox. After Pinky Woods out-tossed Johnny Humphries in the opener, 8-4, Lefty Frank Papish chucked the pale hose to a 4-2 evener in the nightcap.

JAKE LA MOTTA TO BATTLE ZALE IN THE GARDENS

Polishes Off Georgie Kochan in 45 Seconds of Ninth Heat in Ne wYork

New York, Sept. 18. (AP) — Jake La Motta, awkward and wide open, may not have much class, but with his chin to absorb punishment the Bronx battler could even make it tough for middleweight champion Tony Zale.

The burly La Motta, who polished off Georgia Kochan in 45 seconds of the ninth heat of their 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden last night, gave his rock-ribbed jaw a good workout in preparation for his Sept. 26 joust with welterweight Sugar Ray Robinson in Chicago.

Kochan, whose chin isn't made of porcelain either, landed plenty of Sunday shots at La Motta's jaw and staggered Jake in the second and fourth rounds. Big Jake just took it and kept coming in as the two whaled away at each other in the wildest slugging setto seen this year in the Garden.

Jake finally got Kochan going in the eighth. He landed one heavy hook after the other and the Ohioan went down just as the bell sounded. La Motta came out pitching in the ninth, sent over a smashing left to his opponent's face and Kochan went down for the full count.

It was the Bronx beak-buster's third triumph over Kochan and one of the smallest crowds in recent garden history—a 5,972 gathering which paid $14,679— saw the bout.

La Motta and Zale, who can hit as his record of 32 knockouts in 70 fights shows, are expected to get together before long.

New York Yankees Don't Seem Same Without Fletcher

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Sept. 18 — (AP) — New York Yankees don't seem the same without the lantern-jawed guy out there on the third-base coaching line directing traffic and jabbering away incessantly. Art Fletcher seems as much a part of the Yanks as the Yankee Stadium.

He's ill now, and whether he ever returns to the club is problematical as he is well-fixed financially and doesn't need the job as Joe McCarthy's No. 1 man. Fletcher collected a total of $66,017 as his cut in 14 world series, and inasmuch as that is frosting on the salary cake his baseball earnings can be appreciated.

Most fans today associate him only with the Yankees, but older fans recall him as John McGraw's shortstop in those roaring days when the snarling Giants were cordially hated, but nevertheless winners.

And one of the snarlingest of them all was Art Fletcher, whose acid tongue and willingness to take part in any riotous proceedings endeared him to the scrappy McGraw. He played to win and the opposition and umpires were his natural enemies.

Outliving his usefulness with the Giants he was traded to the Phils in 1920, and subsequently became manager. The Phils in those days — 1923-1926 — were about the same as the Phils today, and possibly that is why Fletcher turned down innumerable managerial offers in later years. He knew when he was well off.

He was hired by Miller Huggins, and turned down the Yankee headman job after Huggins died, preferring the anonymous role of coach.

NATIONALHOCKEY LEAGUE TO OPEN ON OCTOBER 24

Each Team Has 25 Home Games and Schedule Closes on March 17th

Montreal, Sept. 18. (CP)—The National Hockey League today released its 1945-46 schedule, marked by the earliest start on record—Oct. 24—and by the prominence given to Wednesday night games.

The 150-game schedule, giving each team the usual 25 home games, starts with a single game Wednesday, Oct. 24—four days ahead of last year's opener—and runs through to Sunday, March 17, one day earlier than the final scheduled games of the previous year.

Chicago Black Hawks open the schedule at Boston in the first of 13 Wednesday night games allotted to the Bruins. In all, the schedule calls for thirty Wednesday games, compared with nine last season. Boston draws 13, Chicago eight, Canadiens and Toronto four each, and Rangers one.

Development of the Wednesday night games allows a trifle more leeway in the usually-crowded weekend picture, made necessary by travel difficulties. Most notable weekend change is the elimination of most overnight hops from Montreal to New York Saturday night due to cancellation of the late night train.

Miller, J.Toronto Opens Oct. 27.

Canadiens and Maple Leafs open their seasons at home Saturday, Oct. 27, with the Montrealers playing hosts to Chicago and Toronto entertaining Boston. Boston moves on to Detroit to open the schedule of the Red Wings the following night, and the Black Hawks make their home debut Wednesday, Oct. 28 against Rangers. The Rangers don't draw a home game until Nov. 8 when they take on Chicago at Madison Square Gardens.

First game between Canadiens and Leafs, traditional inter-city rivals, will be in Montreal Nov. 1.

Saturday night remains as hockey night in Toronto, with 21 home-games on Saturdays and to a lesser extent in Montreal, where Canadiens have 15 home games. The Leafs round out their home appearances with four Wednesday night affairs, while the Canucks have four Wednesday, five Thursday and one Sunday night engagement.

15 Sundays for Black Hawks.

Chicago gets 15 Sunday night home games, eight Wednesday night contests and one Tuesday and one Thursday. Detroit has 14 Sunday nights at home, added to seven Thursdays, three Saturdays and a Tuesday. Rangers are at home for 15 Sundays, two Saturdays, five Thursdays, a Tuesday and a Wednesday to say nothing of one Monday—New Year's Eve. Their game against Canadiens that night is the only New Year's Eve contest.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

President Morton G. Bogue of the United States Golf Association announced at New York yesterday an executive meeting scheduled for Oct. 10 would deal with a full revival of National tournaments in 1946 for the first complete links program since 1941. The events would be the open, men's amateur, women's amateur and the men's public links competitions.

Roger Peckinpaugh of Cleveland Indians yesterday announced the sale of Catcher Gene Desautels to Philadelphia Athletics for the waiver price of $7,500. He was the second Cleveland backstop to go to the A's this year, following Buddy Rosar.

Forty-five players, mainly from Saskatchewan and Alberta points were in attendance at Saskatoon yesterday when Eddie Shore's annual hockey school opened at the arena here. A group of 15 players is expected to arrive from Manitoba points today.

Following an attack of influenza, Henry Cotton, former British open golf champion, withdrew yesterday from the London Daily Mail $6,300 tourney which opens tomorrow. His physician ordered a rest.

Son of the late Chaucer Elliott, former Kingston gridiron great, Bob Elliott was announced yesterday as head coach of Queen's Senior Intercollegiate Football team to be the first native son to direct the squad since 1928.

A record price for a record-holding racing greyhound was paid at London, England, yesterday in the sale of Magic Bohemian for £2,500. The canine recently covered 525 yards in 29.11 seconds.

A boxing show at Pittsburgh at which Sgt. Joe Louis and Billy Conn were billed as attractions, scheduled for tonight, was postponed until tomorrow night and doubt was expressed whether the heavyweight champion would be granted a permit by the U.S. War Department for the promised appearance.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs have arranged two exhibition games in addition to intercollegiate football fixtures. Toronto Oakwood Indians will play at London Saturday, Oct. 13, prior to which the Collegians will meet the Wildcats at Hamilton, Oct. 6.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

As Pants the 'Art.

The gallant old fish boat chugged its way through the placid waters of the bay on Sunday afternoon. The sun shone down from a cloudless sky, shedding a welcome warmth that tempered the cool offshore breezes.. In the bow, legs akimbo, to balance his weight sat Fred 'Art, 'e of the weights and measures department. In the stern were mine hosts Jack Hinchey, fiery fireman's shirt making the minnows blink, and Don Osborne, formerly of "Chicago" fame, or was it High-Low? casting one quizzical eye at the sky, and the other at the one-cylinder power plant that chugged merrily with the consistency of landlord's month-end visits...."Once when I was whale-fishing in the Arctic" began Mr. 'Art (nee Sweet-Apple Brown)....A minnow whirled upwards from the cosy innards of the minnow pail, winked at the ship's company then gently but firmly flipped its tail in the direction of its nose and subsided in the swirling whirl of its fellow captives....Maurice Callaghan's palatial cabin cruiser loomed up in the distance....Other boats laden with members of the piscatorial fraternity moved slowly to the "best spots"....An empty container, that formerly housed fighter fluid floated lazily by, sunlight glinting from its polishde surface...."Once when I was whale-fishing in the Arctic," Mr. 'Art began....A seagull swooped low over the boat, emitting raucous cries that ended abruptly in a sound that was suspiciously like one of the cheers named after the Bronx...."Get your gear ready," sang out Skipper Jack, with all the careless abandon of the Black Pirate about to board a Spanish galleon. "We're about to visit the graveyard of the "Minnie P. Blakely" corvettish fishing corsair, which flaunted the Jolly Roger in these yere parts when Napoleon was throwing mean glances at Josephine's hair-do and Sir Isaac Brock was laying the historical groundwork for a fine monument.

"Once, when I was whale fishing in the Arctic," began Mr. 'Art ....The usually reliable power-plant sputtered and coughed.... Its cylinder head bounced three feet in the air, knocked down two not-so-timid seagulls, then came down to rest with a gassy sigh...."This is it" reported First Mate Osborne, who in the excitement of the moment baited his hook with a ham sandwich and swallowed a four-inch minnow... "This is where we catch 'em without hooks at times. All you do is sprinkle the minnow with some of that tonsil juice (in absentia) the minnow then kicks the daylights out of the biggest bass he can find and the rest of the stable come to the surface with white towels in their gills".

Four minnows, bass-bent sank quietly in the calm surface of the bay....O'er head, the gulls screamed, glided and floated lazily. (Note to bald-headed gentry: Always wear a hat when intruding on the gulls feeding grounds)...."Once when I was whale fishing in," began Mr. 'Art. ....The fishing corvette rocked dangerously....It tilted to a forty-five degree angle. Four pairs of hands clutched the gunwales, and four voices began to chant the famous Navy hymn..A large pike, at least eight feet in length and who was giving four minnows a piggy-back ride, looked up from the watery depths ....It looked at Mr. 'Art, wagged a deprecating starboard fin at him then disappeared into the green depths, the giggles of the minnows sounding like the "Flight of the Bumble Bee" played on a jew's harp as they steered their finny mount back to safety....The bass buggy righted itself....Four insurance policies went back into hip-pocket hiding, and silence fell over the great empty Quinte wastes, or is it waists...."Once when I was whale," began Mr. 'Art.... His line grew taut with a sudden jerk....His reel screeched in protest as four miles of line went over the side....In the distance headed for Montreal was what appeared to be a miniature edition of Lloyd Hicks' 225 speedboat bow slicing the water like a razor blade through teletype copy.... He braced himself like the anchor man on a tug o'war team....He gritted his teeth and hung on while his companions shouted encouragement....There came a rending crash as one of the 'Art feet plowed through the side of the boat....Then another as the starboard hoof paired up with its mate like those of an English highwayman in a gibbet....The boat spun dizzily, then roared through the water at fifty miles an hour....Point Anne flitted by ....Deseronto was flyspeck on a fast-moving shoreline .... The spires of Napanee resembled telephone poles seen from a window of an express train....Then a sudden dizzy spin as the unseen power pirouetted and headed for home....Off Point Anne, it disappeared....The line sagged like a limp football....Once more four minnows slid quietly from the launching deck of the bass flat-top into the depths...."Once when I" began Mr. "'Art"....The entire surface of the bay seemed to heave, slowly, almost majestically....Water seemed to rise as if pushed from below by a giant hand....Placing his feet in the now wellworn foot-holes in the boat side, Mr. 'Art again braced himself....Then came a strange sight....From the bowels of the bay appeared a strange apparition....Tall masts pricked the surface...Then the barnacle-covered superstructure of an ancient schooner broke water.... Rusty guns poked accusing muzzles from the after deck.... Slowly Mr. 'Art heaved the ship to the surface...."Once when," he began....The ancient barque turned slowly on its side....It twisted till its foremast seemed to join the prow in silent salute. Then with a long shuddering sigh it sank slowly to its former resting place....Night fell.... The fishing boat crept slowly into harbor...."Once," began Mr. "'Art"....Three silent figures tiptoed to a waiting automobile and sped silently away to hot dinners and evening rest.

Splinters:

Well, the baseballing Juniors got another good game out of their systems yesterday and turned back the Dresden threat by a 9-3 count. The squad played heads up ball all the way; had their batting eyes turned to the beam; their fielding was good and the pitching excellent. Bunton turned in another good game, although he weakened in the eighth with a comfortable lead of five runs. But he was not in difficulty and pulled himself out of the hole with little trouble. Cooke, the colored hurler from Dresden pitched good ball but the local lads rapped him in the clutches — and that meant runs. The St. Louis lads journey to Dresden, a mere 320 miles from here on Saturday Sept. 22. Incidentally, after the game yesterday, a well-known Front Street business man told this corner that if the juniors needed funds and a collection taken he would throw five bucks in the kitty. How about it, fans. There is only one game between these lads and an Ontario baseball title, the first in years. A kick-in with some cash would help a lot . . . Card from "Whipper" Billy Watson; this morning says he and the "Voice" Phil Lawson are up around Huntsville way doing some training for the battle with Moose McCready here tomorrow night . . . So it looks as if the "Whippah" is not taking any chances on losing his crown to the popular lad from Aurora . . . Bata are said to be slated for the Ontario Intermediate baseball finals and are readying Barton, their ace chucker for the fray . . . Barton is going great guns these days and should show the Toronto baseballers a thing or two along hurling lines . . . Point Anne treks to Cobourg today for their third tilt with the Oshawa Mayfair Lanes, that is, unless Ol Jupe Pluvius interrupts. And right now it looks as though he will, plenty.

DAWES BLACK HORSE BREWERY

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 784
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

She was boiling. It seems she had just come from a bridge party with her neighbors. She wanted me to tell you some of the things that happened. But I don't gossip. Do you know what she was telling me?

I opened with one spade when my opponent had this hand:

♠9 6
♥K 8 4
♦A K 9 8 7 4 2
♣7

My opponent said: "Oh, dear, now I have to bid two. Well, I will bid two because my hand is good enough for that. Maybe I should bid more."

When dummy exposes, she explains why she bid this; why she did that. As if any one around the table, even her partner, cares to know her mode of attack.

Instead of giving me credit for playing a hand well, she tells me what lucky breaks I get; that she never gets any breaks like that. When all the time I had planned the play in advance.

When I tell her how I figured out the way to make my bid, she changes the subject. She is not a bit interested in anything, no matter how clever, unless she is the one who does it.

After a while she says: "Well, you never bid and play like that when you are my partner. When you are my partner, you pass and pass. And when you play a hand, we never seem to make it."

Her husband, too. When he is declarer, he's never sure how to play it. In order to cover up, he says: "Well, Jim you have the king. So, I'll play it that way."

But Jim's partner has the king and knows better how to lead. Or the information tells Jim where the king is. We've lost more tricks that way because he is so gabby.

But I never say a word when I'm playing a hand. When I do, he tells me to keep my thoughts to myself. They don't know what it means to be polite.

As I've told you, I don't gossip. But you never tell anybody what you read in my column, do you?

Belleville Juniors Game Away From Provincial Championship By Defeating Dresden 9 to 3

Vern Goyer Had Field Day With Triple, Double and Single; Team Played Well Defensively Behind Smart Hurling by Bunton

Nine men and nine innings are all that stand between the Belleville junior baseball squad and the 1945 Ontario Junior Baseball Championship. That is if Speedy St. Louis' youngsters play the same calibre of the pastime, that they did here on Monday afternoon when they turned back the Dresden, Ont., threat by a 9-3 count at the Alemite Field. The second game will be played in Dresden on Sept. 22.

The Belleville juniors backed up Bobby Bunton's nice hurling effort with some sparkling work afield and clouted the apple in the clutches that ultimately spelled victory. The team looked good and despite the fact that the Dresden youngsters will be playing in their own backyard with the entire village backing them up, if they play the same brand of the pastime that featured yesterday's game, then they should romp home with the title in two straight.

Bobby Bunton paved the way to the welcome win with some neat tossing. The slim kid handcuffed the opposition for seven innings letting them down with four hits during that period, then weakened in the eighth when the enemy got three hits for as many runs. He settled down after the third Dresdenite had crossed the plate, struck out the next batter and caused the third to fly to Strachan.

Dresden Threatened

In the ninth, Dresden threatened again after Bunton had retired the first batter. Bush let Johnston's grounder roll between his legs for an error and McCorkle walked. Bunton struck out Mark Smith for the fifth time in the game then struck out Lovell a pinch-hitter to sew up the pastime.

Cook, a loose rangy negro hurler engaged in a pitcher's duel with Bunton after a weak start, when the locals shoved over three markers in the first innings. Bush drew a life and Fitzpatrick got on when the pitcher bobbled the ball. Strachan went out and Vern Goyer smashed out a mighty triple to score two runners. Reeves followed with a double scoring Goyer and that was that for the appetizer.

Cook settled down after the first inning splurge and blanked the St. Louis kids for four more innings with one hit. In the 6th Strachan smacked out a single and Goyer got a deliberate pass. Reeves grounded out and Semark drove out a single scoring both runners who had advanced on the fielder's choice previous.

Lucky Seventh

The St. Louisers packed the game into refrigeration in the lucky seventh, when Bush singled and pilfered second unnoticed. Fitz drove a single through second and Strachan went out. Goyer smashed out a double scoring two then Semark came up with a triple sending the big catcher home and later scoring himself on the Dresden shortstop's error. Soules was caught trying to pinch the second bag.

Cook was nicked for nine hits all told, struck out nine and walked one.

Vern Goyer sparked the Belleville attack with a perfect day at bat. The big receiver got a triple, double and single plus a walk for four. Semark got a triple and a single. Reeves donated a double and Bush, Fitzpatrick and Strachan contributed singles.

The dusky Dresden pitcher Cook led the visitors' bat parade with a pair of clouts with N. Smith coming through with the same amount.

Strachan, Belleville centrefielder played a sparkling game defensively, snaring several flies, that were labelled for hits.

SCOTTY WRIGHT LEADS SCORERS

Toronto, Sept. 18. (CP) — George (Scotty) Wright celebrated his return to the peacetime gridiron after three years in the navy by easing into the individual scoring lead as the Ontario Rugby Football Union opened the Canadian pigskin season.

The hard-booting backfielder scored a picture-play touchdown, kicked two converts and two singles for a total of nine points as the title-defending Hamilton Wildcats bashed Windsor Rockets 21-6 in Windsor last Saturday.

Tied for second place in The Canadian Press compilation was Wright's teammate, quarterback Joe Capriotti, Joe Lesensky of Windsor who scored all his club's points, and Ross McKelvey of Toronto Indians, all with six points. McKelvey and the three Stukus brothers, Bill, Frank and Annis, scored all Toronto counters as the Indians walloped Ottawa Trojans 19-1 in the only other game played.

QUEBEC HOPES TO BE CAPITAL OF LEAGUE

Quebec, Sept. 18 (CP) — City Industrial Commissioner Armand Viau said yesterday that in spite of published reports to the contrary, "Quebec has excellent reasons for believing it will be chosen as the international capital of the League of Nations."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—Statistical stuff... If the Tigers and Cubs meet in the world series—and their chances look good now—it likely will be the first meeting since 1938, between two clubs that failed to win 100 games during the season... That year the Cubs won the flag with 89 and the Yanks turned in 99 victories ... Detroit can't reach the 100-victory mark and may wind up as the American League's lowest-average pennant winner. Chicago can't afford to drop more than a couple of its remaining games.. Digging deeper into the records, the windup might be something like the 1926 race, when both clubs finished under the .600 mark, the Cards winning their flag by only a two-game margin and hte Yankees by three.... Or you could go clear back to the 1908 Cubs-Tigers tussle when Chicago won by one game and Detroit by one-half game, the smallest margin ever recorded in the two major leagues.

Soldiers in the United States 13th air force fighter command are talking about organizing a baseball team to challenge a Jap nine in Tokyo, if they can get a war department okay.... Word from Camp Lee, Va., is that Billy Conn, due back there Thursday, likely will be discharged within 10 days after his return... Middleweight Georgie Abrams weighing 160 pounds after serving in the navy at Pearl Harbor, Midway, and Guam, is headed back to the United States and hopes to break into the title picture again before long.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Art Herring, Dodgers — Shut out league-leading Cubs with 3 hits, 4-0.

Tony Cuccinello and Frank Papish, White Sox — Cuccinello collected five hits in doubleheader split with Boston; Red Sox took opener 8-4 but succumbed to Papish's curving in finale, 4-2.

Augie Bergamo, Cardinals — Paced 16-hit attack against Phillies with four singles in 7-3 triumph.

WORLD PETROLEUM COMPETITION

London, Sept. 18 (CP) — Harold Ickes, United States Secretary of the Interior, here for redrafting of the British-American agreement on oil, said yesterday the U.S. would urge development of world petroleum on a competitive basis free from price control.

Pennant Hopes Hang on Lucky Break of Date

Washington, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The fading pennant hopes of Washington Senators hung today on the lucky break of an open date which enabled them to reschedule a rained-out game with Detroit Tigers.

Detroit has won three games of the pair of weekend doubleheaders in which the two teams staked their American League pennant chances.

Today's game is down for 2 p.m. E.D.T. but more rain is forecast on the tail-end of a tropical storm blowing in from Florida.

"It would be a terrific blow to us, if we can't play today", said Owner Clark Griffith of the Senators.

"The best way to cut down the Tigers' lead is to play them and beat them. This will be our last chance to stay in the race".

The two o'clock starting time—an hour earlier than usual—was set in order to make allowance for delays once the game begins.

"If the umpires will start it, we'll play it", Griffith said. The field was thoroughly drenched by yesterday's downpour and it still was raining early today.

Manager Steve O'Neill of the Tigers had Hank Oana ready to seek the Tigers' fourth victory in five games here.

The cause looks hopeless. Washington is four games back in the lost column with six to go. Detroit has nine game to play.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Skinny Martin just walking along, and he leep-frogged over a fire plug and hit his knee on the way saying, Gosh shang my knees, I'm always nocking them, I'd be luckler if I didn't have any knees.

You'd be sorry if you didn't, all right, I said. You wouldn't be able to bend your legs in the middle, I said.

Starting a argument about knees, Skinny claming tables and chairs slide around all right without being able to bend their legs in the middle, and I said, Did you ever see them do it without somebody else being there to give them a push?

Well, I bet they could move around by themselfs if they had little roller skates on and the floor was slippery enough, Skinny said.

Sounding like a ideal life if you happened to have the hard luck to be born a table or a chair, and I said, Well anyways, if peoples legs didn't bend in the middle there would be a lot more accidents, and Skinny said, Well, if you were careful you'd see more accidents than you'd be in yourself, and everybody likes to see accidents if they're not really serious. Besides, if your knees happen to bend a little more than you intended them to, that's just what makes people lose their ballents.

Being the end of the argument. Good night if you had as many knees as a fly you'd be falling all over the place, he said.

Well what of it? I said. Just keep walking on soft spots and you'd learn to be a swell tumbler without half trying, I said, and Skinny said, Anyways, I'm glad my legs are long, even with or without knees. If you have long legs you always surprise people when you stand up, because they never have any idea you're that tall while you're sitting down, but if you just have ordinary legs you might as well just keep on sitting down, as far as attracting attention goes, he said.

Toronto, Sept. 18 —(CP)— A constructive call for elimination of bigtime hockey's contingent reserve lists has been sounded by Stan (Edmonton Journal) Moher in an open letter to President Mervyn (Red) Dutton of the National League.

The contingent reserve came into being as a war-born offshoot of routine reserve lists maintained by all clubs. The idea was that N. H. L. players called upon for military service and replaced by newcomers from minor or amateur ranks could be listed in a special "contingent reserve" so the regular reserve list could be kept at its standard 25 names for each club.

This worked out for a while, Moher says, but soon abuses of the system became apparent. Some clubs signed amateurs headed for the services, placed them on the special list and thus "had the protection needed to keep a string on such talent until it was returned to civilian life."

"Today, there must be 500 hockey players listed in the contingent reserve. And while many of them—like Billy Taylor, Bob Carse, Gaye Stewart, Ken Reardon and the dozens of others who donned a uniform—legitimately belong under this grouping, there are many more who do not. Some of them are living in Edmonton at this time. They are young fellows who never even saw a professional game—much less played in one.

"In a number of cases, they don't even know they are on a contingent reserve list."

On the surface of things such a set-up dosen't sound too harmful. But, as Moher states the case, the practice is definitely harmful to hockey development in the "feeder" stages. Western Canada's attempt to revive Senior hockey is being blocked by lack of sufficient talent.

"The great headache of the moment is putting the snatch on the talent required to man clubs in Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina, Edmonton and other centres anxious to get under way again. No wonder players are such a scarce commodity. The ones we need ... The ones we should have the right to dicker with—the ones produced right here in the west—are on those convenient contingent reserve lists."

In urging Dutton to take action, Moher reminds the President of the sweeping move by the late Judge Landis a few years ago. Baseball's first high commissioner didn't like the way the Detroit Farm system was being administered, so he ordered a house-cleaning—and more than 90 players became free agents.

"See what we mean, Mervyn?" asks Moher.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 17.

Lost in Dreams.

She stood under the clock which was their favorite meeting place, lost in dreams, when Eric's voice roused her. She saw at once that he was excited. His ice blue eyes were no longer cold as he said, "Come into the cocktail lounge, darling! We can talk there undisturbed."

They found a quiet table and Eric ordered a drink for himself, orange juice for Folly. Then he said, "You asked me for a week but I can't wait longer. I must know your decision now. Tonight."

Her gray green eyes softened. This was the role she had always wanted to play. Here in this luxurious background of turquoise and black with hundreds of orchids reflected in the mirror behind the bar; with subtly changing lights cutting off the low murmur of those about them; here she would give her answer to the most important question of her life.

"All right, Eric! It's to be yes, darling."

He did not seem surprised but he did press her hand and smile as he whispered, "Wonderful. Now this is what I've planned. We'll leave here tomorrow noon and be married as soon as we arrive."

"Tomorrow?" she gasped. "But Eric, I can't possibly go so soon."

"Why not? What have you to do?"

"You haven't even met my sisters," she reminded him.

To Wait for Sisters

"We shall do that tonight. We'll go to your home now."

"But they will not be there now. Marta won't be home until midnight and Hazel may be later than that."

"Then we shall wait," he said reasonably.

It didn't seem to enter his mind that even if he was a count, her marriage to a man they did not know would be a terrific shock to Marta and Hazel. Of course when they realized that it was Susan's mother who had introduced them that would make some difference, Folly admitted.

It would have been more romantic to have had the wedding she wanted but this would be exciting, too, she thought on their way to a taxi. Early in the morning she would shop for a few little things she needed, pack the allotted amount of luggage she could take on the plane and the trunk which would have to be sent by express.

Eric Is Worried.

She felt almost married already as she sat beside Eric on their way home. His hand held hers but his eyes stared into the darkness anxiously. Eric was worrying about something, the poor dear! But she would help by being as sympathetic as possible. In spite of what Bruce Potter had said Eric would remain always unconscious of her faults.

Eric was saying something she had not even heard so she had to ask him to repeat it.

"I was just asking you if I could leave a couple of suitcases at your house when we leave. I'll send for them later but I'm giving up my apartment, you see, and dismissing Egholm. So if you have plenty of room. . ."

"Of course, dear," Folly answered domestically. "There's a large store room back of the garage. You can leave anything there you wish."

The house was dark. Only a light in the hall illuminated the entrance. Folly gave Eric her key. While he was using it she glanced at the window which led into grandpa's room but it too was dark. What would they do while waiting for her sisters to return? She had a childish fear of boring Eric. Their topics of conversation were limited. He was so much more traveled and well informed than she was. Most of their time together had been spent dancing or watching a movie. Here in her own house how should she amuse him?

Count Is Nervous.

It was not cold but the fire in the fireplace had gone out. Ah, but radio. . . She turned it on but the count said nervously, "Don't please, darling! I am so tired of this everlasting propaganda. . ."

"I thought I'd try to get some music," she explained.

He smiled to conceal his irritability.

"Leave it off, dear! Do you mind?"

Her always vivid imagination began to wonder if marriage would prove like this but she banished the picture by resuming her role of considerate companion.

"Would you like a cold drink, Eric?"

"No thank you! Just sit down and be quiet. I should like to rest for a little while if that is possible. I've had a most exhausting day."

Tired and Worried.

Poor man! She had never seen him look so tired and worried. It must be because he had so many arrangements to make before going away. But after all it wasn't as if he lived here, Folly reminded herself. He was only traveling. San Francisco was not his home. She sat like a mouse in the corner while Eric stretched on the davenport covering his handsome features with one well-shaped hand. She was rewarded some time later by his sitting up with a reassuring smile.

"Everything is going to be all right, Folly. Nothing to worry about."

Was he trying to convince her or himself?

"I'm sure of it," she cried running to sit beside him but at that moment footsteps were heard on the front porch.

Eric was standing beside her, tall and distinguished looking, as Marta and Hazel came into the room. They were followed by Hazel's fiance.

"I caught these two parked out in front," Marta laughed, stopping as she realized the man with Folly was a stranger.

"This is Count Eric Gustavus Lindstrom," Folly said proudly. "My sisters, Eric, Marta and Hazel and Captain Gates."

The men shook hands and Folly was prouder than ever. Eric towered over Charles by several inches and although he wore no uniform he was even more military in bearing.

Marriage Plans.

"We met some time ago at Susan's party," Folly explained to her bewildered sisters. "Mrs. Whitcomb knew Eric in New York." Apparently this satisfied them. Both girls smiled and the captain said, "I must be going, Hazel."

She went with him into the hall returning presently to sit beside Marta. They intended to remain for only a brief conversation but Folly decided to give them her news at once.

"Eric and I are going to be married," she said. "We have been seeing each other ever since Susan's party and since he has to leave sooner than he expected we are going to be married tomorrow in Reno."

"Tomorrow?" both girls repeated while Marta added, "Why Reno?"

"Because Eric has to be in New York right away," Folly explained. "And it takes three days to get a license in California."

"I am so sorry to rob you young ladies of your lively sister," Eric apologized. "Such haste must be difficult for you to understand. The truth is I asked Folly to tell you some time ago but for some reason she did not think it feasible."

"I was afraid it would spoil everything," Folly cried in answer to the demand for an explanation which blazed from two pairs of gray eyes. "I am treated like a child around here," she continued, ashamed to admit that her real reason was because of the old house.

Marta said quickly, "At least we are grateful that you told us about this before you were married instead of after," while Hazel asked, "Tell us again, Folly. Just what are your plans?"

Three Girls Talk

Shortly after that Eric excused himself on the plea that it was late and he had so many things to do the following morning. But the three sisters sat up until after two discussing the sudden change which was about to come into their lives. Not until she was going to leave did Marta realize what a tremendous load Folly had been. How the thought of her had colored all her actions and emotions. She had been closer to Marta than to Hazel although both had shared the financial responsibility. And how they would miss her!

"If only you weren't going so far away," Marta sighed. "It would be perfect. But I can imagine you being a countess and loving it. Just think before we see you again you'll probably be speaking Swedish."

"I hope you know what you're doing," Hazel said more cautiously. "He looks to me like a man who might be both cold and cruel. Of course he's charming to you now. But once you're married it may be a different story."

Hazel had always been jealous of her, Folly thought, saying complacently, "I'm not worrying about that. I've always understood men better than I do women. Once we're married I'll have him eating out of my hand. Didn't Grandpa used to roar like a lion to every one else?"

"I hope you're right," Hazel said kissing her. "There's nothing would make me happier than to know you were safely married."

They discussed clothes and what she would need on the plane and and what should she be married in. There couldn't be much luggage but she ought to be able to take the pale blue suit she was hoping to buy the first thing in the morning.

Asks One New Outfit.

"It will be the last time you'll have to pay any bills for me, darlings," Folly said affectionately. "All I ask is just one new outfit. Any girl ought to be entitled to that."

Hazel, who was saving every penny she could wangle for her own trousseau, said nothing but Marta cried generously, "The wedding suit and hat will be my gift to you, honey!"

So that was that. And for the first time in years Folly was awake and dressed before Chan brought her tray. His surprise was only equalled by the news that it was her wedding day, which Marta had already told him. But his face was impassive as he said, "Why not be married in your own home, Missee Folly?"

"Because we haven't time, Chan. I know you'd like to see my wedding and I would like it better that way, too. But the count has to be in New York right away and he wants me to go with him."

"Better you marry that soldier boy," Chan said, shaking his head.

He was really getting old and childish, Folly thought annoyed.

Marta had asked for the morning off and met her down town. They bought the blue suit and bridelike little feathered hat and a bag since Folly declared the luggage she had wasn't fit to be seen.

Suitcases Stored.

This reminded her of the suitcases Eric had asked to store at the house. She told Marta about them and when they reached home she found they had already been delivered. Chan carried them down to the big room behind the garage bending under their weight as if they were too heavy for him.

Poor old man! He probably hated to see her go more than anyone but Folly reminded herself that this was no time to become sentimental. They had all offered to accompany her to the air port but she had refused instinctively knowing Eric wouldn't like it. No fuss he had said. Every one was at home however when they left. Even Hilton had managed to rush back when told over the telephone of her departure.

Then just as Eric's taxi was waiting and the baggage was inside Folly found that Chan had disappeared. She went to the kitchen and called down the stairs but there was no answer.

"Isn't that just like him?" Folly cried exasperated. "Chan would go to market the same as if nothing were happening."

"He probably didn't want to say goodby," Marta told her, while Eric cried, "Come, darling! We have no time to lose. We will miss our plane."

Chan Discovers Uniforms.

There was no last flurry of kisses and farewells; one final glimpse of Folly's lovely young face with Eric, handsome and tall beside her.

But the girls had no sooner returned to the drawing room than Chan rushed up from the first floor, his usually impassive face quivering with excitement.

"Missy Marta, come quick!"

Exhausted from the strain of the past twelve hours Marta said, "What is it, Chan? Where have you been? Didn't you hear Folly calling you?"

"Come to store room quick," he insisted.

"To the store room?" Hazel repeated, while Hilton, sensing something most unusual in the old man's excitement said, "I'll go with you."

"We'll all go," Marta added.

The three of them trooped down the back stairs behind the shuffling old tread, little suspecting what they would find. The suitcases Eric had left with them had been broken open. They were filled with military caps and uniforms from every branch of the United States service.

Count a Spy?

"But what does it mean?" Marta asked bewildered.

"I break open," Chan admitted. "Suspect him no count from beginning." He held up a ragged piece of newspaper describing the activities of a spy in uniform who had barely escaped capture the day before.

"Must be the same person," Chan insisted.

Walkout of 'Beef' Gang Unjustified Says Bd. Inquiry

Toronto, Sept. 18 — (CP) — A three-man board of inquiry which investigated the walkout of the "beef" gang at Canada Packers' Toronto plant in July found in a report issued during the weekend that the incident, estimated to have cost $465,000 before sympathy strikes ended, "was unjustified."

It was "in violation of the agreement" between union and company, said the report released by Ontario Labor Minister Daley.

It was suggested the company and union get together with a view to extending to the beef killing floor the effort at full production which appears to prevail in other plant operations and at the same time "so far as is reasonably possible" remove the causes of the present disaffection.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gillanders, chairman, E. B. Jolliffe, Board member chosen by the Union, and L. A. Forsyth for the company, signed the report.

All parties bound themselves to accept the decisions of the Board in the matter into which it inquired. It was intervention of Mr. Daley and appointment of the Board which brought about the end of the strike in Canada Packers' Toronto plant and sympathy strikes which spread across Canada. Cost of these was estimated at $300,000 lost to the company in earnings and $165,000 in wages.

Last July when Jack Reid refused to join the beef gang in their protest walkout the men refused to work with him. He was shifted for a couple of days and then returned to the beef killing floor and the gang quit work, to be followed by other gangs with the union demanding his dismissal after advising the company that Reid had been suspended from membership.

The report held the company had the legal right to return Reid to the beef department but suggested that should the company refrain from enforcing their legal rights in this matter it might well be "a gesture of co-operation in adjusting matters."

Labor Minister Daley commenting on the report in writing, said: "This strike which started in such a small way eventually brought about one of national importance . . . the result proves how unwise it is to go on strike in sympathy with a striking plant until such time as the case has passed through full grievance procedure . . ."

Potato Yield Below Normal

Toronto, Sept. 18 — (CP)—The Ontario Department of Agriculture said today in its weekly crop report that the potato crop throughout the province has been so lean because of insects and unfavorable weather that in some sections less than 50 per cent of the normal yield is expected.

In Western Ontario heavy rain retarded harvesting of late-sown crops in some districts but in others drought conditions were prevalent up to the last few days when welcome rains fell.

The report said Southern Ontario's grain harvest has been almost completed. Indications point to a relatively good corn crop. Harvesting of tobacco and beans has been delayed by rain.

Nearly all harvesting, including second-cut hay, is completed in Central Ontario. Grain yields are reported much better than anticipated.

The corn crop in Eastern Ontario is fair and tomato picking continues although the fruit is ripening slowly. Threshing of cereal grains is started and silo filling is well under way.

In its monthly report, the Department said that in August harvesting of cereal crops practically was completed but with a wide variation in yields and quantity. Oats, barley and fall wheat showed less yield than 1944.

Flow of milk was maintained at or above normal. In some Eastern Ontario counties milk flow was 20 to 25 per cent above normal.

Estimates placed the provincial tobacco crop at 72,000 acres. The total yield may not exceed 75,000,000 pounds — a reduction of approximately 8,000,000 pounds from 1944.

Honey prospects were poor in Western Ontario when normally the bulk is produced. The crop will not reach 25 per cent of last year, the report said.

Many districts reported a further prospective decrease in the apple yield. Total estimate was placed at 158,750 barrels — a reduction of 70 per cent from last year's commercial yield of 530,200 barrels.

A revised preliminary estimate of the total crop of peaches was 829,250 bushels, a 29 per cent decrease from 1944. Estimated yield of plums remained at 29,785 bushels compared with 143,300 bushels last year.

Cherries were expected to be more than 30 per cent less than the 1944 yield but grapes progressed well with predictions of a 13 per cent increase over 1944.

The Day in Parliament

TODAY

The Commons will hear continued Throne Speech debate .The Senate will not sit.

YESTERDAY

The Commons heard Reconstruction Minister Howe say that no saleable surplus war material was being destroyed, that controls were being removed as fast as possible; heard Maj. Leslie Mutch (L—Winnipeg South) call for accentuated selective immigration; Clare Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) urge establishment of parliamentary committees to study veterans affairs, merchant shipping and reconversion; J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) say there was no foundation for charges the Progressive Conservative party had attempted to stir up disunity.

The Senate did not sit.

If this appears to be a picture of three men listening to a gramaphone, it does not convey just the right impression. It is a picture of three blind men listening to a story being read to them by a "Talking Book" machine. Two of the listeners lost their sight in the last war, the third was a high school teacher until his eyesight failed. In the library of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind there are over five hundred books recorded on gramaphone discs. They are called "Talking Book." It takes from twelve to sixteen records to carry the wordage of an ordinary novel. "Gone With the Wind" takes eighty records. The Acts of the Apostles goes on four. "Les Miserables" occupies one hundred and four. It takes thirty-four minutes to play both sides of one of these records. The records are packed in boxes and loaned to patrons of the library without charge. The postage is free. The Talking Book library service is only one of the scores of ways in which The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is of use to blind Canadians. Part of the money which is now being asked from the citizens of Belleville will be used for the maintenance of the Institute libraries of Braille and Talking Books.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R. C. A. F. Overseas, Sept. 18—(CP)—The R. C. A. F.'s famed Elephant transport squadron based in Burma has said goodbye to its commanding officer. Wing Cmdr. Ralph Gordon of Bobcaygeon, Ont., who has been boss of the Dakota squadron since its formation at Gujrat, India, 10 months ago is taking up a new job in the United Kingdom. He is a veteran of two tours of operations.

The "Elephants" first operated out of the Imphal Valley, and for the last five months have been ferrying supplies to Allied troops in southeast Asia.

Acting C. O. of the squadron now is Sqdn. Ldr. Richard Denison of Winnipeg, who recently completed a full tour of operations in India and Burma.

Flt. Lt. E. C. F. Holstein-Rathlow, a Canadian in the R. A. F.'s Indian Ocean Air Force put up a good show in the Gulf of Siam not long before the Japs decided to call it a day.

"Ratty", who comes from (Soudan Ave.) Toronto, was piloting his Sunderland on an armed reconnaissance at the time. He not only reported sighting a 10,000-ton enemy tanker and sent back messages which enabled some Liberators to sink it, but continuing the patrol, bombed and sank two other vessels and damaged a landing barge.

"Old Originals" have become almost as scarce as Beer War veterans on R. C. A. F. units on the Continent, but 126 Spitfire Wing could still claim one genuine specimen until Flt. Lt. Ken Chant of (348 Spadina Road) Toronto went to the "repat" depot in England.

Chant, senior equipment officer of the wing, was once a liaison officer with the 1st Canadian Army, under the old Army Co-operation Command. When that outfit was abolished he was posted to the newly-created 126 R. C. A. F. Wing and stayed with them until the end, keeping the squadrons supplied with vital equipment from Normandy to Germany.

A number of R. C. A. F. officers have attended a three-week course at the R.A.F. School of Transport at Netheravon, Wiltshire, where the lessons of air transportation learned in the European campaign were studied for their usefulness in the Far East.

Netheravon is the historic "airborne" station where transport pilots, glider men and commanders were briefed before taking off to seize the first Allied bridgehead in Normandy.

Among the Canadians at the school have been: Group Capts. R. C. Hawtrey of Winnipeg, and G. G. Truscott of Ottawa; Wing Cmdrs. H. Bryant of Vancouver, B. E. Christmas of Victoria, B. C., R. F. Cross of Ottawa, and R. B. Middleton of Souris, Man; and Sqdn. Ldrs. A. A. Imrie of Toronto and H. F. Kerrigan of Goderich, Ont.

Achievement Day Winners at Cooper Hall and Stirling

Stirling. (Special.) — Members of the three garden brigades from Cooper and Remington and from West Huntingdon and Bonarlaw held their achievement days last week the former at Cooper Hall and the two latter clubs at the agricultural office at Stirling.

Girls competing and exhibiting at Cooper Hall included Marilyn Park and Margaret Brady as first year members; Shirley Fox and Donna Rollins, 2nd year; and Margaret Harris, Velma Rollins, Fay Rollins, Barbara Chapman and Mrs. Rex Rollins as third year members.

Barbara Chapman and Velma Rollins received county honor pins for completing their sixth homemaking club. Club leader is Mrs. George Harris.

West Huntingdon Club exhibitors were Joyce Wallace and Jean Haggerty, 1st year; Joan McCurdy, Dora Rodgers and Marion Mitts, 2nd year, and Margaret Haggerty, 3rd year. The last named girl won the county honor pin. Club leaders are Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. Clayton Wright.

Bonarlaw club leader is Mrs. George Williams with 1st year exhibitors being Dorothy McComb, Jean Anderson, Doris McComb and Marjorie McCoy. Second year exhibitor was Miss Helen Eastwood.

John Hayes Named To Union Trust Bd.

Election of John D. Hayes, president and chairman of the board of the Fanny Farmer Candy Shope Inc., to a directorate of the Union Trust Company was announced on September 14, by William W. Foster, bank president, following a meeting of the board of directors, says a report in a Rochester, N.Y., newspaper.

Mr. Hayes is chairman of the board of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd. and a director of Chartered Trust and Executor Company, both of Toronto, Canada. He was associated with the late Frank P. O'Connor in the organization and operation of the Fanny Farmer and Laura Secord enterprises, acting as vice-president and general manager of the latter company until 1938, when he came to Rochester to assume the presidency of the Fanny Farmer Company. He also is a director of the Institute of Distribution of New York City.

Since coming to Rochester, Hayes has taken prominent parts in numerous civic enterprises and has been active in the various War Bond campaigns. His clubs are Genesee Valley, Oak Hill, Rochester and Rotary, all of Rochester, and Granite Club of Toronto. He is a 4th Degree member of Rochester Knights of Columbus.

He and Mrs. Hayes and daughter Celile reside at 3 North Goodman St. Another daughter, Mrs. Francis H. McConville, lives in Greenfield Lane, Brighton.

Gen. Shinotsuka Commits Suicide

Tokyo, Sept. 18 —(AP)—The newspaper Asahi reported that Lt.-Gen. Yoshio Shinotsuka, member of Japan's supreme war council, committed suicide early today by cutting his throat with a Samurai sword.

Shinotsuka formerly was president of the Army Officers' School.

He was a classmate of Hideki Tojo, the War Time Dictator.

Both were graduated from the Officers' School in 1905.

The general left no explanation for his suicide. He took his own life in his home in Tokyo.

Shinotsuka was believed to be in his early 60's.

Famed Kraut Line May Function Again

Kitchener, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Pre-season stock of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League leaped today with indications that the famed Kraut line, broken up by enlistment of its three members in the RCAF, may function again as a unit this season.

With wingman Bobby Bauer already home from overseas and expecting discharge shortly, families of his linemates, Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart, reported the two were expected to return shortly from posts in England.

Schmidt cabled he would be home before the end of this month. Dumart may return at the same time but in any event expects to be back in time for fall training.

Richest Colonial Territory

Vast resources of rubber, tin and copra make Malaya the richest colonial area in the British Empire. Its recovery from the Japs inaugurates a period of restoration which is expected to be lengthy because of shortages of experienced rubber planters and of native labor, Jap destruction of mining equipment.

(United Kingdom Information Office)

Malaya is the richest territory in the British Colonial Empire. It consists of the Straits Settlements. (Singapore, including Christmas Island and the Cocos Keeling group; Penang, including the Province of Wellesley; Malacca and Labuan); The Federated Malay States (Perak, Selanger, Negri, Sembilan, Pahang); the Unfederated Malay States (Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, Trengganu and Brueni).

The total population was over 5,250,00 in 1938, of whom just over 28,000 were European and over 2,250,000 Malayans, the remainder being immigrant communities consisting of Chinese, Indians, Eurasians and others. The total area is 53,240 square miles.

The indigenous population is therefore very inadequate to the size of the territory, about 37 to the square mile. Many immigrants were attracted to the British settlements by the opportunities for trade.

Three-fifths of Malaya are virtually uninhabited, one-fifth being more largely under jungle, and the remaining fifth, occupied by plantations, mines and towns, the product to a large extent of British rule and the source of Malaya's prosperity.

• • •

Malaya is the most important rubber producing country in the world, owing to the introduction of rubber into the country by the British in 1877. The area under rubber in 1938 was 3,302,200 acres. Production amounted to 360,893 tons, of which 354,301 tons were exported, together with 181,610 tons produced outside Malaya, but transhipped in Malaya.

Malaya is the most important tin producing country in the world. The Chinese tin mines in the interior had been worked in a primitive manner for some centuries. The first European tin mines were developed in the early eighties. In 1938, Malaya's tin production was about 29 per cent of the world's output. (Malaya's production, 43,247 tons; world production, 147,434 tons.)

Groups of rubber, copra and tin experts have now been formed to protect and utilize Malaya's great agricultural and industrial resources as the Allied Forces occupy the peninsula. Civilian units, planned by the Ministry of Supply and the industries concerned with the assistance of the Colonial Office, will work with the Army's Civil Affairs staff. Operations will consist of buying stocks and rehabilitation.

The latter is bound to be gradual owing to the shortage of experienced planters, because much Malayan labour was moved by the Japanese for work on the Burma and Siam railways. The destruction of dredges will make the recovery of tin mining a long process.

• • •

The Malays are largely peasants fishermen and farmers. They did not take kindly to work for large scale industries. Chinese and Indian immigration has therefore been encouraged since the beginning of the last century. The immigrants' enterprise has been one of the bases of Malayan prosperity, in which the Malays themselves shared.

Two main industries, rubber and tin, provided the bulk of the revenue supporting the complex system of social services.

A comparatively high proportion of the revenue is devoted to social services; for example, the Straits Settlements in 1937 spent 8.5% and 5.3%, while the Federated Malay States spent 7.1% and 5.2% on public health and education respectively, excluding expenditure by municipalities, employers and others. In the Straits Settlements Government expenditures increased between 1918 and 1937 fourfold on health and sevenfold on education.

Before the Japanese occupation, Malaya was certainly the healthiest country in the East, equipped with one of the most complex and efficient health services in the world. The service included health education, the provision of hospitals and dispensaries, the establishment of infant welfare and maternity services throughout the peninsula, better sanitation and housing and antimalaria measures.

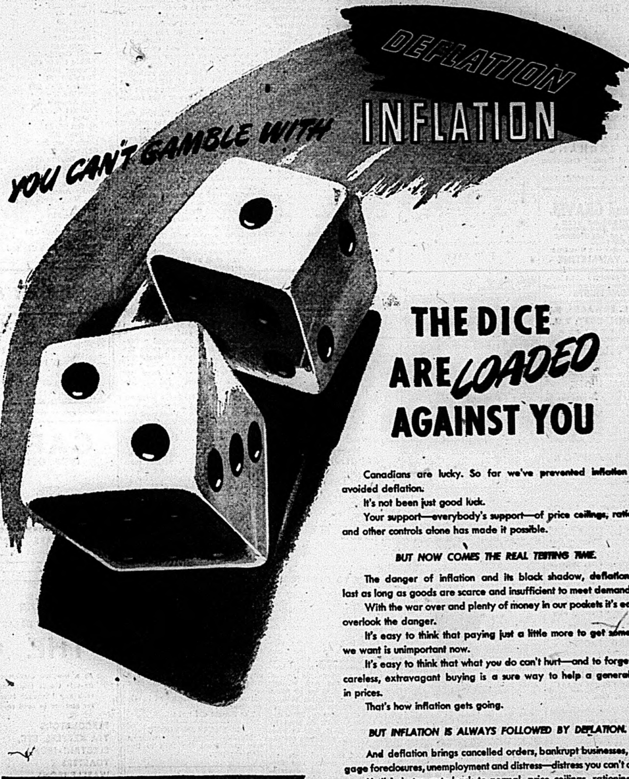
ATHLONES IN ENGLAND

Liverpool, England, Sept. 18 — (CP Cable) — The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, and Princess Alice arrived here Monday from Canada aboard the liner Empress of Scotland. It was their first visit to the United Kingdom in five years.

They expect to remain in Britain for two months and then return to Canada. The Earl of Athlone will continue as Governor-General until early next year, when he will be succeeded by Field Marshal Alexander.

RARE EVENT AT ZOO

The first baby white-handed gibbon ever born in the Bronx Zoo, New York, is shown here. The tiny head of the youngster is seen peeking from beneath its mother's arm. The baby will be carried clinging to the mother's fur for many months. The mother swings from tall trees, with the baby, apparently as easily as she did before it was born.



THE DICE ARE LOADED AGAINST YOU

Canadians are lucky. So far we've prevented inflation and avoided deflation.

It's not been just good luck.

Your support—everybody's support—of price ceilings, rationing and other controls alone has made it possible.

BUT NOW COMES THE REAL TESTING TIME.

The danger of inflation and its black shadow, deflation, will last as long as goods are scarce and insufficient to meet demands.

With the war over and plenty of money in our pockets it's easy to overlook the danger.

It's easy to think that paying just a little more to get something we want is unimportant now.

It's easy to think that what you do can't hurt—and to forget that careless, extravagant buying is a sure way to help a general rise in prices.

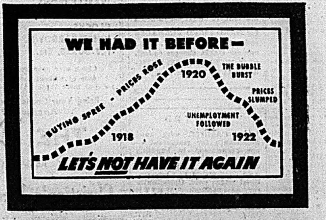
That's how inflation gets going.

BUT INFLATION IS ALWAYS FOLLOWED BY DEFLATION.

And deflation brings cancelled orders, bankrupt businesses, mortgage foreclosures, unemployment and distress—distress you can't avoid.

Until industry gets back to normal, price ceilings, rationing and other controls are our safeguard.

SO—Keep on watching your buying. Don't rush to buy scarce goods:
Keep on saving your money. Put it into Victory bonds and War Savings certificates.
Keep on supporting wage and price controls, and rationing:
Keep on fighting inflation and its black shadow ::: deflation:



This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing a further increase in the cost of living now and deflation and unemployment later.

LORD HAW HAW SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR TREASON

Jap Premier Says Govt. Will Seek Out War Guilty

Does Not Consider Emperor Hirohito a War Criminal

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 19 (AP)—Prince Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni, Japan's occupation premier, told Allied correspondents he had no advance knowledge of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, did not order execution of Doolittle's fliers, and does not consider Emperor Hirohito a war criminal.

The Prince made those statements yesterday at an unprecedented press conference, the first ever granted by a member of the Royal family and the first in a long time granted by any premier to foreign newspapermen.

Hiyashi-Kuni said the Japanese government plans to determine responsibility for starting the Pacific war and will try the accused if Gen. MacArthur approves. He said some Japanese already had been punished by the Nipponese army and navy for prison camp cruelties, but gave no details.

The Premier said further that: He himself had protested, indirectly, Japanese atrocities.

He would inquire whether the Emperor knew in advance of the Pearl Harbor attack and would inform the press later.

There would not be another Pearl Harbor because "we will see to it that the Emperor won't be deceived again by the militarists."

He did not know Japan was so weak. "Only a few militarists knew that. This was one of the greatest reasons for Japan's defeat."

Mamoru Shigemitsu, surrender signatory, resigned as foreign minister because "he was foreign minister during the war and now we are launched on building a new Japan."

He (Higashi-Kuni) "would like to abolish the army and navy ministries as soon as demobilization is completed" but that both are needed until then.

Two-Hour Conference.

The Premier weathered, without losing his composure, a two-hour press conference with some 50 Allied correspondents who asked sharp, sometimes hostile questions. He did, however, decline to answer some questions. The conference was held in the reception room of his official residence. He promised that he would see the Allied correspondents who represent many countries, twice a month.

The Premier, questioned at length about the execution of some Doolittle fliers following their bombing of Tokyo, April 8, 1942, said he had charge of home defences "up to the time the plane was shot down, but thereafter what happened was beyond my province....I am not in a position to tell you" who ordered the executions.

He said he "heard reports some American fliers were executed in Japan, but it was not my business to look into such matters. I was one who protested (against cruelties to war prisoners), although indirectly, to Imperial general headquarters. They said they would think it over."

He doubted that the Emperor knew of atrocities and stated that he "was in no position to inform" Hirohito thereof during the war.

New List Coming Up

A new and long list of suspected Japanese war criminals is to be issued shortly, it was announced today.

Brig.-Gen. Elliott Thorpe, Chief of American counter-intelligence, said the new list of Japanese wanted for questioning will be much larger than the original one of 47 which began with Hideki Tojo and ranged down through his cabinet.

All but two men of that cabinet which started the Pacific war were on the first list and General Thorpe said their omission "was a clerical error."

The next list is expected to bulge with names of Japanese wanted for interrogation concerning the tortures of Allied prisoners in Nipponese war camps.

Tokyo newspapers today said Higashi-Kuni will send an "envoy of apology" to China because of war crimes committed against that republic. There was no elaboration.

No Extension Of Deer Season

Toronto, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Reintroduction of meat rationing will not lead to extension of the deer-hunting season in Ontario, Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Game and Fisheries, said yesterday.

Mr. Dunbar gave deer shooting dates as follows: Central and Southeastern Ontario which includes Haliburton, Oct. 12 to 27; North of the Mattawa River and Lake Nipissing and south of the Transcontinental Railway, Oct. 15 to Nov. 25; Parry Sound district and west of Algonquin Park, north of the Transcontinental line, Nov. 5 to 20; Southern portions of Sudbury, Algoma and Manitoulin districts and north of the French River, Nov. 1 to 25, and Manitoulin Island, Nov. 10 to 25.

Report Boy Confesses To Slaying Child

Vancouver, Sept. 19 —(CP)— A 12-year-old Vancouver junior high school student, who Monday directed police to an unused garage where the body of four-year-old Dianne Blunt was found, was reported yesterday to have confessed to the slaying of the child.

Held at the juvenile detention home here since a few hours after the body was uncovered in the dirt floor of the garage 25 yards from her East Hastings district home, the youth was questioned yesterday by detectives.

They neither confirmed nor denied a report that he admitted playing with Dianne by the garage and strangling her inside the building.

Police would make no com- Police would make no comment.

An autopsy disclosed that the little girl who had been missing since Aug. 11 was stabbed near the heart with a sharp metal instrument similar to an ice pick.

Recovered in the body, the blade is being held with the boy's clothes for examination by Inspector J. F. C. B. Vance, police analyst. An inquest will be held later this week.

Walter Mulligan, superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Bureau who directed police investigations of the girl's disappearance and death, said last night that no further suspects were being sought.

Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser Ends 42 Years Service in British Navy

By HAL BOYLE

Aboard Battleship Duke of York, en route to Hong Kong, Sept. 13.— (Delayed) — (AP) — The top British seadog in the Pacific is a 57-year-old Scottish bachelor who knows his way around with a Russian balalaika as well as on a battleship.

He is Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, whose present assignment as commander-in-chief of the British Pacific Fleet, with some 400 ships of all types under his command, crowns 42 years of service in the Royal Navy.

He began as a 15-year-old "spotty," Royal Navy slang for midshipman, and may well wind up as Britain's First Sea Lord, the peak of any regular navy man's career.

"Tubby," as fellow admirals call the stocky, five-foot-eight-inch Scot, looks like anything but a seadog. He is an easy-going, friendly, approachable man with gray hair and light blue eyes that really smile. Perhaps because he has never been married and has no children of his own, he is especially kind to junior officers, who normally lead Spartan lives in the Royal Navy. They idolize him.

When he isn't at sea, this genial pipe-smoking admiral lives with his aged invalid mother in their modest family home near Hampton Palace by the Thames. The home is crowded with souvenirs from his global seafaring.

Ties between mother and son are exceedingly close and the first thing the Admiralty did after Admiral Fraser had finished sinking the German battleship Scharnhorst was to send word of the son's victory to his mother, now in her 80's.

The hour of the battle, Dec. 23, 1943, off north Cape Norway, in the midst of Arctic darkness, Sir Bruce sent the Admiralty a two-word message. It said: "Scharnhorst sunk."

Similarly, when his ship steamed into Sagami Bay at the war's end, he messaged cryptically: "The fleet is anchored in Japanese waters."

His diaries are less terse, however, than his spoken words.

As Third Sea Lord at the start of the war, he organized the construction and repair of all British fleet units. He is recognized as the Royal Navy's premier gunner and a master of navigation and of surface and air co-ordination, having personally commanded the fleet's first modern aircraft carriers.

One of his greatest feats was the protection of convoys to Russia along the northern route, and he delivered 1,250,000 tons of supplies to the Soviets over the Arctic sea lanes.

COMMONS HEARS SUGGESTIONS FOR MORE AUTONOMY

Rev. D. McIvor in Favor Of Distinctive Flag, Citizenship and Own National Anthem

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Suggestions that Canada should be in a position to make any desired constitutional changes without application to the British parliament were advanced by government supporters in the Commons yesterday when Opposition members devoted most of their attention to reconversion problems.

Ralph Maybank (L-Winnipeg South Centre) said that applications to the British parliament for changes in the constitution were inconsistent with Canada's dignity as a nation and put an improper onus on Westminster.

"We must turn our attention to becoming masters of our own constitutional law," said Mr. Maybank. "From that much more can follow in the way of process and improvement."

He felt that the British parliament should not be in a position of having to decide some day on a contentious matter between two contending factions in Canada.

"We should make sure that it will never be done; we should make sure by taking into our own hands the power of amending the constitution," said Mr. Maybank.

His views were supported by Rev. D. McIvor, (L-Fort William) who said that "we have a right to make and control our own laws; and we think we can rule ourselves better than any jurist from the city of London or Old England."

Mr. McIvor said he supported the contention that Canada should have a distinctive flag, a distinctive citizenship and her own national anthem, but he went a step farther by producing a design for the new flag.

Displays New Design

He displayed in the Commons a flag, designed by an Ottawa manufacturer, whom he did not name. The flag had nine horizontal red,

R.M.A. Proposes That Meat Rationing be Suspended; Alternative Method Asked

Ottawa, Sept. 19 —(CP)— The Retail Merchants Association of Canada proposed today to the government that meat rationing regulations be suspended immediately and an alternative method be substituted for making Canada's contribution to the world supply of meat for the relief of distressed European people.

The proposal was made in a resolution which an association delegation presented to Prices Board officials this morning at a closed meeting which had been called, following Dominion-wide protests since the inception of the new meat rationing system a week ago Monday.

The association released the resolution to the press shortly before going into the conference room in the east block of the parliament buildings.

The resolution did not say how an alternative method for making Canada's contribution of meat overseas should operate.

It said that the delegation, representing meat dealers from all parts of Canada, was "in entire sympathy" with the objective of the re-introduction of meat rationing but added that information available to the retail meat trade indicated there was a large surplus of cattle which could not be absorbed by existing agencies of processing and distribution.

This surplus, coinciding with the re-introduction of meat rationing, had resulted in "inevitable waste" which would tend to aggravate the situation rather than relieve it.

The retail delegation, numbering 25 to 30, met in closed conference with K. W. Taylor, deputy chairman of the Prices Board for Food, and H. I. Ross, rationing administrator.

The question of an open meeting came up in parliament last night, but Finance Minister Ilsley told the House it was decided more progress could be made if the meeting were held in camera.

The Retailers' delegation was headed by George Hougham, Association Secretary, who already had indicated he considered the meeting of enough importance to warrant cabinet representation, particularly the attendance of Finance Minister Ilsley under whose department the Prices Board operates, and Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

It was not known immediately if the ministers were in attendance.

Mr. Hougham said the meeting would not be merely a conference to protest meat rationing, but that the association delegates expected to have definite proposals to make to the Board. As for the Board representatives, they said they would go into the meeting with "open minds".

The government has claimed reintroduction of meat rationing across the nation Sept. 10, was a measure necessary so that Canada might ship more meat abroad to aid the starving peoples of Europe and to help hold up the British ration. Officials said, too, that Canada must send meat if she can expect a fair share of imported supplies, such as sugar, tea and vegetable oils.

Criticism of rationing by meat dealers began on its re-introduction. Some claimed it unnecessary and said restricted buying under rationing was forcing them to throw meat away.

RUM, GIN RATION MAY BE LIFTED FIRST OF MONTH

Move Will be Made to Relieve Pressure on Sale of Whisky

Toronto, Sept. 19.—Gin and rum may be placed on the unrationed list starting Oct. 1, in an attempt to relieve pressure on available supplies of rye whisky. Either the Liquor Control Board will permit unrestricted sale of these types of liquors or it will boost the monthly ration of 52 ounces of whisky by the addition of an extra bottle of gin or rum every two weeks. This would bring the ration to 104 ounces monthly.

Chief Commissioner William Webster said Tuesday that the board has ample quantities of gin and rum on hand. The distillers had asked the board to make gin available to the public in order to relieve pressure on whisky.

May Soon Drop Ration

It is believed the time is rapidly approaching when the rationing system will be dispensed with altogether, although board officials were reluctant to set any approximate date as to when they thought this would occur. Several factors enter into the picture, these officials say. One is the abnormal demand for liquor, and they believe that when motor cars, radios, refrigerators and other commodities are once again available in unlimited quantity, the consumption of liquor will drop sharply.

The problem of liquor supply is said to be bound up to some extent with the tax situation in Canada. If the Dominion Government slashes the excess profits tax by a substantial percentage, the distillers will be thus encouraged to market their product freely. Already heavily in excess profits, the distillers are said to be awaiting the promised measure of tax relief before embarking upon any expansion of sales.

Sales Still Heavy

When the Liquor Control Board boosted the monthly ration from 26 ounces to 52 ounces, it was believed that the number of liquor permits in use would drop from an estimated 70 per cent of those in circulation, to about 50 per cent. But sales figures failed to bear out expectations. When statistics for the first half of September are compiled, it is likely that they will show even more than 70 per cent of permit-holders exercised their legal right of purchase.

"Apparently we haven't reached the peak of public demand", commented Mr. Webster. "Money that normally would go into other channels is being used for liquor purchases.

ITALIAN COLONIES' FUTURE CENTRE OF GREAT INTEREST

Paris Newspaper Voices Criticism of Display of Interest by Russia

By JOHN A. PARRIS

London, Sept. 19 — (AP)—Russia's sudden display of interest in the future of Italian colonies drew criticism from Paris today that the conference of foreign ministers had assumed the appearance of a struggle of two or three great powers for control of the Mediterranean.

The influential Paris newspaper Le Monde, which often reflects the views of the French foreign office, said:

"We now are far from the principles proclaimed at San Francisco."

Diplomatic attention in London was centred on Russia's acknowledged interest in the future of Eritrea, on the Red Sea, 2,000 miles from Soviet soil, and in Tripolitania. Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, said yesterday there was some truth to reports Russia might make claims on Tripolitania.

The Big Five Council of foreign ministers, meanwhile, turned to the matter of the Italian-Yugoslav frontier, weighing a mass of evidence presented by both sides, which must be sifted before a draft of the Italian peace treaty is drawn.

The Yugoslav Vice Premier, Edward Karelj, presented a case claiming all Venezia Giulia and the territory west of Italy's 1940 border, reliable reports said. Foreign Minister Alcide de Gasperi of Italy countered that Italy wanted as a frontier the Wilson line — somewhat west of the prewar border — which would give the Yugoslavs Fiume, and De Gasperi said, 30 per cent of Italy's coal mines and 12½ per cent of Italy's mercury resources.

WILL NOT VOTE

Winnipeg, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Members of the armed services from Manitoba stationed outside the province will not vote in the provincial general election until between Dec. 28 and Jan. 10, it was announced today. The general polling day is Oct. 15.

Regulations issued under the Active Service Election and Representation Act, which provide for election of three members representing the army, navy and air force, fix Oct. 11 and 12 for taking the service vote in the province. For men returning home after election day, the polling days are Jan. 10 and 11.

RIGHT OF PICKETS TO BAN WORKERS WILL BE TESTED

Summonses Expected To be Issued For Violating Criminal Code in Strike

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 19. (CP) —New development in the Ford Motor Company of Canada strike, arising out of a disagreement between the company and Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers of America, (C.I.O.), today was word that the next few days will determine whether pickets will be able to enforce their eight-day ban against office workers going to their jobs.

Two of the pickets, at least, were expected to receive summonses today demanding their appearance to answer charges for violating the criminal code. Such an action, should it happen, would be taken under Sub-Section "F" of the criminal code entitled "intimidation".

The Sub-section holds that it is a punishable offence to do anything to "wrongfully and without proper authority, with a view to compelling any other person to abstain from doing anything which he has a lawful right to do, or to do anything from which he has a lawful right to abstain".

It adds that it is also a punishable offence to watch or beset "the house or other place where such other person resides or works, or carries on a business or happens to be".

Yesterday company officials reportedly took names of pickets denying office workers entrance to the company plant.

The strike, involving 10,000 employees, which began last week, has had no outbreak of violence and authorities were confident offices could be opened, if necessary, without any occurring.

Windsor police have declined to escort office employees through picket lines. So far no attempt has been made to break the lines, manned by 1,000 workers.

The Union is seeking negotiation of a new collective bargaining agreement including a Union shop and the check-off. The affiliated Local 195, representing 8,000 workers in thirty other plants, has set up strike committees in the event sympathetic strikes are sanctioned by the U.A.W. policy committee and the international executive board.

Amendment of the Federal Labor code to make inclusion of Union Security clauses mandatory in all collective agreements if requested by either party was recommended in a statement issued last night by a special committee of the executive of the Canadian Congress of Labor and representatives of striking Ford workers.

Pathfinder Squadrons Top Secret Throughout the European War

By FLT. LT. SAM P. CROMIE
(R.C.A.F. Public Relations)

London, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Destination, M M Leipzig; weather . . . heavy cloud — and the February cold of Bedfordshire was at its clammiest. Flying men of the City of Vancouver Squadron knew all this as they taxied giant bombers through blackness and they knew that soon the cloud would obliterate the world beneath them.

Success of the Canadians on this raid and many others established the Vancouver Squadron as the most illustrious of the Dominion's operational units. But only now with peace restored can the squadron's dramatic story — the story behind the men who wear the distinctive gold albatross on their left breast pocket — be told.

Work of Pathfinder squadrons was top secret throughout the European war and it remained that way after VE-Day because the same technique eventually would have been used against the Japs.

The Vancouver Squadron Lancasters were on no ordinary bombing mission when they roared away that night for Leipzig. As Pathfinders they were out ahead of the main bomber stream and it was their job to find Leipzig somewhere under the canopy of cloud.

The master bomber of the force and his crew worked unceasingly on their radar-controlled instruments picking up and flashing the signals that spelled out coast lines, lakes and cities to their trained eyes.

From the master bomber's Lancaster a huge flare dropped and slowly floated downwards. Close on his tail came the supporting bombers. Taking aim on nothing but the lazily drifting flare, the bomb aimers pushed their switches and bombs whistled down.

The Pathfinders turned their Lancs westward and headed for home. They had paved the way to a devastating attack without ever having seen their target. Photo reconnaissance days later proved that they had truly found their mark.

The technique of pathfinding was the baby of Air Vice Marshal D. C. T. Bennett, one of the R.A.F.'s top pilots and authorities on navigation. He conceived the idea of forming an elite corps in Bomber Command, made up of the best crews that could be found. They were to precede the main force to the target and raise fires to minimize the chance of error by younger and inexperienced crews. They were first called the "Fire Raiser" Squadron.

William Joyce Was Chief Broadcaster In English for Nazis

London, Sept. 19 —(AP)— William Joyce, Lord Haw Haw of the German radio, was convicted of treason in Old Bailey today and sentenced to be hanged.

It took less than a half-hour for the jury of 10 men and two women to convict the nasal-voiced American-born Joyce.

All during the early blitz of Britain Haw Haw, who earned his sobriquet because of his affected English accent, taunted the British people.

The scar-faced Haw Haw, who had succeeded in establishing his American birthright and thus had expected to escape British justice, was ruled by Mr. Justice Tucker to have left Britain in 1939 "wrapped up in the Union Jack" in order to carry on German propaganda. The Judge's reference was made in respect to Joyce's travelling under a British passport.

On this basis, Joyce owed allegiance to the British Crown when he left the country because of the protection afforded him by a British passport.

Joyce to Appeal.

Joyce will make an immediate appeal, his lawyers announced.

Joyce stood quietly while the trial was ending.

When he walked away toward his cell he gave what appeared to be the Nazi salute to friends in the courtroom.

When the result of the trial was heard outside bomb-scarred Old Bailey a waiting crowd of Londoners raised a cheer.

On an unprecedented point of law, the presiding justice held that allegiance to the Crown existed "beyond the shadow of a doubt" Aug. 24, 1939, when Joyce, applying for a British passport, swore he was a British subject. Joyce left soon after for Germany.

Earlier, the Attorney General, Sir Hartley Shawcross, cited a statute dating from 1543 to support his argument that treason committed outside the realm could be tried in the King's courts.

Joyce never had denied that he had broadcast for the Germans.

One of his broadcasting specialties, especially in the early days of the war, was the sarcastic reference to the late Prime Minister Chamberlain, whom he said was attempting to bluff his way out of the war "with only an umbrella." Joyce continually told Britons their country was decadent and that they had lost the war.

The convicted man's brother, Edwin Joyce, a British government worker, made the sign of the cross when the sentence of death was passed, and after the prisoner left the courtroom he knelt in silent prayer.

Aussies Tell Of Mass Beheading Of Chinese People

Brisbane, Sept. 19 (Reuters)—Liberated Australian prisoners of war who have arrived from Singapore told of mass beheading and torture of Chinese men and women.

C. M. Barmer, transport driver from Grafton, who will testify before the atrocities commission after being a prisoner for 3 1-2 years, said the Japanese forced him to drive trucks full of Chinese civilians to execution.

"The Japanese stripped women, tied their hands behind their backs and wired their noses to fences," he said.

"Girls were taken to brothels. Women were executed for stealing milk or any food, which they were driven through starvation to do."

Barmer estimated that he drove 10 to 12 Chinese to execution each day for two years. After a short summary trial, they were taken away and beheaded.

Safe Crackers Frightened Away From Bank Vault

Fenwick, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP)—Police said that the branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here was broken into during the night by safe crackers who were frightened away just as they had drilled through the door of the vault. Fenwick is seven miles west of Welland.

D. D. Hannah, branch manager, found a blow torch, a sledge hammer and other tools in front of the smashed door of the vault. They were lying behind a screen, believed put up so the burglars could work without being detected.

A checkup showed nothing had been taken and police believe the cracksmen either were frightened away or worked too long on the job and had to leave with the coming of daylight.

EGYPTIAN LAWYER HANGED

Cairo, Sept. 18 (AP) — Mahmud Issaway, 26 year old lawyer, was hanged this morning for the slaying of Egyptian Prime Minister Ahmed Pasha last February 26 just after the government leader had announced his cabinet's decision to declare war on the Axis.

Issaway, pale and haggard, was led into the death chamber by six guards at 8 a.m. and was pronounced dead three minutes and 30 seconds later.

FRIEND TOOK WALLET AS PRECAUTION

Thoughtfulness of a friend in taking care of a wallet containing approximately $400 caused the rightful owner a bit of anxiety on Monday as result of which she notified police of the suspected loss of her money.

It seems a woman from Madoc was visiting a local beverage parlor and in the opinion of the hotel employees had indulged a trifle too freely with result she was refused more beer. She later missed her wallet containing the above sum and despite the fact the beverage room was swept out no trace of the money could be found.

It later turned out that a friend noticing the Madoc acquaintance to be intoxicated took charge of her wallet as a safety measure.

INJURED IN COLLISION WITH TRAIN AT WEST HUNTINGDON CROSSING

John McCurdy, 62, Halloway, is in Belleville General Hospital suffering from reported bruises and facial injuries sustained when his auto was in collision with a C.N.R. train at the West Huntingdon crossing on the Madoc road. The accident occurred Tuesday morning, he being admitted to the hospital shortly before noon.

YARDMAN STRUCK BY SWITCH ENGINE

Leo Orr, of this city was taken to Belleville General Hospital suffering with injuries sustained in an accident at the Canadian National Railways station. He was struck, it is alleged, by a yard engine and dragged under the running board. His condition is said to be good.

3 Minor Traffic Crashes Reported

Three minor traffic accidents were reported to local city police Tuesday afternoon with police stating charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident are pending against one driver.

A Church Street motorist was driving on Front Street when he struck the rear of a parked auto damaging the fender, tail light, and rear bumper and buckling the fenders and badly damaging the front wheel of his car. He drove home without stopping but the incident was observed by Provincial Constable Gould who followed and brought him back to the city police station.

Eldon Adams was emerging from Market Street onto Front Street when he struck an auto being driven by Robt. Smith R.R. 3 Belleville. The Smith car was knocked into a parked car at the Queens Hotel with damages to all cars amounting to approximately $35.

The third accident occurred on Dundas Street as William Gray was coming out of a driveway. His auto was in collision with another driven by Mrs. Cordelia Blakley, Foster Ave., causing damage to the left front fender of the Blakley car and the bumper of the Gray auto. Damages were amicably settled.

Full Program Will be Carried Out at Fair

Directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society, lost the first round to the Weatherman but came up smiling today with the announcement that the Exhibition will "carry on" as usual with two days fun merged into one.

The original program scheduled for yesterday and today will be carried out this afternoon and evening. The Midway and Stage Show has been held over and will go into action today. There is no truth in the rumor, officials stated that the fair has closed. It will not be extended and will officially close tonight.

Deluging rain definitely put a quietus on activities yesterday and nothing but inside functions were carried out.

However, nothing daunted, directors announced today that the Fair will go on this afternoon and evening and hope that the large crowd which would have been on hand yesterday will enjoy the Fair this afternoon and tonight.

418 Attend Opening Party of "Teen-Agers"

Belleville's "teen-agers" got off to a flying start in their fall and winter activities the other night with approximately 418 boys and girls between the ages of 13-19 attending the opening party at the Collegiate Institute.

The "kids" parties are being sponsored by the Rotary Club and Y.M.C.A. here and are rapidly gaining in popularity.

Representatives of the various organizations are on hand every Friday night in a supervisory role and have stated that the young people have conducted themselves in an excellent manner and are thoroughly appreciative of the opportunity to enjoy themselves under good conditions.

Rotarian Newton Thompson, chairman of the Rotary Club teen-agers committee, stated that the crowd at the opening night was the largest thus far, and if the parties continue to gain in popularity the second gymnasium of the Collegiate will be utilized.

Teen-age parties are held every Friday night.

Schoharie

Schoharie.— Mr. and Mrs. Angus Walters were dinner guests of Mrs. Geo. Hobson on Sunday.

Flt.-Lt. H. E. Walters left on Friday for Toronto, and expects to receive his discharge from the R.C.A.F., he will be a guest of his uncle, Mr. J. A. Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, while in the city.

Mrs. Geo. Hobson entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pierson, of Syracuse, N.Y., and her nephew, Mr. Fred Pierson, of Watertown, last week.

Mrs. W. D. Irish and Mrs. C. King, of Toronto, left for their home on Monday after spending some time with the former's daughter, Mrs. Theodore Foster and family.

Mrs. Don Phasey, Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. Mildred Benson, spent the tea hour on Monday, with Mrs. Geo. Hobson.

WHIRLWIND COURTSHIP RECALLED

Toronto, Sept. 19 —(CP)— A two-day courtship at Niagara Falls, Ont., between a young aide de camp to a governor general and a girl who had just won a tennish championship led to their marriage 50 years ago yesterday, the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Smith of Toronto recalled during the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. Smith was aide de camp to Lord Aberdeen, Governor-General of Canada, and afterwards managed His Excellency's Coldstream Ranch in Alberta. On a trip east, he was introduced to Mrs. Smith at Niagara Falls and married her two days later.

Squires to Play In Bowmanville On Wednesday

The venue of the junior O.A.S.A. deciding game between Columbian Squires and Mt. Carmel team of Toronto has been set for Bowmanville on Thursday afternoon at five o'clock. The previous arrangements were to have the game played in Peterborough but Secretary Feaver of the O.A.S.A. notified Mr. John Boyle, manager of the Squires on Tuesday that the venue had been changed. This will give the local team about twenty-five miles farther to travel than the Toronto team.

The Squires will travel to Bowmanville by bus and the management has announced there is room for about ten more and anyone wishing to accompany the team should get in touch with John Boyle or any member of the team. The bus will leave at one o'clock and will leave Bowmanville directly after the game. The Squires will go into the finals for the Provincial Championship if they can win this one. Don Boyle will go to the mound to try and repeat his performance of last Saturday, when he let the opposition down with two hits. Vern Goyer will be an absentee from the lineup but Mr. Boyle has plenty of replacements for the shortstopping position.

Invents Device Showing Coupon And Token Value Meat

Calgary, Sept. 19. (CP)—E. S. Mayhood, of Calgary, an accountant with a chain store firm (Safeway) has heard the prayer of Canadian butchers and smashed it.

He has invented and patented a simple device which shows instantly the exact coupon and token value of any piece of meat placed on a butcher's scales.

The device is a strip of paper which is fastened around the drum of the scale. The strip is divided into five columns, one for each meat "group". When a cut of meat is put on the scale, the drum revolves and when it stops it shows, in addition to the exact weight and prices the ration coupon value.

The old way, which is driving the country's butchers to threats of strike, was to determine the exact weight from the scale and then look up the coupon value on a chart provided by the government.

All the meat counters in the chain store where Mayhood works now art equipped with Mayhood's indicator and other Calgary butchers are taking them up as fast as they can be printed.

DREAM SUFFERS SETBACK

New York, Sept. 19 — (AP) — The nylon hosiery dream suffered a setback yesterday. The National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers said even with predicted production of 3,500,000 dozen prs. by Christmas, there would be less than one pair for each woman in the United States by that time.

20 BELGIAN TAILORS SENTENCED TO PRISON

Binche, Belgium, Sept. 19 — (Reuters) — Twenty tailors here have been sentenced to terms of penal servitude ranging from five to 20 years, and fines totalling more than $1,000,000 for making the striped pajamas worn by political prisoners in German concentration camps. They also were charged with manufacturing the Yellow Star of David which Jews in occupied countries were forced to wear.

Girl Babies Win Both Classes At Fair Baby Show

Dimpled and gurgling baby girls so to speak showed a clean pair of heels to their male competitors in the 1945 edition of the annual baby show at the Belleville fair with two members of the gentler sex winning top honors in their respective classes.

Eleven-months-old Victoria Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wheeler, 26 Isobel Street, won first prize in the seven to twelve months' class, while in the one to six months' class, little Sharon Ruth Gareipy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Gareipy, 238 Foster Ave., took first money.

Inclement weather considerably lessened the number of entries in the baby show with only eighteen mothers braving the drenching rain to bring their infants to the fair grounds. Last year there were 40 babies entered in the two classes, but many early entries being in prior to fair time, exhibition officials predicted had the weather been fine there would have been fifty or more babies entered this year.

Second place in the 7-12 months' class went to 11-month old Wayne Branton, son of Mrs. H. Branton, 81 College Street; third place went to Harold Matthew MacDonald, 7 1-2 months, son of C. H. MacDonald, 250 Charles Street. Beverly May Davies, 12 months, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Davies, 25 Pine St., took fourth place and fifth place was won by Jack Jury, [illegible] months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jury, 182 Charles Street.

Douglas Wayne Clarke, four-months, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clarke, 169 Burnham Street, won second prize in the 1-6 months class with other prize winners being Ronald John Knight, 6-months, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Knight, 47 Gordon Street, Catherine Isabel Jordan, 4 1-2 months, daughter of Mrs. Isabel Jordan, R.R. 6, Belleville, and Karen Tebworth, 5-months' daughter of Mrs. E. Tebworth, 396 Bleecker Avenue.

Ex-Mayor Harry Rollins acted as director over the baby show, assisted by several of the lady directors of the fair. Judges for the show were Mrs. Douglas Airhart, Mrs. Mabel Wellard, Miss Mary S. Byers, Mrs. E. McMullen and Miss D. Funstin. All judges were registered nurses.

Bandits Left Empty-Handed

Windsor, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Two masked men, one armed with a sub machine-gun and the other a revolver, failed today in an attempt to rob a branch of the Provincial Bank here. The men escaped in an automobile.

The hold-up plan was thwarted by Richard Farron, bank caretaker, after the young pair entered the building, at the corner of Ottawa St. and Lincoln Road, by a coal chute before any of the staff had arrived for work. Farron was ordered by the men to allow bank employees to enter as they arrived. Instead, when the first employee, Mary Platte, arrived Farron went to the door, pushed her back into the street and then ran down the street himself.

The two masked men then ran from the bank. Several citizens took up the chase but the men fled in an automobile they had parked nearby.

Police believe the two intended to hold up the employees and force them to open the vault. So far as has been ascertained, the men left empty-handed.

MacKENZIE'S COLUMN

Russia and Mediterranean Sea— Question of Italian Colonies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Quietly but inevitably Moscow is stalking claims to trusteeship over important Italian colonies which would extend Russia's vast influence the length of the Mediterranean —long dominated by Britain.

This column a few days ago described the Mediterranean theatre as "one of the most important zones strategically on the face of the globe". I repeat it with emphasis, for Foreign Commissar Molotov —who is in London for the conference of the Big Five Council of Foreign Ministers—has now not only made it clear that Russia is anxious to obtain a foothold on that great sea but he has given a lead as to the specific aims of the Soviet Union.

Mr. Molotov told the Press yesterday that Russia is interested in Italian colonies, and that there's "a grain of truth" in the report that she wants sole trusteeship over the North African colony of Tripolitania. Then, in more positive strain, he added:

"I will not conceal Soviet interests in Eritrea" (The Italian Colony lying on the Red Sea and adjoining Ethiopia).

Tripolitania is midway of the Mediterranean and is an important base. Eritrea, which lies at the southern mouth of the Red Sea, would be calculated to ensure right of way through that body of water and the Suez canal which connects it with the Mediterranean on the north. Add to this the fact that Tangier, on the southern shore of the narrow Strait of Gilbraltar, is to be internationalized, and the set-up is complete.

Russia would be guaranteed freedom over the entire length of the Mediterranean — from the Aegean to the Atlantic —and through the Suez Canal route to the Far East.

Should all this materialize, what would be the likely effect on world-peace? The only safe answer, is one based on facts and not on fancies. This is that peace demands that the Mediterranean be maintained as an international waterway, with free passage for all countries. Any conflict over control of this sea must precipitate another great upheaval.

One hears it suggested speculatively that Russia may be raising the question of trusteeship in order to create bargaining points for settlement of differences among the Big Three in Eastern Europe. Specifically, Russia does not like the government of Greece (sponsored by Britain) but does support the regimes of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania (which Britain and the United States refuse to recognize). Russia also is backing Yugoslav demands for Italian territory.

Of course there's a lot of horse-trading going on, but the signs long have been that Russia is bent on establishing herself as one of the Mediterranean powers. She is trying to break out of the Black Sea.

125 Junior Farmers and Girls Banqueted After Completing Competitions at Belleville Fair

J. Owen Herity, Principal Speaker, Giving Travelogue on Mexico

Judging competitions of junior farmers clubs and girls' homemaking clubs were practically the only bright spots of the Belleville Fair on Tuesday as heavy rain continued throughout the day to drown out all outdoor judging and other events.

With approximately 125 junior farmers and girls entered in various junior competitions conducted by department of agriculture officials, considerably more interest was shown in the events than during the past few years.

Prize winners were announced during the evening banquet at Holloway Street United Church with Mr. A. H. Martin Assistant Director of Agriculture, giving out boys' winners and Miss Verna Bambridge of the Women's Institute Branch announcing results of the girls' competitions.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. J. Owen Herity, of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce who saw in the junior judging competitions a successful attempt on the part of the government departments to link up the school and the home. He paid tribute to Mr. H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative for Hastings, whom he described as a true leader, a leader who leads without seeming to lead. As his topic for the evening Mr. Herity gave a travelogue on Mexico.

Sponsored by Dairies.

The junior banquet was sponsored by four district creameries, Trenton Dairies, Swift Canadian Company, Belleville Creameries and the Trent Valley Creameries, with G. S. Brownell manager of Swift Canadian in Belleville acting as chairman. President of Belleville Fair, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, extended the official welcome of the fair board to the juniors.

Girls from Northumberland county were heavy winners in the girls' events, with Raymond McLaughlin of Lennox and Addington taking top honors in the boys' open class with Alfred Gooding and Harold Rowe, Northumberland, being high among calf club competitors.

Obituary

JOHN O'BOYLE
(Stouffville)

Stirling, Sept. 19 — (Special)— John O'Boyle, drover and farmer from Stouffville, dropped dead in McKee's restaurant in Stirling shortly before six o'clock Tuesday evening. He was known to have a heart ailment.

For some years he has visited the Stirling district buying cattle and at this time he was there for that purpose. In age he was in his fifties. He leaves a wife and one child, also a brother in Stouffville.

The body will be forwarded this evening to Stouffville from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, Belleville.

HUGH JOSEPH REID

Hugh Joseph Reid, 281 William Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday, Sept. 18th., after an illness of two days' duration.

Born at Read, Tyendinaga Township, the late Mr. Reid was in his 86th year, and was a son of the late John Reid and his wife Grace Lockray. For some years he lived in Western Canada and for the past twenty-nine years he made his home in this city and lived retired.

He was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society and the Altar Society.

Mr. Reid was the last of his family and is survived by his wife, the former Annie O'Brien; two nephews, James Lafferty and Joseph Lafferty, both of Trenton; six nieces, Mrs. John McDonnell, Trenton; Mrs. James McDonald, Trenton; Miss Alice Sullivan, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. H. L. Anderson, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Oliver Ley, Williamston, Mich., and Miss Grace Foley, Toronto.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

3 B-29's Flying From Japan To Washington

Washington, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Japan and the Pacific behind them, three giant B-29 bombers roared eastward over Alaska today on a non-stop, 6,500-mile flight to Washington.

The Superfortresses, which took off from the Japanese mainland beginning at 4:01 a.m. E.D.T. yesterday, passed over Fairbanks, Alaska, at 6:10 a.m. E.D.T.

Lt.-Gen. Barney M. Giles, Commander of the flight, radioed earlier from Nome, Alaska, that he expected to land in Washington at 6 p.m. after entering the United States near Duluth, Minn.

A general of the United States Army Air Forces commanded each of the Superfortresses. They lifted from the huge Mizutami airport near Sapporo, capital of Hokkaido yesterday for the expected 25 ½-hour flight.

Lt.-Gen. Giles, commander of all Army Air Forces in the Pacific Ocean area, headed the 12-man crew of the lead plane. In command of the other planes were Maj.-Gen. Curtis E. Lemay and Brig.-Gen. Emmett O'Donnell.

The B-29s were averaging 236 miles an hour.

The giant bombers were stripped of armament and armor to lighten them for the great fuel load and also to provide for the slightly oversized crews. Each plane had 12 men aboard to permit a rotation of duties during the long flight.

The army apparently was not attempting an official non-stop airline distance record. So far as could be learned there were no arrangements for official checkers from either the National Aeronautic Association or the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

F. A. I. records list as the longest airline distance flight a two-plane British hop of 7,158 miles from Ismailia, Egypt, to Darwin, Australia, in November, 1938.

Complete Overhaul Of Liquor System In Ont. Reported

Toronto, Sept. 19 — A complete overhaul of the liquor system in Ontario, to rid the Province of certain objectionable features, is reported to be under study by the Drew Government. No changes affecting the methods of sale will be made until such time as demand and supply reach a more normal basis.

The Government is said to recognize that the existing system is an obsolete one and that a basic alteration in methods must be found while at the same time retaining the control features which have been proved effective over the years.

Not U. S. System.

There is no prospect that the Province will embark upon a sales system such as prevails in the United States, where bottled spirits and drinks by the glass are available with little or no restriction. But it is felt that as long as the purchase of liquor is legal, the volume of "secret" drinking must be reduced to a minimum, and this cannot be achieved unless there is some form of public drinking under effective regulations.

While the Ontario Cabinet is said to be agreed upon the necessity for fundamental changes in the Liquor Control Act, there appears to be no unanimity as to the course to be followed. All Ministers are reported to be agreed upon the desirability of eliminating a lot of the hotel-bedroom drinking which now prevails. Just how to proceed is another matter. It is felt that the interests of temperance would be served by bringing consumption of spirits into the open.

Beer-Room Changes Seen.

As far as beverage rooms are concerned, an overhaul is indicated, too, with a view to making beer drinking a more orderly affair instead of the guzzling process it has become in recent years. Removal of chairs, tables from beverage rooms is advanced in some quarters as a possible method of bringing about a better state of affairs. Serving of sandwiches would aid as well, it is pointed out, because a beverage-room patron has a better chance of keeping sober if he eats as well as drinks.

It is stressed that nothing will be done in Ontario until the entire problem has been studied mose carefully. The return to normalcy in public demand for liquor is said to hinge upon the availability of other commodities which at present are in short supply or out of reach of the average would-be-purchaser.

"Changes are long overdue," one informant said. "Our system needs to be overhauled. The undue emphasis on liquor won't be removed as long as our present system continues."

26 Carriers Used

The task of demobilization, in which interest was heightened by Gen. MacArthur's estimate that 200,000 regular army men can handle the occupation, will be carried out in part by at least 26 carriers.

At Pearl Harbor, the United States Navy announced the Saratoga, 25 escort carriers and a seaplane tender, capable of taking 30,000 or more service men home monthly, will operate for that purpose. If that means a demobilization program so vast that mainland railroads cannot handle the task, the force will pack some of the men through the Panama canal all the way to east coast ports.

Another suicide of a high ranking Japanese military leader was reported today by Domei agency. The agency said Gen. Shizuichi Tanka, who succeeded Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma as commander in the Philippines, shot himself Aug. 24 because American air raids damaged one of the imperial palaces while he was responsible for the aerial defence of Tokyo. Homma is in prison at Yokohama.

IN MEMORIAM

BURTON — In loving memory of father, Alfred John Burton, who passed away September 19, 1944.

Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain,
But though we're parted for a while
We know we'll meet again.

—Ever remembered by son and family.

STORMS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Olive Storms, who passed away September 19, 1941.

More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.

—Sadly remembered by loving daughter Maudie and family, and sons Bill, George, Joe, Howard, Wilbert.

STORMS — In loving memory of our dear mother, Olive Storms, who passed away September 19, 1941.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

—Ever remembered by son George.

(Sydney Daily Mirror Correspondent.)

Tokyo, Sept. 19 (CP Cable) — For 3 1-2 years missionary Gerhard Barden and Audrey Jeffry, his curly-headed Australian fiancee, shared imprisonment in an internment camp at Fukushima on Honshu Island.

Barbed wire separated them and they could not speak to each other—except by signs—because the Japanese threatened to behead them if they made the slightest contact with each other. Despite this, love took its course in many different ways.

Mr. Barden made an engagement ring of a gold chain, mounting turquoise and white sapphires. Before long they could understand each other's sign language as they gazed longingly toward each other across the barbed wire strands separating the women and the men.

Miss Jeffrey, of Golburn, New South Wales, is bound for Austradia aboard a hospital ship. Mr. Barden is travelling in the same direction aboard the British passenger ship Nankin, captured by a German raider after a gallant defence in the Indian Ocean in early 1942. They were bound for India for missionary work and became engaged aboard ship, planning to marry on their arrival at Kashmir.

After their rescue last week they decided to marry when they reached Tokyo but the military authorities separated them—for the first time since their meeting.

Miss Jeffrey was distressed at parting but smilingly said:

"I am excited about seeing my parents, sister and three brothers again. I hope the sea trip will fatten me up so that I can have the real wedding we had planned —a veil and satin wedding gown in church."

CATTLE EXHIBIT AT LOCAL FAIR BEST IN YEARS

Every Stall on the Grounds Filled and Extra Accommodation Had to be Made

One of the best cattle exhibits in the history of the fair is the way officials of the Belleville Fair described the showing of cattle which is to be seen at the local agricultural park this week. Every cattle stall in the exhibition park is filled to capacity with fair directors having to "double up" in some instances to provide accommodation for exhibitors wishing to show their stock.

Outstanding in the cattle exhibit possibly is the showing of Holsteins with between sixty and seventy of the finest black and white aristocrats of the bovine kingdom to be seen. The cattle are being shown by four well-known Belleville and district breeders of pure bred Holsteins.

Other cattle shown include daintily marked Ayrshires, Jerseys, Shorthorns, Herefords and Poll Angus.

Ten of Best of Herd.

Possibly topping the Holstein exhibit is the fine herd of H. J. McFarland of Farland Farms, Picton, who has ten of his best Holstein cattle at the fair. Mr. McFarland was a heavy winner at last year's fair and undoubtedly will be well up among the prize winners this year.

Other prominent Holstein men showing their herds at the fair this year are David Hollinger, R.R. 4 Stirling, with 10 head, including his fine two-year-old bull; Donald Spencer of Prince Edward county with 15 head and Bernat Hunt of Tweed.

Three Jersey Breeders.

Three Jersey breeders are showing their herds, with George Jarrell of Cannifton being back again with his herd. Garnet Kerr of Campbellford has twelve of his best on display and will be hard to beat for honors in this class, while W. R. Aylesworth of Kingston has the largest Jersey exhibit with 15 fine animals.

Other exhibitors in cattle classes are Lorne Pimmett of Peterboro with his Shorthorns herd; Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge with 11 head of Poll Angus, and two exhibitors in the Hereford classes, John Stewart of Peterboro with 10 head and Milton Cornish of Orono with nine head.

CUT DOWN ON TAKING LAXATIVES THIS WAY

See How Regular You Can Be Every Morning

Try taking Carter's Pills this way: Start with 3 and set a definite time every morning. When you get regular every morning cut down to 2. After a few days, try 1.

Then try taking Carter's every other day. You may even find you can keep regular without any laxative.

You see, Carter's are so tiny you can cut down the dose—from 3 to 1—to fit the needs of your individual system. Without disappointment.

Carter's help clean out your intestinal tract not halfway, but thoroughly. They are doubly effective because made with two vegetable herbs compounded properly for thorough, easy action.

Thousands can cut down on laxative dosing this Carter way. Ask for Carter's Pills by name to get the genuine at any drugstore—25¢. Start the Carter graduated dose method tonight, and jump out of bed tomorrow rarin' to go.

Passes Into History

Steadily the mighty organization for war and defence of freedom which Canada built up from 1939 onward is being disbanded since victory has been won and peace has returned. The First Canadian Division which came into being on the outbreak of the war and went overseas in December 1939 has passed into history during last weekend as the last clean-up drafts left Hilversum for the Nijmegen camp of repatriation.

Heroes of the invasion of Sicily and Italy who were taken to the Western Front for the break-up of Germany, the men of the First Division have won an imperishable name, whose place in Canadian military annals and in the life of Canada will always be recognized. Many of these young heroes are now at home and others are returning and shortly all will be back in the land they served so well from 1939 to 1945. One of the units of the Division, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, will be officially welcomed back into their own district in the near future along with members who have already returned to receive the honors and triumphs they have deserved and won by their deeds on many a hard fought field in the greatest war in history.

Great Tenor Dies

John McCormack, world-famous tenor, has passed away leaving the memory of one of the finest lyric tenor voices in all history and of an engaging personality which charmed everyone who met or saw him. He was a native of Athlone, Ireland, and made his first operatic appearance at Covent Garden, London, at the age of twenty-three and later came to the United States where he continued his career of song on the stage and in concert. Later in life he appeared in a film which could not fail to please the vast world movie audience "Song of My Heart "which appeared in Belleville and was seen and heard by thousands of his admirers.

His was a wondrous golden voice, heard at its best in sweet Irish ballads which struck the heart with their beauty. "Mother Machree," "I Hear You Calling Me," and numerous others were the favorites of his world following of music lovers. Response to the beauty of his voice of the finest tenor quality was always instantaneous for he sang from the heart to the heart. His expression summed up the utmost that his hearers could desire in an artist of song, so appealing was his personality.

During the war he appeared on the stage and platform in England to sing numbers for the Red Cross. Later he was on a concert tour for the same organization when he was compelled for reasons of health to retire for rest in Eire where he had made his home in his later years.

The memory of his song can never be forgotten whether heard on the public platform or from records or in his one motion picture. He was one of the greatest minstrels of all time.

The Local Courts

The Local Courts consist of (1) Magistrate's Court presided over by Lt.-Col. T. Y. Wills. (2) Division, County and Surrogate Courts, presided over by His Honor Judge Cameron. (3) Local Master of the Supreme Court, presided over by W. C. Mikel, K.C.

The jurisdiction of the first two courts above mentioned are well known by the public. The Local Master's jurisdiction is not so well known except by lawyers. Years ago this office was called Master-in-Chancery. Following the Judicature Act in 1881 the office became known as Local Master. The following actions are referred to the Local Master. (1) Mortgage Actions. (2) Partnership Actions. (3) Petition Actions. (4) Administration Actions. (5) Actions for accounts. (6) Matters concerning persons, who, through age or mental infirmity are unable to manage their affairs.

By Section 64 of the Judicature Act any action may be referred to the Local Master for enquiry and report. Under Section 65, the whole action may be referred to the Master for trial.

In Ontario the law does not require any judicial officer to be addressed in any particular form. It is, however, recognized practice to use the terms "His Lordship" or "His Honor," and in the case of the Magistrate "His Worship."

Sometimes the Mayor, out of courtesy, is called the Chief Magistrate. This is purely complimentary, as the Mayor is not the Chief Magistrate, and, in reality, is not a magistrate at all, but may be asked to sit and act as a Justice of the Peace under certain circumstances.

British Forces in Jap War

Official British sources reveal that three hundred thousand United Kingdom troops were employed in the war against Japan. When the enemy surrendered a large scale operation was about to be launched against Malaya, and the troops in Burma would have advanced into Siam. Five divisions from the British Commonwealth and Empire—one United Kingdom, one British-Indian, one Australian, one Canadian and one New Zealand—were to be employed under General MacArthur for the invasion of Japan which would have meant redeployment to the Far East of a quarter of a million men from the European theatre.

This force was not limited by the number of men available, but by the fact that the large British passenger fleet was transporting United States troops across the North Atlantic.

The R.A.F. together with R.C.A.F., R.A.A.F. and Indian squadrons and in collaboration with the American Air Force, played an essential part in the operations which resulted in the defeat of the Japanese in Burma. On the one hand they gained complete air supremacy, prevented the Japanese air force from playing any effective part and kept the Japanese lines of communication under constant attack, which caused the enemy the great supply difficulties.

On the other hand, and even more important, the R.A.F.'s ability to move the land forces and then maintain them on the ground without the assistance of a land line for communication, made possible the defeat of the Japanese attack on Imphal and then the series of offensive operations which finally brought about the recapture of Rangoon. During the period from the battle of Imphal to the fall of Rangoon, the R.A.F. flew nearly a quarter of a million sorties, carried 80,000 troops and delivered 170,000 tons of supplies.

Over 60 percent of the total strength of the Royal Navy was the British naval contribution to the war in the Far East (a force three times the size of the whole navy in 1939), and it started to move as soon as the threat from the enemy lessened in European waters. By March of this year the fleet was operating in Japanese waters, supporting the American assault on Okinawa—4,000 miles from its base at Sydney. One hundred and twenty ocean-going ships and tankers supplied the fleet during these operations, which in this case involved remaining at sea continually for over two months.

These intensive operations were in progress up till the moment of surrender, at which time the Royal Navy in force was in at the Japanese kill. In S.E.A.C. another fleet almost half the size of that in the Pacific co-operated with the army during its spectacular southward march through Burma.

The Old Car is Not for Sale

(L. H. R. in New York Times)

The American Automobile Association tells us it would like to hear about the condition of our old car. Well, frankly, gentlemen, it isn't the car it used to be. It is hard to start and harder to stop. It lacks its 1940 pick-up, it creaks in every joint, its upholstery has lost the bloom of youth, its clutch is locked or frozen or something half the time, and its tires are thin and tired. But really, gentlemen, there's no use your inquiring about it. What with gasoline here again, and synthetic rubber just around the corner, that old car is not for sale at any price you may care to offer. We trust you won't press the matter any further.

God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

Neither one can win alone!
Capital and Labor share,
Just as any wedded pair,
Smile of joy and sorrow's moan.

Good and ill to both belong.
Borne by both are loss and gain.
This throughout the years is plain,
Wrong for one, for both is wrong.

Selfish man and foolish wife,
Seeking pleasure, draw apart.
Thus dividing, quarrels start;
Thus they make a mess of life.

Side by side and hand in hand,
Capital and Labor share
Good and ill and foul and fair,
And together fall or stand!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 19th., 1925

Dr. Thomas Lafferty of Chicago, Ill., spent a few days here recently with his brother, Mr. John Lafferty, Pinnacle Street.

Mrs. George Price has returned to her home at Mount Albert, Ontario, after visiting her sister, Mrs. D. M. Farrell, in this city.

Mrs. Edwin R. White of Toronto is visiting her mother, Mrs. Shelly Anderson, Dundas Street.

Messrs. Pearson and Reid of the Belleville Fair Board were guests of the Kingston Fair Board yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips of Phillipston won third prize for their exhibit of hen's eggs at the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa. The dozen eggs they exhibited weighed 29 ounces; the required weight to enter the competition was 25 ounces.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 19th., 1915

Mr. W. H. Patterson, who has the contract for the Victoria Avenue pavement, is getting the roadway in shape for the preliminary work.

Mrs. William Barrett of New York City is visiting friends here.

A public meeting will be held shortly to consider the problem of unpaid taxes. The mayor and aldermen are of the opinion that the existing state of affairs should not be allowed to continue any longer.

The caretakers of the city public schools have devoted much time during the summer vacation to the school lawns. School Inspector Clarke praises them very highly for the excellent results they have obtained and he suggests that citizens visit the schools and see the lawns.

Mr. E. Ruttan showed us a potato today which weighed two pounds, eight and a quarter ounces. It was grown by Mrs. R. Snook of Foxboro.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 19th., 1905

The ninth annual meeting of the Veterans' Association was held last evening in the officers' quarters of the 15th. Regiment. The chair was occupied by the president, J. W. Johnson and at his right sat the Hon. President, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and on his left Hon. Vice President, Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton. The election of officers for the year resulted as follows: Hon. President, Sir Mackenzie Bowell; Hon. Vice President, Lieut. Col. W.N. Ponton; President, J. W. Johnson; Vice President, J. Frith Jeffers; Secretary, William Johnson; Treasurer, John McKeown; Captain, F. M. Clarke; Sergt.-Major, William Blaind; Sergeants, James Warham and James Malyea; Executive Committee, — Lieut. Col. S. S. Lazier, Lieut. Col. J. Earl Halliwell, George F. Thompson, B.R. Quincey, John S. Marsh, E. T. Austin and George Walton. The following veterans, who were members of the association, died during the past year: J. Sparrow, T. Smith, N. B. Falkiner and Alex. Morrice. All of these served at Prescott in June 1866. A. T. Petrie, who is in his 86th. year, was present at the meeting and gave a short address.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 19th., 1895

The Rev. Enos Farnsworth of Plevena was a visitor in town to day.

Mr. Joe. B. Wemp of Kingston, formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

Commander Sewell of the Richelieu line has arrived home, his boat being laid off for the season.

Mr. A. F. Wood and family of Madoc will leave shortly to spend six months in California.

At the Belleville Fair yesterday T. McGowan gave an exhibit of fancy riding which was much admired. He rode two thirds of a mile standing upon the backs of two horses. At times the horses showed great bursts of speed, but the rider held his position well. The horses are owned by James Ketcheson of Sidney Township.

Mr. W. H. Melburn of Plainfield has sold his general store business there to Mrs. Beckworth.

When workmen strive to do better than well
They do confound their skill in covetousness;
And oftentimes excusing of a fault
Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse:
As patches set upon a little breach
Discredit more in hiding of the fault
Than did the fault before it was so patch'd.

"We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day drawn, and the day star arise in your hearts; knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."—II Peter 1:19-21.

Ordinary corduroy is sometimes used as a substitute for mercury-coated copper plates to catch gold in placer mines and at milling plants.

American railroads now employ about 116,000 women compared with about 30,000 before the outbreak of the Second World War.

Negro minstrel shows, performances by white comedians in Negro make-up, are believed to have been introduced in the United States by Thomas D. Rice (1808-1861), who first put on such entertainments on the stage in Pittsburgh early in the 19th century.

Galen, a Greek physician and medical writer who lived in Rome from about 130 to 200 A.D. believed and taught that most diseases were due to "bad blood" and could be cured by "bloodletting." He was such an authority that little progress was made in medicine for nearly 1400 years. Doctors were still letting blood for all sorts of disease until about a century ago.

COMMONS HEARS

white and blue stripes, one for each province. In the centre was a green maple leaf on which was superimposed the Canadian coat of arms.

Some of the statements on reconversion came from W. F. Kuhl (SC — Jasper Edson), J. R. MacNicol (PC — Toronto Davenport), and Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre). Other speakers during the day's debate included J. L. Gibson (Ind — Comox-Alberni), E. B. McKay (CCF —Weyburn), V. Quelch (SC—Acadia) and H. O. White (PC—Middlesex).

The House also heard Defence Minister Abbott announce that a program of recruiting volunteers for two-year interim service in the army and air force had been extended to the navy. He said the size of the interim force had not been set and the size and nature of the permanent establishments which would succeed it also had not yet been decided.

Claims Parties Wrong

Mr. Kuhl said it was not private industry's responsibility to provide employment. The sole responsibility of private industry was to produce goods. The Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties were wrong in their assumption that it was up to private enterprise to provide full employment.

Mr. MacNicol, retired industrialist who spends the intervals between sessions of parliament travelling and investigating opportunities for economic development, said there were not two jobs for every job seeker in Canada, as claimed Monday by Reconstruction Minister Howe.

Mr. MacNicol said an unemployed man had told him that the figures should be the other way around—two applicants for every job. As to Mr. Howe's statement that an additional 1,000,000 peacetime jobs were in sight, Mr. MacNicol said:—

"I can't see 1,000,000 jobs in sight and neither can any other man in the country."

Mr. Howe also had claimed that industrial development in 1946 was expected to be comparable with the development in the war years.

Criticizes Policy.

"I was in big industry in the last war and after the last war and that is just not possible," said Mr. MacNicol.

Mr. Knowles said it was time government shook off post-election complacency and got down to the business of providing jobs. The complacency was justified because only 39 per cent of the people in Canada had voted for the Liberal party.

"That should be a sobering thought for the government," said Mr. Knowles.

He hoped Mr. Howe was right in his contention that there were 1,000,000 jobs in sight. However, 2,000,000 additional peacetime jobs actually were needed.

Mr. Quelch said the government seemed determined "to follow the same old road in international finance which in the past has led us to dissension, depression and war."

Wants Tax Reduction.

The government was prepared to create money for war but was not prepared to do so for peace. Now there was not the excuse of external debt for maintaining a large favorable balance of trade. The effect should be to achieve an even balance of payments.

He, as well as other speakers called for reduction in taxes.

A word for the farmers was injected into the debate by Mr. McKay and Mr. White. Mr. McKay urged the establishment of parity prices for farm products. He said his party would support the establishment of a world food and agriculture organization and all possible steps for the removal of barriers to trade since the prosperity of Canada agriculture was dependent on external markets.

Mr. White said that farmers wanted parity prices and not social security. Given parity prices they would provide their own social security.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

ONE GOOD TOOTH IS WORTH $1000

We're still talking about the prophylaxis (prevention) of so-called pyorrhea. My subject is strictly hygiene and health, and I assure you that the condition of your jaws, tooth sockets, gums, digestive (salivary) glands and teeth is paramount in determining your health, efficiency and longevity. Believe it or not, my teachings have considerable influence upon the public health.

It takes something extraordinary to shock or jolt me, I mean in the letters I get from readers. It happened the other day, like this:

Dear Dr. Brady,

Please tell me what to do for chronic rheumatism? I have had it for about three years. When I asked the doctor here about it he said I had better have my teeth pulled. I had twenty-three teeth pulled—they were nearly all in good condition, the dentist found. But it made no difference in the rheumatism. In fact it has gotten worse if anything.

(Signed) . . .

Just like that. I suppose the victim is not more ignorant than most laymen about the teeth, but the shocking part of it is the way the doctor and the dentist perpetrated the malpractice on the victim.

It is a criminal malpractice, in my opinion, when a doctor gives a patient such advice. There may be some justification for extracting a tooth or even two or three teeth when physician and dentist find reason to believe the tooth or teeth to be damaged by decay or infection beyond hope of repair or when the physician believes the patient is suffering some systemic trouble from infection in or around the tooth. But for a doctor to advise anybody offhand to submit to the indiscriminate extraction of many or all of his or her teeth in a blind attempt to relieve any such systemic ailment is scandalous and wicked, and I hope this publicity may have a deterring influence on doctors and dentists who perpetrate this crime.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Postcards Not Answered

Three weeks ago and again a week ago I sent you a postcard and it was not answered. It was a question on health. Please attend to the matter at once.

(Mrs. W. G. W.)

Answer—Postcards or postage stamps or pennies will not do. If you expect an answer you should comply with the rules — inclose with your question a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Concrete

In my work I have to stand long hours on a concrete floor. My feet ache a good deal. The proprietor will not put a wooden floor in. Can you suggest anything to relieve the strain?

(J. T. M.)

Answer — The concrete has nothing to do with it. Perhaps a strapping of the feet and legs by your doctor would give comfort. Send ten cents coin on 1-ct-stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Care of the Feet."

Headache

I am a great sufferer from what I suppose is migraine or nervous sick headache, an attack nearly every week. (D.V.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for monograph "Why Have Headache?"

Ridged Nails

I have ridges crosswise and some lengthwise of my nails. Can you tell me the cause of this and what to do for it? (Mrs. A.B.J.)

Answer—Often it is nutritional deficiency. Supplement your diet with a daily ration of vitamins D, thiamine and riboflavin, as described in pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks," mailed on request if you provide stamped self addressed envelope.

Immediate Denture

Immediate dentures are not new in my family. My father made them over 50 years ago. However, he extracted the teeth and then took the impression and put in the denture the same day. He said he could get a better impression and make a better fitting denture that way. I work on the same principle.

(S——R——, D.D.S.)

Answer—Sh-sh-sh! If the secretary of the Chicago Dental Society hears about it, Doctor, he'll write to the paper to warn the public you are misrepresenting. Maybe by now they've learned about immediate dentures in Chicago.

Typing can really be fun when it's done on the "typatune" as demonstrated by a very pretty young lady here. The patented musical instrument looks and works like a portable typewriter but plays music. And they won't laugh when you sit down to play, either. No previous musical knowledge is necessary on the typatune. Just sit right down and play your favorite classical or jive tune. Cairo Still Pretending The War Going On Almost every night a little white airplane flies slowly back and forth above Cairo. Searchlights prod the starry sky, chasing it, Alexander Clifford writes in The London Daily Mail.

With five years' experience behind them, they invariably catch it easily and escort it round with their beams.

The people in the noisy, stuffy streets don't bother to look up. The sight is too familiar. Nor does it interest the dancers on the gay roof-gardens at the Continental Hotel.

Symptomatic of City.

Of course, it may be that no one has thought to cancel the nightly test flight; but it is curiously symtomatic of the city.

At the beginning of hostilities in Europe some people used to accuse Cairo of not knowing that the war was on. Now it doesn't seem to know that the war has finished.

The Middle East has had no actual warfare on its hands for a couple of years, yet there is still an elaborate and often rigorous, military censorship in force.

You, at home, are now getting the unvarnished and unclipped truth from Germany and Italy, and from the other major European war theatres, but not from Cairo.

There is even an oppressive inward censorship, which affects troops in Egypt—a British censorship.

Quotation Banned.

A few days ago a Middle East Air Force publication wanted to quote something out of a London newspaper. The censorship forbade it!

Egypt's quaint rationing system is another dusty relic of the days when there really was a war in Europe.

You still—in theory—are not allowed to eat meat on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Of course, the vast majority of Egypt's population are too poor to eat meat more than about once a week, anyway, and the well-to-do town dweller simply lays in a huge stock of meat on Sunday and puts it into the ice box for future use.

There is no restriction on how much you buy—simply on the days you can buy it.

Even financially Cairo has not taken as much notice of the end of the war as you would think.

"Peace Fears."

In the old days an Allied success usually meant an immediate slump on the Stock Exchange and the newspapers came out with headlines such as "Peace Fears." Victory for us meant the end of Egypt's good times.

But on V-E Day the Cairo Stock Exchange winced only slightly and then recovered itself. Most financiers here agree that Egyptian shares are standing too high; but there is no sign of a slump yet.

And, in a way, Cairo is right. Its war is not quite over yet. It has a very lively interest in the Japanese war.

Egypt is being converted from a command headquarters into a colossal transit camp. Now, almost more than ever, it is the great junction of the Eastern hemisphere. Inter-continental traffic going north, south, east and west is being funnelled through it.

Cairo Headquarters.

Middle East Headquarters — that gawky, sprawling, improvisation like a bit of Heath Robinson architecture, which has had so much fun poked at it and which has, nevertheless, worked so admirably—is gradually being whittled down.

One department after another is becoming obsolete and dissolved. The whole shapeless structure is shrinking again to the little kernel from which it grew.

But you hardly notice the change. Gezireh Sporting Club seems very nearly as full as ever. The streets and the terraces of the hotels still swarm with Allied uniforms.

Despite prices, which have quadrupled during the war, the shopkeepers are still making profits.

The brocades, the silverware, and the jewelry in the native market are not what they were; but there is still a stream of buyers on their way from "somewhere" to "somewhere else," and on the lookout for something to take home.

The merchants recognize that the stream is drying up; but they confess guardedly that, on the whole, they have not had a bad war.

Made Fortunes.

In point of fact they have made such fortunes that they can look ahead with equanimity to the normal times to come.

All Egypt has made fortunes. Millions of pounds have been poured into the country by British troops and by the British government, and not much has gone out.

The rich people have not been able to spend their money on lavish holidays abroad, nor have they been able to import unlimited luxury goods.

Of course, the dozen or more million peasants are as poor as ever.

They do, it is true, get slightly more money than before; but now they have to pay $12 for a white cotton nightshirt (their normal dress) which used to cost $1.20. And that is a sizable slice out of a family income of perhaps $80 a year.

Lauzon and Wife With W. Koresky Now in Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Ulysse Lauzon, who a short time earlier had told police in front of newspapermen that he was "very sorry for all the trouble poor Eileen underwent," Tuesday was under questioning of Ontario Provincial Police and Montreal hold-up squad police in connection with bank robberies in Ontario.

Under questioning also was his 20-year-old wife Eileen, who is expecting a baby in December, and Walter Koresky of Windsor, Ont., who was with the Lauzons when they were captured by Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Charlottetown after a five-province search.

Lauzon talked briefly with police and newspapermen about events of the last few weeks during which a police dragnet forced the Lauzons from their hideaway near Chicoutimi, Que., and sent them zig-zagging through Quebec and the Maritimes in stolen cars in an effort to escape capture. Mrs. Lauzon and Koresky let Lauzon do the talking.

Still Had Black Eye

Lauzon still had the black eye he received during a brief flurry that preceded his capture in Charlottetown. Earlier, while en route to Montreal for questioning, he and Koresky had pleaded guilty to theft of a car at Quebec City. When they arrived here the Lauzons still had upwards of $4.000 in their possession, out of a cash and bond total of some $400,000 which police said had resulted from half a dozen bank holdups in Ontario.

Lauzon said that his recent self-styled "exploits" resulted "not for the fun of it but because of being wanted on several charges anyhow." One of the charges concerns jail break at Kitchener, Ont., with 19-year-old Joseph Peltier, who was later wounded when he attempted to cash stolen bonds at a Montreal bank.

"How is Joe getting along,"? asked Lauzon of his erstwhile companion who now is in hospital in Montreal where doctors say he probably will remain partially paralyzed for life as the result of a gun-shot wound in the back. He described the last few weeks of the police chase as "exciting, but not exactly thrilling."

Capt. Albert Tanguay of the Quebec Provincial Police, who escorted the Lauzons and Koresky from Prince Edward Island to Quebec and Montreal, said the trip had been uneventful except on one occasion when a misplaced cigaret butt led to the suspicion that the trio had set fire to the police car. The captives were lined up by the side of the road until a search of the car revealed the smoldering butt.

The police officer said that he had warned Lauzon that if he made a bad move he would be shot, and quoted Lauzon as saying "If you shoot, shoot straight."

DECIDE ON GUILLOTINE

London, Sept. 19 (CP)—The Daily Express said today an American-built, electrically-operated guillotine may be used to execute convicted European war criminals. It added "it is understood Gen. Eisenhower has already decided on the guillotine."

ORDERED MASS MARRIAGES

Brisbane, Australia, Sept. 19—(CP-Aneta) — The Indonesian ruler of the South Sea Island of Bali saved the island's maidens, world-famous for their beauty, from being handed over to the Japanese by ordering a mass marriage between them and Balinese men, a Dutch official disclosed yesterday.

BLIND GIRL STARTS ROMANTIC JOURNEY

L. H. Fahrenkamp, station manager for Continental Air Lines, greets Miss Mary Mansfield of Colorado Springs, as the blind girl arrives at Denver, Colo., with her seeing-eye dog on the first lap of her romantic journey to England. Miss Mansfield and "Arta," her dog, will proceed to England where she will marry Harry Christopher Marson, also blind, subscriber to a Braille magazine, which she edited.

Churchill Repudiated Claims Of Spain and Franco in 1944 Exchange of Letters Reveals

Basel, Switzerland, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—Texts of letters exchanged last year between Winston Churchill, then Prime Minister of Britain, and Generalissimo Franco of Spain show that Mr. Churchill bluntly repudiated Spanish claims to participate in "peace settlements of future world organizations."

The letters, obtained exclusively by Reuters News Agency on Tuesday, also showed that Mr. Churchill rejected outright proposals by Franco for "common action" against Soviet Russia.

In Franco's letter, dated at Madrid, Oct. 18, 1944, and addressed to the Duke of Alba, Spanish Ambassador in London, for passing on to Mr. Churchill, the Spanish leader said he fully realized Germany's destruction was at hand and drew this conclusion.

"Since we cannot believe in the good faith of Communist Russia, and since we know the insidious power of Bolshevism, we must take account of the fact that the weakening or destruction of her neighbors will greatly increase Russia's ambition and power, making more than ever necessary an intelligent and understanding attitude on the part of the western countries."

He followed with the suggestion that Spain and Britain should work towards more intimate relationships and "prepare for possible common action in future."

Mr. Churchill's reply, in the name of the British war cabinet, described as a "serious mistake" any idea that Britain "would be ready to consider any bloc of powers based on hostility against our Russian Allies or any assumed need of defence against them.

"His Majesty's government's policy is firmly based on the Anglo-Soviet treaty of 1942 and considers the permanence of Anglo - Russian collaboration, within the framework of a future world organization, as essential not only to her own interests but also to the future peace and prosperity of Europe as a whole."

Mr. Churchill told Franco: "It is out of the question for the British government to support Spanish aspirations to participation in future peace settlements, nor do I think it likely that Spain will be invited to join a future world organization."

London Letter

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

History may be in the making at Aberystwyth, North Wales this month.

A conference of Welsh scientists, members of Parliament, representatives of municipal government, trade unions and big corporations will be held there with a view to setting up a new public corporation to develop Wales as an industrial and economic unit.

One project under discussion will be a scheme for Wales along the lines of the famous Tennessee Valley authority in the United States.

The cost is tentatively estimated at tens of millions of pounds; but its proponents claim the job can easily be done if cheap electrical power is provided at the outset, using North Wales' great water resources and South Wales' ample coal.

The hunt for relics of the four-century Roman occupation of Britain has been continuing on a restricted scale right through the war and now plans are being made for an extensive evacuation program at York where an ancient fortress was located.

The main worry of archaeologists is that post-war development of ground now bare of buildings will limit their activities. York was the second provincial capital established by the Roman Legions and many important finds have already been made. So far, however, little is known of the fourth-century occupation and this now is the principal interest.

Historic documents: The records of Scotland, removed to places of safety during the war, now have been restored to Register House in Edinburgh.

ATOMIC BOMB BOSS IS HONORED

Henry L. Stimson, U. S. Secretary of War, presents the Distinguished Service Medal to Major-Gen. Leslie R. Groves in recognition of the General's service as officer in charge of the atomic bomb project that hastened the end of the war with Japan. Before reading the citation, Secretary Stimson congratulated the General on his accomplishments and said that it was a rare occasion when the work of a single officer had so much to do with ending a war.

A Letter From A Soldier in Prague

(By Josef Schrich in a Letter from Prague to the Manchester Guardian.)

Prague is a surprising city. Here the S.A. and S.S. went on fighting even after the German army in Germany had surrendered. The wireless station directed the city's armed uprising under bombardment by Stukas for five days, while two of its floors were still held by S.S. men. The streets are full of the remains of barricades thrown up against German tanks. But throughout the uprising the city never became disorganized; the telephone went on working while Czechs fought Germans in the streets. Today the trams and trains are running, the gas and electricity supplies are in order, and you can have a hot bath before breakfast.

War damage is being quickly repaired. Although the retreating Germans destroyed all the bridges, trains are coming in full of people from concentration camps in Germany and from labor camps all over Europe.

It is a common sight to see a soldier in British battledress with a "Czechoslovakia" shoulder flash embracing an elderly lady and gentleman in one of the busy streets that have been renamed two or three times since his departure. Everywhere people who thought they would never meet again are shaking hands.

Yet many hope in vain. Here and there one sees the inscription "This is where a hero died," and the newspapers still carry the headline "Who can give news of ....?" There is hardly a family in Prague that has not lost someone—in a concentration camp, in the executions, on the battlefronts East and West, or in the Prague uprising.

• •

Prague, the once fabulous city of ham and klobasses, of beer and automats, is no longer the gourmet's dream. Now there is no beer except for soldiers and returning prisoners of war; the only drink to be had is a cold tea made from strawberry leaves. Diners in restaurants have to give up coupons. Nevertheless you can eat your fill for about 1s 6d.

There is hunger, but only for newspapers, films, plays and educational facilities. More students have enrolled at the reopened university than in any previous year; the philosophical faculty issued a record number of application forms on the first day. The first British film to be shown, "San Demetrio" is sold out, as well as the Russian picture "Suvorov."

The streets are full of young people, all carrying weapons and dressed in the uniform of the Wehrmacht, the Luftwaffe, the S. A. and S.S. or even in the tropical outfits of Rommel's Afrika Korps, complete with sun helmets—but with the Czech tricolor prominently displayed or a badge issued by one of the National committees which led the revolt and still retain great authority. It was the young people of Prague that won the revolution, and they are proud of their trophies. There are plenty of Russian soldiers and Czech civilians are cordial.

• •

It is astonishing how well-informed people are about Britain. At first they listened to the BBC's Czech buletins out of sheer cussedness; now they do it out of habit. We soldiers who spent more than four years in your country simply fell in love with it. We speak of nothing but fireplaces, and nice cups of tea, and English friends. Words like "trouble" and "sorry" will become part of the Czech language. Here the Englishman is once more a gentleman, as he was before Munich.

The people of Prague are looking to the future, not to the past. Everybody is full of hope and excitement; there is no lethargy, and no unemployment, and however much opinions differ everybody approves the government's program. Tram conductors, shopgirls, waiters, university professors—all are convinced that we shall automatically form the cultural and social bond between East and West. That, they are sure, is their mission, and they are proud of it.

BONARLAW

Decoration Service Held by I.O.O.F.

Bonarlaw, Ont., Sept. 19—The officers and members of Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 429 assisted by visiting brothers from Havelock, Tweed, Campbellford, Stirling, Madoc and Deseronto Lodges decorated the graves of deceased members on Sunday afternoon. Over sixty Oddfellows preceded by the Midland Regiment Band of Campbellford, under the leadership of Bandmaster E. C. Dolman marched from the Hall at Springbrook to Mount Nebo cemetery where the impressive ceremony took place. Past Grand Howard Martin acted as Marshal, and Past Grand Clayton Burkitt delivered to Noble Grand, an oration, while Past Grand Geo. E. Thompson acted as Secretary and Earl Cranston as Chaplain. The decoration committee were Past Grand A. B. McComb, Roy Brown and Percy Bateman.

A large number of spectators was in attendance. The band played excellent and appropriate music in the cemetery as well as for the march to and from the place of decoration. During the playing of "Abide with Me" all those present joined in and sang the words.

Among the visitors were a large number of Past District Deputy Grand Masters and the present D. D.G.M. Harry Ferguson of Havelock.

TO FILE MURDER CHARGE

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19—(AP)—State's Attorney Henry D. Lewis of Warren County said yesterday he will file a murder charge today at Monmouth against a 13-year-old boy who, after being examined by a lie detecting device, confessed to the fatal beating of Mrs. Mary Johnson, 78, of Kirkwood. He quoted the boy as saying he struck the woman because she scolded him for crossing her yard.

A GOOD DRIVER

Denver, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Carrying 2,000 pounds of dynamite, a truck driven by James Lira, 24, went out of control when the brakes snapped. Piloting the machine through heavy evening traffic, Lira managed to stop the truck on a slight upgrade after he had threaded his way erratically but harmlessly for six blocks.

Rare Baum Marten Coat

By ALICE ALDEN

THIS SEEMS to be the season for furs, that are different, what with white mink and off-white nutria. Now along comes a rarely used and beautiful fur Swedish baum marten. Clever Esther Dorothy uses this fur to make a coat that sets off the rich color and texture, of the pelt which is deep piled yet fluffy and of beautiful light tones. Of 30-inch length, the coat is made with graceful panels and wide sleeves.

Executive and Workers' Conference Of Belleville Presbyterial Meets

A meeting of the Executive and Workers' Conference of Belleville Presbyterial was held on Sept. 11, at the home of Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Cordes, 66 Bridge Street West, Belleville, Mrs. S. W. Spafford, Presbyterial president, presiding.

Mrs. R. N. Broad, associate members' secretary led in the opening worship.

The minutes of the executive meeting, held the evening before the Presbyterial in April, were read by Miss Ruth Wallbridge, secretary for the day, in the unavoidable absence of Miss Mata Mellow.

Introductions Made.

Mrs. Spafford expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Cordes for opening their home, and these ladies were introduced, also Mrs. Ralph Sills, recently elected vice-president, of Belleville Section; Mrs. J. J. Nickle, vice president of Madoc Section; Mrs. W. H. Bell, vice president of Napanee South; Mrs. S. Homan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Carman Atton, secretary for Baby Bands; Miss Ethel Morden, Supply secretary; Mrs. Harley Hamilton. Missionary Monthly and World Friends' Secretary. Mrs. Milton Fennel, secretary of Mission Circles, sent her regrets by letter. Mrs. Patton, president of a Newfoundland presbyterial, was introduced and the following members also, Mrs. Hubble, Mrs. Priest, Mrs. Sproule and Mrs. Jarvis. Mrs. Empey's election to the Missionary Monthly and World Friends secretaryship in the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch, was mentioned.

New Life Members—Mrs. W. J. Patterson; Mrs. W. W. Patterson; Mrs. Emma Ray, Centenary; Mrs. John Smith; Mrs. Bernice Moore.

Hooper Memorial $325.75.

Funds Donated

Re the Hooper Memorial Fund, Mrs. Nickle—Mrs. Way, that $100 each be donated to China, Africa, India, for literature, the remaining $25.75 to go into the general fund.—Carried.

Mrs. Hagerman was asked to write Miss Thomas re special objects.

Mrs. Homan, corresponding secretary, was asked to write Mrs. Smythe, dean of Bay of Quinte Conference Branch School for Leaders, to express sympathy because of her own and her husband's illness.

Mrs. A. D. Way read a letter from Mrs. Myers, conference branch secretary of Temperance and Christian Citizenship, its content as follows—At the beginning of another year's work, a new zeal for temperance is needed. The total sale of liquor exceeds the amount paid for education in Canada. Information on the subject should be given at every W.M.S. meeting and a more careful and prayerful use of the ballot is needed. In each auxiliary one woman should be found to make a real study of the subject.

Increase Subscriptions Asked

Mrs. Harley Hamilton reported having written to nearly all the Missionary Monthly and World Friend secretaries—that Mrs. Forbes had asked for an increase in subscriptions of at least 1,000.

Mrs. McCreary reported a serious "hold up" in the executive circulating library books and expressed her hope that the books in the sectional libraries will be kept moving, in order to be read widely, while they are still new books.

Miss Ethel Morden had not received many bales. She emphasized that only clothing with real wearing value and appearance should be sent.

Mrs. Broad, Associate Members' secretary, has asked for advance in membership and givings.

Mrs. Patton from Newfoundland, stressed the sending of attractive clothing in bales. She said: "We need a higher ideal in this work".

There were nineteen present in the morning session.

Afternoon Sessions

The afternoon meeting began promptly at two o'clock. A letter was read from Mrs. Milton Fennel, secretary of Mission Circles, explaining her absence.

Mrs. Spafford led in a few moments of worship. She said: "Worship is a time to meet with God, not for long explanations of the Bible". After a short prayer for guidance, she read 1st Chronicles 28th chapter: 9-10: "Be strong and do it".—"without haste and without rest". Hymn 157, "Spirit of God, descend upon my heart" was sung as a prayer, softly. Mrs. Spafford quoted Mrs. Harper Sibley as saying there were two temptations peculiar to leaders, (1) a pride, touchy and unnecessary, of achievement and (2) a proneness to feel inability, when with a reliance upon God, we might face our tasks.

Mrs. Cordes and Mrs. Hagerman sang "Lord speak to me that I may speak".

Mrs. Finlay reported many C.G.I.T. groups not affiliated and urged the auxiliaries to use the talents of these girls who can do things so well.

Miss Ruth Wallbridge was made press secretary until the next Presbyterial meeting.

Presbyterial Funds Up

Mrs. Bailey asked whether there was satisfaction as to number of thank offering envelopes sent out, and reported $665.31 increase so far this year, in Presbyterial funds.

Mrs. Wilson reported her section as having observed the Day of Prayer, as doing well with their allocation, as enjoying the Study Book "West of the Date Line."

Prince Edward section was reported as having their rally in June, with no "story of the year" no individual reports of the work as a whole in the auxiliaries but instead a planned question and answer and discussion period led by Mrs. S. W. Spafford, with Miss Luella Rorke as the missionary speaker and the sectional library off to a start with Mrs. H. D. Williams as librarian.

Mrs. Nickle vice-president of Madoc section, since April said "I am like a mountain climber standing in the valley looking up, nothing to report yet.

Mrs. Sills and Mrs. Bell also new vice-presidents, reported preparation for their rallies with dates below.

Dates of Fall Rallies.

The four Fall rallies were discussed with dates as follows—Tuesday, Cooper, Madoc Section, October 16; Wednesday, October 17—Tamworth; Thursday, October 18—Deseronto; Friday, October 19—Mt. Pleasant. At the last Miss Day will represent the Dominion Board, introducing the new Study Book. All four sections wished to have also a missionary speaker, and plans were laid accordingly, if possible a C.G.I.T. rally near the same dates.

Mrs. Spafford introduced this thought for the rallies. What can the women do to further the crusade going forward in the church?

Hooper Memorial Certificate

Mrs. Wilson—Mrs. Hagerman: that we obtain a memorial certificate to commemorate the Hooper Memorial. The same to be presented to Mr. Hooper by Mrs. Geo. Switzer and Mrs. Lewis.—Carried.

Mrs. Hubble, Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Sproule called upon by Mrs. Spafford, expressed their pleasure at being in attendance

Mrs. Way asked to what good use could used Missionary Monthlies be put. The best answer forthcoming was to pass them on when fresh to some neighbor.

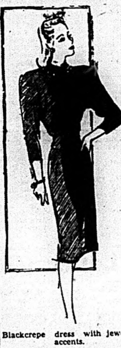
Mrs. Empey—Mrs. Way: that Mrs. Spafford act with Presbytery on the Crusade Committee, representing Belleville Presbyterial.—Carried.

The meeting was dismissed by Mrs. Patton.

PRIORITY FOR VETERANS

Toronto, Sept. 18—(CP)—After a lively debate city council decided yesterday to insert in contracts for post-war works a provision requesting contractors to give priority to veterans of the armed services — men and women alike — who are Toronto residents.

Bright Accent



Blackcrepe dress with jeweled accents.

By VERA WINSTON

JEWELED accents such as an attached pearl bead choker, an necklace or embroidered "bracelets' adorn many of the new frocks, a pleasing idea to women who do not go in for a stock of costume jewelry. This svelte black crepe dress has deep armholes and a high, rounded neckline that buttons in back. Set in around the neck, like a little collar, is a band of embroidery with colored cabochon stones and beading. Rather low waisted, it has a yoke from which inverted tucks give slight fullness to the skirt.

Rawdon

Silver Wedding Anniversary Celebrated by Mr., Mrs. Carl Clancy

Rawdon, Sept. 19. —On Saturday evening, the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs Carl Clancy, 6th concession of Rawdon, was the scene of a happy gathering when about one hundred and twenty-five guests gathered to extend congratulations on their Silver Wedding anniversary.

On September 15, 1920, Rev. James Batstone united in holy matrimony, Erma Everetta Snarr, daughter of the late George Snarr and Mrs. Snarr and Carleton William Robert Clancy, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Israel Clancy, all of Rawdon. Three sons blessed this union—Douglas, Maurice and Keith. All at home.

House Decorated

The house was beautifully decorated with bouquets of gladioli and asters and the bride's mother presented a dozen lovely pink roses for this festive occasion. The guests included several who had attended the wedding twenty-five years ago, also relatives, members of Wellman's Women's Institute and community.

Rev. T. F. Townsend, B.A., B.D., pastor of Rawdon Circuit, presided over the program. Mrs. John Heagle played for community singing with Mrs. Townsend as leader.

Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Victor Taylor, Mrs. George Watson, Mrs. John Heagle and Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

Humorous readings were given by Mrs. Theodore Reid and Mrs. Townsend. Mr. Gerald Taylor contributed a piano solo.

Miss Mina Dracup was one of the accompanists. Brief addresses were given by two of the oldest men present, Messrs. C. U. Heath and Allan Bailey.

Cake on Bride's Table

The bride's table was centred with a three-tier cake and candles at either end. The table guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Francis, Stirling, celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary; Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnston, Mount Pleasant, celebrating their 31st wedding anniversary; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Bellevillec ,elebrating their 20th anniversary and Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

Mrs. Clancy wore a pretty corsage of pink carnations and she presented the three other brides with corsages of mixed carnations and the four grooms wore white carnations in their coat lapels.

The members of Wellman's W.I. catered for a dainty lunch in plate style and several ladies of this organization did the serving.

All Unattended

A unique part of the celebration was that all five couples seated at the bride's table were all unattended when they were married.

When the last course was served, Mrs. Allan Bailey lit the candle to represent the relatives and Mrs. T. M. Reid to represent the community.

Mrs. Thomas Laycock carried the cake from the table and cut it for serving. She also had been in charge of the cake 25 years ago and at that time she was Miss Flossie Heath.

Presented With Gifts

The Institute presented the honored couple with a pierced silver casserole and they were also the recipients of a large array of silver, china, cash and a chenille bedspread.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Clancy are very popular in Rawdon Township. They are members of Wellman's United Church and both take an active part. Mrs. Clancy has been church pianist for several years.

Mr. Clancy served in the First Great War and was a member of the German Occupation for six months following hostilities. He and Mr. Harry Francis served in the same unit overseas.

Mrs. Clancy is well-known in Institute work and has held several high offices in that organization.

About midnight the gathering dispersed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Clancy many more years of happy wedded life.

On Sunday evening, Sept. 16, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy attended a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Francis, Stirling, when about thirty-five guests were in attendance.

Women's Activities

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Mrs. J. Craig opened her home for the W.I. quilting and grandmothers' meeting, Sept. 14. All enjoyed a delicious pot-luck dinner. The President opened the meeting. During the business session, Mrs. P. Kimmerley was appointed secretary for balance of year. Mrs. Gaylord offered her home for a dinner and quilting in October. The organization was very glad to have the District President, Mrs. Mitchell, of Quinte Branch present, who gave an interesting talk on peace and reconstruction also a paper on grandfather's and grandmother's time and presented a gift to the oldest grandmother.

Mr. F. Kimmerley had charge of the program. Mrs. Craig entertained with a song "Grandmother's Advice", followed by community singing. The topic "Mother Called it Junk", was well given by Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley. Mrs. Alexander read up to date Current Events. Readings suitable for Grandmother's Day were given by Mrs. P. Kimmerley, Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. F. Husband. Mrs. Mitchell conducted a contest a poem entitled "To Elizabeth, Queen of England", was read by Mrs. Schammerhorn. Mrs. P. Kimmerley told about date palms. Singing the National Anthem closed the meeting. Mrs. F. Husband moved a vote of thanks to the hostess.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

Rev. A. C. McCallum and his sister, Mrs. Mooney opened their home on Wednesday afternoon for the September meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society with in the chair. The program "Mem- the President, Mrs. Glenn Meyers bers of One Family" '(Black and White), was used and an interesting discussion of Africa followed. There was an exchange of books from the travelling library and a donation for its use, was taken.

Mrs. Leonard Young gave a synopsized account of French Indo-China using pictures to explain the story. The buried City of Angkor Thom in the interior inhabited by one million people was the outstanding city of South Eastern Asia until 600 year ago. In 1900 Protestant missionaries entered this country. Natives who wanted to hear and see these missionaries would travel at their own expense and take their sleeping mats and mosquito nets along.

Mr. McCallum closed the meeting with prayer, The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by all.

LENSMEN'S CHOICE

"Most photogenic" is only one of many superlatives inspired by Laura Norden, 17-year-old Winter Haven beauty, who won it as a title in a state-wide contest. GI photographers — and they ought to know — gave it to her by their votes from 14 army fields in Florida.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Before-and-After Station of a Good Many Married Women.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"That letter in your column from a soldier at camp signed H.Z.O., really irritated me and I hope you'll print my reactions.

"Possibly a man can live more cheaply when single, but why does the average male never stop to consider this 'til he's acquired a wife? And after promising her the world, the promises are quickly forgotten when he's caught and domesticated her.

"I'm married and we have three lovely children. My husband is a grand guy, he brings home his pay envelope, doesn't give a woman a second glance (not even me). Doesn't go out with the boys, never beats any of us or gets drunk. He comes home and stays there, so do I.

"Yet, why should wives be thankful for a decent husband who does all these things, and pays the household and personal bills? We wives certainly earn this. We cook, sew, clean, wash and iron, act as nurse and chambermaid, as hostess, sweetheart and a sort of second mother when he wants a shoulder to cry on.

"Yes, some women nag and probably do make a man's life miserable, but don't men do some of the nagging too? During my eleven years of marriage, I've never had any time for fun or recreation. And when our children are grown, I've decided to get a job and pay my own bills. Then, I can come and go as I please. I want to feel my own money in my pocket and lead my own life. Not a life anyone could object to, but just be free to come and go whenever I choose.

"Sure, I love my husband and he's a grand guy, but when it comes to keeping his wife as happy as he kept this fiancee—he's just not there. And from all I see on every side, most men are in the same class.

"This isn't a complaint, and I'm not looking for sympathy, but I just had to let that soldier know that men aren't such prizes either.

"I suppose we're all human—male and female as He created us—but that soldier's letter telling that women should be thankful for a crust to eat and a roof over their heads, burns me up.

A Wife".

Is the Girl Interesting? Beauty Question of Today

Nancy Gates is not only lovely but vivacious as well.

By HELEN FOLLETT

LITTLE Miss Useless cultivates a vapid look, she just loves it. She has plucked her eyebrows down to a single marching line of fuzzers. She has widened her lips with the ruby glow, uses no rouge, has a pale, fragile-looking complexion.

Her facial expression tells the world that she is bored to tears, but it is really too much trouble to weep, she is that lazy. Well, my paper dearies, she is a pre-war type. She does not belong.

Appeares Stupid

She doesn't realize that the pose she assumes makes her appear stupid. And stupidity is one form of ugliness. Unless a face is expressive, unless it has an appearance of intelligence, it does not come up to this day's standard. A fellow no longer asks "Is she pretty?" Instead he asks "Is she interesting?"

Nobody is looking for great beauty these days. But everybody expects a girl to be good looking, what will all the help one has in the way of pulchritude aids—coiffure stylists, dress designers, beauticians. Considering the opportunities for educating oneself that are at hand, there's no reason for one to be dumb.

Plain Features

Mere prettiness is a drug on the market. But plain features are no great handicap. They can be forgotten if a girl has vitality, humor, personality and charm.

It's no good seeking beauty unless one has the right idea of beauty. If you fancy it is solely a matter of clothes, hair-do, make-up and nail polish you're all wet. These elements will attract the eye, but real loveliness speaks to the mind. And it gets full response.

We wish that little Miss Useless would come out of it. With the world as it is, this is no time to pose or play act. She isn't herself. She's just putting on a show. If she'd be natural she would be attractive, like the rest of the live ones.

After supper I was sitting on our front steps with pop, and I said, G, pop, here comes Admiral Tricker, why dont you quick duck in the house till he goes passed?

It's too late now, he'll probably stop and gab as usual, pop said,

Which he did, saying to pop, What do you think of the state of the world now?

There seems to be quite a change, there's not a single war going on, as far as I could make out by today's papers, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, Now's our chance, now's everybody's chance to work as hard for prosperity in peacetime as we worked for a successful war. And when I say work as hard, I mean work as unselfishly. I mean work for each other instead of each for himself and the devil take the hinemost, he said.

I'll sign a petition to that effect, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, The average run of people put their own intrists first, last and all the time. I've got a glaring example right in my own home, or at least I had her till yesterday, because I'm talkin about our cook and she quits us cold after only giving up 2 weeks notice. Now there's a shining example of modern selfishness for you. We gave that woman a good home with every comfort and convenience. She ate the same food that we do whenever there

St. Louis Cards Have Fighting Chance to Overhaul Chicago With 4 More to Play with Cubs

Southworth's Tattered Crew Beat Chicago, Barrett Racking Up 22nd Victory

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Billy Southworth's tattered Cardinals continue to act as if they own Chicago Cubs whose first-place dignity they have ruffled in 14 of 18 meetings. With 10 games to play, four against their "cousins" from the windy city, St. Louis has a good fighting chance to make the grade to a fourth straight National Baseball League flag despite their two-game disadvantage.

Fans regard the Red Birds a better bet to catch Chicago than Washington is to close the gap on Detroit even though the Tigers' lead is only 1½ games after yesterday's 12-5 loss to the Senators. Washington is running out of games with only five to go and no more with the Bengals.

Charley (Red) Barrett, the fellow who was "thrown in" in the deal that sent Mort Cooper to Boston, hung up his 22nd victory for the Cards in last night's 3-2 shade of the Bruins' Claude Passeau. That's 10 more than Barrett ever won in the majors before.

Sportsman's Park housed its largest night turnout of the Cardinals' season, 22,174, to watch the Birds make their big bid for the flag. They weren't disappointed as Southworth's gang overcame a 2-run advantage the Cubs punched through the makeshift infield in the first inning and came on to win. Whitey Kurowski drove home all three runs, the decisive two in the fifth on a double-play ball that hopped over shortstop Roy Hughes' head into centre field.

Cincinnati Splits

Cincinnati split a doubleheader with Boston in the only other National League games, coming back to grab the second, 6-2 after losing the opener, 3-1, on three successive errors by Kermit Wahl in the 11th inning. Hank Sauer hit three homers, one in the first tilt and two in the nightcap.

The Detroit-Washington series finale was a nightmarish ball game, played on the muddy turf of Griffith Stadium that was made "playable" only after hours of feverish work by the ground keepers.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout was driven to cover in the first inning when the Senators scored four but, after they had added another in the third, the Tigers flattened Walt Masterson with five to tie in the sixth. The Senators then opened up on George Caster, Hal Newhouser and Zeb Eaton for bundles of four in the seventh and three in the eighth to ice it. Caster was charged with his first loss since joining Detroit and Dutch Leonard, the third of four Washington tossers, picked up the winning credit.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Sept. 19 (CP)—Short shots on sport:-

Coach Ross Trimble of Ottawa Rough Riders concedes he is generally satisfied with current rugby football rules but there's one ruling he'd like to eliminate —the single point for a kick to the deadline. Ross told Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick the play is unfair because the opposition has no defence against it and "any play for which there is no defence is not a good thing for any game as far as I am concerned." A kick to the deadline gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a Grey Cup title against Rough Riders in 1939, it may be recalled, but Trimble claims he isn't prejudiced. A similar play in 1941 against Toronto Argonauts settled a close series in favor of Rough Riders.

Montreal sports - about-town have organized a cocktail lounge rejoicing in the name of "Chez When." Comments Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson: "A lot of guys, having quaffed too many, will be calling it 'Shay When'."

Western Canada plans to make senior baseball a major organized sport seem to fall in the cart-before-the-horse category—they already have a trophy for the championship of a western Canada baseball association and now they're working to organize the association. The man behind the movement is Bill Hansen, former R.C.A.F. squadron leader who sparked revival of the game in Calgary a couple of years ago. As told by Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore Hansen has called a meeting for Sept. 23 in Calgary to form a western association, with invitations mailed to baseball men in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatchewan, Moose Jaw and Lethbridge.

When Hamilton Beavers walked off the field after playing nine scoreless innings against Toronto Tip Tops in an elimination series for the world's softball tournament at Cleveland, they gave the excuse that star pitcher Russ Johnson, a policeman off the diamond, had to leave to be on his beat the next day. Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve chuckled parenthetically: "After all, Dick Tracy can't look after everything."

Jimmy Cook is a candidate for an outside wing post with Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. He is also the son of William Osser (Bill) Cook, former all-time great with New York Rangers. Bill says Jimmy "may be a good footballer, but he'll never be good enough for pro hockey."

DAVIS WILL START HAMLIN AGAINST NEWARK BEARS

Toronto Leafs Must Win This One to Remain in the Running

By The Associated Press

Manager Harry Davis will start Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin against Newark Bears tonight in the hopes that the former big leaguer will be able to score his second play-off victory and keep Toronto Maple Leafs in the running for the International League's Governors' Cup.

The Leafs must win in Newark for the Bears hold a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven semi-final series. Hamlin blanked the Bears with five hits in his last outing. He'll be opposed by righthander Johnny Moore, who was belted out of the box in the first inning of the fourth game which Newark finally won.

In the other semi-final, the champion Montreal Royals will send Johnny Gabbard, who won 20 games against six defeats in the regular season, against George Hooks in a Baltimore clash. The series is deadlocked at 2-2. Both Gabbard and Hooks, who won 10 and lost 13, were knocked off the mound in the second game of the play-offs.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Since the pennant contenders won't decide the major league races for themselves, this corner will cover all four in the annual review by positions and let you decide for yourself which you like.

First base: Rudy York, Tigers— Rudy's slugging made him the Tiger first baseman and, to everyone's surprise, he set two major league fielding records at that position. Can break up any game and did it once in the 1940 series although he hit only .231 . . . Joe Kuhel, Senators — Rudy's opposite: A fancy fielder but only has touched the .300 mark at bat 3 times in his 15 major league seasons . . . Phil Cavaretta, Cubs — The "boy wonder" of the 1935 Cubs, Phil hit only .125 in his 1st world series. Three years later he belted Yankee pitching for .462. Never batted .300 until last season and now he tops the National League above the .350 mark . . . Ray Sanders, Cardinals— Ray has earned a world series cut in each of his three big league seasons. He'll be disappointed if he doesn't make it again. League-leading fielder at first in 1944. His specialty is hitting doubles.

Cleaning the Cuff

Bob Goldstein, Spokane's contribution to the All - American Boys Baseball Game has decided to enter the University of Washington after reports had circulated that he had an offer from Illinois that was "too good to turn down." He's a first-class basketball player too . . . The only civilian on Colorado College's starting football team, blocking back Johnny Steele, is a discharged soldier.

Mustered Out Ball Players Will Not Regain Form

Oklahoma City, Sept. 19—(AP) —Carl Hubbell, head of New York Giants' farm system, believes major league baseball players mustered out of military service will not be able to regain their one-time form.

Hubbell, the Giants' top pitcher for many years, points to Bob Feller, just out of the navy and back with Cleveland Indians, as an example.

The fireball expert has been experiencing a tightness in his arm, shoulders and back and isn't as fast as he was before his navy hitch, Hubbell said.

"He won't ever regain that blinding speed again," Hubbell believes. "Army and navy exercises are fine for boys in the service but they build up certain body muscles that are not called into play in pitching and batting, and tightness results."

Hubbell, visiting his family here, points to Hank Greenberg as another example. Since Greenberg returned to Detroit Tigers, he has had trouble getting back into full-time playing condition.

SOON TRY LAVAL

Paris, Sept. 19 —(AP)— The public prosecutor, Andre Mornet, said yesterday the treason trial of Pierre Laval, head of the former Vichy government, would begin Oct. 4 if a jury could be selected. Otherwise, he said, the trial will open Oct. 24, shortly after the national elections.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

BATA SHOEMAKERS aren't fooling about this Ontario Intermediate Baseball Championship. The other day the SWACOS nine went out to the shoe village and played an exhibition tilt with the Batamen that gave Garten their ace hurler a fine workout. The big fella was working perfectly and sent down sixteen radiomen via the whiff route defeating them 4-0 in a seven-inning tilt and blanking them with an oversize duck egg. At that the game was a fine sample of the pastime with big Ernie Smith being in form and allowing the Bata bats just four clouts. The score should have been 2-0 so we're informed, but the SWACOS miscued at a time when the errors meant a couple of runs. Garton is being readied for the championship tilt and should carry the Bata colors through to victory, unless his team hooks up with the Leafs after Newark is through with them. Speedy St. Louis was behind the plate for SWACOS with Aquino doing the receiving for Garten.

For quarter from the Moose?"
Not Mrs. Watson's little boy,
I'll tell you from the start,

Will be neatly 'took' apart."
McCready cocked an eager ear
Extended forth a flipper
"What bunk is that," he said, I hear
Besides, who is this "Whipper?"
Is he the bird who shoots the talk
Of an Empire Title role?
Is he the Pride of Northern York
Who'll kick ME for a goal?
Well, Mrs. Watson's little boy
Had better change his tenets,
For from champ to chump on Wed'sday Eve
He'll go, in fifteen minutes."

Splinters.

A RABID DRESDEN fan at the Juniors-Dresden fray on Monday suddenly became imbued with the idea, prompted by the team catcher that the distance between the pitching mound and the plate was short—oh so short. He suffered until the sixth innings then took the horse by the head and demanded the team manager to investigate....The distance was correct to the inch....What the R.F. didn't know was the fact that three civil engineers measured the distance, just to be sure ....Walter Martin, former well-known Davis Cup tennis player is now a Group Capt. in the R.C.A.F. and holds the position of Judge Advocate General overseas....He is quite well-known in Belleville legal circles having acted as crown prosecutor in the McFarland murder trials here a few years ago....As one fan remarked at the baseball game on Monday: "What a whale of a difference a few good umpires make"....Don Thomas and the veteran Walt Gerow handled the fray in good style—and when some fans we know don't let out a parcel of squawks, then the arbiters are doing a job par excellence.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Coach Eddie McLean of the Hamilton Wildcats said the emphasis will be on pass defence as the O.R.F.U. champions finish their workouts for Saturday's game at Hamilton against Toronto Indians. Wildcats were prevented by rain from using Scott Field yesterday but they held a light drill at the Canadian Army Trades School. Meantime Hamilton Tigers had two full squads drilling for Saturday's exhibition against the O.R.F.U. Rockets at Windsor.

Toronto Oakwood Indians moved to a public park for drills but managed to obtain the loan of showers and a storeroom from the Columbus Boys' Club, near the park. Indians are trying to rent Maple Leaf Stadium for home games.

At Ottawa yesterday coach Ross Trimble announced that Godfrey (Buck) Reaume will be with the Rough Riders when they open the Big Four season against Toronto Argonauts at Ottawa Saturday. Reaume is from LaSalle, Ont., a blocking and plunging back. He's turned down offers from the professional Detroit Lions and Cleveland Rams.

Army Public Relations officers at Ottawa said yesterday an announcement is expected shortly clarifying the status of service athletes competing with civilian teams.

Five-yard interference by halfbacks will be allowed in Toronto secondary schools amateur association football games this season, it was made known last night. Under Canadian Rugby Union rules, linesmen may provide interference five yards beyond the line of scrimmage but halves are restricted to one yard. In games under T.S.S.A.A. jurisdiction, the five-yard leeway will be uniform for halves and linemen.

Coach Happy Day of Toronto Maple Leafs announced at Toronto last night that Bob Goldham, star defenceman with the Leafs in 1941-42, has accepted terms and will be a candidate for a defence post with the N.H.L. team. Goldham was discharged from the navy this week. Gaye Stewart, winner of the N.H.L. rookie award three seasons back, may not get his navy release for some time.

Manager Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs said that now the Quebec Senior Hockey League had decided to remain amateur the Leafs have dropped their plan for a second-string team in the Quebec circuit.

MANN CUP FINALS IN VANCOUVER

Toronto, Sept. 19. (CP)—Ontario representative in the 1945 Mann Cup finals will leave Sept. 30 for Vancouver where the World Series of lacrosse will be held this season, the Canadian Lacrosse Association announced last night.

St. Catharines Athletics, who defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies last year in a best-of-five Mann Cup Series, now lead Brampton-Lakeshore Combines 2-1 in a best-of-seven Ontario elimination.

The Quebec Association has announced it will not send a representative against Athletics or Combines.

Cigarettes Replace Money as Barter For Civilian Needs

Cigarettes and chocolate bars are replacing money as barter for civilian commodities in Germany owing to the comparative worthlessness of money in that country according to Pte. E. J. Elliott of this city who is at present with the occupational forces overseas.

"There is a great food shortage for the civilians and I imagine it will be 'hell' here this winter," wrote Pte. Elliott to the local Kinsmen club in appreciation for cigarettes sent overseas. He expects to stay in Germany until around Christmas and then to return to Canada.

Wren Mary Forstee, with the Navy Show overseas also tells of her appreciation for Kinsmen cigarettes. "You have no idea how much I appreciate those cigarettes," she said. "They are like manna from Heaven."

Although service personnel are rapidly returning to Canada from overseas there are still many thousands of Canadian soldiers in Europe; thousands who are dependent for their cigarettes upon shipments received from home. A small donation to the Kinsmen Fag Fund will help keep those fags going overseas to the boys still there.

The following Belleville boys were each shipped three hundred cigarettes by the Belleville Kinsmen Fag Fund: C. Allison, A. Angel, E. Aylesworth, L. Boudeau, R. Bradshaw, R. Brown, C. Buker, W. Bush, J. E. Clarke, G. Davison, F. Douglas, T. Draddy, R. Finkle, J. Gardner, W. Green, E. Halpin, W. Hayes, A. Kalman, R. Keegan, J. Kerby, J. Lazenby, L. Leverton, A. Marner, H. McDougall, C. LESSON NO. 785
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An endplay feels like catching a glass just before it hits the floor. It is one of those plays that helps you salvage a trick that suddenly seems lost.

Perhaps the most satisfying of all endplays is the trump type. That is a play in which you force an opponent to lead a trump to your tenace holding.

Such a play helped win one of our state championships. My partner pulled it in the south seat as declarer at six hearts in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 9 6 5 3
♥K 4 2
♦A K J
♣Q 8

WEST	EAST
♠K Q 10 4	♠J 7 2
♥Q 10 9 8	♥None
♦9 6 3	♦8 7 5
♣7 2	♣J 10 9 6 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠8
♥A J 7 6 5 3
♦Q 10 4 3
♣A K

The bidding went smoothly like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	2 S
3 H	4 NT
6 D	6 H

West did not double the small slam contract. He was too wise to tip off the strength of his mitt. His opening lead was a spade and declarer saw that the only worry was in trumps.

Opponents had four hearts. They could be divided two-two, or three-one, or four-none. The safest play was to lead the king and then try a finesse in south, if necessary.

Dummy's spade ace won the first trick and his heart king took the next. When east showed out of trumps at once, it looked as if west must take two trump tricks.

Declarer's only hope was to strip west for a possible endplay. So, he trumped a spade, took two clubs, entered dummy twice in the diamond suit, and trumped two more dummy spades.

He then led the diamond queen and picked up the dummy jack on it. By this time he had left the diamond ten and A J of trumps. West had nothing but three trumps as south led the last diamond.

Of course, west was forced to trump. But now in the lead, there is nothing he can return but his ten or queen of hearts. Whichever he does, south takes the last two trump tricks.

It looks like a strip tease.

PROS. WON'T SIGN AMATEUR UNTIL HE REACHES 18

Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Professional hockey clubs have agreed not to sign any amateur under the age of 18 without the consent of the amateur club and amateur officials, George Dudley, Secretary of the International Ice Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said today. Professional clubs can however, negotiate with any player who has passed his 16th birthday, with a view to obtaining his services when be reaches the age of 18.

The new clause was contained in an agreement between the National League and its minor affiliations, the International Association, the C.A.H.A. and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States. Otherwise, teams were similar to previous agreements between these bodies which have extended over a period of nine years.

Dudley added that position of players on the contingent reserve list of professional clubs had been clarified because of concern expressed by amateur clubs over the large number of amateur players on the lists.

The contingent reserve list will be composed of two categories. The first is made up of professional players who entered the services and therefore remain property of their respective professional club. They cannot be approached by any amateur organization unless re-instated as amateurs.

The second category involves players who have never played professional hockey but have entered into contractural agreements with professional clubs. These players, however, have not been reported as professionals to the I.A.H.A. and therefore are still amateurs as far as member associations of the I.I.H.A. are concerned.

Such players may be approached by amateur clubs subject, however, to the players fulfilling their try-outs or optional agreements with the professionals, and subject also to the possibility of the N.H.L. notifying the I.I.H.A. it is putting into effect the terms of the players' contract and signing him where the contract so warrants.

Professional clubs also have agreed that an arrangement whereby players might be borrowed from amateur clubs by professional clubs for not more than three games a season will be discontinued. It was strictly a wartime arrangement.

BENNY ...

Pop was home early on account of being Saturday, and ma said, Something seems to of gone wrong with the vacuum cleener, William. Oh dear, I hope it doesn't need a spare part, because the days of spare parts seem to be over, at least temporarily. Maybe you'll take a look at it after luntch, William, she said.

I'll do something more original than that, pop said, and ma said, Now William dont tell me you're going to take it all apart in one of your bursts of mechanical genius.

Even more original than that, pop said. I'm going to take the rugs out in back of the house and give them the old fashion beating of their lives. When I was a lad my magnificent health was the pride of my parents and the envy of the naybors, and yet my only regular exercize was beeting the family rugs, he said, and ma said, My, your rugs must of enjoyed a very special kind of saniterry dust.

I never breathed any of it, I assure you, pop said. A scientific rug beeter always beets rugs into the wind, so the dust flies harmlessly away into the breezo while the beeter gets pure air and perfect exercize. That's the techneek I always used and that's the techneek I'm going to use on our rugs this afternoon, he said, and ma said, Well. I suppose it cant hurt you and I dont see how it can hurt the rugs.

Thank you for your vote of confidence, pop said, and just then Nora stuck her head in the dining room, saying, I fixed that vacuum cleener, there was a little thing had to be turned and I turned it.

Just a same, William, that needn't prevent you from beeting the rugs if you really feel inspired, ma said, and pop said. Do you realize, that vacuum cleener cost me a hundred dollers? I'm not going to have it leening against the wall sneering at me while I break my back doing its work for it, at least not while it has its health, he said.

The result being nothing unusual happened.

Netherlands Girl Asked Help Of Montgomery to Go to Canada To Marry Canadian Soldier

London, Sept. 19 (CP Cable)— The story of a Netherlands girl who appealed to Field Marshal Montgomery to help her to go to Canada to marry a Canadian soldier was told by the London Evening News. It published a picture of Field Marshal Montgomery, commander of British occupation forces in Germany, in an Amsterdam square accepting a bouquet of flowers from Jeanine Van Genkel, a beauty specialist.

The girl dashed from the crowd and handed the Field Marshal a bunch of roses and a note, the paper said.

The note read:

"Dear Field Marshal: I am in love with a Canadian. We want to marry. It wasn't possible because he had to leave me and return to Canada. He is unhappy and so am I. You are such a great man and I am sure you can do something for me if you will. Please will you make two people happy again and help me to go to Canada.

The soldier's name was given as "Elmer Simms of Kirklaken (Sic) Canada," (Possibly Kirkland Lake, Ont.)

Peak in Crisis of Food Shortage In Europe When Winter Sets In

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Europe's dangerous shortage of food was emphasized again yesterday when 47 American organizations petitioned President Truman for quick shipment of foodstuffs to avert starvation.

The President later issued a statement saying "this government is bending every effort to find solutions to this problem" and reaffirming his pledge at the time of the Potsdam conference: "If we let Europe go cold and hungry, we may lose some of the foundations of order on which the hoped-for world-wide peace must rest. We must help to the limits of our strength. And we will."

Much Suffering to be Expected.

He added, however, that "much suffering may be expected during the coming winter in certain areas of the continent."

At the same time an Associated Press dispatch from Germany epitomized this perilous situation. It reported that shovel squads already are preparing graves for Berlin citizens who are expected to die from starvation or suicide during the winter.

This isn't a new crisis, but one with which the Allies have been struggling ever since the collapse of Nazidom. However it is rapidly approaching its peak, which will be reached after winter has the unhappy continent in its icy grip. That is, it will reach its peak of suffering—but none can say what chaos may be let loose as the result of hunger, for that drives folks to terrible deeds. And it creates situations which are taken advantage of by designing men.

Food for Fuel.

Herbert H. Lehman, American director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, told Mr. Truman the other day that Europe "faces a very grim winter, with unrest and possible chaos" unless relief could be expedited. Along with the terrifying shortage of food there is a critical scarcity of coal, a basic requirement since heat, light, transportation and industry depend on it.

No wonder Mr. Lehman fears "unrest and possible chaos." One can foresee crime waves in many sections of the continent, and some of the countries which are hardest hit may see civil upheavals.

The Allies are moving supplies to Europe, but this isn't a situation which can be met overnight. As the signs read, the best the Allies can do won't be enough. Time alone will tell how deep Europe must sink into the swamp of privation before being pulled onto firm ground.

Leipzig Is Lively But Cupboard Bare

By Moscow correspondent of "Newsweek," first Allied writer to be admitted to Russian Zone in Germany

Leipzig, with a population of 550,000 is relatively one of the most normal of German cities under Russian occupation. It is much less badly smashed than Dresden, Berlin, or the Ruhr and Rhineland cities. There is a semblance of normal life and even gaiety. Street cars are running and so are railway trains to other cities in the Russian-occupied zone, though not yet for passengers to the British and American zones.

"Der Freischutz," "Madame Butterfly," and Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Onegin" will soon be playing at the Leipzig opera. Every Saturday the admirable boy choir continues to sing in Johann Sebastian Bach's Thomas Kirche. The church is crowded with hundreds of middleclass, surprisingly well-dressed Germans. During the interval the pastor reads the Bible text — usually from the Book of Job. Thomas Kirche is intact, unlike Johannis Kirche where Bach is buried, which is in ruins.

Numerous cafes and bierstuben, where beer is sold cheaply, are open. Shops are empty except for odds and ends like stationary, postcards, and cosmetics. Restaurants serve wretched vegetarian meals partly payable in ration coupons. Cabarets are on the smutty side, which startles the Russians who say: "I suppose it's an old German custom."

In one of the main squares is a circus under an enormous tent, where a company of midgets sing, dance are rolled in a carpet and do somewhat elementary acrobatics. The audience is full of German children and Russian soldiers. The Russians wonder why the midgets were not called up under Hitler's total mobilization for the Wehrmacht. A big zoo with a variety of crocodiles, monkeys and other wild beasts is also flourishing and popular with the children and the Russians.

The black market thrives, despite numerous attempts to restrict and prohibit it. A litter of schnapps costs 1,000 marks ($100 U.S.) as against unrationed beer at 60 pfennigs a glass. Food is short and the Russian officers' mess at the Hotel Furstenhof— largely depending on local supplies, with ersatz sausage as the main dish—is probably the worst officers' mess in the Red Army.

The Oberburgermeister of Leipzig, Erich Zeigler, drew a gloomy picture of the situation in Saxony. He spoke with extraordinary bitterness, which he said all Germans shared, against the western Allies for having smashed up Dresden in two giant raids last February. "Was it really necessary at that stage of the war?" he asked. Zwinger, the old historic part of Dresden with its famous churches and many art treasures, including the Durer altarpiece, has been destroyed. He also said 200,000 people were mostly "burned to death."

Leipzig was about 30 per cent destroyed. Ninety per cent of Leipzig's printing works were wiped out by bombing. There are still a large variety of small industries in Leipzig, but bigger industries are being dismantled byt the Russians in accordance with the Potsdam agreements or as war booty.

Like other left-wing leaders, Ziegler realized this loss of industry was the result of Hitler's regime. He thought, however, that generosity would pay the victors in the long run and claimed 63,000,000 Germans would have difficulty subsisting in a restricted area even on a greatly lowered standard of living. Saxony, Zeigler said, had enough food on hand to carry through the winter on the present reduced rations, but the most critical time would be between February and March and the next harvest—a five-month period.

The most acute problem, closely allied to food, is that of refugees from Silesia and the Sudetenland. They arrive with little baggage and are dumped on reluctant farmers with the result that the population in some rual areas has been doubled and even trebled. Typhus among the refugees is so common that the Russians have ordered compulsory inoculations for the whole population everywhere in their zone.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 18

Hilton, who had been examining the huddle of uniforms, cried, "You're right. And we must act quickly. I'll go to the airport and get Folly but Hazel, you'd better call your friend in the intelligence department and give him the dope."

"Shall I come with you?" Marta asked, her face pale with anxiety.

"No, dear, I can handle this better alone. We don't want any publicity if we can help it."

Nabbed at Airport.

Two minutes later his car was tearing down the street, completely forgetful of the 40 mile speed limit he had recently imposed upon it. To get there before the plane left was all that mattered. Otherwise he would have to follow them to Reno. They might even be married before they could be stopped.

Arresting the "count" would be the problem of the intelligence department but Hilton vowed he would not return without Folly. Leaving the car he rushed into the station only to find that the plane was already being boarded. Folly and the count were not to be seen. Hilton himself was stopped at the gate. By the time he went to the proper authorities for a pass the plane would be gone.

He stared longingly at it then just before it took off, Folly descended from it followed by Eric and two policemen. So Hazel's call had been in time.

Folly's expression was bewildered. She had no idea what it was all about. When she saw Hilton she began to cry and one of the officers said, "She can go. We've no instructions to hold her."

Folly sobbed indignantly, "But you don't know what you're doing. This is Count Lindstrom. We are going to be married."

Eyes Betray Guilt.

"Shut up," Hilton snapped and taking her by the arm, led her to his car. Eric had not spoken. His craven face and averted wretched eyes betrayed his guilt.

In the car Folly continued to weep but presently when she was quieter, Hilton said, "Listen, kid, you don't know how lucky you are. That man was not only an imposter of the worst kind. He is a spy."

"I don't believe it. He couldn't be. Mrs. Whitcomb met him in New York."

"It makes no difference where she met him," Hilton said grimly.

"She was fooled like every one else. He's been trying to find out military secrets by appearing in various defence and production areas wearing various kinds of officer's uniforms."

"How do you know?" the girl gasped, still unconvinced.

"Chan discovered it by breaking into those suitcases he stored with us. That wily old Chinese never did believe he was a count. He was down in the store-room breaking the locks while you were leaving."

"Chan. It would be Chan," she thought then the full enormity of Eric's crime dawned upon her "Oh, Hilton, is it really true?"

An Accomplice.

"Of course it's true. Otherwise what would all those uniforms be doing in his possession? It seems that last night he was almost caught. There was an item in the paper about it."

"But how could he have gone in and out of his apartment like that? I mean in front of a door man and elevator boy."

"I don't know. He must have had an accomplice."

Then Folly remembered the day before when she had seen him coming from the disreputable looking apartment house. The apartment in Egholm's name offered a place where Eric could conceal the uniforms and change. No one there would notice if the officer who went in came out a civilian. And no doubt Egholm himself was in on it. Or perhaps he wasn't. These were questions for other minds than hers to solve but at least she could tell Captain Charles Gates the address of the apartment on Turk Street.

Fortunately Folly's name was kept out of the brief account given to the newspapers of the capture and conviction of the man posing as a count, wearing military uniforms. Mrs. Whitcomb's name also since she had been an innocent victim of his social imposition was not mentioned. Susan telephoned Folly that of course they hadn't seen much of him lately and since Eric had insisted upon secrecy none of Folly's friends suspected her own connection with him.

An Unhappy Girl.

Folly's punishment was a private one of disillusionment and humiliation. How could she have been so mistaken about the man she had planned to marry? And now all her wonderful plans had been punctured like so many balloons. Every moment for weeks had been concentrated on Eric. Her entire picture must be reconstructed. But how was she to do it alone in the old house with only a grimly silent Chan for company.

Never had Folly been so sorry for herself as she was now. She felt as if a cruel fate had led her into the promised land so that she could see everything she desired then dashed it into pieces. She was so unhappy she even hoped that Bruce would telephone. But he did not do so. Just like a man, Folly thought cynically. He, too, had deserted her now that she needed him. Thrown back upon her own shallow resources she moped and sighed and rebelled until one evening Hilton found her lying on the davenport before the fire in the drawing room.

Folly glanced up when Hilton came into the drawing room but she made no effort toward conversation. He filled his pipe and sat down then he said deliberately, "You've had a tough break Folly, but not half so tough as it might have been. How would you like to be the wife of a man convicted of being an enemy alien of your country?"

"I don't see what that has to do with it," she wailed. "I'm glad we didn't go on with our marriage of course. I'm just as loyal to my country as you are. That doesn't make life any easier for me now."

"What's the matter with your life now?" Hilton asked reasonably.

Filled with self pity Folly sat up dramatically.

Folly's First Love.

"What's the matter with it? Everything. Just everything," she sighed. "At least Eric kept me busy and made me feel necessary. I don't seem to be important to any one else. All my friends are too busy to see me any more. Even my own sisters don't care what becomes of me. And you . . ."

Hilton drew on his pipe and answered calmly, "Yes, do go on, Folly. This is most enlightening. What's wrong with me? Where do I come into your picture at all?"

"You could have been in it," she cried recklessly, green eyes alight now with the fire of a new hope. "You knew I was falling in love with you but instead of being sweet to me after kissing me you were cruel and mean . . ."

"As God is my witness," the man said reddening, "I have never been cruel to any human being. Certainly not to you, Folly."

"Well, you were," Folly insisted, sensing that she had touched upon a vulnerable point. He must care about her or he would not take it so seriously. After all why had he come in here when he knew it was Marta's night to work? When he knew Folly would be alone?

The coquetry stunned by her disillusionment in Eric shone again in her flower-like face. She was not only the prettiest girl in the family, but had been voted the most beautiful in her class. All men were prone to fall for a pretty face. Even this one who had kissed her once and run away, was not altogether untouched by her youth and beauty.

"Oh, Hilton," she said gently. "You never knew how much you hurt me by acting as you did. All my life I have had an ideal man in my heart. When I first saw you I knew you were that man in every respect. And I was so happy. I never dreamed you would treat me as you did. Why do you think I fell for the count, Eric, I mean? Can't you see it was only because you had humiliated me so by kissing me then pushing me out of your room?"

The man's face had turned from red to white. She had a certain effect on him which he could not deny. But the knowledge that she was acting, that even though she thought she was sincere she did not know her own mind or heart, made him sound even sterner than he had intended.

"Snap out of it, Folly," he said coldly. "I'm the only man available at the moment but it's no use. I'm going to tell you some of the facts of life and you aren't going to like them. Facts are often unpleasant but you'll never grow up until you've heard them."

She stared at him in utter astonishment as he tapped the ashes from his pipe and continued, "First you are a spoiled brat, much too young for your actual years. It is no compliment for a girl almost twenty to be able to pass for sixteen. Your sisters have protected and sheltered you for reasons which seemed necessary to them but no one else is going to do it."

"The time has come when no matter how it hurts you are going to have to stand on your own feet. You'll never be happy until you do it, Folly! You'll be better off in every way.

"Stop feeling sorry for yourself and trying to lean on the most convenient masculine shoulder. You're not ready for marriage yet. What you need is a job."

All the color had drained from Folly's face as she listened. She could not believe that any man would say such things to her.

"You have too much confidence in your own beauty," Hilton said brutally. "Sure you're lovely to look at but a girl has to have more than that in the world of today. You say you aren't necessary to anybody. But you're darned necessary in the general scheme of things. There is a place for every young, strong, vital person in this country. You have artistic ability. Why don't you use it? Not to design costumes no one can wear but in defense work."

"Doing what?"

One Best Home Way To BUILD UP RED BLOOD

To Get More Strength
If you suffer from Simple Anemia

You girls and women who suffer from simple anemia so that you are pale, feel tired, weak, "dragged out"—this may be due to lack of iron in the blood. So try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound TABLETS with added iron at once!

Pinkham's Tablets are one of the best iron tonics you can buy to help build up red blood to give more strength and energy—in such cases. Taken as directed—Pinkham's Tablets are one of the most effective home ways to get precious iron into the blood.

Just try Lydia Pinkham's Tablets for 30 days—then see if you, too, don't benefit.

OH LIL, WHERE'S THE ODEX ?

Lil ODEX need not blush
Nor try her erring spouse to "shush"
For Lou is sold on ODEX SOAP,
A bath with it renews his hope.

ODEX leaves him fresh and clean,
Free from sweat and dirt, I mean.
Try ODEX SOAP—and you'll agree
It's GOOD for all the FAMILY.

How You Can Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

Most people seem to think the only way to get relief from their sore, painful piles is by local treatment. Local treatment may give temporary relief from the itching but you can easily see why such treatment will not correct the cause of your piles.

No lasting freedom from pile misery can be had unless the cause of the trouble is corrected. Piles are due to internal causes so the best way to get lasting relief is to treat them internally with a medicine like Hem-Roid.

Hem-Roid is a formula that has been used for over 40 years by thousands of pile sufferers. It is a small, highly concentrated tablet, easy and pleasant to use. This cleverly compounded tablet formula directs its medical action to relief of the congestion that is the real cause of your piles. Hem-Roid promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements, quickly relieves itching, irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the lower bowel the painful pile tumors soon heal over leaving the sensitive rectal membranes clean and healthy.

We invite you to try Hem-Roid and let it prove itself. You can make your test, in the privacy of your own home. NO COST if you are not convinced that this is an amazingly easy and surprisingly effective method of treating your sore, painful piles.

Get a package of Hem-Roid today from any drug store and use it as directed for JUST FIVE DAYS. At the end of that time if you are not absolutely sure Hem-Roid is the nicest, cleanest and most effective pile treatment you ever tried, return the unused portion of the package to your druggist and he will promptly refund your money.

NOTE: This generous offer is backed by a reliable firm doing business in Canada for a good many years. Hem-Roid must help your pile condition quickly, easily and pleasantly or this simple, easy test costs you nothing. Try it today.

BUILDING HOMES MUST BE GIVEN FIRST PRIORITY

Drew Says Next Need Will be Construction of Industrial Plants

Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Premier Drew of Ontario said yesterday that first priority in peacetime construction must be given to the building of homes, which, he added, is a responsibility of the Dominion government. The premier spoke to nearly 300 representatives of building and engineering organizations.

After the need for homes had been met, he said, the building of industrial plants to create earning power would be required.

"There was a time when we thought there would be widespread unemployment," Premier Drew continued. "If we accept the statements from Ottawa, it is unlikely for some time to come that there will be a surplus of employable workers, a somewhat different situation than we had anticipated."

He said public service construction such as power lines and highways should be given a high priority over merely beautification and improvement work. The provincial government, he added, will place in the highest priority building of electrical plants, key highways and other similar projects.

Long-Range Planning

Guelph, Galt and Goderich were examples of the advantages of long-range community planning, the premier said.

Planning by municipalities for future development must not be for tomorrow or 10 years from now, he added, but "based on a broad vision of the future and the general expansion we expect."

He said he believed responsibility for planning should rest with municipal councils and not with a highly-centralized government authority.

New developments in construction should be used in new buildings, he said, adding that a committee had submitted a report to the Royal Commission on Education on its study of new types of school construction which would afford better lighting, ventilation and accommodation, probably at lower cost.

Gross Neglect At Belsen Camp, Doctor Declares

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 19—(AP) — Josef Kramer and his staff of 44 men and women at the Belsen horror camp were "perfectly indifferent" to the welfare and health of internees, Brig. Hugh Llewellyn Glyn Hughes declared today during re-examination by the prosecutor as the first mass trial of accused war criminals entered its third day.

Brig. Hughes, the British medical officer who first inspected the notorious Nazi concentration camp, said there was a large number of medical personnel among the internees, but that Kramer and his staff made no effort to organize them.

"They made efforts to organize themselves but they were unfit," Brig. Hughes testified. Under questioning he also reiterated there were large stocks of unused medical supplies and a Wehrmacht food depot, well stocked, only two miles from the camp.

Prosecutor Col. T. M. Backhouse later today will question other British officers who collected evidence as investigators and were among the first soldiers to enter the camp after its liberation last April 15.

The pattern of the defence was disclosed yesterday during the 5½-hour testimony of Brig. Hughes when several of the defence officers — 11 Britons and one Pole — cross-examined the witness as to "the principal cause" of conditions at the camp.

Brig. Hughes did not falter in his testimony that "gross neglect" was the cause.

"Failure of ordinary human rules — to feed them, keep them clean, provide sanitation," was the bottom factor, he said.

"I have seen all the horrors of war, but nothing that can touch what I found at Belsen."

WANTS NO TOKEN OCCUPATION OF JAPAN

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 19 — (CP) — The Sydney Daily Express today editorially expressed concern over Gen. MacArthur's statement on the drastic cut of occupation forces in Japan. The newspaper said "the mere token occupation of Japan . . . cannot satisfy this country and should not satisfy the Empire on the behalf of which we have carried the main burden of British contribution to the war in the Pacific."

ABOLISH SUNDAY FUNERALS

Chatham, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Chatham has abolished Sunday funerals. Members of the Chatham Ministerial Association have agreed not to conduct funerals on the Sabbath, which they claim is a busy day for them anyway.

Fine Borax Mixture For Turnip Disease

Exeter, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP)— Dr. J. D. McLachlan, Associate Professor of Botany at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, said yesterday that a dust mixture containing fine borax has been found satisfactory in fighting water core, one of the most serious diseases to attack turnip crops. The borax mixture was tested on two-acre portions of about 15 turnip fields.

Pte. Asa Lloyd Out of Danger

How he was injured has not been learned.

2.15 In. Rainfall Here on Tuesday

Rainfall in Belleville on Tuesday was one of the heaviest on record, amounting to 2.15 inches up to midnight. After last midnight there was a fall of .02 inches.

In Toronto the amount of rain in the all-day downpour was the second greatest for the city since 1843, one hundred and two years ago, according to the meteorological services, recording the rain from 1 a.m. until midnight.

ITALIAN COLONIES'

The border suggested by Woodrow Wilson, the United States First Great War President, and reported to be favored by Britain and the United States, runs about 15 miles from the eastern tip of the Istrian Peninsula and almost due north. More than half the peninsula and the port of Trieste would remain Italian.

Dominions' Attitude.

Three British Dominions, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, testifying in the matter last night, were understood to have emphasized their share in the fighting against the Italians and to have inclined more to the Yugoslav point of view than either the American or the British representatives. They were understood to have favored an ethnic frontier. The decision apparently rests upon the Russian attitude, which M. Molotov declined to outline specifically yesterday.

Heightening speculation was M. Molotov's statement, without elaboration, that the Dodecanese Islands should not be returned to Italy. This could indicate that Russia might seek control over the strategic islands.

The big question was: "Has Russia colonial or trusteeship ambitions?"

A study of the map draws into focus the power Russia would have should she gain control of Eritrea, Tripolitania and the Dodecanese. Bases at Tripoli, Rhodes and Massawa would be at strategic points along Britain's Empire lifeline through Suez to Gibraltar.

REDUCE TRAIN CREWS

St. Thomas, Sept. 19 — (CP)— Both the New York Central and the Pere Marquette railroads have been cutting down train crews because of slackened business, officials reported yesterday. On the New York Central the layoff is reported to be down to men whose service dates back to 1929.

Ship Will Carry Full Cargo Of Meat After All

Montreal, Sept. 19 (CP)— Under the heading "Freighter That Wasn't Here Loads Meat That Wasn't There," the Star today described as a "first class waterfront mystery" reports that the freighter Port Darwin would sail from here lacking some 1,000 tons of her meat cargo.

The Star said that the Port Darwin, described by the Prices Board as loading meat here Sunday, didn't arrive here until yesterday and would not be ready to land until tonight or tomorrow.

"To top it," says the Star, "agents for the ship said the cargo had not all been ordered yet and they would not know if there was a shortage until the ship sails within a week."

The Prices Board announced at Ottawa Tuesday that the Port Darwin, originally described as loading at Halifax, was loading in Montreal but that because of meat shortages she would carry 2,500 tons of meat overseas instead of the projected 3,500 tons.

AS SPEARHEAD OF HURRICANE HIT MIAMI

Spray from big waves smashing themselves against the Biscayne Bay breakwaters makes a fog over this deserted highway on Miami's waterfront, top, as the big hurricane made Miami's famed palms look like inside-out umbrellas. Hurricane watchers said the speed of the storm was 150 miles an hour at times. It left a path of destruction through the Bahamas. Lower stores and homes are left in tangled ruin at Homestead, Florida, after hurricane.

Ruins for Remembrance New British Slogan As Restoration Proceeds

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Sept. 19 (CP)—"Ruins for Remembrance".

That new slogan is being heard in London as plans go forward for the restoration of fine buildings the Germans destroyed. Already the scars of war are healing as flowers and bright English grass make their way through the rubble and even through the cracks in stone floors of churches that lost their roofs to the flying bombs.

Londoners admit the destruction of some ancient landmarks was so complete that they can never be the same again, no matter how complete their restoration. They even admit that in some crowded sections of the old city the painful impact of enemy bombs made clearings where parks may be created. No harm would be done, they say, if some venerated ruins were left there, allowing the ivy and flowers to grow over them ruins for remembrance.

The stranger finds little sighing about historic buildings that disappeaded in a roar of high explosive. The beefeater who guides servicemen about the tower of London on Sunday afternoons has his joke about mediaeval walls that have vanished.

"Here there used to stand part of an old building," he rumbles. "Someone (and he capitalizes the "someone") did not like it and it went away in smoke one night."

But there is reverence, too. In shattered St. Olave's Church the roof is gone and tablets to the long dead are exposed to the elements on the walls that remain. In the churchyard, men and women sit quietly on flat tombstones, reading, and before the dusty altar rails service men, with bared heads, read the inscriptions on the flagstones of the floor.

In the Guildhall where a ceiling that withstood centuries burned in minutes, the object of pride is a painting of Winston Churchill receiving the freedom of the city a short time ago.

In St. Paul's cathedral the procession of visitors never ends.

Repairs are going forward as quickly as men are released from the forces and supplies become available. But more attention is being given homes than churches and out in the suburbs people homeless for a year and more find that at last they can return to their houses with glass in the windows and a front door that will shut. Not much use, to be sure, but the average London householder feels he is fortunate to have four walls to shelter him and does not question the condition of the wallpaper or the polish on the floor.

Anglo-French Rapprochement Favored by Blum

London, Sept. 19 (Reuters) — Leon Blum, former French Socialist Premier, advocated, at a press conference here a rapprochement between Britain and France and gave it as his opinion that the atom bomb has taught the nations that war is impossible.

He added he did not think the Franco regime would remain much longer in power in Spain and that the addition of innumerable new factors made it most difficult to foretell the outcome of the forthcoming elections in France, set for Oct. 21.

Referring to a Franco-British rapprochement, M. Blum said:

"I believe that such rapprochement would be able to direct the tendencies of the world towards international organization and peace and would necessarily lead to an agglomeration of the powers of western and northern Europe and in the near future of southern Europe as well.

"I believe in the growth of this western family provided:

"1. That from a political point of view it avoids any suspicion or even shade of suspicion of hostility to Russia;

"2. That from an economic point of view it makes it clear that it is not hostile to or defensive against the United States;

"3 That it is not meant to replace an international organization but to be the preparation towards such an organization.

"Girl Question" Starts Trouble In Dutch Town

By WILLIAM BOSS
(C.P. War Correspondent)

Utrecht, Holland, Sept. 19 (CP Cable)—Between 300 and 400 Canadian soldiers spread out through the Vreeburg district of Utrecht Sunday night and began assaulting citizens, Burgomaster Tir Pilkwijk said yesterday, attributing the fracas to the "girl question."

While Canadian authorities remained silent, the Burgomaster said he believed that the troops acted on the basis of unconfirmed reports that two or three soldiers escorting Dutch girls were beaten up during the preceding week, and proceeded to retaliate on the population at large.

The Burgomaster said civil police were withdrawn on his instructions "because I felt it was prudent not to heighten the difficulties with the troops" and the matter was left to military police to handle.

Arrests were reported to have been made freely, including two civilians armed with Sten guns. Casualties were limited to one girl wounded but black eyes and aching jaws were common on both sides.

In an effort to suppress news of the occurrence, the Canadian Provost Corps men prevented a public relations dispatch rider from running copy dealing with the disturbance and returned him under escort.

Vancouver Police Hold 12-Year Boy For Investigation

Vancouver, Sept. 19 (CP)—Walter Mulligan, Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Vancouver Police Force, said that a 12-year-old boy is being held "for further investigation and for his own protection" in connection with the discovery Monday night of the body of four-year-old Dianne Blunt.

The child was found buried under three inches of dirt in an unused garage 25 yards from her East Hastings Street home. She had been missing since Sept. 11.

Superintendent Mulligan said that while searchers scoured South Vancouver in their hunt for the missing tot he had received a telephone call from E. F. Arnatt employer of Dianne's father, E. J. Blunt.

Mr. Arnatt, who had led in the search for the child, said that while coming down the lane at the rear of the Blunt home he met a 12-year-old boy who said that "he had discovered something suspicious in a garage near the Blunt residence."

Mr. Arnatt said he accompanied the boy to the garage where he found signs of freshly-turned earth and what appeared to be a shallow grave.

Superintendent Mulligan would not amplify reasons for holding the boy who is a junior high school student and is said to be a friend of the Blunt family. The police official said so far the boy has not been questioned.

Meanwhile police are holding as evidence a thick hardwood stick three feet long, a piece of galvanized tin two feet by six inches and also a board. They said all three objects are blood-spotted.

Gone to collect paper salvage

There is still an urgent need for waste paper to furnish containers to carry food supplies for the people of the liberated countries in Europe.

So, save all cartons, wrapping paper, paper boxes, old newspapers, magazines and rags. Industry can help, too, by contributing the tons of waste paper in old files and records.

Keep adding to your file until you have a bundle of 50 pounds or more.

Tie securely, then notify salvage headquarters—the need is urgent—act today.

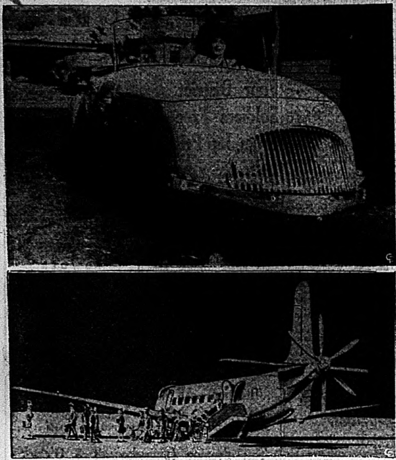
THREE-WHEELED AUTO AND A PLANE THAT FLIES WITH ITS TAIL



Marie Montez, screen actress, tests out the West Coast's first three-wheel post-war automobile, in Los Angeles, Calif. Powered by an aircraft engine, the vehicle will do 100 miles per hour and get 40 miles to a gallon of gas. Cars are expected to be available to the public within three months. Lower is a sketch of the airplane that flies with its tail. Replacing the familiar DC-3 for post-war air travel. It will be known as the DC-2, which will be 50 per cent faster than the standard DC-3. The plane has counter-rotating propellers at the tail and internal liquid-cool engines, leaving the wings free of nacelles with better lift distribution resulting from the more effective wing span.

Many Belleville Men Arriving on 'Pasteur'

A large number of Belleville and district boys are arriving home on the "Louis Pasteur" which will dock at Quebec on Saturday. The troopship was expected to dock on Friday but due to fog in the St. Lawrence River, it has been delayed for approximately twenty-four hours. The list, which is given, cannot be regarded as absolutely accurate. For various reasons deletions, are often necessary at the last moment and the corrected list is not always possible until the men have arrived at their depots. The list as given by military headquarters at Kingston for Belleville and district included:

Major Gordon William Telfer, 171 Foster Avenue, Belleville; Capt. Henry Robert Frink, Deseronto; Gnr. J. E. Little, Gen. Delivery, Belleville; Cpl. W. E. Norman, Millbridge; Bdr. J. W. Lt.-Col. Merritt Retiring From Canadian Army

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)— Lt.-Col. C.C.I. Merritt of Vancouver, who became Canada's first Victoria Cross winner of the Second Great War for his heroism at Dieppe in 1942, and who is now a member of parliament, is retiring from the Canadian army at his own request, Defence Headquarters announced today.

The announcement said he would retire "shortly." He was a barrister before going to Dieppe as commander of the South Saskatchewan Regiment. With his return from three years as a prisoner of war he was elected in the June 11 general election as Progressive Conservative member of the House of Commons for Vancouver Centre.

A native of Vancouver, Col. Merritt was schooled there and in England and is a graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston and Imperial Staff College, Camberley, Eng.

He went overseas in 1939 with the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada and later took over command of the South Saskatchewan Regiment which he led on Canada's historic "reconnaissance in force" at Dieppe.

Winster Confident In Future Of Civil Aviation

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

London, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Lord Winster leaned back in his chair and smiled amiably.

"I have the utmost confidence in our aircraft designing staffs, our managerial capacity and above all our workmanship to turn out aircraft second to none," he said.

As Minister of Civil Aviation in the new Labor Government, Lord Winster, 60, must find that confidence an asset. Even he admits frankly that Britain is off to a bad start in the world air race — but he expects her to catch up.

The sea, not the air, is the minister's background. He was a lieutenant-commander in the Royal Navy and Parliamentary Secretary to the First Lord of the Admiralty. He was the first peer to head a trade union — the Navigators' and Engineer Officers' Union in the Merchant Navy.

He still turns to the sea for comparisons.

"What we must do is operate our airlines with the same efficiency as our mercantile marine gave the world before the war," he said in an interview. "We must make air travel synonymous with speed, safety and comfort.

"And we must bring air travel within the reach of everyone. It is no use saying we have brought India within 60 hours of Britain if the cost is prohibitive for more than a limited number of people."

Typical of the way he runs the country's civil aviation business is the lightning tour he made of British Overseas Airways' North Atlantic routes soon after he took office in early August. He left London on a Saturday, flew to Eire and Baltimore by flying boat, then up to Canada and back to England by landplane, arriving on the following Wednesday.

Secret Files Reveal Nazi Leaders' Own Story of 1938 Jewish Pogrom

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, Sept. 20. (AP)— The big shot Nazis' own story of their Jewish pogrom in 1938—told in signed letters and reports— has been recovered from the secret files of the Third Reich.

These include official orders for the pogrom sent in advance to police and Nazi party formations and the gestapo's summary of crimes committed against the Jews.

It is climaxed by secret judgments handed down by the Nazi supreme party court in a handful of cases involving Germans' murder and rape of Jews.

The most severe punishment meted out by this Nazi court, sitting in Munich, was to deprive 33-year-old Heinrich Frey of Party membership for having raped Ruth Alter, 13-year-old Jewish student at Rheinhausen.

This court held, was an infraction of the "racial purity" law.

The files showed the blood bath of Germany Jewry was prepared at the Brown House in Munich, party shrine, with Hitler's deputy, Rudolf Hess, and Propaganda Minister Goebbels, present.

Chronologically, the Nazi story of the 1938 pogrom begins with notes taken by the gestapo of Goebbels' secret speech to 250 officials of the Berlin police department June 10, in the propaganda ministry.

On Nov. 10, 1938, Reinhard Heydrich, S.S. (Elite Guard) group leader in charge of all security police sent a message over the national teletype network ordering anti-Jewish demonstrations.

It listed orders from Heinrich Himmler, leader of the S.S. and German chief of police, that:

1.—German life and property must be respected—"for example, synagogue fires (are permissible) only when they are not a fire danger to the neighborhood".

2.—"Businesses and homes of Jews should only be destroyed, not plundered".

3.—"In business streets, it is especially necessary to observe that non-Jewish businesses are unqualifiedly secured against damage."

COMMONS HEARS CHARGE NATIONAL UNITY IMPAIRED

Quebec Member Says Conscription Issue Used to Foster Party's Political Advantage

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 20 — (CP) — The House of Commons heard a charge from a Quebec member yesterday that Canada's national unity and inter-racial harmony had been "seriously impaired" because the issue of conscription had been used in the Second Great War by "unscrupulous politicians to foster their own petty personal political advantage."

The charge came from Georges Heon, Independent Progressive Conservative member from Argenteuil constituency in Quebec, a province which has openly opposed conscription. And the Quebec member suggested that if Canada ever again was embroiled in a world war, a system of conscription by number, such as used in the United States, should be invoked.

Thus Mr. Heon became the first member of the new parliament to mention what manpower policies the government should follow in the event of another war.

He was one of six speakers to participate in the Throne Speech debate which is expected to conclude today with the government standing its first test on the oppositions amendments to the motion for adoption of the Throne Speech.

Other speakers were G. Belzile (L — Rimouski), R. S. Moore (CCF — Churchill), Wing Cmdr. Lawrence Skey (PC — Toronto Trinity), Dr. Alderic Laurendeau (L — Berthier-Maskinonge) and Frederic Dorion (Ind — Charlevoix Saguenay).

Export Price Wheat Set.

Prior to resumption of the debate, Trade Minister MacKinnon announced that the export price of Canadian wheat will be $1.55 and regardless of what might happen to world prices during the next five years, the government would guarantee that wheat growers would never receive less than $1 a bushel.

Mr. Heon told the House that, personally, he felt that if "this country ever became engaged in another total war, where our very existence was threatened, and universal service was resorted to by the government of the day, it should be done by something similar to the American system."

Under this system, "the millionaire and the pauper, the sons of the President and of the laborer, the influential or the insignificant, the Republican or the

Koreans to Have An Independent Nation in Time

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 20 — (AP) —The "feed-them-and-get-them-working" program of Maj.-Gen. A. V. Arnold, military governor of American occupied (Southern) Korea, is rapidly eliminating confusion which accompanied liberation.

Gen. Arnold explained at a press conference that the major problem is "giving Koreans an independent nation in due time." This task assumes mountainous proportions in view of the long (35 years) Japanese dominance and because it is essential to retain minor Japanese cogs in the administrative machinery until the Koreans are suited to work out their country's economic system.

Weeding out of Japanese officials is proceeding well, he said. It started at the top with Gen. Nobiyuki Abe, ousted governor general, who will be sent to Japan as soon as his ailing wife is able to travel. This process, which already includes removal of Japanese Bureau heads, is to be continued as fast as qualified Koreans are found to assume their places. Gen. Arnold said the length of time before full independence "is up to the Koreans themselves."

The problem of replacing the Korean-hated Japanese police has begun. A recruiting program for Koreans to take their places is progressing well. Korea's primary schools are prepared to open Sept. 24, using textbooks written by Japanese - imprisoned Korean school teachers.

Gen. Arnold said there are expectations of a bumper rice crop this year and that the current ration had been increased to a living status. The problem presented by Japanese "ownership" of Korean property will be studied and "just adjudication" was promised.

Commons Enjoys Break by King

Ottawa, Sept. 20 (CP) — The Commons enjoyed Prime Minister Mackenzie King's break yesterday when he referred to M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, as "the Leader of the Opposition."

Mr. Coldwell had asked if there could be a special day devoted to the discussion of wheat topics, and Mr. King rose to reply.

Looking over at Mr. Coldwell, he started: "The Leader of the Opposition . . ."

He got no further, members on all sides, including John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader and official Opposition Leader of the House, pounded their desks.

Mr. King realized his error, smiled broadly, and continued his reply.

PRICE OF EXPORT WHEAT SET AT $1.55 A BUSHEL

Trade Minister Guarantees Growers $1 Bushel for Next Five Years

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon announced yesterday in the Commons the export price of Canadian wheat would be $1.55 and regardless of what might happen to world prices during the next five years the government would guarantee that the wheat growers would never receive less than $1 a bushel. Both prices are basis No. 1 Northern at the head-of-the-lakes or Vancouver.

The $1.55 price is an advance of nine cents a bushel over the price formerly charged under mutual aid to Britain and other United Nations countries. It brings the price of wheat in line with the price charged to United States and certain neutral countries based on the world prices as fixed in the Chicago wheat pit.

The minister's announcement left the way open to change the export price whenever it sees fit, but the floor price will not be changed before 1950. There will be no immediate change in the initial payment of $1.25 to the grower by the Canadian Wheat Board. The Board also gives the grower participation certificates which entitles him to share in any profits the Board will make on the wheat of any crop year.

Guarded Reply

Mr. MacKinnon made a guarded reply to John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) who asked if deliveries would be governed by quotas as during the war. He said no reference was made to deliveries.

Under the quota the Wheat Board takes only 14 bushels per authorized acre under wheat from any farmer and if a farmer has a big crop the surplus has to be disposed of in the best possible manner.

The feeling in corridors of parliament after Mr. MacKinnon made his statement, which emphasized the world shortage of wheat, was that the government might soon see its way clear to authorize the board to take all wheat offered at the fixed prices particularly in view of the comparatively small crop in the prairies, now estimated at 321,409,000 bushels.

The Minister agreed that if Canada wished to be tough it likely could get a higher price than $1.55 a bushel because this country and the United States had the only substantial surpluses of wheat. However, it would mean that the Allies in Europe would suffer.

Taking a long term view of the situation it would be better, he said, to keep the wheat price reasonable because then the importing countries were likely to keep buying Canadian wheat after the emergency and not turn to intensive wheat production within their own borders as a protection.

Some Western Liberal members, commenting outside the Commons, said they would attack the government's stand in the House on the ground that if Canada wanted to be generous to the Allied countries and keep the price down, the generosity should be paid for by Canada as a whole and not make the wheat growers bear the burden.

Fall of Snow Lasts 6 Hours In Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Sept. 20 — (CP) —A soft blanket of snow enveloped Winnipeg today after the first snow fall which lasted almost six hours.

Two hours after midnight snow began to fall and continued to sheath the city in white until it began to melt into a soft but steady rain.

The first snowfall of 1944 came on Sept. 30.

EXPERTS STUDYING R.M.A. PLAN FOR MEAT RATIONING

Calls for Distribution To Consumers Of Meat Left After Requisitioning

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 20. (CP)—Government rationing experts studied today a proposal by Canada's meat retailers that the present meat rationing plan be suspended and replaced by a system of requisitioning the amount needed to meet overseas commitments.

The suggested plan, recommended to Prices Board officials yesterday by a delegation of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, called for the distribution to Canadian consumers "through the regular channels of trade" of what meat would be left after the required amounts had been requisitioned.

The delegation, representing more than 50 per cent of the Dominion's retail meat trade, suggested that this distribution be subject only to the provision that the Dominion government use the Prices Board's existing facilities to "ensure equitable distribution".

It also recommended that the suggested plan be tried out for the remainder of this year, subject to revision "in the light of then prevailing conditions".

"Careful consideration" of the suggestions was promised by K. W. Taylor, foods co-ordinator for the Prices Board, who presided at a meeting with the retail delegates, who came to Ottawa at the government's suggestion following Dominion-wide protests against the recently-instituted rationing system.

The retailers made their recommendations in the form of a resolution presented to Prices Board and other government officials at an afternoon meeting which had followed a question-and-answer session in the morning.

Last night the delegates met again with Prices Board officials but this final meeting was confined mainly to a discussion of kinks in the current meat rationing plan, which is considerably more complicated than the rationing system in effect in 1943 and 1944.

No immediate statement was forthcoming from either side.

While Ottawa authorities and representatives of Canada Retail Butchers conferred in Ottawa in an attempt to smooth out the wrinkles in the meat rationing plan, Toronto dealers today reported they had no freezer space for meat.

Carloads of meat were said to be sitting on the sidings in boxcars as no hooks were available in the abattoir. Last night a meeting of the Domestic Packers and Processors Association of Canada held a protest meeting, after which a wire was sent to Prime Minister King, Finance Minister Ilsley and Prices Board

False Rumors Cause of Trouble Between Dutch, Canadian Soldiers

By ROSS MUNRO

Amersfoort, Sept. 20. (CP)—In the first official statement on disturbances at Utrecht involving Canadian soldiers and Dutch civilians, Maj.-Gen. R. H. Keefler, of Montreal, commander of the 3rd Canadian Division, said today:

"Indications at the moment are that this whole thing was originated by certain misguided soldiers acting on ill-founded rumors."

The general said in an interview at his headquarters that the rumors were to the effect that individual soldiers had been badly treated by civilians.

He said at no time were there more than 200 Canadian soldiers involved in Sunday night's disturbance, and they were in small groups of seven or eight men scattered throughout several streets near the town square. Previously, the burgomaster of Utrecht, Tir Pilkwuk, had estimated 300 to 400 Canadian soldiers were involved.

Dutch Not to Blame

"Not a single case of bad treatment (by the Dutch) has been proved", said Gen. Keefler. "A complete investigation is under way to determine the responsible people. So far there is no indication or statement by any one that the trouble was originated by Dutch civilians or police. There appears to be no evidence that Dutch police or civilians were responsible for starting the trouble."

He said the curfew imposed on all troops in Utrecht between 9.30 p.m. and dawn would be relaxed "as quickly as possible".

Gen. Keefler said the purpose of his statement was to prevent exaggerated rumors, properly to remove the blame from the Dutch police and civilians, and to encourage the troops to feel they were not being subjected to persecution by Dutch civilians.

"There was a disturbance Sunday night which involved some 'roughingup' between Canadian soldiers of various formations, involving men from various units and Dutch civilians in Utrecht," he said.

"Incidentally, Dutch civilian police happened to be moving in a small body from their headquarters to points of duty, and got mixed up in the incident solely on that account. The Dutch police, seeing a group of some hundreds of soldiers, and, acting on their local custom, discharged firearms into the air. There also was some indiscriminate use of firearms alleged to have been used by some civilians."

Quickly Quelled

The disturbance was quickly taken in hand by Canadian provosts, who had no difficulty in getting the soldiers to obey orders, the divisional commander continued.

"I have personally met with the burgomaster of Utrecht, a representative of his police force and the Military Government of Utrecht," Gen. Keefler said.

"On their side, they hold no antipathy toward the Canadian Army, either fundamentally or as a result of this incident, and they understand our present problem. The representative of the police said it was his hope that, in spite of this incident, Canadian soldiers would come to look upon Dutch civilian police as their friends."

17 Ships of U.S. Third Fleet Carry Navy Men Home

Occupation Army in Japan To Increase to 400,000

Tokyo, Sept. 20 —(AP)— Seventeen ships of the United States 3rd Fleet steamed for home today carrying several thousand navy men due for discharge—while Gen. MacArthur's headquarters disclosed that army occupation forces will increase to 400,000 before the predicted slash to 200,000 takes place.

There are approximately 150,000 American soldiers in Japan.

State Department expressions of surprise and concern at Gen. MacArthur's prediction of three days ago on the size of the occupation forces drew another terse "no comment" from Gen. MacArthur himself today. His staff officers pointed out, however, that his announcement of future reductions had clearly specified a probable force of 200,000 six months hence. It did not say that this would be the maximum landed in the meantime, they emphasized.

Troops will continue to pour into Japan through September, October, November and December until about 400,000 have arrived by the end of the year, they reported.

Jap Demobilization Smooth.

Japanese demobilization, meanwhile, is proceeding so smoothly that approximately three-fourths of the homeland army has been disarmed and discharged in half the allotted time, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced.

The 400,000 maximum, army spokesmen said, does not include Marine units in navy occupation zones, nor fleet personnel.

Gen. MacArthur's staff officers pointed out that thus far the occupation has been without incident and said that elimination of what Gen. MacArthur called "the unknown quantity of the initial operation" permitted new planning for the future.

The General's chief of economic and scientific planning said today Japan's food and shelter crisis would reach its peak in three or four months. Staff officers emphasized that Gen. MacArthur's predicted reduction to 200,000 occupation troops would follow this period.

Demobilization of the Japanese has continued at the rate of 50,000 men daily, he reported. There were 2,253,000 Japanese under arms in the home islands Aug. 15, and approximately 1,645,000 had been demobilized by Sept. 17 — with only 608,000 to go by the Oct 15 disarmament deadline.

Halsey and Nimitz to Join Convoy

In addition to American Navy-personnel passengers being ferried home for discharge, crew members on many of the 3rd Fleet warships expect to remain in the United States.

Three battleships and some lesser fleet units will join the homeward-bound convoy at Okinawa. From Pearl Harbor, the ships will go to various United States ports.

Admiral Halsey, 3rd Fleet commander, is expected to join the fleet at Pearl Harbor for its triumphant return to the United States. Admiral Nimitz, over-all Pacific naval commander, also will make the homeward journey.

Admiral Nimitz' flagship for the surrender ceremony in Tokyo Bay, the battleship Missouri, had preceded the force eastward. Aboard the Missouri are some 300 Canadian soldiers, liberated from Japanese imprisonment.

Other ships of the 3rd Fleet remained in Japanese waters, integrated with the 5th Fleet.

Sendai Occupied

Troops of the United States 14th Army Corps spread the peaceful Japanese occupation to Sendai today, occupying the city 200 miles north of Tokyo without incident. Troops of the Corps' 11th Airborne Division and 27th Infantry Division fanned out quietly thru an area more than 200 miles long, north-south, and from 50 to 120 miles wide.

The headquarters city of Sendai, reached earlier by advance headquarters elements, once contained 250,000 persons but now is about three-fourths bombed out.

On the Japanese side of the occupation picture, there were these developments:

The Tokyo newspaper Mainichi reported three more Japanese on Gen. MacArthur's war criminal suspect list had been arrested for questioning. They were Col. Akira Nagaham, former commandant of gendarmerie in the Philippines, accused of brutal policies there; Shigeru Osanai, former civilian official at prisoner of war camp No. 8 in Japan, and Sgt. Seichi (Gunzo) Miura, guard at the same camp, both accused of atrocities.

Lauzon, Koresky Start Year Term

Montreal, Sept. 20 (CP)—Ulysse Lauzon and Walter Koresky today began serving one-year terms in nearby Bordeaux jail, pending an expected request from Ontario authorities that Lauzon be returned to Ontario to face bank holdup charges there.

Eileen Lauzon, 20-year-old wife of Ulysse, went to Fullum women's jail pending arraignment on a car-theft charge. Her husband and Koresky pleaded guilty to the theft charge at Quebec last week. Mrs. Lauzon is expecting a baby in December.

It is believed here that as soon as Ontario officials had prepared their cases covering holdups which netted upwards of $400,000, Lauzon, at least, would be moved to Windsor, Ont., and lodged in Essex county jail pending trial.

W.M.S. ENDORSES RATIONING

Toronto, Sept. 20 —(CP)—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada announced today it had endorsed meat rationing "as a means of giving assistance to the United Kingdom and the liberated countries."

INSPECTORS CHECKING CITY RADIO LICENCES

Officials of the Department of Transport are in the city checking on radio licences with view of prosecuting those without their licences. Representatives A. G. E. Argue and R. P. Malton stated to the Ontario Intelligencer that quite a number in the city have not renewed their licence. Inspectors urged all to secure their licences immediately and avoid unpleasantness of court action.

DEER SEASON OPENS NOVEMBER 12TH

Hunting season dates are from November 12th to 27th instead of during October as was reported in a Canadian Press story appearing in the Ontario Intelligencer in Wednesday's issue. Area in which there will be open season for hunting between the above dates includes Central and Southeastern Ontario, including Haliburton County.

SGT. H. KELLEHER ON WAY HOME

Word has been received in the city that Sgt. Howard Kelleher is due to arrive on the "Pasteur" scheduled to dock on Saturday of this week. Sgt. Kelleher went overseas four and one-half years ago with the 34th Battery during which time he has served in England for three years instructing in the Light Anti Aircraft Battery. He left England on D-Day to see action in France, Holland, Belgium and Germany. Prior to leaving the European continent Sgt. Kelleher was in charge of a detail of men on a sight seeing tour through the western front.

Howard has an extra treat in store for him as his wife, the former Gwen Flindall, has built a lovely new six roomed bungalow furnished comfortably for their enjoyment. Sgt Kelleher also has a son, Bill, who is waiting patiently. Bill was six months old when his Daddy went overseas.

Sgt. Kelleher is the son of Mrs. Kelleher and the late Frank Kelleher of 106 Dundas St. East.

PARKED CARS ON JOHN ST. CAUSE COMPLAINTS

Complaints from John Street residents of motorists using that street for all day parking are being received at the local police station with constables being instructed to give warning tickets to drivers of vehicles. Officers stated that warnings only have thus far been issued to offending motorists, but that in the future summons will be handed out.

According to city by-laws no streets can be used for parking either day or night, although generally no action is taken until complaints are received. Students and staff members of the Collegiate using John Street for parking were advised to park their cars on the Collegiate parking lot.

CARS COLLIDE AT INTERSECTION

Damages amounting to approximately $250 resulted to two autos in collision at the Front and Bridge Street intersection on Wednesday afternoon. Roy Thompson, R. R. Mountain View, was driving south on Front St. with the green light when in crossing the intersection his auto was struck by one driven by Archie Bruce, 80 South Front Street, who was turning east on Bridge St.

MONEY STOLEN

Two instances of money being stolen were reported to police over the night. Brennan Maxwell, Queen Street, Trenton, reported his wallet containing $32 was lifted from his person while attending the Belleville Fair on Monday, while Howard Zacharia, 49 Station Street, reported over $30 missing from his residence.

Moulded Products Viewed by Patrons Of Belleville Fair

Possibilities of moulded plywood construction such as went into parts for fleet Mosquito bombers was demonstrated to customers of Belleville Fair by the Universal Moulded Products Company of this city which in a booth at the exhibition showed plywood canoes made at the local plant as well as other products expected to go into peacetime production.

The moulded plywood canoe was of specially fine construction, weighing approximately 65 lbs., while another boat of similar construction tipped the scales at only 45 pounds. According to attendants at the booths, both boats had received trying tests in the Bay of Quinte and had lived up to expectations in every respect.

Models of the prefabricated houses which the company expects to manufacture were also exhibited at the fair, as were bomber noses and doors, which had been built under their wartime contracts.

Child Has Four Sets of Teachers, Parents Being Most Important Dr. Laycock Tells H.&S. Clubs

Noted Child Psychologist and Native of Hastings County Gives Two Interesting Addresses

—"No school system can be much better than the public opinion on which it rests, that is why I am a member of the Home and School Association", stated Dr. S. R. Laycock, Ph.D., noted child psychologist and lecturer speaking last evening at the Collegiate before an audience of the combined Home and School Associations of Belleville and vicinity and others interested in child education.

Four Sets of Teachers.

"Every child has four sets of teachers," declared Dr. Laycock. "Most important, and the ones who remain throughout his development, are his parents; then his playmates, from whom he learns all sorts of things including sex information; his school teachers, who participate in but do not take over his education; and the community teachers which include newspapers, comic strips, magazines, radio programs, movies, Sunday School, church, scouts, guides, Y.M.C.A., poolrooms, bowling alley, dance halls and street scenes.

"Next to food," the speaker emphasized," the most important thing to a child is emotional security, which means love and affection in his own home. Parents who quarrel give the child a feeling of insecurity, as do parents, who do not agree on discipline with one parent lenient and one strict. Other factors contributing to the child's feeling of insecurity are inconsistent parents who make the child feel that his world is not orderly; favoritism, especially towards a new baby; harsh and unfair discipline; over-protection and coddling; implying that the child is not capable of doing things himself; grades at school which may make a child feed inferior."

Favors Diagnostic Approach.

Dr. Laycock recommended the diagnostic approach to behavior problems. The modern way is to go behind the action and see why the child steals or lies, or is a truant.

"Achievement, recognition, self-esteem and independence are necessary for a child, and parents who thwart those needs create problem children," declared the speaker.

Turning his attention to Home and School organizations, Dr. Laycock said that parents and teachers were tied together like Siamese twins whether they liked it or not.

Have One Purpose.

"This association should have one purpose and that is to promote the growth and development of children," he said.

"It is not a group to run the school, nor a grievance committee, a social committee nor a ladies' aid for the principal, although they may recommend some need to the school board; it should not be a cultural society nor one for adult education where the child is forgotten. It is a study and action club where parents and teachers get together and discuss what getting an education means; what children are like; and how to develop children, which includes behavior guidance and recreational development."

Dr. Bert Howard in introducing the speaker of the evening expressed his pleasure in welcoming home a distinguished native of Hastings county and former pupil at Albert College.

Mr. G. Currie, principal of the Collegiate, moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Laycock. Mrs. Ralph Morden presided.

Afternoon Meeting.

Speaking in a fluent manner at the afternoon meeting Dr. Laycock's subject was "Partners in Helping Children to Grow Up." Touching briefly on the subject of physical development of the child the speaker stated that evidence in the war showed that Canadians were not doing a good job of developing health in our youth when out of 50,000 examined fifteen to twenty per cent were put in categories D and E.

"A person is emotionally grown up when he is able to bear tension without blowing up," stated Dr. Laycock." If he can face the annoyances, irritations, and difficulties of every day living without sulking, pouting, temper tantrums, going to bed with a sick headache or other childish forms of behavior, he is emotionally mature. When a child indulges in such behavior then somewhere in his development in home and school he was not taught how to face difficulties. He has been hindered from growing up emotionally. The most common cause of failure in marriage is emotional immaturity.

Must Grow Up Socially.

"A child must grow up socially. This means emotional independence of one's own home. The normal development of the child embraces first his home, then the gang (his own sex), the crowd, (both sexes), and finally a mate. Some parents try to keep their child a baby always, with the result that he has an arrested development and cannot make a satisfactory marriage partner.

The parent should be a good friend of the child, respected and honored, but in the words of the Bible he should 'loose him and let him go.' A child should be psychologically weaned by the time he is an adolescent. He should accept the ordinary conventions and courtesies of society; establish a stable sexual relationship and find work that interests him.

Must Practice Making Decisions.

"Intellectual growth of the child is the ability to make up one's own mind, the speaker continued. Children must have practice making decisions. They must be able to take responsibility, to accept responsibility for others, keep an open mind until all the evidence is in, and be able to face one's own limitations and look them in the eye. We must accept our physical characteristics. None of us has everything, we must get along with what we have. It is important to have an insight into our own personalities and to develop our assets. We need to have a working compromise with life. Our aim should be to develop a philosophy in children to give meaning and purpose to life. We must teach them how to live in a dishonest world without being overwhelmed by dishonesty.

"A child is morally mature when he has learned to treat other individuals as though they were of infinite worth. That is the very cornerstone of religion."

Mr. L. A. Kells presided at the afternoon meeting, and Mr. J. M. Woods, president-elect of the Collegiate Home and School Association, expressed the thanks of the audience to the speaker.

Pte. G. Campbell, Coe Hill, Awarded The Military Medal

Announcement of the award of the Military Medal to Pte. Gerald Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell of Coe Hill, was made today by the Department of National Defence. The award was one of 114 made for gallantry to members of the Canadian army for meritorious service overseas in the Northwest European theatre of war.

Born 23 years ago at Coe Hill, the latest Military Medal winner for Hastings enlisted in August of 1940 and went overseas in May, 1942, to serve with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in the Canadian Infantry Corps.

A stretcher bearer in "B" Company during the assault of his regiment on Leer on April 28, 1945, Pte. Campbell, although himself wounded and under intense shell, mortar and machine gun fire, attended 17 wounded.

His citation reads as follows:

"On April 28, 1945, during the crossing of the Ems river "B" Company was advancing over open ground when they were met with a very heavy concentration of artillery and mortar shelling, along with heavy machine gun and small arms fire. During this barrage "B" Company suffered 17 casualties, among them two of their four stretcher bearers. Pte. Campbell and the remaining stretcher bearer started to evacuate the wounded. While they were moving back with a stretcher case a shell landed and exploded directly under the stretcher, wounding the patient and the two stretcher bearers. Pte. Campbell, neglecting his own wounds, immediately applied first aid to the other two and, summoning an additional man, proceeded once again to evacuate wounded. Being the only stretcher bearer left in the company and disregarding his own safety, Pte. Campbell worked incessantly and speedily until the last wounded man was evacuated. Only then did he stop long enough to dress his own wound and proceed on with his company under heavy fire.

"Pte. Campbell stayed with his company and carried on his magnificent work with cheerfulness until his company consolidated. Only then did he go to the Regimental Aid Post to have his own wounds attended. The bravery and devotion to duty shown by this brave stretcher bearer was an inspiration and example to all about him."

RHINE IS CLEARED OF 700 SUNKEN VESSELS; BRIDGES

Berlin, Sept. 20 —(AP)— The Rhine river has been cleared of some 700 sunken vessels and 15 bridges and is open for navigation from Duisberg to the sea. Daily shipments of coal and grain for liberated Europe are moving on the waterway.

Large Crowds Attend Final Day of Fair; Fine Display of Horses

Belleville exhibition closed Wednesday evening in a blaze of glory despite the deluge of rain that washed out the proceedings of Tuesday. Residents of the city and district poured into the grounds both afternoon and evening to show the directors of the fair board, who have werked long hours to make the exhibition a success, that they appreciated their efforts. It was necessary to curtail the program to a certain extent but those events which could be run off were given in their entirety and the patrons were pleased with the results.

It was found necessary to postpone the harness racing for the grandstand patrons and it can be truly said that had the track been fit to race on the race fans of the district would have seen one of the best meets ever held in this city. There was a large number of horses for the races and some of the best in training.

May Hold Races Later.

It is possible that the fair board may run a meet before the season is completed, and the same high standard will govern their actions. What the patrons missed in the horse racing they made up in watching the judging of the light, carriage, agriculture and heavy draft horses which was carried on in the centrefield before the grandstand. Those, who were more interested in the dairy end of the fair, journeyed to the eastern end of the grounds where the dairy cows were exhibited.

The entry of light horses, especially in the carriage and road classes, was the best ever to be shown in Belleville. Horses from as far west as Georgetown were shown. The hackneys of M. McIntyre received enthusiastic applause as they went through their paces in the ring. The roadster class drew the largest entry and shows that the average rural dwellers still like a "good horse." W. H. Lindsay took the first in this class and first with his roadster team. The lady drivers were away above the average, six outfits entering the ring to be judged.

Heavy Draft Horses Exceptional.

The best showing, however, was in the heavy draft section and some of the most beautiful matched teams, harnessed to fit a king, were shown to an enthusiastic public. The Hastings County Home exhibited a black team that would be hard to beat in any show ring in Canada while the Sawyer-Stoll Lumber Company, T. A. Wilson of Cannington and T. R. Hall, each showed wonderful teams in the heavy draft class with the Wilson team taking the most of the awards. The showing of horses on the halter was exceedingly good and proves that the farmer during the war years had found time to try and improve the breed and keep alive the horse industry.

The Garden Shows before the grandstand both afternoon and evening were witnessed by large crowds. Mr. Garden came to the rescue of the Fair Board and produced the entire show for both performances. The attendance was greater than on the same day last year and it was the opinion of many that had rain not interferred with the fair all attendance records would have been broken. It is understood that the fair will not stand to lose much financially due to the splendid co-operation of everyone in making the last day a grand success.

IN MEMORIAM

GAWLEY — In fond and loving memory of our darling son Wayne, who left us so suddenly one year ago today in his 8th. year.

A little token true and tender,
To tell you Wayne we still remember,
Memories of us all together
Will linger in our hearts forever.
The evening star shines o'er the grave
Of the one we loved but could not save.
The call was sudden, the shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by Mom and Dad and cousin Lois.

Non-Stop Flights ToandFromJapan Regular Soon

By JAMES STREBIG

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP) — Beaten by a 50-to-1 shot, Lt.-Gen. Barney M. Giles believes the Japan-to-United States non-stop run soon will be flown in both directions—and often.

Gen. Giles led a flight of three stripped-down B-29s in an unsuccessful attempt to reach Washington from Sapporo, Japan, without a pause. The big Superfortresses had to sit down at Chicago late yesterday to take on fuel after stubborn headwinds blew away their chances some 6,100 miles and 26 hours after their take-off.

"We hit weather you wouldn't hit once in 50 times," Gen. Giles said after the planes covered the remaining 600 miles to Washington in just more than two hours.

He added that the great circle route over which he led the flight is the shortest one and that the United States will use it often. The route crosses northwest Canada. The planes in yesterday's flight passed over Edmonton.

Matter of Caution.

Gen. Giles disclosed that the fueling stop was more a matter of caution than necessity. — One plane had 1,200 gallons left of the 10,000 which it started; another had 1,000 and the third 700 gallons. The B-29s use around 400 gallons an hour at fast cruising speed.

Uncertain weather made it inadvisable to try to squeeze home, Gen. Giles said, adding that the projected non-stop flight was a "practical test, and not a stunt."

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States army air forces, said the object was to see what could be expected from the B-29. Reason: It had gone from the drawing board directly into production and combat, without all of the usual tests given a new plane.

The flight to Chicago was about 200 miles short of a Russian hop from Moscow to California, and 1,000 miles under the world record set by two British planes in flying from Egypt to Australia.

Argentine Capital Returns to Work

Buenos Aires, Sept. 20—(AP)—Argentina's capital city returned to work today after virtual suspension of commercial and industrial activities yesterday while a throng estimated unofficially at almost 500,000 marched through the streets in a demonstration arranged by opponents of the military government.

The only incident reported was a brush between a group of demonstrators and mounted police as sabre-brandishing officers sought to disperse the group.

Billed as a "march for liberty and the constitution," the parade was marked by frequent shouts of "down with Peron," "down with despotism" and "death to dictatorship" as the crowd roared its defiance of Col. Juan Peron, vice-president and strong man of the government.

An official police communique minimized the size of the demonstrators, asserting that only 65,000 persons participated. But some Buenos Aires' newspapers placed the throng as high as 1,000,000, and called the parade the largest on record here.

Democratic leaders planned another demonstration for tomorrow.

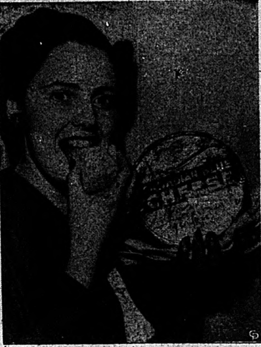
CANADA NOW MAKING BLUE CHEESE



One of the latest developments of the research department of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., is "Blue Canadian Cheese" which contains a type of penicillin. A mould called penicillium rocquefortii is used for the mould culture which produces the distinguished blue mould in the cheese. The cheese is expected to provide keen competition for imported brands of cheese such as French Rocquefort.

Jap Character Must be Changed, Must Get Rid of Mediaeval Ideas

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Gen. MacArthur seems to have stirred up a sizeable cloud of conflicting emotions by his announcement that United States occupation forces in Japan may be cut to some 200,000 within six months — a divergence of opinion which isn't strange in view of the numerous issues involved.

For the soldiers who want to get back home, and for their families, such a cut means one thing. It means quite another to the exponents of using the mailed fist on the Japs. To a further group it means something else, and so it goes. But it strikes me that whatever may be the premise from which you argue you always arrive at the same point, which is this:

We must maintain troops in Japan as long as is necessary to achieve the far-reaching objectives of the Declaration of Potsdam by the Big Three — whether it be one year or 20. We must keep as many soldiers there as are required to enforce this program —whether it be 200,000 or 2,000,000.

The Potsdam edict calls not only for the physical disarmament but for the moral rearmament of Nippon. The very character of the people must be changed, to rid them of their medieval ideas, fit them to govern themselves, and so prepare them for a place among the United Nations.

Now that's a job which can't be accomplished quickly, for it must be done by a process of education.

Of one thing we may be sure, and this is that we aren't going to be able to convert to western ways many of the militaristic-minded people who have passed their youth.

This means that the educational task lies with the young folk, and it must begin with youngsters as soon as they have reached the age of understanding. That's the way both Hitler and Mussolini prepared their countries for aggression. The German anti-Christ went much farther and reared a generation of barbarians who perpetrated some of the worst atrocities known to history.

The lesson is conclusive. It is the young whose natures can be changed easily. And they will respond to good teachings quite as readily as to the wickedness of Hitler and Mussolini. Concentration over a period of say 10 years might turn the trick in Japan.

TRENTON

Architect Will Be Engaged By Hospital Board

Trenton, Sept. 20—At a meeting of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board on Tuesday evening it was decided to call in an architect to prepare final specifications for the building and to determine on what part of the site it will be built. The trustees were pleased with the decision of the ratepayers on July 16th to authorize the council to grant $100,000 to the hospital through issue of debentures.

Plan Clothing Drive.

A committee headed by Norman Banfield will organize and carry the drive for good used clothing for the 130,000,000 needy people of Europe, sponsored by the Canadian United Allied Relief Fund. It is hoped to obtain the use of the schools as reception depots, and the town will be divided into four collection zones, with a downtown zone at the Fire Hall where clothing can be left. Many organizations in the town and at the R.C.A.F. station, Batawa and Frankford have promised to assist the committee to make the drive in Trenton and district a success.

To Unveil Honor Rolls.

Honor rolls containing the names of men of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church who served in the last two wars will be unveiled at the Sunday evening service at the church on Sunday next. The guest speaker will be Lieut.-Col. The Rev. Charles K. Nicoll, a former pastor, and now Senior Chaplain at Camp Borden, on leave from the Presbyterian Church at Oakville.

Col. Nicoll will preach at both morning and evening services, and members of the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion will attend the evening service in a body. Special music will be furnished by the choir, under direction of Mrs. C. V. Wilkins.

Plan New Activities.

At a largely attended meeting of the Trenton Lions Club in the dining room of the new St. James Hotel, President Allan McNab presiding, committees for the year were formed and plans made for fall and winter activities. For the boys' band, sponsored by the club, it was reported that 17 new instruments were recently secured from the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, bringing the number up to 30. Boys are now holding regular weekly practices and it is hoped to have thirty members or more. The report of the Jamboree held this summer showed that it was a very successful event financially and otherwise.

Red Cross Work Resumed.

Work at Red Cross work rooms was resumed again on Tuesday and as the rooms are to be kept open until the end of November it is hoped that assistance will be given in the sewing of civilian garments, mostly for children. Some of these are already cut and must be finished before the rooms are closed. There is an urgent need, too, for quilts and one is always on the frames in the work rooms awaiting quilters.

There is still a considerable quantity of knitting to be done in order to fill quotas, and those who have articles in the making are asked to make sure they are finished and turned in by the end of November at the very latest.

Donations received on Tuesday included two afghans from St. Andrew's Girls' Society, four pairs mittens from Mrs. Winfield, a quantity of woolen material from a friend, $3 from Miss Walker's class and $3 from Miss Young's class at College Street School.

Police Court.

Two Trenton youths who were apprehended Monday night by Trenton police after a short chase, appeared in Trenton police court Tuesday afternoon before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and were charged with joy-riding. They had taken a business man's car off Front Street and were seen driving at an excessive rate of speed at the east end of the town by the police who were investigating an accident at the time. The police gave chase and as a result they were arrested. They were given six months' suspended sentence and ordered to pay costs of $4.50 each.

J. McDonald, charged with assault, was fined $10 and costs.

C. Windover, charged with fraud, was given six months' suspended sentence on making restitution and paying costs.

Six paid the usual $10 and costs for breach of the Liquor Control Act, two others were given a similar penalty but were unable to pay so were sent to the county jail for fourteen days.

Two paid $7.50 for speeding, two were assessed $10 and costs for driving cars without a licence, and one paid $10 and costs for careless driving.

Herman Jones, the driver of a commercial vehicle, was fined $5 and costs for a breach of the Highway Traffic Act. The Act requires that all commercial vehicles be so loaded that no part of the load may become dislodged and fall off. This is the third conviction in Trenton police court in recent weeks for the same offence. The Trenton police have been deluged with complaints of commercial vehicles dropping straw, hay, coal, gravel, etc., and they are determined to put a stop to this practice, and intend laying charges in future.

Nine were up for failing to obey traffic signals and eight paid $4.50 and one was enlarged for a week.

Three paid $2.50 each for breach of parking by-laws.

MARMORA

Rev. E.M. Cadigan Elected President Of Bible Society

Marmora—Rev. E. M. Cadigan was elected president and W. J. Cottrell was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society at the annual meeting held in St. Paul's Parish Hall on Monday evening. W. J. Cottrell presided.

Rev. F. B. Allnutt B. D. field secretary of the society took the chair for the election of president and Rev. E. M. Cadigan as newly elected president presided for the rest of the meeting. The executive for the ensuing year is President, Rev. E. M. Cadigan, vice presidents, Rev. J. M. Brownlie, Rev. L. C. Ball and Rev. J. Stephenson. Secretary-treasurer, W. J. Cottrell.

The means for making the annual canvass for funds for the society will be decided at a meeting of the executive to be held shortly. Rev. F. B. Allnutt then gave a lecture on "China' illustrated with three reels of moving pictures. The salt and rice industries of that vast country which in some parts has a population of 600,000 to the square mile, were interestingly shown on the screen. as well as other of scenes industrials life in China.

After the showing of the pictures the speaker gave a supplementary talk mentioning among other things these interesting facts. There are 45 million new readers in China since 1937 and 40 million in Africa over the same period. Because of this and other large demands upon the society it is greatly embarrassed and needs increased support. In this year 25 million testaments, 1 million testaments and 2½ million gospels will be sent there. A large number of these books is also required by Holland. Since Stalin has permitted the scriptures to enter Russia, gospels and testaments will be sent there as fast as possible.

Germany too has called for the scriptures in their own language. Last year the Upper Canada Bible Society sent 300,000 dollars to the British and Foreign Bible Society's headquarters in old London being as it is an auxiliary of the latter society. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and the benediction being pronounced by Rev. E. M. Cadigan.

DRAGON LOSES CLAW

Considered Japan's No. 1 young-man-most-likely-to-make-good in pre-war years, Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, now is near the top of the list of seven leaders of the Black Dragon Society singled out by Gen. MacArthur for arrest and trial as a war criminal. Hashimoto ordered the 1937 attack on the U. S. gunboat Panay.

WHAT IT SOUNDED LIKE

St. Louis, Sept. 20 —(AP)— "It sounded like this," said the witness as she slapped the counsel's face. Louis J. Reidel was on the receiving end of the demonstration after he asked the witness to describe the sound of a slap which she said she heard but did not see. Reidel was acting as counsel in a peace-disturbance case.

Britain Steps Up Fisheries

Fish is the one important food of which there is any prospect of increase in supply in Britain in the near future. Faced with a shortage of other foods, especially of first class proteins such as meat and cheese, the United Kingdom Government is doing its utmost to restore fish supplies to near their pre-war level in the shortest possible time.

In 1938 there were about 3,800 first-class United Kingdom vessels of all kinds, landing 1,049,000 tons of fish of which 271,000 were herrings. Britain then imported about 100,000 tons of fish and exported 219,000 tons mainly pickle-cured herrings. The quantity thus consumed by the people of Britain was thus 907,000 tons or a little under a pound per head per week.

War came. The best part of the fishing fleet was taken away by the Admiralty for mine-sweeping and other war services, including all the largest, fastest and newest vessels. Of 1,500 trawlers only 370 were left to carry on fishing and only 134 out of 635 herring drifters. By 1941 landings from British vessels had fallen to 250,000 tons about a quarter of pre-war. Imports of fresh fish, mainly from the Faroes and Iceland and of frozen and salted fish, mainly from Canada, Newfoundland and Iceland had gone up to 182,000 tons but even so, the total supplies available were only 49 per cent of those of 1938.

Conditions somewhat improved after 1941 with the removal of the invasion threat some restrictions were relaxed and steps taken to increase imports.

As a result 1944 supplies were about half those of pre-war years. But the demand for fish went up as other foods became short in supply. So fish cues came. Accordingly the number of fishing vessels was increased and fishing grounds closed because of the war were reopened. At the close of 1944 some vessels were released and undertook to release half the requisitioned fleet on VE-Day. It is hoped that the remaining vessels will be released within the next twelve months. Plans have been made to release the necessary number of men from naval service as the boats become free. Dock workers have been stepped up in number.

Priority at the slipways has been given to reconversion to fishing. By August 3rd a total of 450 fishing vessels had been released and of these 100 have been re-equipped and returned to fishing.

Mine-fields have had to be cleared from the fishing grounds which are now more prolific because of the enforced rest during war years. These path-ways have been opened up and there are plans to re-start the big East Anglian autumn herring fishing for the first time since 1939.

Increased catches will be put to best advantage. Surplus fish may now be moved from one zone to another and the labor force is enough to meet the increase in supplies.

As herring seasons are short more fish are caught than can be consumed fresh—so the processes of kippering, pickle curing or salting, making of red herrings will be carried out at all the principal ports. At some of these experimental freezing plants have been installed to save surplus fish for winter consumption. The Ministry of Food will buy all the pickle cured herrings that are not needed on the home market, for export to the liberated countries which bought them freely before the war. Waste will be avoided and fishermen will get a fair return for their work. By the end of the year it is possible that fish supplies may be three-quarters of those of 1938. Winter, however, brings a drop in landings and so not until next spring or early summer of next year will the people of Britain be able to get all the fish they need.

Grand Old Scottish Minstrel

Sir Harry Lauder celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday by singing some of his old-established songs in the BBC Home and Overseas services. The BBC Scottish Orchestra, conducted by Ian Whyte, accompanied him.

The world famous comedian's public appearances nowadays are at longer intervals, but he never stopped entertaining during the war years. Indeed, he supported numbers of charity concerts and helped to raise enormous sums of money for various funds. This particular broadcast was the first public appearance he had made for a fee since the outbreak of the war.

"That Grand Old Scottish Minstrel," as Mr. Churchill called him, receives letters from people all over the world. Most of them have never met him but look upon him as a personal link with Scotland. Since the war, hardly a day has passed without some serviceman calling to see him. While the BBC producer was visiting him to discuss the broadcast, two Canadian air force men came to call. They had heard that Sir Harry lived in the vicinity and had made the journey specially so that they could write back home to Canada to say that they had seen "the one and only Harry Lauder."

In the radio program he revived many old memories. Starting with "Tobermory," he went on to a string of favorites, sentimental and humorous, finishing with that stirring air "Keep Right on to the End of the Road."

Conversion Completed

(Montreal Star)

Near Oldenburg, in Germany, was one of the most fantastic schools of learning of the whole fanatic Nazi regime. Here the smartest, the strongest, the handsomest of Hitler's Aryan Nordics studied for the positions they would occupy as governors of the conquered countries of the world. There were European departments, African sections, Asiatic classes and courses devoted to the Americas. Nothing was being left to chance for that day when the New Order would rule over a subservient world.

The institution is still being used to prepare sturdy young men for the years ahead. But there is a difference. The curricula hardly stand comparison. Now the subjects are carpentry, painting, plumbing, wiring, plastering and the like. It is a school for tradesmen, and the tradesmen in training are men of the Canadian 3rd Division, preparing for the day when their occupation duties in the Reich will be over.

The conversion has been completed.

Man Who Was Never Wrong

(Wall Street Journal)

A new member of a certain government bureau made life miserable for his associates by pretending to absolute infallibility. One day, however, he startled his co-workers by admitting that once he had been wrong.

"You wrong?" exclaimed one of his listeners.

"Yes," replied the infallible man. "Once I thought I was wrong when I wasn't."

Use Helium in Airline Tires

(From "Business Week")

Pneumatic tires on a forthcoming giant airliner will be filled with 26 pounds of helium instead of 180 pounds of air which would normally be required for the job. The net weight (not pressure) saving of 154 pounds will increase the available payload of the craft by exactly that amount. Helium, being an inert gas that has no known chemical affinity for natural or synthetic rubber, should provide an extra dividend in a long tire life.

What appears to be a valuable form of educational safety effort among children is carried on by the school authorities of Suffolk, England. Every time a child is injured in a traffic accident a report is sent by the police to the headmaster of the school which the child attended. The teacher then holds an "inquest" into the circumstances of the accident so that other pupils may benefit from the facts so adduced and become more safety-conscious. This is a realistic approach to the problem and is worthy of the earnest consideration of Canadian authorities.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

HOME THEY COME!

Home they come to children small,
Home to the old, familiar place
Where friends drop in for an evening call
And the windows are curtained with spotless lace;
Where the tasks are clean and sleep can be
And the days from bloodshed and hate are free.

Home they come to the joys they've missed:
The supper time with its chatter gay;
To kiss farewell and in turn be kissed,
And, whistling, start every working day.
Home, where pure are the skies o'erhead
And the children are safe when they've gone to bed.

Home they come to the quiet street
And the little shops and the church of old
And the regular night for the lodge to meet
And the garden with phlox and marigold.
Home, from the perils of war to stay,
To love and grow old in the peaceful way!

"Alone in London" will be the attraction at the opera house this evening. Go early and avoid the rush. No advance in prices. (Advt.)

Michael Cote was rowing up the harbor last evening when he was run down by the steamer Varuna. The boat was demolished and he, being a one-legged man, would possibly have drowned had he not been rescued by men on C. Mullen's scow which was coming into the harbor at the time. He was none the worse for the experience.

Mr. C. R. Clute, Q.C., Toronto, formerly of Belleville, will be in the city tomorrow.

Mr. Ellis Bogart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bogart, Bridge Street East, left for Toronto today where he will enter college.

Dr. Walker, D.D.G.M., of the A.O.U.W. for Quinte District, will pay an official visit to Madoc Lodge this evening.

The "Clippers" Were Faster

In all the history of merchant ships under sail, there was probably no sturdier group than the New York packets on the North Atlantic run nor was any group better adapted to the work at hand. Their builders knew how to fashion faster vessels, but the owners did not want to sacrifice cargo space to speed. Less rugged ships, moreover, could scarcely have withstood the gruelling punishment of the westbound passage, the grimmest steady assignment for any merchantman. Consequently the packets were given stout hulls, tough enough to bear the strains in winter seas and roomy enough to carry profitable cargoes. Then, with potential speed deliberately reduced in construction, the owners expected the officers and men to make up the deficiency as far as possible by constant driving.

Such a group of ships naturally suggests comparison with their much-touted successors, the clippers. In contrast to the more than three hundred clippers crowded into a single decade, there were only one hundred and fifty of the New York "Western Ocean Packets" spread over thirty years and about one hundred somewhat smaller full-rigged ships in the coastal packet lines; not until 1858 did the total number of packets about equal that of the clippers. The clippers were faster, and that has appealed to those who consider ships from the viewpoint of the sportswriter, interested primarily in the breaking of records. They have also attracted the artist, because of the exquisite symmetry of their lines, though the packets had their full share of the beauty inherent in most full-rigged ships. But from other standpoints, the performance of the packets was decidedly the more impressive. They served a vital economic and communication function and generally paid well; an economic history of the clippers would probably find the story of many written chiefly in red ink.—From "Square-Riggers on Schedule," by Robert Greenhalgh Albion. (Princeton: Princeton University Press. 1938.)

Fish and Chips Village Problem

Thaxted —(CP)— When the men of this Essex village went to war the fish-and-chip shops closed down, and now that those men are returning, villagers are anxious for the shops to be reopened.

A delegation of 50 went to the vicar to ask his assistance.

"I am sorry I cannot undertake this job myself," said Rev. Jack Putterill, "but my cooking experience would not reach to such heights."

The vicar, however, is using his influence and one of his church wardens has been in touch with the ministry of food which has promised to consider arranging for release of a fish frier from the forces so that Thaxted may again have its fish and chips.

INDIAN RESEARCH

Bombay—(CP)—With the help of a specially equipped Liberator bomber of the U. S. Air Force, a group of Indian scientists headed by Dr. H. J. Bhabha, 33-year-old Fellow of the Royal Society, will soon make another attempt to probe into the mysteries of the cosmic ray, believed to be the most powerful ray in nature.

Old Ruins Of London Unearthed

An incidental effect of the Nazi bombs that captivated Londoners was the way in which various layers of the city's history were exposed to view, Marquis W. Childs writes in National Geographic Magazine.

The terrific force of the new weapons from the air sheared right down to the foundations that the Romans laid almost 2,000 years ago. When they could take time from fire fighting and rescue work, archeologists had a field day.

Old London Wall.

Large sections of the old London wall have come to light. A piece of the ancient wall was discovered near the Tower of London. Until early in the blitz of 1940 a house had been standing directly on it. Experts who examined it concluded that the section was built in the Middle Ages on a Roman superstructure with a Roman core.

Still another fragment of wall, north of Tower Hill, is believed to have been built in the first century. This would make it part of the wall built just after the time of Boadicea, the British queen who rebelled against Emperor Nero after the death of her husband, A.D. 61.

Early Pottery.

Close to London wall and over a branch of the Walbrook, the stream separating the two hills on which the earliest London was built, first century pottery and other objects covering the whole period of the Roman occupation were found. The discovery was made in the course of sinking shafts to reinforce the basement of Western Union House in Great Winchester Street against air raid damage.

At a level 24 feet below the street and 14 feet below the basement, piles of blackened oak were found rotting in blue clay, and in the clay were grasses and plants "from the roots of London." Parts of basins and dishes made of red Samian ware were found. Two of them were stamped with the marks of potters who worked at La Graufesenque in Gaul between A.D. 70 and 90.

Like Roman Ware.

The earliest fragments are believed to have been pieces of mica-coated ware similar to those made in a Roman potter's kiln nearer the mouth of the Walbrook. They were brought to light along with pieces of several large amphorae, one of which still bears the mark of the potter's thumb.

The Times reported that a roof tile was found which bore the footprints of a dog and a cat. The dog was chasing the cat while the tile was laid out to dry in second century London. The finial of a votive lamp and the rim of an incense-burner indicated the presence of a shrine. A woman's long hairpin in gold-bronze alloy was found with a nail of the same material from a decorated casket.

Iron Stylus.

Other domestic objects discovered were part of an iron stylus, with one end pointed for writing on wax, and part of a shoe. A Saxon dagger blade was found near a Roman roof tile.

Terence Gould of the Western Union Telegraph Company arranged an exhibit of these finds in a showcase with a placard "This is Your History." At his invitation thousands of American soldiers on leave in London viewed this testimony to the city's power of survival through the centuries.

Tomb Opening Since Body-Snatching Days

Sutton, Surrey. England—(CP)—Since the 18th century the tomb of James Gibson and his family has been opened once a year and inspected by the parish priest and his assistant.

Body snatchers were active when the tomb was built 170 years ago and as a safeguard a large sum of money was left in trust by members of the Gibson family for the upkeep and annual inspection of the tomb.

This year Rev. W. J. Wall, assistant parish priest, unlocked the iron door, inspected the coffins, offered prayers for the dead, then locked the door again for another year.

Ceylon Jungle Hides Large Radio Station

Part of the equipment of the British East Indies Fleet, it handles a volume of traffic sometimes as great as that of the wireless stations at the Admiralty.

"We have more than 20 transmitters working 24 hours a day," said H. Kitchen, Royal Navy telegraphist from Purbrock, Hampshire, who is in charge. "We handle signal traffic to Admiralty, Bombay, Calcutta, to ships at sea and to a number of other places."

SLY BUT SALTY

Regina —(CP)— A young miss in a Regina restaurant thought she was getting extra sugar for her coffee when she slyly helped herself to contents of a bowl on the counter while the waitress wasn't looking. She received a jolt, however, when the waitress returned and began filling the salt shakers with the substance in the bowl.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

IODINE AND YOUR HAIR, IF ANY

Nobody ever told me when I was a youth and had all my hair that nearly every one needs a wee bit of iodine every day. Had I known about the body's requirement of iodine I might have kept my hair on longer. You youngsters today can hardly appreciate how fortunate you are to have a guy like Ol' Doc Brady to teach you these things.

If sows get insufficient iodine in feed or water or Iodin Ration their pigs are likely to be hairless. In past years Michigan farmers failed in wool-growing until they learned to supplement the feed and water (both poor in iodine in Michigan) with a suitable amount of iodine.

Youths or adults with hypothyroidism (functional inactivity of thyroid gland), which, at least in my opinion, is synonymous with iodine deficiency, generally have not only dry, dull and waxy or sallow skin, but dry lifeless, falling, prematurely graying hair.

A characteristic sign of hypothyroidism, for instance, is loss of the external or outer ends of the eyebrows. Another familiar manifestation, in women particularly, is partial baldness at the occiput or back of the head. As I already stated, hypothyroidism is essentially due to insufficient iodine—in food, water or special ration.

Now if your hair is not as healthy or luxuriant as you would like, please don't infer that I advise you to take iodine.

I am merely describing here some of the common manifestations of iodine deficiency, nutritional deficiency. I do advise every child and adult who is not under medical care to get an adequate daily ration of iodine. If the food and water in your part of the country fails to provide enough iodine, I suggest that it can do no possible harm if you make sure of getting the iodine your body requires, by eating an Iodin Ration tablet every day. If you already have well developed manifestations of this nutritional deficiency, I suggest that for the first two or three months you eat three times the estimated daily minimum requirement of iodine—that is, eat three Iodin Ration tablets every day — all with food at any convenient time. One tablet daily is preventive. Three a day would be corrective.

One woman, 50, said that before she began taking the Iodin Ration she would part her hair several times to find where the gray showed the least. Now after a year of it she parts her hair anywhere and she is sure it has regained considerable color—where the general effect a year ago was gray her hair now looks brown especially over the temples. I don't know, but I'm confident the Iodin Ration did her hair or her health no harm.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Excessive Consumption of Salt

If a person uses a large amount of salt does it cause high blood pressure and pressure and hardening of the arteries?

(J. A. V.)

Answer — No. But excessive consumption of salt tends to make the person loggy, flabby and even dropsical.

Poor Memory

Is there anything you can take or do to improve your memory. I don't remember as well as I should.

(Mrs. E. H. G.)

Answer — I never did. My alibi since I was a kid in Canadaigua has always been: "Oh, I forgot!" I do not guarantee anything except that it will do you no harm to take an Iodin Ration and a daily supplement of vitamin D, thaimine and riboflavin. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet "Iodin Ration," and inclose ten cents if you want the pamphlets "Young Folks and Old Folks."

Aluminum

Read article in your column some time ago telling the proper way to make coffee, but you did not say what kind of pot. Daughter uses aluminum coffee pot and I understand that is dangerous.

(M.W.)

Answer — We use one in our house. No foundation for the commercially inspired propaganda against use of aluminum ware.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Rattlesnakes do not habitually climb trees, because they are poorly adapted for such an accomplishment, but there is unquestionable evidence that some species do so occasionally.

William T. Hornaday, when he was director of the New York zoological park, wrote: "From our six species of captives, we have learned that rattlers climb bushes with almost as much ease as professional tree-climbers, but in a wild state it seems fairly certain that they rarely do so."

Many species of snakes are expert tree-climbers. For instance, the dreaded mambas or "tree-cobras" of tropical Africa are strictly aboreal and they frequently bite natives on the head and shoulders as they travel through forest and jungle paths.

In art and in stuffed specimens in museums aboreal snakes are often conventionally represented coiled closely around the branches or trunks of trees.

Actually live snakes do not coil their bodies closely around branches.

When a snake climbs a tree it extends the body in a more or less straight line and glides up.

It is able to raise itself by gripping the bark or other projections with the tips of its expanded ribs and pressing against the tree with the concave rows of pointed scales.

When it reaches a branch it does not coil around it but maintains its position by clinging along its upper surface.

Only the tail of a snake is prehensile and capable of being coiled around a limb in corkscrew fashion.

A snake will coil its tail completely around a limb on which it is resting or when it hangs down or reaches toward another limb.

"Bevin Boys" Jump Jobs in Coal Fields

London —(CP)— At least 1,000 "Bevin boys"—young men directed to work in coal mines—have left their posts and cannot be traced, out of 22,000 ordered to this employment since October, 1943.

A young pit worker recently was fined $13.50 at Aberdare, Glamorganshire, for absenting himself from work and the prosecutor, acting for the ministry of labor, said "a rather serious situation is developing in South Wales."

Hundreds of "Bevin boys" had left their employment in this area. More than 400 are said to have disappeared from Scottish coal fields.

Officials said they believed disappearances are not reported in many cases as colliery owners are not anxious to secure their return to the mines.

Mr. Boby spent three years in Cairo, Egypt, and was afterwards stationed at Mountain View, for a short time. He has left for his home in Fredericton, N.B., where he will take a course in civil engineering at the University of New Brunswick.

WEDDINGS

YATEMAN—BOYCE

The marriage took place on Wednesday, September 19, 1945, of Ida Sarah Elizabeth Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyce, Cannifton, and Earl Wellington Yateman, Windsor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yateman, Belleville. The double-ring ceremony took place in Cannifton United Church with Reverend J. R. Trumpour, Cannifton, officiating. Mr. George Ketcheson, Wallbridge, played the wedding music in the church decorated with Autumn flowers and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of eggshell satin fashioned on princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. Her full length veil was caught to her head with flowers and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and gypsophila. Her only ornament was a two-strand necklace of pearls.

Miss Betty Twiddy, Belleville, as maid-of-honor, wore a floor-length gown of pink sheer and a short veil, caught to her head with flowers. She wore a single strand of pearls and a gold bracelet, gift of the bride, and carried a Colonial bouquet.

Mr. Ronald Yateman, Sarnia, cousin of the groom, was groomsman; Mr. Donald Yateman and Mr. Roy Boyce, brothers of the groom and bride respectively, were ushers.

The reception was held in the Quinte Hotel, Belleville. The bride's mother wore an ensemble of plum crepe with black accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groom's mother chose navy crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses. Following the reception, the couple left on a trip to Ottawa and other eastern points, the bride wearing a brown tailored suit with matching accessories. On their return they will reside in Windsor.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful dressing table set; to the best man, a cigarette lighter; to the ushers, leather wallets. The bride's gift to the pianist was a gold tie and collar clip.

Out-of-town guests were present from Detroit, Sarnia Brighton, Colborne, Cobourg and Stirling.

Short Sleeve Fall Fashions Call for Arm Loveliness

Scrub elbows with a heavy brush.

By HELEN FOLLETT

ARMS have been out in the open since early Spring. Some of them look rathet weather-beaten. How about your fins, lady? Do they qualify? Better take a look-see. Pretty arms are a grand good looks asset; it is surprising how many small defects can put them out of the pulchritude picture.

New dresses designed for bridge and tea have short sleeves, and you'll want your arms to be attractive when you fare forth in your new formal for the merry evening.

Inspect Elbows

Inspect your elbows; few of us ever see our own. Some look grey. The skin is coarse and rough there anyway. Moisten a bit of cotton with cuticle remover, attach it with adhesive, let it remain on every night. In the morning, rub the elbows with a cut lemon to give them a mild bleaching, then get busy with a massage cream. When you have your bath, scrub with a heavy brush and plenty of soap suds. Repeat this treatment for several days. That grey, horny coating will disappear.

If the arms are red and rough or speckled with freckles, here is a treatment that will do wonders for them.

Arm Treatments

After scrubbing with hot soap suds, rinsing and drying, apply cocoa butter. Form a bracelet with fingers and thumb of right hand, go sweeping around the left arm, working from wrist to shoulder. Do up and down strokes with heavy pressure. While the cream remains on, apply borated talcum, forming a paste.

Then you holler for mama or sister to come help with your beautifying act. Have her wring heavy Turkish towels out of hot water, wrap around your arms, giving the flesh a good steaming.

Remove the pack with the moist towels. Apply more talcum; friction the flesh vigorously.

This is an excellent treatment if goosie flesh is present, or those tiny red points that sometimes appear.

Shirley Temple Weds Sergeant Army Air Force

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 20. (AP)—Shirley Temple today began what she considers the greatest role of her life—that of Mrs. John Agar.

She married the Army Air Force sergeant last night in a wedding marked by one of the biggest mob scenes in Hollywood history. The former film moppet had wanted a quiet church ceremony.

Fans started gathering at three p.m., in front of the Wilshire Methodist Church. By the wedding time, 8.30, a crowd estimated by the police at 5,000 lined the streets.

Forty-five city, studio and military policemen attempted to hold the crowd back. But they were not enough. When the bride and bridegroom left the church, a shouting throng nearly swamp them. A police lieutenant finally ordered an aisle through the crowd.

500 Guests at Ceremony

If the outside scene was hectic, the ceremony inside was just as Shirley wanted it. The 500 invited guests sat quietly in the church, surrounded by hundreds of pink roses.

At 8.45, Shirley took the arm of her father, George Temple, and walked calmly down the aisle. She was wearing a simple gown of white satin. On her head was a small crown of corded satin, and a long silk net veil draped over the full train.

Dr. Willsie Martin conducted an Episcopalian double-ring ceremony. Shirley performed her role with the deftness of an academy award winner. Her "I will" could be heard in the rear of the massive church.

The handsome 24-year-old groom and his 17-year-old bride received well-wishers at the home of her parents. The reception line lasted two hours.

A large table glittered with more than 200 pieces of Sterling silver table ware. One set had 24 of each piece.

After the reception, the couple left on their honeymoon, which will be spent on a motor trip. He must report back to the Spokane Army Air base in ten days, and she will then return to live with her parents.

NOTICE THE HAT

Eyes on the hat, please—a most wonderful hat, adorned with doughnuts and assorted cookies, an edible hat. Goodness knows why, but there it is. Aren't you looking? Oh, the wearer. Well, she's Olga San Juan of the movies and lots more interesting.

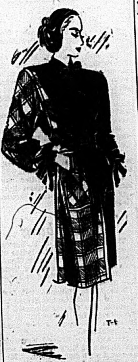
Rainy Day Cheer

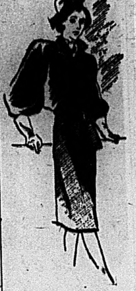


Plaid taffeta raincoat.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

IT'S GETTING so that the girls are praying for rain just so they can wear their pretty raincoats! Calculated to create cheer on the dreariest day is this rain coat of water-repellent plaid taffeta, made with a deep armhole so that it can be worn over suits and full-sleeved dresses. It has string bows pulled through the neckband and string bows at the cuffs. Deep patch pockets, gathers below the belt and inverted pleat at back are other accents.

Waiting For Winter



Dyed muskrat lumber jacket.

By VERA WINSTON.

A NEW AND nice alternative to the ubiquitous loosely cut jacket of fluffy fur is a lumber jacket or a field jacket of flat fur, the sort of garment that teams up beautifully with warm wool on a blustery day. Hudson seal, dyed muskrat, in inky black is used for this lumber jacket made with push-up sleeves and a waistband of black wool that ties at one side. Worn with it is a heavy black wool skirt. Black or colored sweaters or blouses go beautifully with this twosome. It is a very practical and inexpensive fashion, considering its many uses and warm comfort.

Warworker Beauty May Enter Movies

Winnipeg —(CP)— Top honors in a beauty contest at MacDonald Aircraft plant here last summer followed by publication of her picture in Canadian newspapers set off a chain of events that might lead to a Hollywood movie role for Mrs. Roy Diell of Winnipeg.

Mrs. Diell, formerly Evelyn Sorenson, was married last October, the day after she was chosen pin-up girl by the men of H.M.C.S. St. Francis at Cornwallis, N.S., and H.M.C.S. Kenora at London, Ont. She received letters from every one of the 1,200 sailors.

Last winter crew members of the English ship H.M.S. Banbara sent her picture to Frank Ross productions in Hollywood as their choice in a contest to find the girl to play Salome in The Robe.

The winner will be decided sometime in September and to date Evelyn has received encouraging letters about her chances from the publicity manager of Frank Ross productions.

She's not counting her chickens yet, however, and realizes she "might not win at all."

Emergency Boatwomen No Longer Training

London —(CP)— The training of women bargees under a Ministry of War Transport scheme is to be discontinued. Further volunteers for a two-month course are not likely to be accepted.

Only a few of the pioneer crews of these emergency boatwomen now are at work. Their training at first was on shore, but later they went afloat and learned canal navigation, barge management, handling cargo, working locks and operating engines.

Women's Activities

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The Sept. meeting of the Plainfield W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. Edna Sullivan with an attendance of nineteen ladies.

The President, Mrs. Elliott opened the meeting.

Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Prindle were appointed to buy the 192 lbs. of honey for the Red Cross as the members did not get berries to make their sugar quota up in jam this year.

It was decided to send boxes to all the boys overseas for Christmas.

A letter from the Salvation Army headquarters was read asking for clothing, new and used, to be sent to Toronto to be forwarded to England for the children.

The Roll Call was well responded to. Mrs. Prindle reported on war work. Mrs. Denyes reported on knitting. Several articles of sewing were handed in.

Mrs. McKenzie gave a splendid paper on "Rubber from the time it was first discovered, till its uses today". Solo by Mrs. Moore. Current events were given by Mrs. F. Hall. Mrs. Clarence Hall thanked the members for the many cards and gifts sent to Mr. Hall during his illness.

National Anthem and Grace were sung, and Mrs. Sullivan and her assistants served refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Hazzard bought a gift for W. O. Bailey, who has left to reside with his wife and daughter in England, and they presented him with a dozen silver teaspoons and an engraved baby spoon for his little girl.

Bill spent many years in this community prior to joining the army.

He went overseas in Dec. 1939, saw action in France, Holland and Italy, was wounded and returned to Canada in February of this year. All join in wishing him the best in life.

Fashion Flashes

THE SEAL OF FASHION is an Alaska seal shortie, a very youthful version of a fur associated with the mature type. Black Alaska seal-skin makes a 25-inch jacket with high collar line, box front, and a belted back are high accents for a jacket nice with long or short skirts.

Leisure beauty is at hand in the guise of some superbly-done housecoats. Our favorite is a coat of pale pink wool crepe, a double-breasted model, with tucked waistline. Pointed, sweeping revers, buttons and pocket flaps are all in purple velvet.

The new look is nowhere more apparent than in fur coats. A window-stopper is a coat of fine black Persian lamb made with deep armholes, push-up sleeves and a tie belt with tabs of bright silver fox that matches the two-striped silver fox border.

Real glitter appears in one or two high fashion dresses. Soft blue and silver metal cloth is used for a superbly-cut and draped full-length dinner dress with a single shoulder strap of midnight blue sequins.

Taller and taller grow the crowns of autumn millinery. Black fur felt is used for a tall drum-top toque trimmed with elongated diamonds of black and gold braid with gold and black tassels.

JAPANESE REGIME ENDS IN HONG KONG AS BRITISH TAKE OVER

After nearly four years in Japanese hands, Britain's Crown Colony of Hong Kong is British again. Here is the Japanese garrison marching to ships which took them to the mainland of China to be disarmed and interned after the British reoccupied the colony. Rear Admiral C. H. J. Harcourt took over the city.

How Britain's Heritage Is Saved for the People

(By Montague Smith in the London Daily Mail (Transatlantic Edition)

Every American coming to Britain to see its beauty spots or historic places will be under an obligation to the National Trust.

It is nearly true to say that it is impossible to travel more than 20 miles in Great Britain today without entering some property owned by the Trust, and preserved, for all time, as a national memorial.

The Trust is now, indeed, the largest of British landlords, owning 110,000 acres, and protecting by means of restrictive covenants, a further 40,000, comprising nearly 500 different properties and covering in all 172 square miles.

Visitors may think it an odd, and in some ways a typically British institution.

For it grew out of almost nothing, an idea in the minds of three people who, just 50 years ago, looked around them and decided that something should be done to save the heritage of the past from the vandalism of the day.

• • •

That was in 1895, the richly complaisant days of the nineties, when the craze for "modernity" went hand in hand with luxury, and few saw what the 20th century was to threaten to rural Britain.

The mind of Britain has changed now. The war has accentuated the change, its experiences turning the minds of men and women more and more to memories of past examples and the loveliness of a defended land.

History has become fashionable and historic momuments are cherished.

That awakening of public conscience would have come too late but for the three pioneers of the National Trust.

One, Miss Octavia Hill, was a famous person in her day, a leader in the emancipation of women and in Victorian rehousing schemes for the working classes.

She was the first to coin the phrase "a green belt", now so familiar in the mouths of town planners.

The second was Sir Robert Hunter, a lawyer, and then solicitor to the Post Office. The third, was a county parson, Canon Rawnsley, vicar of Wray, in Westmorland.

It was he who provided the inspiration on which his two fellow enthusiasts worked.

• • •

The National Trust originated in a visit he had paid to a Mrs. Fanny Talbot, at Barmouth, in North Wales. He suggested to her that if the proposed National Trust got under way, she should present 1½acres of it.

He returned to his colleagues in London with her promise, and the Trust began with a small property (which it still has), known as Dinas Oleu, overlooking Cardigan Bay.

The movement, thus begun grew slowly at first, but with increasing momentum at the beginning of the present century.

Today the Trust is almost embarrassed by the number of gifts people seek to shower upon it.

A catalogue of all its properties, recently issued to celebrate the Trust's Jubilee, reads like the geography of British history, and of times even more remote.

It begins with the Neolithic memorials, the storied sites of Avebury and Stonehenge, passes onward to Saxon burial grounds and Roman camps, embraces the Thames island of Runnymede, near Windsor, where Magna Carta was signed, reminds us of Shakespeare and Tudor England, and does not omit the relics, particularly the literary shrines, of the Victorian era.

The Trust owns ruined castles and abbeys; cottages and whole villages; famous inns; great country houses; and thousands of acres of mountain, valley, moor, fen, forests, and cliffs which are the panorama of natural beauty.

Today the Trust is undoubtedly a successful landlord. It makes a profit of many thousands of pounds yearly on the administration of its properties after every possible care has been given to them.

• • •

This profit, supplemented by large public subscriptions and donations, is wholly used for the acquisition of such new properties as are not themselves gifts.

Its success as a landlord is due to its unique position. It has to pay neither income tax nor death duties on any property it has fully adopted, and that explains the significant fact that, during the war, the actual acreage owned by it more than doubled.

More and more of the old landed gentry of England, the former "squires," now find it impossible to maintain their old country seats and estates owing to high taxation. They offer them to the Trust to hold and administer.

In many cases the Trust accepts and the former owners continue as its tenants, subject to certain provisions as to the admission of the public, at convenient times, to the grounds and interior treasures.

This is convenient on both sides, but poses a problem which is likely soon to provoke State interference.
